No One Starving in Cuba But Lack of Choice Makes Shopping Lists Obsolete

HAVANA (AP) — No one starves in Cuba these days, three months after Premier Castro announced food rationing, but lack of choice makes shopping less choosie.

The quotas are being met, although it is not unusual for certain foods to arrive late at stores. Most Cubans, however, receive monthly a chicken, five eggs, two ounces of butter and other rationed foods.

These include, in the Havana area, two pounds of lard or oil, six pounds of rice, one bar of yellow soap and one of beauty soap and one medium box of detergent a month. Beef is doled out 12 ounces a week.

Although Castro pounced the new ration booklets would eliminate food lines, housewives continue to spend considerable time waiting for their share of potatoes, yams and other rationed vegetables.

On visit to a supermarket showed that the only foods sold without a ration book were: Tomato extract and sauces, brown sugar, honey, bread and crackers, spices and salt, worcestershire and chili sauces.

Sixth once-common items as lobster, milk and pork were unavailable.

AT A PRICE

Still, additional food can be had, at a price. Hungry Havana eaters jam the few workers in selected restaurants and choose their fare from a small but, by Cuban circumstances, tempting menu. A meal may cost 10 pesos or more. The official rate of exchange puts the peso on par with the United States dollar.

Despite the shortages many residents are experiencing belline problems, a face some physicians attribute to the high starch diet.

The most generously rationed items are rice and beans.

Sweets and pastry, much loved snacks in Cuba, are not rationed and are available all over Havana. There is also no visible shortage of bread.

Child Neglect Charge Laid Against Woman

TORONTO (CP)—Jean Callaghan, 41, has been charged with child neglect following a raid on a house where 23 children were allegedly crowded into three rooms.

Police and public health authorities raided the house occupied by Mrs. Callaghan Thursday following complaints by neighbors.

They said a woman and several teen-agers passed children down a ladder at the back of the house into a waiting car while they were trying to enter through the front door.

Police stopped one vehicle with 16 children but seven were whisked away in a second car.

Police said parents had driven the children to a comfortable-looking house at another address. They were then transferred to the second house.

Children's Aid Society officials said some of the children showed signs of undernourishment and had severe diaper rash, high temperatures and diarrhea.

The charge against Callaghan was laid Wednesday by Magistrate Robinson, supervisor of the protection department of the Metro Toronto Children's Aid Society. The case will be heard June 27.

'Phantom' Army Will Be Cleared From Country

VIENTIANE (Reuters)—The three-nation International control commission on Laotian neutrality today faced the formidable task of clearing the country of the "phantom" army of Communist North Vietnam troops roaming its jungles and high plateaus.

Meanwhile, Western fears were growing over the announcement Tuesday that pro-Communist Prince Souphanouvong will be in charge of the three-nation coalition government when Premier Prince Souvanna Phouma leaves Friday for a visit to France.

Souvanna named Vice - Premier Souphanouvong, a year younger than right-wing strongman Gen. Phoumi Nosavan—also a vice-premier—as his stand-in shortly after signing an agreement that gives his neutralist faction the dominant position in the coalition, to take effect next week.

Under the provisional agreement on Laotian neutrality drawn up at the Geneva conference of Laos, all foreign troops must be cleared out of the country within 75 days after the agreement is formally signed by the different members and the coalition government.

But officials of the commission—made up of Canada, Poland and India—estimate the job may take two years.

United States military sources say there are about 1,000 troops from North Viet Nam in the Laotian jungles — half of them in full-dress North Vietnamese uniform — and another 300 men in the country.

Slow Response Foils Attempt To Rob Bank

TORONTO (CP) — A teen-aged girl teller's slow response to a holdup man's note foiled an attempt to rob a downtown bank.

Joan Downing, 19, said a tall, good-looking man passed her a note Wednesday which read: "Give me all your bills—20s—50s—100s. Then go to the washroom and wait 10 minutes. If you do this I'll kill you."

"He was very polite," Miss Downing said. "When he reached in his pocket after handing me the note he said: 'Come on, give it to me.' I thought he was going to shoot. But then he suddenly walked out. I was just about to give him the money I had in my till."

George Finlay, acting manager of the bank, said 25 members of the bank staff and about 10 customers were unaware of the holdup attempt until after the man fled.

Eva Anderson Acquitted on Perjury Charge

The charge was laid in connection with her testimony at the trial of a man accused of beating gambler Max Bluestein with a pistol.

Mrs. Anderson testified at the trial last June that she received no telephone call the morning.

Witnesses at her trial, however, testified Mrs. Anderson received a phone call and was heard to say: "I am not scared of you, Johnny, I have some brothers who will take care of you."

John (Pops) Papalia, Frank Marchildon and Fred Cipolla were convicted of beating Bluestein.

Detective - Sergeant Bill Weaver, was acquitted.

He testified that testified the alleged telephone call could have been erased from Mrs. Anderson's memory by hysterical amnesia.

Parts Shortage Closes Assembly Plants Down

DETROIT (AP) — The Ford Motor Company Wednesday began a shutdown of assembly plants shutdowns affecting thousands of workers because of what it called a parts shortage resulting from a strike at its Cleveland stamping plant.

Ford Wednesday closed its Wixom, Mich., plant, laying off about 3,500 hourly workers. The company said it would close assembly plants at Lorain, Ohio, Mich., and Kansas City after today's production shifts, laying off another 8,000 men.

A Ford spokesman said if the strike continues "other facilities" are that after Friday all Ford assembly plants would be closed, putting 35,000 workers out.

He said there were no immediate plans to close other manufacturing facilities but that they also could be affected in a continuing strike.

Local 420 of the United Auto Workers union began a strike at the Cleveland factory June 6. Work standards are being disputed.

Socred Leader Outlines Aims Of Party

OTTAWA (CP)—Social Credit Leader Robert Thompson said Wednesday night that if his party is elected to office it will wipe out deficit financing, lower taxes and put the country on a pay-as-you-go system.

Speaking in a free-time CBC radio network broadcast, Mr. Thompson said there now is a national economic "chaos" that a Social Credit government could rectify. He said it is comparable to the provincial chaos that existed in Alberta and British Columbia, which now were out of debt and growing fast.

Mr. Thompson said the electorate is starting to recognize the gravity of Canada's economic situation.

Expedient welfare programs had taken precedence, with budgeting relegated to afterthought. Deficits had come to be accepted as "the only way out."

PROTECTS ENTERPRISE

Mr. Thompson said Social Credit is dedicated to the preservation and extension of private enterprise economy.

This would involve encouraging individual and corporate enterprise, and an end to "exploitation of the economy by vested interests and combines."

A Social Credit government would increase family income tax exemptions and depreciation allowances on private homes.

Mr. Thompson repeated his earlier pledge to extend family allowances to include students through 20 years of age.

RAISE PRICE

GLOVERSVILLE, N.Y. (AP) — The Leader - Herald, a daily evening newspaper in this city near Albany, is raising its newsstand price to 10 cents from seven and home-delivery price to 50 cents a week from 42. Increases in publishing costs are given as the reason.

Starling Has Been Evicted From Her Home

OTTAWA (CP)—City hall's pugnacious starling has been evicted from its home to guard against possibility of an aerial attack on Guards Mother Elizabeth.

The starling had its nest atop the coat of arms hanging above the entrance to the modernistic building.

The nest was just below a balcony to be used today by the Eleven Mothers' City Building Superintendent W. F. Bennett says the bird "attacked everybody who went out there."

The Queen Mother is going to use the balcony tomorrow so we had to get rid of it."

Workmen placed the nest—containing "three or four eggs and one little bird"—in a tree on the city hall property.

Mary Garden Sings Again For Patients

ABERDEEN, Scotland (AP) Mary Garden — one of the world's great opera stars of the past—has sung again.

Now 85, and recovering from a fall in which she broke both arms, she sang to what must have been one of her most unusual audiences.

Seated in a chair, the soprano with the golden voice sang to patients, nurses and doctors packed into a ward of Aberdeen's Royal Infirmary.

"It's the first time I've sung in public for many, many years," she said.

When she finished singing — and heard the applause—her eyes filled with tears.

Her performance was Monday—and the story leaked out Wednesday.

At the age of six, Miss Garden was taken to New York by her family. The family eventually settled in Chicago where she received her early training.

Before the turn of the century she studied in Paris and made her debut at the Opera Comique in 1900. In 1907, she made her first appearance in the United States in the title role of Thais in New York.

She retired in 1934 and returned to the city of her birth a few years ago.

Many Countries Interested In Indian Intentions to Purchase Russian Jets

By CARMAN CUMMING
Canadian Press Staff Writer

In his usual deliberate fashion, Prime Minister Nehru discusses possible purchase of Soviet jets for India as casually as he might talk about buying a new fleet of staff cars.

"We have not come to any final decision or agreement about it yet," he told his press conference Wednesday. "We are considering all aspects."

And there are many aspects indeed. At least half a dozen capitals are keenly interested in which way Nehru will decide. Pakistan, which received a trickle of 104 American warplane fighter - bombers from the United States last year, would consider Indian purchase of MiG fighters as new proof that India intends aggression in Kashmir.

SAYS AIR FORCE WEAK

Nehru made clear that India had its northern neighbor in mind in its "pretty thorough" inquiries about the possibility of buying MiGs and later manufacturing them under licence in India.

"We have felt for some considerable time that our air force was relatively weak, more especially after some much later type of aircraft was given as aid to Pakistan."

He also made clear that India would feel free to use the Soviet-developed planes against Communist China if their border dispute worsens.

Thus Peking is not likely to be pleased at the prospect of its Russian allies selling MiGs to its Indian adversaries.

BENEFITS TO MOSCOW

For Moscow, there are obvious advantages to such a sale. So far India has bought only British and French combat aircraft. Any Indian move to lessen the lure of its forces with the Western powers and increase them with Russia could only be to the latter's advantage.

Britain, while regretting the loss of sales and lessening ties, would also be naturally worried at the prospect of Soviet technicians working alongside Indian forces equipped with British arms.

In Washington, Indian purchase of Soviet MiGs would provide wide heavy ammunition to the numerous critics of the Nehru regime.

Only a month ago the senate foreign relations committee was blaming India's military buildup and unco-operative attitude, voted to cut off the entire $270,000,000 from U.S. aid to that country for the year starting July 1. Most of the cut was restored later, but only at the urging of the administration.

Problem Being Met by Govt. Says P.M.

OTTAWA (CP)—Prime Minister Diefenbaker Wednesday night repeated on television the government has the problem of the day at Brantford—that his government has "licked" unemployment.

"We have this problem of unemployment and I say that advisedly," Mr. Diefenbaker said in a question-and-answer program filmed previously for broadcast over the Toronto and Hamilton CBC-owned CTV television network.

The prime minister said that for eight or nine months the amount of employment in Canada has been going up and the amount of unemployment has been going down. He continued:

"Why? Simply because of the government's policies — expanding trade, expanding development, making it possible for industrialization of this country."

He said meeting unemployment has been a "tremendous undertaking—a great problem."

"The United States has it. So have we, but not to the same degree."

"I am not asking for any sympathy," said Mr. Diefenbaker.

COMPLAINS OF ATTACK

"But no prime minister has received a more unprecedented and continuing propaganda attack on him than I have."

"When it's well founded, when it's justified, when it's proper, criticism is one of the essence of democracy.

"But when a political party, in order to achieve its political ends, degrades the country all over the world and preaches the doctrine of doom and gloom—then indeed the Canadian people are not going to swallow that kind of thing, and that is an understatement."

The Canadian, Saturday Night To Be Merged

TORONTO (CP) — Publisher Percy Bishop says "there is a distinct possibility" he will merge The Canadian and Saturday Night magazines.

"The Canadian would be absorbed by Saturday Night to make it a stronger publication," he said in an interview Wednesday.

Mr. Bishop launched The Canadian, a monthly magazine devoted to business and national affairs, last November.

Four months earlier he bought Saturday Night and Liberty magazines from Jack Kent Cooke, former owner of CKEY radio station in Toronto and present owner of the Maple Leafs in the International Baseball League. Mr. Cooke now lives in Los Angeles.

POSTS REDISTRIBUTED

The proposed merger has been preceded by a reshuffle of executive posts on Saturday Night and the Pengate Publishing Company Limited—the company Mr. Bishop formed to acquire Liberty and Saturday Night.

Arnold Edinborough, formerly Pengate president and editor of Saturday Night, now is editor and publisher of the twice-monthly magazine.

Harold Cook, formerly secretary-treasurer of Pengate, has moved up to the president's office.

Richard M. Belden, formerly associate editor, has been appointed executive editor of Saturday Night. He succeeds Herbert McManus, whose title was managing editor. Mr. McManus now is contributing editor.

EDITORS LEAVE

Mr. Bishop said some Saturday Night and Liberty employees left the magazines two weeks ago "because we didn't need them." Of the 75 left, "a few more will be going" if the merger takes place.

Saturday Night has been in the red for years while Liberty has been a money-maker, Mr. Bishop says this is still the case.

He said The Canadian has a circulation of about 50,000 and Saturday Night sells more than 80,000.

Mr. Bishop said in an interview Mr. Edinborough found "the executive turnover had of president cutting into his editorial work and his outside speaking engagements."

He said his move to president from the post of secretary-treasurer of the company "is a natural development" as he is associate editor of Maclean-Hunter Publishing Company Limited—the parent company of Pengate.

Wage Dispute Turned Over To Trustees

PORT WILLIAM (CP)—The board of school trustees negotiating committee will open contract talks with the Ontario English Catholic Teachers' Association in a wage dispute between teachers and the Port William separate school board.

The board made the decision to refer the disputed negotiations to the provincial body at a meeting Tuesday night.

The dispute, centred around wages, involves a new system of payment according to classification.

The teachers' association says the 1961-62 schedule in Port William separate schools provided a $3,000 minimum and $5,400 maximum salary for allqualified teachers.

Association President Patrick Hogan said that effective Sept. 1, the board offered a minimum $3,000 and $4,900 maximum which represented a $500 reduction in pay for teachers with basic qualifications.

The teachers are requesting a minimum of $3,100 and maximum of $5,500. Any increase over $100 over the present schedule the trustees' negotiation committee includes Lloyd Bandy-Cornwall; Howard Hughes, Oshawa, Andrew Sheedy, Niagara Falls, and Francis J. Carter, London.

About half the 75 teacher employed here by the board have qualified resignations to back up demands. Three teachers resigned to further their education have resigned along with 36 enforcing demands.

Indians Claim School Texts Distort Image

QUEBEC (CP) — The royal commission on education has been told that revision of school texts would be a first step to erasing a distorted public image of Indians.

A sarcastic and often humorous brief presented on behalf of Quebec's 20,000 Indians said Wednesday this would be a first raised by three centuries of blow by the "ethnic" well prejudiced texts.

It urged that the word "sauvage" (savage) be replaced by "Indien" (Indian) by French-language newspapers, text books and on the radio. Rather than issue new texts, a list of corrections to present ones could be sent teachers, it suggested.

The committee that presented the brief included Chief Alphonse Picard of the nearby Loretteville Huron reserve and other Indian leaders in the province.

URGE DRASTIC STEPS

They urged drastic measures —and suggested cutting off subsidies—to any school practising discrimination or refusing Indian children.

In an aside, the brief asked that the name of the main entrance to the Quebec legislature be changed from Porte du Sauvage to Porte de L'Indien.

Going into detail on textbook history, the brief said that the white man's victories always depicted as fears of arms while those of the Indians are massacres. The white treachery that brought about such "massacres" always was forgotten.

The brief noted that the Iroquois Five-Nations Confederation was a model of the later United States and Canadian unions.

DISLIKES DEFICTION

Later, Majella Bureau, a member of the committee presenting the brief, mentioned the CBC television series Radisson, in which, he said, the Huron was depicted as cowardly and lazy and the Iroquois as courageous.

Such comparisons should not be made, he said.

Chief Picard said the series had caused great indignation of his Huron reserve last year.

"The Pegged Dollar"

A FULL DOLLAR AT HOME
A TRADING DOLLAR ABROAD
A BOON TO ALL CANADA

Last year—in order to boost Canada's trade abroad and encourage sales of made-in-Canada goods at home—the Diefenbaker Government discounted Canada's trading dollar.

This step was cheered by the Canadian Congress of Labour which said, in a brief to the Government, "The Congress also notes with satisfaction the continuing increase in export trade... we believe Canada is justified in following an exchange depreciation policy."

The Senate Manpower Committee approved. It attacked the Liberal premium-dollar policy, pointed out that it "operated to the disadvantage of our export industries and has also an adverse effect on Canadian industries selling in Canadian markets."

Mr. Walter Gordon, Liberal brain-truster, wrote a book on Canada's economy. He recommended pegging the dollar and is quoted as saying, "Two basic essentials are to cut rates of interest here in Canada and lower the value of the Canadian dollar in relation to the U.S. one."

At its last convention in Ottawa, the entire Liberal Party supported the policy of pegging Canada's dollar.

Canada's dollar is the same at home as it was before it was pegged. The Prime Minister has said, "The external rate of the Canadian dollar, whether at premium or discount, is completely different and distinct from the domestic dollar — the dollar you use to support yourself and your family— that dollar is still a one-hundred cent dollar."

But abroad, it is a more competitive dollar. It will help sell made-in-Canada products — from the factories, the farms, from Canada's fishing, mining and lumbering industries. And Canada's tourist industry, which under the Liberals fell into a multi-million dollar deficit position, is swiftly moving into a surplus position.

Why are the Liberals now attacking the pegged dollar? Purely for political purposes — the election. Prime Minister Diefenbaker is right: it is their policy "to rule Canada or ruin it."

When the Liberal Party ruled Canada, it stood for tight money, high taxes, huge trade deficits abroad. Canadian industry was driven to the wall because of the flood of foreign goods into Canada. Wheat was piled to the sky on the farms in Western Canada. Thousands of Canadians lost jobs and income as a result of Liberal policy.

In 1954, Canada's trade unions marched on Ottawa and informed the Liberal Government there were 500,000 unemployed in the Nation, even though the labour force was much smaller than today's. The Liberals did nothing.

Three years later, they were thrown from office.

The new Conservative Government put an end to tight money; it held the line on inflation, keeping down the cost of living. It reduced taxes so that 85% of Canadians today are paying less income tax than they would have under the last Liberal tax schedule.

Fifty percent of the wheat surplus has been sold. In 1961, Canada had its first trade surplus in many years.

More than 500,000 new jobs have been created for Canadians.

The people of Canada are now moving into one of the greatest eras of expansion in our history. Pegging the dollar is a big boost to Canadian employment, production and trade.

After 4½ years of decisive action, the Government of John Diefenbaker has finally ended Liberal tight money, Liberal inflation, Liberal trade deficits—and it has beaten back the Liberal recession.

All of 3 Riding Candidates Use Plane for Campaigning

By JIM WHEELY

YELLOWKNIFE (CP) — The Northwest Territories federal election campaign is really up in the air, with all three candidates dependent on aircraft and one of them piloting his own.

Social Credit candidate Ayliffe (Paul) Carey, 33, of Fort Smith, N.W.T., is a charter pilot for Pacific Western Airlines and nowhere more at home than at the controls of a DeHavilland Beaver.

Eugene Rheaume, 29, of Fort Smith, Progressive Conservative, and Mrs. Isabel (Tibbie) Hardie, 40, of Ottawa, Liberal, are using scheduled flights where possible and chartering smaller aircraft to reach more remote places.

The 1,300,000 - square - mile constituency stretches so far from south to north—more than 700 miles below and above the Arctic Circle — that it encompasses three distinct climates this month, equivalent to southern Canada's winter, spring and summer.

Spring, or breakup, is moving northward along a jagged east-west front and its progress dictates what equipment an aircraft must carry — pontoons, wheels or a combination of wheels and skis.

Mrs. Hardie's choice for the first week of June was a chartered plane with floats. She started from Yellowknife, hopping to follow breakup down the Mackenzie River to the Arctic Ocean before June 18.

The previous week she had had her first mishap, at Contwoyto Lake, site of a mining exploration camp and Eskimo settlement 250 miles northeast of Yellowknife.

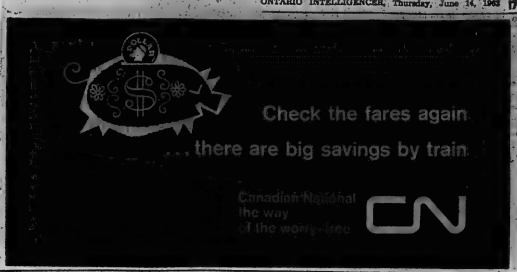
The lake-ice runway, softened by a day's warm sunlight and rutted by frequent landings of Bristol freighter aircraft, tore off a wheel - ski tail carriage. With no repair facilities handy, this meant a sizlful two - week takeoff by Chuck McAvoy in the Cessna and a tricky landing back here. It also meant a one - day delay of a trip to Cambridge Bay.

Farther north, among the seas, bays and fiords surrounding Canada's Arctic islands, this is the time of year for fogs, as the first faint breath of spring spills over the winter's ice.

On his way to Cape Dorset on southwestern Baffin Island, Mr. Rheaume and his pretty, blonde wife Helen lost 2½ days. Their chartered ski - wheel Beaver was forced by low clouds to set down 30 miles from Cape Dorset at a landing strip seven miles from Fox 2, a 20-man DEW line site.

NO CAMPAIGNING

The all-male station thoughtfully posted a sign: "This washroom for the use of Mrs. Rheaume only." The visitors were lodged with typical northern hospitality. Political campaigning, however, is not allowed at DEW line stations.



Low clouds moved in again while the Rheaumes were visiting Resolute, 1,500 miles northeast of Edmonton on Cornwallis Island, grounding them three days and putting another kink in their planned 22,000 - mile schedule.

If Pat Carey was having any such troubles, he was keeping them to himself. He was campaigning wherever he landed, but even his representative in Yellowknife didn't know where he was going to put down next.

He is one of northern Canada's senior bush pilots, and one of the most careful, stopping in windy, 30 - below - zero weather to top off a gas tank that will hold one more quart rather than be forced to wish he had.

Mr. Rheaume probably speaks for all three candidates when he says the constituency is easier to cover than Churchill, the Manitoba riding where his cousin, Robert (Bud) Simpson, is seeking re-election as a Conservative.

"Most of the places he has to reach are more remote than mine because he can't reach them by aircraft . . . It's not hard to get around this country. You just relax with an aircraft strapped to the seat of your pants."

Douglas Draws Big Attendance At Vancouver

VANCOUVER (CP) — New Democratic Party Leader T. C. Douglas issued a declaration against election rowdyism as the newsboys night on the same stage where Prime Minister Diefenbaker was nearly drowned out by the tumult of the crowd two weeks ago.

He made the statement before a responsive, orderly audience of approximately 10,500—largest of his campaign—at his final West Coast appearance before next Monday's general election.

Today, the NDP leader adds another 1,200 miles to his itinerary with a jet flight east to Winnipeg for his fifth mass rally in four nights.

Mr. Douglas, climaxing his campaign with rallies in Canada's largest cities, flew 2,400 miles across the country from Toronto, following full - hours meetings in Toronto, Hamilton and Montreal.

Wednesday night's crowd filled the 11,000-seat Pacific National Exhibition Forum and another 1,200 into the adjoining 2,500-seat Gardens and onto the lawns outside.

PILE UP QUIETLY

With the city fire warden enforcing the arena's attendance regulations on the aid of automatic counting machines, the large crowd filed quietly into their seats.

When Mr. Diefenbaker spoke here the day he estimated 9,000 streamed into the Forum. The scene then was one of turmoil, including the shower of fist-fights on the floor and continual interruptions.

Mr. Douglas, who made a speech in each arena, noted that the first of the "serious demonstrations" at Mr. Diefenbaker's meetings had taken place in Vancouver.

"Some of these demonstrations which have taken place right across the country may have been organized by his political opponents. To the best of my knowledge, the New Democratic Party has never been responsible in any way for any organized opposition."

He added that at the Cheimsford, Ont., "riot" June 2 "there has been overwhelming evidence that the Liberal party was not unconnected with the rowdyism."

"I regret and deplore any rowdyism at public meetings. It has no place in the political discussion in a democracy."

ARE 'RESENTFUL'

However it should not be forgotten, Mr. Douglas said, that hundreds of thousands in Canada are bitterly resentful because they voted for Mr. Diefenbaker in 1958 in the belief he was sincere when he said no one would suffer from unemployment while he was prime minister.

"Therefore, it was not surprising that in 1962 Mr. Diefenbaker found, on coming back to Vancouver where he made the statement four years ago, that the chickens had come home to roost."

The first hour-long address dealt mainly with the NDP policies on unemployment, medical health care and nuclear arms.

At one stage he criticized the governments of the past for denying federal civil servants the right of collective bargaining.

The second, brief address consisted of an exhortation to party followers for a final spurt in the dying days of the campaign. He warned them not to be surprised if some "terrible story" about the NDP appeared in the press between now and the election.

Such a story might be about an NDP candidate who beat his wife, or had received a personal letter from Soviet Premier Khrushchev, or was a relative of Adolf Hitler.

MENTIONS EXPENSES

A note concerning NDP finances also was injected. Party officials announced they took in $5,328 in a pass-the-hat collection, while Mr. Douglas indicated the party's total campaign expenses are below $350,000.

He had heard that this figure was what it cost the Conservatives to produce a special supplement in last week's edition of Weekend Magazine.

Mr. Douglas' arrival here was marked by a 120-car, police-escorted motorcade through city constituencies. A barrage of firecrackers greeted him in Chinatown, where some 1,000 persons saw him meet local Chinese-Canadian dignitaries.

Jobless Problem 'Licked' Says Prime Minister

By ROBERT RICE

GUELPH, (CP) — With voting day just ahead, Prime Minister Diefenbaker is starting to get on his key campaign points.

He appears to have unveiled next—if not all—of his "built Canada" platform for the next five years to the 1967 centennial of Confederation.

His speech Wednesday night to an audience of 1,500 here covered the main points of the Diefenbaker election bid as they have shaped up in recent days:

1. The jobless problem has been "licked" now.

2. The Liberals are a gloomy bunch, unchanged from the old days except for some "shadowy, new faces" and the men behind Liberal Leader Lester Pearson.

3. Dollar devaluation is good for Canada and means more jobs.

4. The record of the Conservative government stands for itself, and the future can be wonderful under Tory plans for national development.

HITS PEARSON HARD

This has been the theme that Mr. Diefenbaker has been hitting for the last few days as he heads into the home stretch toward next Monday's day of judgment at the polls.

Concentrating his campaign fire on key Ontario constituencies, Mr. Diefenbaker takes his party bid for re-election into Toronto today.

His plans have been revised several times in the last few hours.

The latest itinerary calls for a mid-morning departure from Guelph, a parade from farmers' market at Thornhill to Richmond Hill in suburban Toronto, an afternoon recording session at Queen's Park TV studios and two night appearances—one at the Queen Elizabeth Building, the other at Massey Hall.

The prime minister Wednesday found the Liberal record—Liberal Leader Pearson, Gallup, Hespeler and Gurdip, giving two major speeches.

HAS PICKED PROBLEM

At Brantford, he said the government had "licked" the unemployment problem and forecast "virtual full employment" by August.

At Galt, he said the pegging of the Canadian dollar's international value at 92½ cents in terms of United States currency is the greatest potential advancement for Canada."

At Guelph, speaking on behalf of Conservative candidate Alfred Hales, he squelched a few hecklers, criticized the Liberals and forecast a Conservative victory, Monday.

Speaking at Brantford he said the next report on the jobless situation—expected a day or two after next Monday's election—will show the largest number of employed workers in the history of Canada. The report will cover May's manpower situation.

He slopped at Caledonia near Hamilton and told several hundreds school children and adults that Liberal Leader Lester Pearson is "out" on his predictions of a Tory victory next Monday, with between 140 and 170 seats in the 265-seat House of Commons.

"I don't know who gave him that prophecy but it's exactly the same as he made four days before the 1958 election."

In 1958 the Conservatives swept into power with the greatest majority ever gained by a Canadian political history.

Mr. Diefenbaker said Mr. Pearson's personal prediction in 1958 was for 152 Liberals seats.

"He was right—and that's about as far out as he'll be this time.

Wheat Sales Hurt Countries Friendly to West

— Thompson

FOAM LAKE, Sask. (CP)—Social Credit Leader Robert Thompson said Wednesday night there is reason to believe Canadian wheat sales to Communist China are hurting countries friendly to the West.

"We have good reason to believe that Canadian wheat is not going to the country buffles Mr. Diefenbaker is so concerned about," he said, "but is helping the Chinese government meet its wheat commitments to Russia and is being used indirectly against the interests of countries friendly to the West."

Mr. Thompson spoke at a public meeting at this town in Yorkton riding, where Martin Kells is the Social Credit candidate in the June 18 general election.

He declared wheat sales to China would provide only short-term relief to Canadian farmers.

"We cannot expect a crop failure in China every year, nor is it likely that China has unlimited funds to spend in Canada unless we are willing to import some of their manufactured goods."

OUTLINES POLICIES

Mr. Thompson outlined Social Credit farm policies which included:

1. Tying of domestic prices for farm products to actual production cost plus a fair profit to farmers.

2. Stimulation of domestic consumer purchasing by lower taxes and other measures to augment spending; tion—will show the largest number of employed workers in the history of Canada. The report will cover May's manpower situation.

3. Formation of a parity pool, on an interim basis, designed to compensate the farmer for fluctuations in foreign market prices by means of income from sales of goods purchased with Canadian primary products.

He slopped at Caledonia near Hamilton and told several hundreds school children and adults that Liberal Leader Lester Pearson is "out" on his predictions of a Tory victory next Monday, with between 140 and 170 seats in the 265-seat House of Commons.

2,500 Greet Liberal Leader At Kingston

By ARCH MacKENZIE

KINGSTON (CP)—The Progressive Conservatives are hoping for last - minute electoral magic on the basis of martyrdom, Liberal Leader Pearson said Wednesday night.

Their spokesmen are having difficulty explaining just what the government would do to get the country out of the mess they have created, he said at a night rally attended by about 2,500 persons.

He said Prime Minister Diefenbaker is claiming virtually full employment in July or August when nearly a half million Canadians were jobless at last report and the government's own experts envisioned rising unemployment next year unless steps were taken.

The prime minister said unemployment was licked when he "only thing licked in the country now is the Diefenbaker government."

The audience in the Memorial Community Arena, where 4000 seats had been installed on the floor to accommodate the 2,500 permanent ones, gave the Liberal leader an enthusiastic hearing.

SOME INTERRUPTIONS

There was some scattered booing and a few disinterruptions but most of the interruptions appeared to come from teen-agers indulging in horseplay.

The speech capped a day begun in Montreal where Mr. Pearson made a last bid for Quebec votes in the election Monday. He made calls around the city then flew to Trenton and motored here.

Today he was making a rural tour through nearby Bath and other points toward Trenton before flying to Toronto and a late night rally where for the first time in the campaign he and Mr. Diefenbaker speak in the same place on the same night.

In Montreal he held a press conference that stabilizing the dollar is essential before a decision can be made as it must—whether the dollar should remain as now or left to float in terms of international exchange rates.

Wednesday night he said he is convinced that Monday will give Liberals a majority because "there is evidence on all sides that that is happening.'

The Conservatives were increasingly on the defensive and their bid for a martyr's crown indicated panic.

Finance Minister Fleming posed as a victim of a curb on free speech—an indirect reference by Mr. Pearson to the St. John's episode where Premier Joseph Smallwood of Newfoundland intervened to halt a Fleming speech to a service club.

As he has before Mr. Pearson said this involved the man who tried to chop off the head of former Governor James. F. Byrne of the Bank of Canada without a hearing.

Nor was there any evidence to support Conservative claims that Liberals had organized obstruction of some Diefenbaker meetings.

Personal attack was being used to depict Liberal leaders as bogeymen — attack often couched in "almost incredible language."

HAS 'LET PEOPLE DOWN'

But the fact on the record, was that the Liberal government of 1935 to 1957 "never let the people down the way the government has in the last five years."

A Liberal government at less cost than a destroyer escort—or between $20,000,000 and $30,000,000—could provide education scholarships to deserving students who otherwise would miss higher education.

"It's the kind of investment that we cannot afford not to make" Mr. Pearson said.

These hostile signs at the meeting concerned the Fleming-Smallwood event. There was another incident when a little elderly (lady parading a Conservative poster finally whacked the poster stick over some youngsters who kept holding Liberal pictures in front of hers.

Senior OHA To Hold Meeting

WINDSOR, Ont. (CP) — Ontario Hockey Association president Lloyd Pollock says a meeting of all clubs interested in senior hockey next season will be held in London June 11.

Some Senior OHA clubs, notably Windsor Bulldogs and Chatham Maroons, have expressed a desire to return to the system of paying salaries to players, Pollock said Wednesday. Other clubs who played in the senior circuit last season want to remain on the share-the-wealth system.

Pollock said the outcome of the Eastern Professional League's annual meeting in Ottawa Saturday will have a bearing on the Senior OHA's eventual status. The Eastern Pro loop is rumored to be in danger of folding. If the league does collapse, many players would be able to return to amateur ranks.

Minor Baseball

The Dodgers had an 11-run explosion in the third inning but were still forced to settle for a 13-12 tie with the Yankees in a Bowes Baseball League game at the Alemite Field last night.

The Yanks scored single markers in the first and last frames but got six in the third and four in the fourth to overcome the big Dodger lead.

The Dodgers outhit the Yankees by a slim 8-7 margin.

Chiefs Nip Atlanta 4-1, Leafs Idle

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

John Glenn, pretty much a bust as a hitter when playing for the Atlanta Crackers, looks like a second Roger Maris in Syracuse uniform.

The outfielder, traded May 25 to Syracuse by Atlanta for first baseman Fred Hopke, got his fifth and sixth homers for the Chiefs and drove in three runs Wednesday night as Syracuse defeated Atlanta 4-1 in the only International League game. While with Atlanta Glenn hit only two homers.

The Columbus at Buffalo twi-night doubleheader and single games between Richmond at Toronto and Rochester at Jacksonville were postponed because of rain.

Glenn clouted a two - run homer in the fourth after pitcher Frank Verdi had singled and got his second round tripper of the night in the sixth. Meantime, Hopke, who has been travelling a fast pace with the Crackers, came up with two singles but neither figured in the Crackers' lone run which came in the fourth on Jim Beauchamp's double and Joe Morgan's single.

The Crackers chased Syracuse starter Ray Apple in the fourth but were held to four hits the remainder of the way by southpaw Carl Mathias for his fourth victory as against seven losses. Leroy Gregory was charged with the defeat, his sixth in eight decisions.

Palmer 5-1 Favorite

Player Sets Eyes On U.S. Open

By DON WEISS

OAKMONT, Pa. (AP)—Arnold Palmer, bold and confident, is a 5-to-1 favorite in the United States open golf championship beginning today but no one will be trying harder to win than Gary Player.

"When I started out as a professional golfer I set as my goal winning the British Open, and your Masters and Open championships," the genial South African said today while awaiting the first round over the rain-softened Oakmont Country Club course.

"If and when I win the U.S. Open, I'll feel I've achieved what I set out to do."

Then, of course," he grinned, "greed—as we all are, I'll want to win them all over again."

Player, now 26, achieved his first major championship—the British Open—in 1959. He won the Masters championships, at Augusta in 1961.

FEELS HAS CHANCE

"I feel I have a chance in this tournament," he said. "I'm playing well and feeling strong. But there are so many good players around. I think it's impossible to say who'll win—especially in this championship. It means so much to everyone."

Player had some criticism of the 6,994 - yard, par 36-35—71 Oakmont course earlier in the week, particularly the furrowed sand traps and a couple holes on which you must hit a fairway shot from a downhill lie to a heavily-trapped green that slants away from you.

"On some of them, there's no way in the world to stop the ball within 10 feet," he said. But he toned down his impressions after Wednesday's drenching rain, which caused officials of the U.S. Golf Association to close the course to keep it in shape for today's start.

"The rain should make the traps much firmer," Player said, "and you'll have a better go at it."

There are 150 starters for the 62nd edition of America's prestige tournament but the pre-tournament talk has narrowed down to just a handful, including Palmer and Player along with the young bruiser, Jack Nicklaus, defending champion Gene Littler, and the 1959 open champion, putting master Billy Casper.

'Utterly Ridiculous'

Houk Denies 'Blind' Story

Billy Gardner, reserve infielder sold earlier this week by the Yankees to the Red Sox, was quoted as having made those remarks in Boston Tuesday.

"I duly expect Mantle to be back in the lineup in a few days, perhaps as soon as Friday when we play in Cleveland," said Houk. Mantle has been out more than two weeks with a pulled leg muscle.

"And as for going blind," Houk continued, "I never even wore glasses until this summer and I still am bothered with them because they are so new to me."

RESEARCH PROJECT

The Canadian Uranium Research Foundation was formed in 1960 by the six uranium-producing companies in Canada.

WATERFORD, Conn. (AP) — Billy Gardner, reserve infielder sold by New York to Boston earlier this week, vehemently denies statements attributed to him that Yankees manager Ralph Houk was going blind in his right eye and that Mickey Mantle would soon undergo a knee operation.

It's utterly ridiculous," Gardner said at his home here Wednesday. "I never said those things. How could I? They're not true."

The story appeared in the Boston Globe Wednesday under Hy Hurwitz's byline.

Hurwitz, a veteran sports writer who has been travelling with the Red Sox for many years, insisted he quoted Gardner correctly.

"Certainly he made those statements," Hurwitz said. "I couldn't possibly have made them up. He probably was tired off at losing out on a possible world series cut."

Como Is Really Wonderful, No Reruns on His Vacation

By CYNTHIA LOWRY

NEW YORK (AP) — Perry Como is a wonderful guy: He's on vacation, but instead of filling his weekly hour with the usual repeats, he is serving forth a series of new mystery shows.

The first one, on NBC Wednesday night, was well acted and interesting. Although the series is called Mystery Theatre, a mystery wasn't the right tag for the opening show. We knew whodunit—in fact, we witnessed the crime—and it was just a matter of watching events catch up with the killer.

Jan Sterling convincingly played the lady with a special interest in men with an alcohol problem.

If the rest of the series is on this level, Wednesday night will be an oasis in the TV summer desert.

During the past television season, the networks have been largely inhabited by stock characters who are widows.

There's been Lorne Greene of Bonanza, Chuck Connors of Rifleman, Leslie Nielsen of The New Breed, Robert Sterling of Ichabod and Me, Fred MacMurray of My Three Sons, Robert Young of Window on Main Street, Robert Taylor of The Detectives, and E. G. Marshall of The Defenders.

But, as far as the plots go, there were only a couple of widows—Spring Byington playing housemother to the Laramie boys, and Christine White of Window on Main Street.

Next season, however, a better balance will be achieved. Four of the widowers — paris played by Nielsen, Sterling, Young and Taylor—will disappear with their shows, And on to the home screens will come three widows.

Lucille Ball and Vivian Vance will play a pair of man-hunting widows in Lucy's new CBS comedy series. Loretta Young will portray a widow with seven daughters in her new weekly CBS program.

Near-Bare Bar Beauties Are Banned

OAKMONT, Pa. (AP)—No more high-jinks at the 19th hole of the U.S. Open golf championship.

For two days an improvised bar in the basement of the staid Oakmont Country Club, scene of this year's open, has been doing a landslide business.

The reason: Shapely hostesses in revealing tights imported from an after - hours night club in downtown Pittsburgh.

The place had a gay nineties atmosphere with the girls —blondes, brunettes and redheads — billed in skimpy, sequined costumes showing more than most Bikini bathing suits.

Then suddenly Wednesday the girls reported for work and only to tell they were no longer needed. Orders had come down from the club's front office. There were reports members' wives had complained.

"I had nothing to do with it," said Joe Dey, executive director of the U.S. Golf Association, which runs the tournament. "I didn't know the place existed. I've been busy upstairs."

Quinte Soccer

Trenton Ambers shaded Belleville Parsons Cleaners 3-2 in a hard-fought Bay of Quinte Soccer League match played at Trenton's Bain Memorial Park last night.

The teams matched strike for strike most of the way in one of the better games of the season.

Zorbas and Fanory had the Parson goals.

South Hastings Baseball League

Latta overcame 6-0 and 7-3 deficits on their way to a 9-8 victory over the Canniton Clippers in a South Hastings baseball league game last night.

The winners left 9-7 entering the final inning but Canniton tallied one run and threatened to tie it. A sensational diving catch by Belanger of a line drive put an end to the rally and ended the game.

Bill Bunnage pitched a six-hitter for Latta, striking out eight batters and walking four.

Masterson started for Canniton with Bradshaw taking over in the third. They allowed 13 hits, fanned four and walked four.

Belanger rapped three singles to spearhead the winners' attack. Bunnage helped his own cause with a double and single while D. Harris hit two singles. L. Cronkwright had a two-bagger with H. Meeks, Wayne Fry, Frank Bay, A. Simmons and H. Skelly adding singles.

Clingo banged a double for the Clippers while the other base knocks went to O'Connor, Wells, D. Forsythe, G. Hall and K. Forsythe.

Behind the three-bit pitching of Gordie "Scoop" Campbell, Foxboro downed Shannonville 5-1 in S.H.L. action last night.

Campbell batted excellent ball over the route, striking out ten batters and walking just one man.

Bill Barberstock tolled the distance in order, allowing ten hits, whiffing six and pasting two.

Foxboro scored single runs in the first and third and wrapped up the victory with four markers in the sixth. Shannonville's lone tally came in the fourth inning.

Gerry Mann paced the winners at the plate with three singles, Keith Dickey collected two hits and played an outstanding game in the outfield, with Glen Reynolds also getting two safeties. Al Dever, Pete Young and Dewi Campbell contributed singles.

Stars Pack Greasepaint, Head for Summer Theatres

By BOB THOMAS

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — This is the season when the gold rush begins — the eastward movement of Hollywood names to mine the riches to be found in summer theatres.

All over town players are packing their greasepaint and fancy duds and setting out along the moneyed trails on the Atlantic seaboard and through the middlewest.

Summer theatres are a relatively new bonanza for performers. For decades they were a source of revenue for more or less fading movie names who could always pick up a bit of change in a revival of Our Town or The Man Who Came to Dinner. Now the summer theatres can and do attract bigtime names.

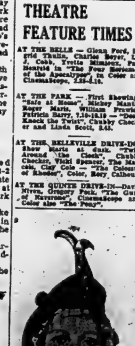
ATTRACTED BY MONEY

Donald O'Connor is one. He is taking out his own concert show for a months tour. He told why:

"I can't resist the money."

There's no way to estimate how much Donald will earn, since he hasn't figured out the expenses of the show which he will produce. But he remarked that last year Harry Belafonte was able to draw $37,000 a week in the same theatres before expenses.

"It's really like my old vaudeville days, except that I'll be doing the whole show instead of one act," said Donald.



He spent most of his boyhood — from 1929, the year of his birth, until 1941 — in vaudeville. The family act never played New York's Palace because child labor laws prevented it.

Minor Softball

In Peewee softball league play this week, eastern division, the Tigers took a 19-8 victory over the Colts while the Pirates shaded the White Sox 15-14.

RARE, MEDIUM, WELL-DONE

By GEO H. CARVER, Sports Editor

The distaff side of the Bay of Quinte Country Club's golf division may have heard about it, and thinks perhaps it is a good idea to emulate what golf's first lady did.

Golf was tabu in Scotland around the year 1440. In fact a few years later King James II figured too many people were wasting their time trying to hit a big hole with a small ball, and had his parliament enact law forbidding the brawl game.

He figured they would be far better off shooting Englishmen with bows and arrows as the assassachs were fair game for Scottish snipers in those bonny days.

Several years later the archers went into a slump. Their shooting eyes became somewhat dimmed and the bags of Sassenachs became distressingly low.

So the reigning monarch, King James IV, ordered the boys back to the golf links. It was then that the 18-hole game was invented. Two of the chainsmen secured a flagon of highland dew and decided to take a wee nip at each hole.

By the time they reached the ninth hole half of the beaker contents was gone. Rather than being caught short they decided to play back home under the same "sweet" conditions. After playing the "eighteen" the flagon was empty—and the clansmen the reverse.

Meanwhile Mary, the king's granddaughter, had learned to play golf—and liked it. She talked to her father, King James V into playing the game and the royal bloke took it up. It fascinated him.

Later when Mary was sent to France to be educated she took her golf-sticks with her and introduced it to the French. In fact Mary called her golfing boy friends "caddies." The French pronunciation was "caddy". The term was adopted and later became "caddy" or "caddie."

When Mary returned to Scotland and became Mary Queen of Scots, she played the game openly after indulging in secret practices for some length of time. She became adept and spotted all or any of her contriers three or four holes and beat them handily. During her reign the world's most famous golf course, St. Andrew's at Scotland, was founded.

The connection between this and the lady golfers of the country club here, as a male birdie whispered to me, is that the "Mary's" of the club have set up a series of weekly tournaments so that in the not too distant future they can "take on" the haughty spouses with less sense of inferiority.

There could be another reason too. On Sunday the club is holding what is expected to be the best "Mr. and Mrs. Tournament" since the inception of the "His and Hers" series. The ladies with some five weeks of club tournament play behind them could be in better golfing condition than the daily breakfast partners.

Some sixty couples will take part in the tournament, several coming from Picton, Trenton and Napanee. It will be climaxed with a presentation dinner in the clubhouse.

And the stage is all set. Club pro George Balazs says he is pleased with the general condition of the course. The early week rains proved a splendid conditioner and prevented a possible drying out of parts of the course. The annual spraying of the entire 18 holes was done on Tuesday.

The ladies' weekly tournaments, in serious vein, are proving highly successful. Entries range from 28 to 42 every Thursday and a monthly winner is announced. The tournaments are operated under a points system.

The club in general is looking forward to a successful season. President "Bud" Gill told me that membership has increased commensurately with expectations. It looks like a good year.

If EPL Folds

Hull-Ottawa In A.H.L.?

CLEVELAND (AP) — The American Hockey League's board of governors adjourned a three-day meeting, putting off until a session in New York June 25 the preparation of a league schedule for 1962-63.

A league spokesman said Wednesday no formal move had been made to add another franchise to the league, which was expanded to nine clubs Tuesday with the admission of Baltimore. A report circulated at the meeting, however, that Ottawa might apply.

In Ottawa, a spokesman for Hull-Ottawa Canadiens said the club likely will apply for admission to the AHL if the Eastern Professional League folds.

The future of the EPHL hinges on the outcome of the league's annual meeting scheduled for next Tuesday, he said.

Several National League clubs who have been sponsoring farm clubs in the EPHL are looking elsewhere for farm locations after losing money on their EPHL operations last season.

Twins Clip Angels, Back In Second

Senators Tribe Split

By JIM HACKLMAN

Associated Press Sports Writer

Bob Allison is the latest hero in the tumultuous east of stars for Minnesotas surprising Twins, who again find themselves lonely out of the American League lead they've been pursuing since the first game started in April.

Allison clipped Los Angeles reliever Ryne Duren for a two-run homer with two out in the eighth inning Wednesday night, powering the Twins to a come-from-behind 4-2 decision over the Angels. The victory boosted Minnesota back into second place only 10 percentage points behind New York Yankees, whose home game against Detroit Tigers was rained out.

Meanwhile, Cleveland Indians slipped to third—but still only a half game off the pace—in a doubleheader split with Washington Senators. The Indians won the second game 4-3 after dropping the opener 4-2. Kansas City Athletics, knocked over Chicago White Sox 4-3 and Don Schwall's two-hit pitching led Boston Red Sox to a 4-0 win over Baltimore Orioles.

Dean Chance, fined along with fellow Angel pitcher Bo Belinsky after an early-morning peccadillo, started as advertised against the Twins and did well after being tagged for doubles by Lennie Green and Rich Rollins in the first inning. He finally was lifted for a pinch-hitter in the ninth and Minnesota proceeded to cash in against Duren.

FINALLY YIELDED HOMER

The hard-throwing reliever issued a walk to Rollins leading off the eighth, then struck out Harmon Killebrew and Don Mincher before Allison rapped the first homer Duren has yielded in 23 appearances this year. Allison also delivered an insurance run in the ninth on an unusual force out, following a double by Zoilo Versalles, a sacrifice and a hit batsman. Leon Wagner dropped Allison's fly in shallow right, but threw out Green at second as Versalles scored.

Minnesota reliever Ray Moore was the winner with three shutout innings. Duren was charged with the loss.

Dick Donovan ran his record to 2-2 with a six-hitter for Cleveland in the second game of Washington, backed by John Romano's three-run homer in the fourth inning. The Senators won their fifth in a row in the opener as Claude Osteen and Steve Hamilton collaborated to hold the Indians to four hits. Ken Retzer and Jock Hicks homered, and Cleveland errors gave Washington two unearned runs.

Pedro Ramos lost the first game and Dave Stenhouse was the loser in the second.

Schwall showed the form that made him a 15-game winner and AL rookie of the year last season, handcuffing the Orioles in the wind and chill at Boston's Fenway Park. The Red Sox right-hander, winning for only the second time in nine decisions this year, gave up a two-out double to Jackie Brandt in the fourth and a single to Whitey Herzog with a two-out in the seventh. Boston collected six of its eight hits and all four of its runs against Chuck Estrada, now 5-8.

The Athletics toppled the White Sox for the sixth straight time with a two-run rally in the seventh highlighted by classy base running and clutch hitting. After banging into a force play, Dick Howser stole his second base of the game and rode in on Jose Tartabull's two-run, run-producing single of the night. Tartabull then stole second, took third on an infield out and scored the clincher on Manny Jimenez' single.

Flyers Blank Joyces 2-0

By GARRY ALEXANDER
Staff Sportswriter

RCAF Flyers snapped Joyces win string at five games in Trenton last night by blanking the Real Estaters 2-0 in the best game of the season in the Belleville and District softball league.

The Flyers took a 1-0 lead in the first frame, turned back several Joyce threats in the later innings and added an insurance marker in the eighth.

Lefty Mike Ratushniak pitched a masterful two-hitter for RCAF. He was touched for a single by Claude Carr in the third inning and a double by Teddy Belcher in the ninth. He struck out five and issued three free passes.

Doug Bills hurled good ball on the losers' hilltop, after a shaky start, giving up nine hits in all. He whiffed seven and walked but two.

Corscadden singled to get the Flyers moving in the initial frame. Drake's sacrifice bunt was bobbled but runners on first and third. Alexander dropped a bunt single to fill the bases. Mitts lined a single to right field to score the run.

A force at the plate made the first out and Bert Faulkner picked off Taylor's fly in centre and doubled Alexander with a perfect throw to the plate to end the inning.

Joyces had runners as far as third base in the first, sixth and seventh but could not solve Ratushniak's slants for a clutch hit to tie it. An error with one out in the ninth kept hope alive but base umpire Keith Beririm called Faulkner out between first and second for interference to end the game.

Taylor led off the RCAF seventh with a double but was later cut down at the plate on a pretty double play to end the inning.

Ratushniak set up his own insurance marker with a bunt single. Drake singled to centre and the runner scored when the ball got through the outfielder. A walk and a hit loaded the bases but an interference call against an RCAF baserunner gave Joyces their third double-play of the game to hold the score at 2-0.

"Corky" Corscadden and Billy Mitts each poked a pair of singles to lead the RCAF attack. Ron Taylor had a double with one-for-four going to Mike Ratushniak, Donnie Cole, Doug Alexander and Roger Drake.

Seven-Run Explosion

Kenmors Whip Port Hope

By GEO. H. CARVER
Sports Editor

Moe Hunter's mighty 370-foot left centre home-run blast touched off an eighth inning eruption here last night and resulted in Kenmors a 9-5 victory over Port Hope.

The victory gave the city Lakeshore Baseball League senior division entry a top-spot record of three wins and one defeat.

BILLY LATCHFORD

Twelve Kenmors paraded to the plate in the fateful eighth inning up six runs at a time and seven runs before a relief hurler sent them to the dugout.

Up to this point the game had been a close one with the Kenmors leading 2-1 and Billy Latchford, city righthander and Port Hope ace, in full swinging in a lighs mound duel.

Larry Soden by an error and Ary Goyer with a single laid the fuse for the eighth inning blast. Hunter's thundering homer which cleared the left-centre field fence was the first out-of-the-park clout this season drove home three runs.

Mavety followed with a single, Moxon a double, an error and Soden single sent three more runs across the plate.

That was the end of Wakely and Fred Mayhew his reliefer got a warm welcome from the Kenmors fans. They got to him for two hits and a walk before he finally put out the fire. Three Port errors helped fuel the run-flame.

Earlier the Kenmors scored a single run in the first off two Port Hope bobbles and Soden's single, adding another in the fourth off Hunter's double and another Port error.

The Ontarios got their lone run in the top of the first when Riley Billy Latchford for three hits and a two-base error.

After that Latchford was practically invincible although he did it the hard way. He allowed but two singles over the next seven innings, striking out 15 and walking four. Two of his mates' four errors came in the top of the ninth with no damage done.

Latchford went to the full count fairly often but was brilliant in the clutches. His mates executed two smart double plays behind him and he smashed out two singles to help his own cause.

Wakely had the Kenmors well under control before the roof fell in, in the eighth. He allowed but five hits for two runs up to that point whiffing ten and walking three.

Coach Sid Forsier and Ricky Locke, centrefielder, earned the ire and got the thumb of plate umpire Shad Ethier at the end of the seventh. Vic Morris took over the coaching duties.

The fielding highlight was Locke's backhand, one-mitt running catch of Tom Watts' bid for at least a triple in the third.

Moe Hunter's homer, triple and double broke the shortstop's batting slump. Besides Latchford, Soules had two singles, Moxon a double and Mavety, Soden and Goyer singles.

The teams:

Port Hope:	Paul Wakely, N. Wakely, Stevenson, Kelly, Watts, Fenlon, Phil Wakely, Austen, Gilmer, Jay, Bill Wakely, Mayhew.
Kenmors:	Locke, Vaughan, Soden, Goyer, Hunter, Mavety, Moxon, Urch, Soules, Latchford.

The score:

Port Hope	100 000 000 - 1 5 6
Kenmors	100 100 07x - 9 11 4

Umpires: Ethier (p), Tebworth, Barton.

'Sliver' Has At Least One Fan Left

BOSTON (AP) — One woman has discovered some baseball fans still are rabid on the subject of former Red Sox slugger Ted Williams.

The unidentified lady came to Boston club officials during Tuesday night's game with Baltimore with the story:

"I was sitting in the bleachers and struck up a pleasant conversation with this gentleman. The talk came around to players.

"All I said was I thought Stan Musial of St. Louis is a better ball player than Ted Williams. And this man dumps a whole bucket of beer over my head."

Loses Another Close Decision

Spahn Drops Fifth Run Squeaker

By JIM BECKER
Associated Press Staff Writer

If Milwaukee's Warren Spahn has been able to bank a few of the surplus runs the Braves have given him over the years, he would be winning a few more ball games this season.

Spahn has 315 victories to his credit and at 41 he shows few signs of baseball senility. But Wednesday night he dropped his fifth one-run decision of the year as the Braves bowed to Los Angeles' Dodgers 2-1, leaving him with a 6-7 won-lost mark for the season.

The win opened a two-game National League lead for the Dodgers over San Francisco Giants, who could do almost nothing with Bob Purkey of Cincinnati Reds. He beat them 1-0 on three hits and became the first major league pitcher to reach the 11-victory mark in the process.

The third-place Pittsburgh Pirates feasted on Chicago Cubs 6-4 for their fifth straight victory and St. Louis Cardinals romped over Philadelphia Phillies 6-1 for their ninth in the last 10. The New York Mets—Houston Colts game was rained out.

Sandy Koufax, who was still buying kiddie-prize tickets when Spahn began winning in the majors, won his own game for the Dodgers with his first major league home run in the fifth. A solo clout, it provided the deciding run. Roy McMillan hit a homer in the sixth for the Braves' only marker.

The Nibbling Los Angeles lefthander struck out six, a low total for him, and walked two. He gave up only three hits, and twice worked out of jams with men on third and one out. The win made him 9-2.

Spahn struck out seven, walked only one and three of the seven hits he allowed were bunts.

Purkey threw a no-hitter at the normally potent Giants until Felipe Alou doubled with two out in the seventh, and gave only two more hits the rest of the way. The Reds, avenging a double defeat Thursday night, got two runs in the fourth and added one in the fifth and two in the sixth, including a solo homer by Coleman.

Reliever Elroy Face, who has worked in four of the five straight Pirate wins, came out to retire the last four Cubs and save the win for Alvin McBean (6-3). A three-run blast by Bill Virdon broke a 2-2 deadlock in the sixth, and tagged Cal Koonce (4-2) with the loss. Chicago's Bill Williams, who boosted his batting average to .345 with three hits, homered in the sixth.

The Cardinals concluded a 9-1 home stand as Bob Gibson struck out 12 Phillies and ran his record to 8-4. It was a career strikeout high for Gibson, who allowed nine hits, all singles.

The Cardinals routed Dennis Bennett (3-2) in a three-run fifth.

Lightfoots Squeeze by Reides 8-7

Lightfoot Construction scored a single run in the bottom of the seventh and final frame last night to pull out a tight 8-7 victory over Reide's Excavating at CNRA park.

Doug Moreau opened the seventh with a double, moved to third on a fly ball and scored on another to snap the 7-7 deadlock.

Lightfoots had taken a 5-0 lead in the first two innings and were in front 7-3 before Reide's plated four in the fourth to even the score.

Percy Long was the winning pitcher, taking over from Jim Jones in the fourth inning. Long fanned seven and walked one after Jones had struck out two and passed nine. Jones gave up all four of the loser's base hits.

Frank Howard went the route in a losing cause. He gave up six hits, fanned one and passed five.

Reide's four-run explosion in the fourth came on five walks and two errors, after homers by Wood and Rowbotham had opened up a wide Lightfoot lead.

Don Smith banged a trace of doubles for the victors while Don Wood and Chuck Rowbotham each hit a two-run homer. Theo Lynch and Doug Moreau also had doubles as all Lightfoot hits were good for extra bases.

The Excavators' hits, all singles, went to T. Johnson, Rocky Davis, Bob Langelaar and D. Patterson.

Brazil, Czechs In Final

SANTIAGO, Chile (AP)—Defending champion Brazil and Czechoslovakia will meet Sunday for the World Cup soccer championship.

Brazil reached the finals by beating Chile 4-2 while Czechoslovakia defeated Yugoslavia 3-1 Wednesday. Chile and Yugoslavia will play Saturday to decide the third- and fourth-place finishers.

Brazil may be without the services of its star player, right winger Garrincha who scored two goals Wednesday before being sent off the field in the last 10 minutes by Peruvian referee Maximo Yamasaki. The International Federation of Football Associations was expected to rule today or Friday on Garrincha's case.

Both semi-finals were rough, with Yamasaki sending Chile's centre forward Honorio Landa out of the game two minutes before ejecting Garrincha. The teams finished with 10 men each.

During the Czech - Yugoslav match, Swiss referee Dienst had to call together the captains of each side. He warned them that somebody would go off if there was any more rough play.

Yava, Brazil's centre forward got two goals. Scoring for Chile were inside right Toro and Leonel Sanchez who tallied on a penalty kick.

LITTLER PLANS ENTRY

MONTREAL (CP) — The Royal Canadian Golf Association said Wednesday night that Gene Littler, who starts defence of his U.S. open golf championship at Pittsburgh today, figures on playing in the Canadian Open here July 26-29.

Durelle Comeback Unpopular

BAIE STE. ANNE, N.B. (CP) "I hope it's not true," said Theresa Durelle.

"I wish he'd never face another pair of gloves again," said fight manager Chris Sheehan.

That was the reaction Wednesday to word from Calgary that Yvon Durelle, one - time Canadian and British Empire light - heavyweight titleholder, planned a second comeback on a small-scale basis.

"I won't just starting to get back to normal," said Theresa, his 37-year-old wife. "He talked all winter about making another comeback, but I kept talking him out of it."

"His legs aren't normal yet. Even our children push him off balance," she said.

Shahn, Durelle's former manager, said: "I'd be frightened to watch another fight involving Yvon. He could get hurt badly. It may take just one good crack."

No Decision Reached at Council Meeting

DESERONTO — The special meeting of the town council called for Saturday night at 7.00 o'clock in the town hall resulted in no decision being reached and no vote taken on the only motion presented to the meeting.

After Mayor Sweetman had called the meeting to order he explained that the meeting was to deal with the presentation of the resolution of the Board of Education to the County Council. Reeve Lott told of speaking to the Clerk Treasurer, Mr. Bateman had called the Minister of Education and found that a motion of council was required as well as the resolution from the School Board. Reeve Lott said that Mr. Bateman informed him that a separate motion was required.

That started the fireworks. Councillor Howard asked who had informed the mayor and council, that the council could do anything but forward the resolution and had nothing to do with the matter. The mayor replied that the council could not control the issue. Then, the question was asked, why then we have to pass a motion? Councillors Detlor and Houle both spoke and said that council was back to where they were two months ago and should have let the by-law for the referendum stand. Reeve Lott stated that he did not swing from one side to the other. He said council could will not act on a motion of the school board but only on a motion of the council.

One member of the council said that he took exception to the remark of a member of the school board, who said that there would be grass growing in the streets of the town if the council did not become more progressive. He also referred to Councillor Allford who would like the standard of education in Deseronto was not as good as in other schools. His contention was that the fault of it all lay at the hands of the School Board who would not pay competitive wages to attract and keep teachers, who could put the Deseronto school above those considered better. If the school board was not progressive they could expect no better.

Finally the mayor asked to have the motion settled as he said his time was valuable. Councillor Detlor then told the mayor that the motion could be not be called to settle the issue and he moved that it be 11 o'clock midnight it would be settled. Councillor Allford then moved that Council recommend to the County council that Deseronto Public School Area—

MORE DISCUSSION

This evoked considerably more discussion and Councillor Detlor moved that a plebiscite be held. The mayor ruled that the first motion would have to be dealt with if it were seconded. Councillor Brooks then seconded the motion of Alford. Councillor Houle asked the mayor to be excused from voting on the issue and he was immediately followed by Councillor Detlor. Reeve Lott also asked to be excused because he was a representative for the county council and thought that the full council should vote. Councillor Howard then voted on his opinion and also asked to be excused.

This action left only Alford and Brooks at the council table with the mayor who was forced to adjourn the meeting.

The fact that the ratepayers' association has been busy with a petition to keep the school may have influenced some of the action as it is reported that the association has been busy with considerable success in its efforts. Some of the ratepayers' executive report that many ratepayers do not wait for the petition to reach them but take phone and call at the homes of those who are obtaining signatures. While a considerable number of signatures secured has not been stated, it is reported to be a very high showing that the majority of ratepayers are in favor of keeping a local school.

Elect A Leader On June 18th

Education, Pensions, Vertical Integration Interest Riding's Voters Finds Candidate

"In my many trips and visits throughout Hastings-Frontenac during my nomination as Liberal candidate, never ago none have I found two things. First, there is a very great interest in the election from the council point of where is Canada going and what is going to be done about the issues that face us. Second, there is a very great interest in what sort of a future there will be for Canada, as individuals, in the world of tomorrow. In short what future exists for the youth of today and our children?" states Liberal candidate Robert Temple.

The Liberal Party has positive answers to these questions. Education is probably the most important, at least I have certainly found it to be the most popular subject for discussion across the riding. I think that each of us realizes that, today, an education is the most valuable and important possession which any Canadian can have. The higher education our sons and daughters receive the better Canadians they will become and the wider will be their opportunities in life.

"To help every Canadian to achieve this goal to the best of his ability the Liberal Party under the late Leader is pledged to Federal aid, along the following additional, positive programs:

(1) provide 10,000 four-year scholarships per year, city students each year, which will mean that by 1966 that 40,000 Canadian boys and girls will be attending universities where many of them would not have had a chance to go before.

(2) Establish a student loan fund to assist those capable students attending with a reason for not being able to further their higher education by reason of lack of family finances.

(3) Extend the Family Allowance Act to include any student over 16 as long as he remains at school.

(4) These benefits will apply to students attending technical and agricultural institutes as well as colleges and universities.

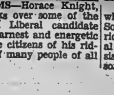
"I hope that you will take special note of the letter point which I have made regarding technical and agricultural people as well as higher educators, especially the latter profession.

FORMABLE PENSION PLAN

"Pensions, both old age and the proposed Canada Pension by the Liberal Party, have also been a topic of great interest to people of Hastings South.

"A Liberal Government will put into effect a fair pension on the present Old Age Pension. It will also establish a portable pension plan which will enable Canadian, whether an employee or self-employed, will have the opportunity of participating in a pension plan that will stay with him no matter where he chooses to work. This plan will be contributed to jointly by the individual and his employer on a percentage basis of his earnings up to but not exceed $500 a month.

"When he retires he will receive a pension based on the ten years during which his earnings were at their highest point. This plan will be self-sustaining and will not be paid for out of general funds. Therefore it will take ten years after its establishment before it can start paying out pensions and still remain on a sound financial footing.



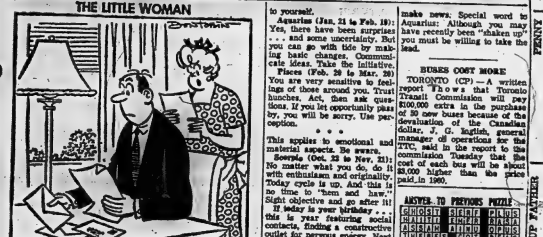
"Depending on the financial situation a Liberal Party will be able to expect an almost $300 a month, when they reach retirement age. This figure includes what they would be receiving from the Regular Old Age Pension."

FARMERS' PROBLEM

Amongst our farmers another question is raised, and it is a very vital question for it concerns the existence of the individual farmer and the family farm, which has been the backbone of the nation since its inception. This is vertical integration, a situation where the individual farmer is slowly eased out of his markets by large corporations who buy and process his produce.

"To guarantee the independence of the farmer and the family farm without resorting to restrictive and negative legislation the Liberal Party will extend the scope of the Industrial Development Bank to allow farmers to obtain low interest loans which can be used to build co-operative processing and marketing facilities. This will allow them to receive a greater portion of the revenues from their produce and to actively compete on the market."

DISCUSS FARM PROBLEMS—Horace Knight, prominent Hastings farmer, talks over some of the problems of local farmers with Liberal candidate Robert Temple. Mr. Temple's earnest and energetic approach to the problems of the riding have won him the support of many people of all political faiths.



HOW ABOUT THE KIDS?—This is one question which Robert Temple, Liberal candidate for Hastings South, has found to be asked in every part of the riding. Above he may be seen explaining the Liberal Party's program for extended education and assistance for worthy students to Don Deveau and his son.

Mayors Ask Senior Govts. Pay for Hospital Buildings And Pay More for Education

WINNIPEG (CP) — Municipal officials Wednesday asked senior governments to assume more of the costs of education, hospital construction and welfare.

E. Royden Collier, city manager of Windsor, Ont., said senior governments should pay for all hospital construction.

Harold Balfour, municipal manager of the district of Burnaby adjacent to Vancouver said welfare cost is mainly a federal - provincial responsibility.

P. F. C. Byars, Halifax city manager, said municipal taxation cannot continue to carry the biggest share of the education load.

All three spoke to the 35th annual conference of the Canadian Federation of Mayors and Municipalities.

PROVIDES BASIC SERVICES

Mr. Collier said municipal money is collected to provide basic services such as sewers, garbage collection, fire and police protection "and not for hospital construction purposes."

Since the provinces generally have taken upon themselves the responsibility for determining hospital construction needs it is then incumbent upon the province to take the responsibility for hospital construction.

The narrow municipal revenue base is already overloaded with services beyond its responsibility.

Mr. Balfour said it is quite right and proper for a municipality to accept some financial responsibility in the welfare field.

At the same time it is "right and proper for the senior governments to accept the major proportion since they ultimately control the program through legislation."

Mr. Byars said a means must be found to finance the growing needs of education by taxation based on the ability of the people to pay their fair share:

"The fairest method in my view is through income taxation," he added.

The city manager said the real dilemma is that money requested for education has first claim on the civic treasury. Other municipal services suffer as a result.

On the national average about 40 cents out of every municipal tax dollar is required to finance the local share of education costs, he said.

'CAN'T CARRY LOAD'

Mr. Byars said the provinces must accept the fact that municipal taxation cannot continue to carry the biggest share of the education load.

In other conference activity, Reeve H. O. Waffle of the Toronto area township of Etobicoke, called for a national public housing program to mark Canada's 100th birthday in 1967.

He told delegates this would be a far better method of commemorating the anniversary than by building statues.

Another speaker, Humphrey B. Style of Toronto, president of John Inglis Company Limited, urged an expansion of secondary manufacture in Canada to solve unemployment and other economic ills.

The conference, attended by more than 700 persons, entered its fourth day today. It ends Friday.

336,000 Out of Work, Employed up 247,000

OTTAWA (CP) — Unemployment in Canada was 336,000 in mid - May, down 149,000 from mid-April, the bureau of statistics reported today.

The decline in the jobless total between April and May was described as "a sharp seasonal drop." The mid-May figure was 121,000 lower than a year earlier.

Last month's unemployment represented 3.1 per cent of the labor force, compared with 7.5 per cent in April and seven per cent in May, 1961.

Over-all employment rose by 247,000 between April and May to a total of 6,254,000. The bureau said "the increase was about normal for the time of year."

EVIDENCE SHOWS U.S. GAMBLERS GET PROTECTION

Syndicate Met To Divide Territory

TORONTO (CP) — Evidence that The Syndicate of United States organized crime has closed in on the rich field of Ontario gambling was heard Thursday by the province's royal commission on crime.

An FBI-trained sergeant of the St. Catharines police force told of underworld and police information that a dozen American and Canadian gambling bosses parcelled out Ontario territory in 1960 and that the head syndicate man between Niagara Falls and Toronto was a man from Niagara Falls, N.Y.

At the same time, the commission announced it will seek perjury and possibly other charges against Sammy (the Ball) Balsom, a St. Catharines bookie and alleged wholesaler of police protection for the Niagara area who earlier this week denied those accusations.

The slicing-up of Ontario into individual districts was reported to the commission by Det.-Sgt. James Bryan of St. Catharines, who relayed information from Thomas (Mickey) McGroarty, accountant who formerly worked for Balsom and who now is under heavy police protection with his family removed to some secret location for fear of gang reprisals.

CLAIMS ATTENDED TALKS

Bryan said McGroarty told him that Balsom attended the 1960 meeting in a plush Toronto motel with seven other Canadians and four Americans who "cut up" districts between Windsor and Sault Ste. Marie so there would be "no disputes" among them. The new setup was supposed to have, Bryan's Provincial Police protection.

Among items quoted by Balsom was an earlier fragmentary report that he had attended the "underworld" meeting at the slashing out of claims.

According to the McGroarty information as relayed by Bryan, this meeting occurred about three months after the OPP in the spring of 1960 sprang the raids throughout Ontario on gambling establishments, under cover investigation and leakages of information from its anti - gambling squad to the criminals.

The investigation resulted last March in the conviction of Joseph McDermott and Vincent Presley of Toronto, reputed big men in provincial gambling, on charges of conspiracy to obtain police information illegally along with Robert J. Wright, a gambling establishment consultant.

Among Bryan's evidence from McGroarty:

1. Starting in July, 1959, Balsom paid for tipoffs from gambling establishments in Kenneth Lamarie and Carman Lawrence, until the latter left when they were suspended at the time of Wright's arrest in 1959.

2. After the arrest, Balsom had his bags packed for a get-away in case he should be linked with the policemen.

Auto Sales So Brisk Showrooms May Be Bare Ere '63 Cars Ready

Most industry report many lines of current models are in short supply and by mid-summer will be completely changed age in some models.

Dealers of both General Motors of Canada Ltd. and Ford Motor Co. of Canada Ltd. say their models will be changed, they will probably find themselves relying on their firms' imports from sister factories in the United Kingdom.

Ray Cheney, general sales manager at Ford of Canada, says:

"It is true that currently dealer demand for our products is greater than we can supply, and it could well be that by mid - August our dealers will find themselves in short supply of some line."

Mayor Charlotte Whitton Tells Queen Mother She Stirs Ottawa Like Monster Bingo Game

OTTAWA (CP) — A show of Commonwealth affection marked the end of the Queen Mother's official engagements in the capital Thursday.

With representatives of all the Commonwealth countries, she attended a garden party at the residence of the Indian high commissioner, spending about 90 minutes slipping tea under a canopy.

She visits Port Hope today for lunch at the home of former governor-general Vincent Massey. Her 19-day Canadian tour ends Saturday after she attends the running of the Queen's Plate in Toronto.

Earlier Thursday the Queen Mother received a warm welcome at city hall where she was told by Mayor Charlotte Whitton that "she stirs the city like a monster bingo game."

In her speech of welcome, Mayor Whitton said royal visitors "light up the alleged drabness of our ways and stirs to unwonted demonstration the mass of Ottawans, usually comparably moved at all only by encounters in football, hockey or the excitement of our members' bigun."

At city hall the Queen Mother unveiled the city's coat of arms, two royal portraits and attended a civic luncheon.

"Canada may well be proud of this beautiful capital," she said on a council — chamber speech. "How proud too this city must be of its position in this mighty country, so blessed in the talents of its people and so rich in the diversity of its resources."

Even Premier Khrushchev Gets Into Election Act

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

The election campaign had a surcharge of excitement Thursday—even Premier Khrushchev got into the act.

For the first time Prime Minister Diefenbaker and Liberal leader Pearson competed for audience in a single city, Toronto, and both attracted big ones.

Mr. Diefenbaker seized on the Soviet premier's statement to Canada's visiting prime minister Pearson and said Mr. Khrushchev has "declared his sad offronitery."

Later, at his election rally, he forecast a Liberal victory with a clear majority and said the Liberal program will "put Canada back on the road to achieving great national goals."

P. C. Douglas, at a Winnipeg rally, directed most of his oratory against Liberalism—with a backlash for the Conservatives—as he said the Liberals are "the same old things they refused to do during 22 years in office before 1957.

"No one should be fooled by the flip-flop antics of the old Liberal team, more than by Mr. Diefenbaker's death-bed repentance," the New Democratic Party leader said.

Soft Credit Leader Robert N. Thompson, in Edmonton for a rally, said that Conservatives have tried to clean up the "mess" left by Liberal governments, but what little success they achieved had been wiped out by inflation.

Devalued Dollar Becomes Prime Election Issue

By ALAN DONNELLY
Canadian Press Staff Writer

In six weeks of election campaigning the Canadian dollar has emerged as the most-talked-about piece of green paper in Canada's history.

Its status—85½ U.S. cents—has become the election's liveliest and perhaps biggest issue.

Political leaders have disagreed, vehemently and almost violently, about the meaning of that new status, created by the surprise May 3 devaluation and pegging of the dollar's exchange rate.

Opposition parties say it will mean higher prices and is a symptom of a wider-reaching "mess" in the country's economy which only they can cure; Government spokesmen say it will bring a new burst of jobs and prosperity with bigger export sales and added muscle for Canadian producers competing against imports.

Prime Minister Diefenbaker said at first that price rises would be "insignificant." When some price increases began

Plastic Bombs Damage Algiers Hospital, Lab

ALGIERS (AP)—Seven plastic bombs heavily damaged three surgical pavilions and the central laboratory of Algiers' great Mustapha Hospital today in the wake of a Secret Army announcement that it was launching an all-out campaign to lay waste to Algeria.

Hospital officials said not a single person was injured by the blasts, in recent months after the Secret Army raided several hospitals, most Moslem patients were evacuated to makeshift clinics.

The hospital said the surgical pavilions and laboratory "have been rendered useless."

A group from the Moslem National Liberation Front, the FLN, inspected the 2,500 - bed hospital late Thursday and announced the Moslems planned to take it over. That made it a prime target for the Secret Army in its plan to destroy everything that might be useful to the Moslems after independence.

A clandestine radio transmitter announced Thursday night the Secret Army's high command had decided to accelerate its scorched earth campaign because it had failed to obtain more concessions for the European settlers from Algeria's future Moslem rulers.

As de Gaulle were into the second day of his four-day tour, police were reinforced and security men fanned out at along his route.

Police sources said detectives, on the trail of terrorist plots before several days, found indications that one Secret Army team had been ordered to use a booby-trapped dog to carry out their assassination attempt. The arrests also said police were concentrating their attention on the Lorraine area of eastern France, a main civil and common frontier with West Germany. Police said the Secret Army ordered to kill de Gaulle, were believed to have slipped into France there.

Police said they had information that small, autonomous Secret Army groups were in easterm France with orders to assassinate de Gaulle at all costs before Algeria votes in a self-determination referendum July

Nuclear Warning Effrontery -- PM; Clumsy -- Pearson

Ill Timed -- Thompson Tests Callous -- Douglas

By RICHARD JACKSON

TORONTO — Prime Minister Diefenbaker has lined up Soviet Premier Khrushchev with other political enemies campaigning for the defeat of the government. The Russians, he said, wanted him beaten for these two reasons:

2 His insistence that Canada remain strong and keep her powder dry. It has been "colossal effrontery" for the Soviet premier to have sent a note to the government on the very eve of the election.

He told the story to the big Toronto rally at the end of his campaign. Told it dramatically, said that between 8,000 and 9,000 hotly enthusiastic and often suddenly excited and indignant people listened in a hushed silence.

Then the dying days of this election campaign, he asserted, "because of our stand, the Soviets say that the government is one that threatens them. Have we taken our stand that there be no nuclear weapons in Canada in peacetime, and I say to the USSR tonight that this is colossal effrontery to send a message

County Council Will Hold Special Meet to Consider Deseronto Board's Request

Fire Rating
Tweed Forest District

Ask a Lands and Forests fire ranger what he likes best in the summer and he will tell you "a rainy day." Not too many perhaps, but enough to keep the country and farmers happy and the fire hazard in the timberlands at "low."

At the moment all is well in the forest areas of the district with the hazard rising to "medium" because of continuing dry weather.

A department official said the district is free from fires with the weather clear and cool.

Last night they had a low of 39 in Tweed, 47 in Bancroft and 51 in Dacre.

Hastings county council will hold a special session on Tuesday to consider the request of the Deseronto High School Board to have their high school discontinued, thus opening the way to have the municipality annexed to the Napanee and District High School Area.

Deseronto town council had approved the request of its high school board, and a covering resolution has been forwarded to Hastings county council.

Inability of the Deseronto board to provide technical education to its students, together with the fact that there is no Grade XIII at Deseronto are two of the reasons for the desire to close the Deseronto school, which has seen its enrolment dwindle to but four rooms and slightly over 80 students.

But the feeling that students would be best served by closing of the Deseronto high school is not unanimous among the townfolk.

And as a result both sides of the question will be heard by county councillors Tuesday.

A petition headed up by Dr. D. C. McVicker has been circulated and a delegation representing those opposing the closing will be heard by council. It is expected that the Deseronto school board will also present its side of the case.

"This year might well be termed "education year" for Hastings county council," noted Warden Varty.

He noted that earlier this year the county officers were asked to consider the request of Tweed and Hungerford to withdraw from the Centre Hastings High School Area, the matter being discussed at length in council at least four times, and now it is being asked to approve of the closing of the Deseronto high school.

Legion Week To Open With Church Parade

This Sunday is the beginning of Legion Week in Belleville. Padre Bram Hunnings of Brandon, Man., will lead a church parade Sunday morning to the Salvation Army Citadel. Parade will form up at the Legion hall on Pinnacle st. at 10.30 a.m. and will march with the Salvation Army to their headquarters.

Legion Week is being observed, to let the public know what the Legion stands for and the work it is doing.

Locally, the local branch contributes to the Belleville minor sports association. A bursary is presented to each of the four high schools for a child of a veteran who has completed grade 13 and is going on to 12 or some other institution of higher learning. The local branch, each year, participates in the Santa Claus parade. Many Legion members are active as coaches of various minor sports teams. Of great importance to all ex-service personnel is the service bureau which is open locally for all veterans, whether Legion members or not.

LARGEST VETERANS' ORGANIZATION

Nationally, the Legion is the largest veterans' organization in Canada and is constantly working for and contributing to the betterment of conditions for Canadians whose lives were affected by war. It is an influential voice in Ottawa, not only in veterans affairs, but also in matters concerning the welfare of Canada.

Nationally, the Legion has spent millions of dollars to train trade and field officers, sponsors one of Canada's outstanding indoor track meets. It has various leadership awards, operates travelling training clinics and a speakers' bureau.

Across Canada, the Legion has 100 thousand youngsters in its ranks. Of more or less use, it has provided a housing project in the north-end national appeal to the public for funds to relieve distress among ex-service personnell and their dependents. The poppy is the symbol of remembrance of the fallen, and a reminder of the real meaning of the Legion—the guardian of the veterans' interests. These are some of the reasons for the Canadian Legion, and the observance of Legion Week in Belleville, June 17 to 23.

HURT IN SHELLING

TAIPEI, Formos (AP)—Communist shellfire injured four civilians, including two children, on Quemoy Island Wednesday, the Nationalist defence ministry reported today. There were the first civilian casualties reported on the Nationalist-held offshore island this year. The ministry said the Red guns on the mainland fired 114 rounds at the island fortress.

was supposed.

The statement said it is "quite understandable" why the Soviet government has been put on the alert. It added:

"Lethal nuclear weapons on the territory of Canada cannot but cause a negative influence directly on the Canadian radiation relation. The Soviet Union, as a state neighboring Canada, cannot in the least remain indifferent to what is going on near its frontiers because it touches its security.

In Calgary, Mr. Harkness described the statement as "particularly obnoxious" and questioned why Dr. Adenauer waited a year to object to a remark concerning nuclear weapons one made by the defence minister in the Commons.

TO INFLUENCE VOTE?

"It would appear that the only reason could be to attempt to influence people in the present election campaign immediately before a vote is taken," said Mr. Harkness.

Canada's position had not changed. It was working for disarmament but if this were not achieved nuclear weapons might be added to the country's arms.

However, Prime Minister Diefenbaker in a CBC television address Thursday night clearly indicated the government does not intend for peace and disarmament.

Mr. Diefenbaker said Premier Khrushchev is annoyed at the Canadian government "because we took a stand against colonialism that he doesn't like."

TERMS UNCONSCIONABLE

Mr. Pearson issued a statement saying the Soviet move was "inexcusable."

"The Russians know nothing about the Canadian people if they think that threats will have any effect on our attitude either toward nuclear weapons or to Soviet imperialism," Mr. Pearson added.

EVIDENCE SHOWS

3. Arthur Crockook, now an acting sergeant on the St. Catharines city force, had provided Spotts for Balcom and had been seen on a half dozen occasions receiving a envelope from the bookie.

He named the head syndicate men as the Niagara Falls-Toronto area as Frank Nicolello, a tobacco store owner in Niagara Falls, N.Y., though commission counsel, Leonard D. Wood said it was more likely a Benny Nicolello who has been mentioned in previous commission evidence as having both Mafia and Canadian gambling connections.

The sergeant said he had provided the police with this information when McGroarty, a wispy 60-year-old unemployed diabetic with a petty criminal record, gave it in 1980, but Mc-Groarty refused to testify for fear of his life.

The hearing until late last month that McGroarty agreed to talk publicly and his testimony this week—reinforced by tape recordings from a portable radio transmitter he carried while talking to Balcom—produced his former bookie boss of 20 years, Spotts, and city police and getting payoffs from three former gamblers for Spotts to train.

Balcom denied everything and underwent a grueling cross-examination the griddle Wednesday before Judge Donald D. Boach, the commissioner, announced Thursday he will ask Crown attorney Jim Chandler laying charges.

Earlier in the week, McGroarty testified he delivered a $500 bribe from Balcom to Lamb's uncle and Lawrence. Balcom denied this and said he stayed in Toronto the day Lamb was killed. McGroarty acted out merely to create an impression.

Balcom said he borrowed a handyman's truck, parked it at a department store, picked up McGroarty put the money in it and then drove the truck away when McGroarty left.

Thursday, Chief Inspector Graham of the Ontario Criminal Investigation Bureau, gave evidence that the truck involved was an Atlas Steel truck.

The inspector said that on Jan. 30, Balcom's 7 of the year the two officers had been in St. Catharines with an OPP helicopter on other circumstances were consistent with McGroarty's story.

Balsom's rebuttal has been that he connected the delivery operations in order to convince his employee that he had influence with police. He said he himself drove a borrowed truck to the spot and later drove it away with the money.

Sgt. Bryan testified that in 1980 he had delivery about the Parkdale recreation club in St. Catharines after getting word that it was to become a day time dice operation with a $60,000 bankroll supplied by Toronto gamblers.

"I told them to close and they closed that night," he said.

He believed the club was being run by Spotts and Taub, a former bookie now working as a structural steel man in Niagara Falls, N.Y.

McGroarty had told the witness that he had received $5,000 men from Toronto bankrolled the crap game, Balsom won (apparently for the house) and Taub got a percentage of the take.

The charter was in the name of Thomas Hell, a former bookie.

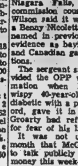
Sgt Bryan was asked about the reputation of Vincent Hearn, head of St. Catharines, who McGroarty identified has been following him as a reported enforcer for gamblers.

The officer described Hearn as a small-time former bookie now a window-washer. It was said by him that Hearn was supposed to be a strong-arm man.

Sgt. Bryan' said McGroarty had reported to him in November of last year that Balsom and bookies Frank McIlwain and Ken Murphy had got together in the presence of the informer to "devise some way we could break up and framed us to get me out of the way."

Sgt. Bryan's reply was no follow-up action.

About that time, it was reported to him that McIlwain and was losing his "book" and was expected to be taken over by Buffalo people.



To the best of the officer's knowledge no one moved in.

He said he thought that Buffalo principals became interested in taking over the Lincoln Sportsmen's Club with a view to getting a gambling foothold in St. Catharines.

When he reported the matter to the provincial secretary's department, it was discovered the club was in arrears with dues and its provincial charter was cancelled. It closed within a year.

Author Cruises Cleaned Trent To Revise Book

Kenneth McNeil, Wells, author of the "Cruising Guide to the Trent — Severn Waterway" claims the credit for sparking the cleanup of the Trent Canal System that followed the book. "I'm a hunter, stank, I said so", he explains, "and the Chambers of Commerce didn't like it".

The book did cause a fuss, and the system has been cleaned up since it was published. A revised edition is to be published this week—why Mr. Wells is cruising the Trent system and The Bay of Quinte, in a 14-foot outboard boat. He says I Belleville yesterday. He'll be cruising the Rideau Canal later in the summer, because the Rideau is to be included in the revised book. Before which Mr. Wells will take about two months to travel more than 1,000 miles in the same boat, borrowed from George Pudlow, of Trenton. He says he's stocked with camping gear, and Mr. Wells spends nights in a tent when he can.

Mr. Wells has his own boat, Sea Cow, a 27-foot cruiser. He did the first edition of the cruising guide from the Sea Owl, but it is now living in Florida. Bed weather held her here. Mr. Wells, where Mr. Wells cruises in the winter, until it was too late to bring the cruiser back to Canada. He lived on the Sea Owl with her husband for many years, later staying with her parents in Toronto for the summer. "She's learning to be a writer again", explains Mr. Wells.

Mr. Wells has given his career as an author soon after the war, when he wrote "The Owl and the Pussy Cat". The publication non-fiction book "to sell 75,000 copies during the first year of publication, and the first Canadian book to stand up to that kind of success", he says, staying with her parents in Toronto for the summer. "She's learning to be a writer again", explains Mr. Wells.

The Harvest Of Silence

Our guess is that there was probably no happier man in Newfoundland last week than Hon. Donald Fleming, minister of finance. He sat silent through a luncheon of St. John's Rotary Club. This was not according to plan. He had been scheduled to address the club on Canada's devalued dollar. Premier Joey Smallwood prevented that, by threatening to withdraw provincial sponsorship of a Rotary convention dinner if Mr. Fleming spoke. The Rotarians knuckled down to Joey, and won Mr. Fleming's "kind consent" to the cancellation of his speech. Mr. Fleming, of course, was being very kind to himself. He did not have to utter a word, yet the speech he did not make may quite well prove to be the most effective one of the campaign. A well-reasoned explanation of the reasons for the dollar devaluation might have been allowing, in a few Newfoundland votes, but enforced silence is likely to prove golden, garnering votes across all ten provinces.

Premier Smallwood has now tried to explain that he did not serve any "ultimatum" but that he merely withdrew his invitation to the Rotarians to banquet at his province's expense. This, however, just will not do. For the same proof that gives Mr. Smallwood's denial of an ultimatum informs us that the Rotarians, apparently not quite as hungry as at first appeared, declined the government's invitation to eat. After the Rotarians themselves had withdrawn their invitation to Mr. Fleming to speak. If Premier Smallwood had in fact withdrawn the invitation unreservedly, how could the Rotarians have declined it?

We do not know where Mr. Smallwood's sense of judgment was when he issued his ultimatum. Probably out on lunch with the Rotarians' sense of independence. Or perhaps on an extended vacation, for come to think of it, where was Joey's sense of judgment when he approved of feeding Rotarians with tax money in the first place?

Centres Well Located

With the award of contracts to Sheil Oil and British American Oil to build service centres just west of the Wooler Road, on Highway 401, district residents will soon learn first-hand exactly what kind of service the Provincial Government has decided should be provided for users of our "trans-provincial" highway. The service centres are expected to be in operation by fall.

Incidentally, the location of these service centres in fairly well line with requirements we suggested at a time when interests in the Bow Hope area were opposing the construction of such centres. As far as Belleville is concerned, the service centres are far enough away from the city to discourage their use by Belleville residents, to the detriment of local service stations and restaurants. The same may be true of Trenton, but there is an obvious difficulty in discovering any site which is not within easy driving distance of some community on Highway No. 2.

First reaction may be that it is strange it should have been decided to locate service centres at the same point on both sides of the road. This has not been done elsewhere. This, though, has the advantage of limiting the competition with local businessmen, for local trade, to one location, instead of installing this competition at two points.

Duplicate facilities will certainly not double the number of Trenton residents who patronize these centres.

Unreasonable Decision

Residents of the City of Belleville are being invited to submit offers to supply detention facilities for children. "A comfortably furnished room in a private home which may be made secure with child proof bolt facilities would be satisfactory," the advertisement says.

This advertisement was made necessary by the refusal of the Ontario Municipal Board to permit an amendment to an existing zoning by-law. The amendment would have allowed the Children's Aid Society to build a detention room at its home on Highland Avenue.

We think the Ontario Municipal Board is wrong in its decision. Having the detention facilities operated in connection with the Children's Aid home would have obvious advantages, both from the standpoint of supervision and cost.

It is difficult to understand what possible harm the detention of an occasional child could do to residents in an area where accommodation is already provided for deceased citizens, live visitors and parties and gatherings of various kinds, lively or deadly as the case may be.

Ideological Swan Squawk

Hamilton Spectator

A swan swam amok in a private lake in suburban Cleveland the other day and caused a boat with five passengers to upset. In the ensuing confusion, a 61-year-old publisher was drowned. The swan, reports said, has been displaying a "mean streak" ever since its mate died two years ago.

We have all been evidence of mean streaks in our neighbors; sometimes in ourselves. It seems somewhat normal in human affairs to be suspected among the birds and the beasts.

We wonder if the Communists have a theory about this. We know their theory about human affairs: if they are reared in the right non-capitalist environment they won't have any mean streaks. Man is shaped by the product of material forces. Provide for him a socialist economy and his tendency to show the occasional mean streak will go away.

Westerners often criticize Communist ideology for its denial of God. But the Communist does believe in a kind of Christian in his doctrine of man as in his claim there is no God. It is just that mistreating actually, for both Communist and Christian, causes the theory at least — though his unwillingness to trust man with freedom to refute it — to be self-seems to contradict it — the Communist has a much higher opinion of man than the Christian.

The Christian believes man is a mixture of good and bad, as prone to evil as the sparks to fly upward. The Christian knows self man needs divine help or redemption, and constantly for-giveness and grace. Environment is an important factor. Bad environment can make a man worse; good environment helps him to improve. But basically he has evil tendencies within him that no economic system or political system will eradicate. In the most perfect society on earth man will show a mean streak.

Communists are embarrassed right now by the mean streak evidence of crime among young people reared in the USSR. They have always claimed crime must not be punished in the individual as the anti-social source of crime must be destroyed."

We know what the Communist teaches about men with mean streaks. Change the system. We are not sure where he has a theory for Cleveland swans or not.

Fog-Killing Device Built

West German Bulletin

"We can photograph the far side of the moon, we have lengthened disciplines with a hundred on it or flying to another planet — but we cannot fly from one airport to another in Europe in bad weather," declared Professor Schmieschek, who was Einstein's assistant to Albert Einstein and is now at the Institute for Air and Space Travel at Porz near Cologne, introduced his latest special invention. He has been working on it since 1957. He began by making a fog-killing unit and followed that by successful experiments in miniature.

In use the machines would be built into the ground in a horizontal position at 50 metre intervals on either side of the runway. The propeller sucks the fog in and spins it against a rapidly revolving wire mesh disc. The size of mesh varies from five millimetres at the centre of the disc to 15 millimetres at the outside edge. The fog particles are caught in the mesh and falls down as water while the air molecules go through the fine net, forming an air tunnel which gives clear visibility up to a height of 150 metres.

Preliminary trials of the full size machine are considered amazingly effective. Running costs are low—one landing should cost 50 to 60 marks (£11.25 to £13.5), a small sum compared with the cost to restore hours flying for a passenger plane, and the saving both of air traffic involved. Further tests will be made in places where thick mists are an almost daily occurrence, there should be no obstacles to putting the idea into practice, not only in airports, but in harbors also. But delay may well be caused by the financial problem of installation, for it would cost up to a million marks ($250,000) to equip an airport with the new fog-eater.

Two and Two Make Five Sometimes

By SYDNEY J. HARRIS

A professor of education at Columbia University's Teachers College, in explaining some changes in teaching procedures, was quoted recently as saying: "If you take five stupid people and put them on a team, all you have is a team of five stupid people."

It this is what passes for thought at Columbia's Teachers College, then it is little wonder that our teachers themselves are so ill taught. For exactly the reverse is true.

The amazing and gratifying thing about group action, on a team or elsewhere, is that five stupid people usually add up to a great deal more than five stupid people. We can see it all around us.

There is a law known as "synergism" in men and boys, which says that when you have a mixture of different agencies, the total effect is greater than the sum of the separate effects taken by themselves. Synergism, two and two can add up to five, or even six or seven.

Synergism happens to be true in personal and social relations. Five men who might be deemed mediocre, or even inferior separately, can often combine to produce a brilliant result.

One of the team may have perseverance. Another may have courage. A third may possess immense vitality. And the fourth, though none of these, singly, is decisive, when the separate virtues may combine to make a powerful force for the purpose — whether it is shooting for baskets, running a bank, or building a cathedral.

We might even go so far as to say that the whole history of human achievement is a record of the synergistic effects of this kind of social synergism, if we set against the individuals who were largely responsible for the creation or churches, governments and other powerful social instruments of all sorts, it remains a puzzle that, with their limitations, they were able to accomplish so much of permanent value.

When Aristotle reminds us that man is, first of all, a social animal, he is doing more than merely underlining the obvious. He is trying to make us aware that the results of society, in any sphere, are always greater than the sum of individual efforts.

It is true that it often takes one great man to initiate some profound change or some vast project — but he does not have to be a particularly intelligent man. The ordinary men, indeed, with the knowledge others can accomplish more than five highly intelligent men who cannot co-operate. There is no reason that any of the twelve disciples were extraordinary in anything except their devotion to the cause.

Poets Lack Horse-Sense

Ottawa Journal

The London Times recently mentioned the late Sir Scotty Young Lochinvar, that hero of the borders, and flushed out of the records a few more letter-writers.

Mrs. Ida Andrews of Brechill-on-Sea asked what on earth Scott meant when he wrote:

So-light to the croupe the fair lady he swung
So light to the saddle before her he sprung.

"How daring," Mrs. Andrews, "Leap-frog? Up on the horse's rump? Or sideways springing up on one foot?"

This is as good a place as any to recall that the croupe is the rear of the saddle.

Mr. Henry Fleming of Tisbury, Wiltshire, thought Mrs. Andrews should reverse the lines of the couplet, and read:

So light to the saddle before her he sprung,
So light to the croupe the fair lady he swung.

This made it clear Lochinvar mounting, leaped and then hoisted the fair lady up behind him. No doubt his good horse stood still during the manoeuvres.

Mr. M. J. MacDonald, Golders Green, said Mrs. Andrews should allow poetic licence. Curious, perhaps, but it could be explained were common in poetry. What about Browning's horse Roland after he into Aix had galloped and stood? Mark the "stood" and the lapsed-ality following couplet:

As I sat with his head 'twixt my knees on the ground.

Is it possible that poets lack horse-sense?

GLEANINGS FROM OUR FYLES OF BYGONE YEARS

20 YEARS AGO

June 15th, 1942.

Haying operations have already started in Sidney township as was revealed by reports from the district visiting the city Monday afternoon. Mr. Morley Sine of the 6th concession of Sidney stated that he had cut the first of his hay, a combined field of sweet clover with alsikit, last Saturday; and had raked and collet it on Monday.

Another mystery surrounding the numerous false fire alarms from Grand St. Spring Street during the past week or so, apparently was solved last night when following another false call a nine-year-old in the district admitted turning in the alarm. The suspicion of the fire department personnel was aroused before answering last night's alarm owing to the fact that the number 20 on Grand St. James St. where the fire was claimed to be. Also the youthful culprit reported that alarm branches" brought to the fire.

Local motorists continue to be violators of the city's one-hour parking bylaw in the downtown area as was indicated in the fact that thirty-one delinquents were apprehended by Chief Police Chief Kidd on Tuesday. They will be summoned to court for their misdemeanors.

Referring to the closing exercises at Albert College, the following information given by Magrate W. C. Mikel with regards to that institution is of interest. The College was incorporated by a statute passed by the Legislature of Upper Canada and received the Royal Assent May 8th, 1857, the name at that time was "Belleville Seminary." The following year, 1858, the first board of trustees: Samuel Gilbert Bridgman, Chief, Robert Bird, Elias VanDewaters, all of the township of Sidney, Hastings County; John Counsell, master of Waterdown, Ont.; John Tyrrell of Ancaster, Wentworth County; Nathan Jacobs of London, Ont.; Philip Carman, of Maidstone, Essex County; John Campbell of Brooklin, Ontario county; Robert Holland, of Sophiasburg, Prince Edward county; and Peter Fisher of Nelson, Halton County. The original charter contains a clause prohibiting preference for a church college, namely, "Provided that no ecclesiastic shall at any time be appointed to or hold the office of trustee."

The institution was carried on under the auspices of the Episcopal Methodist Church. On August 31th, 1866 the name was changed to Albert College and it was given university powers and rights to confer degrees. Following the union of the Episcopal Methodist Church and the Wesleyan Methodist Church the power of conferring degrees was transferred from Albert College to Victoria College by a statute which received the Royal assent on March 25th, 1884. Victoria College was then at Cobourg. Many citizens of Belleville and other parts of the country have received their education at Albert College. Among the prominent graduates may be mentioned, the late Right Hon. Sir Richard B. Burdett, Q.C. M.P.; Chief Justice Howell of Manitoba; Sir Redmond Roblin of Manitoba; His Honor Judge Wills and the late E. Guss Porter, K.C., ex M.P.

Angina Pectoris Pain Is Nature's Warning

By JOSEPH G. MOLNER, M.D.

Dear Dr. Molner: Your recent article on the heart has been a blessing to me.

I have angina pectoris and take nitroglycerine tablets quite often for pain.

Prior to reading your article, I had never known about taking the pills before the pain starts. I have been doing that now and it helps me in making a meal, going up and down stairs, running to the telephone and many other things that cause pain. Thank you! — Mrs. H.L.B.

And thank you, and others who have written.

The pain of angina pectoris comes when the heart is subjected to more strain than it can comfortably meet. And since you are well past that age anyway, just forget you had the hysterectomy. The only real effect it has — in this regard, is emotional — some women mistakenly suppose it makes a difference. I don't think so, but their minds make it so. Physiologically, it doesn't at all.

"You Can Stop Sinus Trouble" is the title of a booklet explaining what sinus trouble really is, and recommending sufferers to do something about it. For a copy write to Dr. Molner, care of The Chicago Sun-Times Syndicate, P.O. Box 4390, Chicago 77, enclosing a long, self-addressed, unstamped envelope and 25c in coin to cover handling and postage.

As the second largest of the 10 provinces, Quebec naturally exercises a larger voice in the affairs of the nation than the smaller provinces. It cannot claim, however, to have influence equal to the sum total of the others simply because in it are found one tenth of the population and the rest of Canada another nation.

THE PACKSACK

By GREGORY CLARK

As predicted so much as two years ago, the fallout shelter fad fizzled out like the hula hoop. I had a recent conversation with a man who said he had a lot to do with civil defense and surveying shelters for the past ten years, who was one of the first I heard two years ago prophesying the end of the fallout shelter campaign.

"Well, now," he said, "take food, for example. Suppose we had some major disaster such as an atom bomb or a big destructive earthquake over a large area, how long would the food last in any city you care to mention? As nearly as I can figure there is never more than three days' food supply in any city. In the event of a disaster, the food supply would not last even one day; because, in the panic that would be on, immediate rush on the available supply, not to mention looting.

"Suppose you were quick, and were able to snap up even a week's supply of basic food, how long would it last? Not a city's cache would become known to individual suffering from denial of incliation to take your supplies from compulsion, assault or worse, if necessary, before nightfall. As far as disaster is concerned, cities are fools' paradises."

No Need to Worry

Edmonton Journal

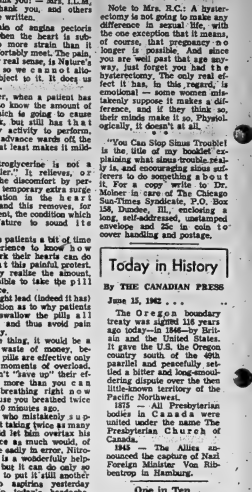
STRENGTH FOR THE DAY

DR EARL L. DOUGLASS

"WHAT GOD HATH JOINED TOGETHER"



The Taj Mahal is one of the artistic masterpieces of the world. It was built by a Mogul Emperor as a tomb for his wife who died in childbirth. He died at his life. When at last he died, he was buried beside her.

This is not necessarily a pattern of procedure but it is an inspiring example of wedded devotion. In a land where polygamy was prevalent, this man chose to have one wife, and after her death to have no other. It certainly does not mean that persons bereft of their spouses should not marry again. Often — in fact, usually — remarriage is necessary indicated. Someone has jested that second marriages are a triumph of hope over experience but on the whole, second marriages following the death of a mate, have proved their wisdom and worthwhileness. And joining together of persons who have some maturity of years and experience, for mutual help, is usually a successful and happy.

Fidelity in marriage, such as the Mogul Emperor had for his wife, is the element which alone makes marriage successful. The casual marriage based on fleeting devotion, sacrifice — these are the elements which join lives

PC Candidate Tells of Work In Riding in Past 4 Years

Progressive Conservative candidate Lee Grills addressed a crowd of more than 600 packed Club Caesars to overflowing proportions, Mr. Grills spoke of the expansion that has taken place in Hastings South since 1957.

In that year there were seven vacant stores on Front Street in Belleville and today there are but two. The population has grown from 55,000 to 70,000 and many of our important industries such as Northern Electric and Monsanto Johnson have built additions of considerable size and are employing more men than ever before. At Bata Shoe at the present moment there are 100 jobs available for trained workers. To further assure jobs in the future, there are three technical schools being built in the area, two in Belleville and one in Trenton, which will eliminate the unskilled worker.

Mr. Grills went on to tell of the Federal Buildings in Belleville and Trenton, the sewage disposal plans that will benefit the whole Quinte district, the Trent Canal system improvements, a $12,000,000 project already under way, and the Agricultural stimulation given to the dairymen with the new cheese factories. Mr. Grills told the crowd he has worked hard for his riding and will continue to give everything he has for the betterment of his constituents.

Y Is Given 'A-A' Rating

The Belleville YMCA has again been awarded a class "A-A" grouping in the National YMCA's annual Hi-Lo physical ability competition in Y's across Canada. The grouping is determined by a formula which takes into account the membership of the "Y" concerned, the population of its community and a number of other variable factors.

This year the Belleville "Y" qualified 56 members for the Hi-Lo award which requires that an individual earn 13 points of a possible 15. The local "Y" has won the pennant as top association in its category for three years now.

Discrimination To Be Stopped Says Robarts

TORONTO (CP) — Premier Roberts has re-emphasized that the Ontario government is prepared to use the weight of law if it finds that education alone does not stop discrimination in the province.

But he said he continues to hope that legal sanctions will not be necessary to bring about a full acceptance of racial, religious and ethnic equality among Ontario residents.

"We will never address what we're after by rigid enforcement of the law," Mr. Robarts told a press conference Thursday. "It really has to be done by the education of our people."

"But the law is there and if necessary we are prepared to follow through."

His statements came on the eve of enforcement of the Ontario Human Rights Code, a compilation of the province's anti-discrimination laws which has given unanimous approval at the last session of the legislature.

SETS OUT PROCEDURE

The code sets out a system of conciliation to be followed when cases of discrimination are reported. If that fails, the labor minister may fine an individual up to $100 and a corporate body up to $500 for each offence.

For persistent violation, the government can seek a Supreme Court injunction which would place the violator under threat of contempt-of-court proceedings or other legal sanctions.

MAKES LIVING A PLEASURE!

A COURSE FOR FATHER'S DAY

The wind freshens . . . whitecaps form . . .
the canvas fills and you are under way.
You have charted the course, noted reefs and shoals, compensated for drift and current. The boy at the helm can steer a true course if you have chosen it well.
Any father must feel the magnitude of the task of guiding his son through life's uncertain waters.
What responsible man could feel any other way?
This is Fatherhood . . . the realisation that nothing is so important as guiding your own son along a course that has maturity of outlook and responsibility as its destination.
Such guidance requires a delicate touch, the mature understanding of a man who has sailed these waters before.
And nowhere is this understanding more important than in the practice of Moderation in all things, including the use of whisky. It is this thought which The House of Seagram wishes to leave with you on Father's Day.

British Girls Now Going Back to Farm

LONDON (CP)—It used to be "How ya gonna keep 'em down on the farm?" But soon the problem with British girls may be how to keep 'em away.

Since the Second World War, farmers and their wives have had so much contact with work and farm - filling to cope with that they now are forced to seek outside material help.

A Warwickshire agricultural college for women recently expanded its curriculum of practical farm work to include a 13 - month domestic science course. Already the applications are flooding in for the second course, starting in September.

Students learn about a farmer's income tax, crop and milk yield charts and subsidy claims, as well as regular bookkeeping, chemical and turnip. On the farm they'll be able to turn in a moment from tapping the keys to driving a tractor or mucking out the pigs.

"You should be no difficulty in finding them well-paid jobs," says the principal of Studley College, Miss E. Hess.

The first course drew a surprising number of applications from city girl secretaries, librarians and shop assistants. Many admitted the call of country life from farming grandparents.

"The latest generation just had to return to the land," said Miss Hess.

The skirt is straight but not tapered. The jacket is enlivened by the jabot frill of the blouse.

Dafoe read a paper entitled "Children Get the Best On Credit, or Our Children Will Have Only They Missed" This described a family whose parents insisted that their children would have everything even if it meant going into debt, and they were getting it. The suggestion it was better to do without than go into debt.

A "Flower Contest" was won led by Mrs. S. Demille, with a lively stag-song book placed, Mrs. C. Bates Sr. at the piano.

Hard candies were the reward for the winning side.

Mrs. McFarlane thanked all who so kindly and willingly assisted and the 2nd sports unit made the foolish games fun.

Refreshments were served and a memorable evening will be looked on tomorrow as the good old days.

Readers' Friday Column

Question: I am writing you hoping you (or your readers) might have some receipes using rice flour. I have an infant son who is allergic to wheat and eggs. This means he is not allowed bread or cookies and since he is at the teething age, this is most inconvenient. I have tried using standard bread receipes, substituting rice flour but with terrible results . . . Mrs. I. B.

Answer: Your letter started us working on bread made without wheat flour and to my surprise and delight by doing only two experimental loaves we have produced one made with rice and pro flour that is quite acceptable. When cut fresh it is real good and toasted it is delicious.

We are so pleased to have discovered this for you that we are pressing our feelers in this kitchen this morning.

Note: I hope other readers who have wheat or egg allergic babies have problems, will see and clip this wheat-free bread now.

pound. Buy your rice flour at a large drug store. In a bag it is 5lc per pound.

Sift together the flours, salt, sugar and dried yeast. Stir in the water and oil and beat for 3 minutes at electric beater or for 10 minutes if by hand. Line bottom of buttered standard loaf pan with buttered paper. Pour in batter and bake at 350 deg. Fahr. about 40 to 50 minutes. When loaf is baked it shrinks away from side of pan a little. Cool on rack in pan for 5 minutes then remove from pan and cool on rack. Slice this bread with a very sharp knife. Avast for those who are not allergic to wheat this bread is a treat — especially toasted.

Youth for Christ to Present "Decade of Decision"

World Wide Pictures' newest feature film, "Decade of Decision," will be shown Saturday evening at 7.45 in the Masonic Temple, Foster Ave, under the auspices of Youth for Christ. It is the interesting story of the life of Billy Graham and his rise to national and international prominence, and of the way in which the religion of Jesus Christ became front page news after World War II.

The story begins in the "Canvas Cathedral," seating 6,000 in Los Angeles in 1949, continuing through more than 100 Crusades, climaxing in 1960 with the mass meeting attended by more than 100,000 Germans near Berlin's Brandenburg Gate. It shows great crowds, 32 millions on every continent, listening to the message of the old, old Story of the Cross, characterized by the oft-repeated phrase, "The Bible Says."

VAST CROWDS

It shows the vast crowds jamming auditoriums from New York to Tanghyuka, to Kottayam, South India, as well as the quiet moments when Billy stands alone on the rain-swept streets of Times Square, New York, the night before his great spiritual test at Madison Square Garden; it shows him, too, in a non-descript hotel room poring over his well-thumbed Bible in preparation to give forth the message of Life. A glimpse of Ruth, his wife, is also given as she joins her husband for the itinerary across Europe, and his platform team, Cliff Barrows, Grady Wilson, Bev Shea, Ted Smith in little personal scenes, making this film a memorable experience to all who view it.

The international flavor is provided by scenes from his Crusades in England, Scotland, India, most of Asia, Australia and the islands of the Se. Frican and the Caribbean, from which masses of people step out of the crowd telling the Gospel has given meaning and purpose of life.

"Decade of Decision" is climaxed by the challenge to the western nations to offer its people, a slogan to quote, saying to sing, and a flag to follow, which is the Christian Faith, the true panacea for the needs of men and nations. The film ends at the beginning of another decade, on the threshold of a future whose significance depends on the attitude individuals take in relation to God.

THE FAMILY COUNCIL

Richard K. — At middle age I have no savings due to bar mitzvahs.

Seena K. — Why worry about the future? With the bomb, there won't be any.

Richard K. — I'm 56 years old, married 26 years, and I haven't put away a dime. With compulsory retirement looming ahead in a few years, I see no chance to pile up a little nest egg between now and then, as the rais my wife goes through my pay cheque. She spends it as fast as I make it.

I've tried to impress Seena with the fact that my earning capacity is limited and that if we want to maintain a respectable standard of living after my retirement, we ought to have a reserve fund to dip into. Pension, Social Security and other odds and ends of income still won't add up to what we'll need.

For years I've been planning to concentrate on a savings account. Suddenly I realize there aren't many years left and I wish my wife realized it, too.

Seena K. — I'm not worried about the future. I know people who spend their whole life preparing for the future and never reach it. Meanwhile they have no present or past. They deprive themselves of everything but bare essentials. They never go anywhere, never enjoy the latest inventions or the new models of the old ones. They don't avail themselves of the short cuts and comforts which money can buy. As a result they live a starved life from beginning to end.

I don't know how things will end. I'm willing to take my chances. If the bombs gets loose, whatever happens to others will happen to Dick and me, too. It's not in my control. But as long as I have some free choice on how to live right now, I want to live it up! If we have to penny-pinch later, it's better than doing it now. Old rocking chairs don't cost much. But we're not ready for them yet.

The Council: All would be well, indeed, if life waited for you to call "Ready!" as in a game of hide-and-seek. It's hard to retire to a rocking chair when you're ready. Sadness enters the picture when you're forced to retrench, backtrack long before you're forced to, forced by circumstances beyond your control such as illness or arbitrary laws, or circumstances within your control, such as overspending. Richard is right to be anxious and dismayed.

Given the financial choice, as you seem to be, between spending to the hilt and spending with restraint, you prefer the egotistic route to disaster. Your only answer is the old hedonistic one of the ancient Greeks as they spinned to their downfall: "Eat, drink and be merry, for tomorrow you die."

Well, Richard refuses to be the Condemned Man. He's appealing the case. He asks Seena to eat, drink and save up for the tomorrow for which provident, mature people prepare. He's aware of the anguish caused by a sudden drop in one's accustomed mode of living. Going from good to better is easier than from good to bad, and it's better for one's health. Richard is merely asking Seena to help him settle upon a scale of living they can afford to become accustomed to for the rest of their lives — planned on a No-Bomb basis!

The Federal Council on Aging urges couples to start planning for retirement in their mid-40s. For couples like the K's, living up to and beyond their income, there's a sharp warning: "Retrench!" Such couples, say this agency, face a rude awakening. Usually retirement brings a drop in income. Without savings to take up the slack left from Social Security and pension income, they must institute drastic changes in their standards of living. Any sound planning brings them to the humiliation of begging or borrowing.

As a start, Seena and Dick might divert the funds intended for that expensive vacation and purchase catastrophe insurance, the non-cancellable major medical health protection to cover costly illnesses. This would remove the nightmare of being wiped out overnight by one form of misfortune. This will be a vacation from worry, even though it be spent at a beach close to home.

Question: Your column is one I always read, and now I need some help. I've had the same doctor for fourteen years as a surgeon. He's operated on me three times — most recently two weeks ago.

I was in a semi-private room and couldn't help but notice something. My doctor came to see me every day and sometimes twice if he happened to be around the hospital. He even came in over the week end. I noticed the other patients didn't receive the same attention from their doctors. In fact, one of the other patients even remarked about it.

I have to go back for a check-up this month and would like to give him a small gift in appreciation for his kindness. I thought of buying him a desk set. Naturally, I'd feel a little foolish bringing him anything if I thought it was not the proper thing to do. That's why I decided to write you first for advice. I'll be watching for your answer in the paper. — M.D., N'er Heven, Conn.

Answer: Doctors too often get short-changed in the "thank you" department. A check for services rendered doesn't always cover the deep concern that many dedicated doctors put into a case, in addition to their skill and knowledge. A gift is not expected and is probably a rarity to most physicians, but it's not totally unheard of. A small token — something for his desk as you mentioned — would be appropriate. If you feel shy about presenting it in person, you can have it delivered to his office and enclose a short note.

In view of his great devotion to his patients, I'm sure your doctor will appreciate the thought just as much as the gift itself.

Successful Living

Disagrees About Common Law

DORIS CLARK

DEAR DORIS:—We are living with a stepmother who is still married to another man. She is very cross and my father listens to her instead of us. I am not allowed out with boys, although I am 15 and old for my age.

My school marks have dropped and my teacher says I don't get enough studying in. I do washing, ironing, cleaning, get breakfast and pack lunches, besides two hours of homework every day.

I have decided I would make more progress if I stayed in town with my aunt, even the two weeks that exams are on. Could I do this if O.K.'d by my aunt?—ROSIE.

DEAR ROSIE:—You need a break. There are many kind stepmothers, but yours resents you, resents her own unmarried (or too-much married!) status. Acts most un-motherly.

Unless your Dad is unconscious, he cannot help but see a little of your plight. If your aunt is your friend, get her to help by showing your side of it. Moving out, for even a short time, might get you some appreciation—and some passed exams.

DEAR DORIS—Four years ago my mother took in her orphaned niece to live with us. Never having had a sister, I was delighted and have always treated her as such. However, within one year of coming she forced her attentions sufficiently on my brother to get him to decide he was going to marry her.

Mother was, of course, so very shocked and horrified. Needless to say her horror came from the very close relationship and consequences to be paid by yet unborn generations, should this take place.

Several times they were supposed to have ended their relationship. Then my brother is happy and able to talk civilly to everyone. But as soon as he's been to see her again, he's moody, sarcastic and just plain mad at everybody.

Now I have offered my cousin in all friendship to stay with us (in another city) to look for a job without being charged board and room. Also here she could meet young people, but apparently this is not enough enticement.

I cannot really believe that he loves her; if he did, he should be happy enough to declare it. Also, apparently she isn't proud of it for she doesn't want it publicized, nor to be seen locally alone with him.

I have tried to get her to pray about this, but it is simply scoffed at.—WORRIED COUSIN.

DEAR COUSIN—Why so worried? First cousins often marry. A genetics expert assures me that if both partners are healthy, there's nothing to fear.

If there is a weakness in the grandparents, it may come down through both and hence be more pronounced in the offspring of such marriages. That's all.

Surely they would publicly because you are so scandalized. Love is not making them happy with the shadow of your disapproval over it. You could pray about it, even if they don't.

TO JOHNNY—Decide whether you intend to keep on living with her. She may be Indian, an alcoholic, and very jealous. But she has given you loving service.

Marriage itself may increase her self-respect enough to make drowning her sorrows unnecessary. There's always something deeper where there's alcohol.

DEAR DORIS—I have a twin sister who is 7 minutes older than me. We are both shy. When I am invited to a party I hesitate to accept because I feel I will have a bad time.

I have been told that I am pretty, but I am on the chubby side. I want to have a big friend or at least be asked out on dates. Do you think it is my shyness or my weight problem or both that give me a disadvantage in social life?

I have a lot of friends but not enough boys. How do I start getting boys to notice me?—CHUBBY AND SHY.

DEAR CHUBBY AND SHY—Twins! You should be bolstering each other up. Start conspiring, putting on parties, planning good entertainment. Between you there is plenty of moral courage, if you see it that way.

Both chubbiness and shyness will put people off. But if you can slim down you'll feel surer of yourself—less shy! Clothes will look smarter too. Practise good grooming. Take care of your skin.

Learn something new, both of you. How to build a barbeque, how to plan a picnic, how to play the ukelele or tennis. How to talk—about the other fellow's interests.

Write again, enclosing a stamped, self-addressed envelope, and I'll send you the name of a thirty-five cent paperback which is full of gems of wisdom for you to take to heart about dating.

TO CONFUSED—I sympathize with your problem. However, if you would like an answer, you will have to enclose a stamped, self-addressed envelope, as I cannot reply to anonymous letters.

TO MRS. G. E. M., ANXIOUS AND P. R. — I can't rush replies. Letters are mailed on to me from this newspaper. I keep wading through the pile, which comes from all parts of Canada. Give me time and you'll have an answer, and a helpful one, I hope. And all for a five-cent) stamp.

TO INVITED OUT—Better than a hat is a slick new hair do, when it's dinner after six. The rest of the costume sounds perfect.

(Tackle what's bothering you. Talking it over with Doris can help. Write to her in care of this newspaper, enclosing a self-addressed, stamped envelope.)

EFFRONTERY--PM

like this in an election campaign."

He noted that Khrushchev had based his "fears" on this Canadian "threat" on some things which Liberal defence critic Paul Hellyer and New Democratic Party leader T. C. Douglas had been saying. Then he observed that while campaigning against the Liberals and the New Democrats, he also had encountered communists.

MR. K. ENTERS

"And now," he said, "Krushchev has entered the picture."

Khrushchov could hardly have timed it better as a provocative eve-of-election issue for it gave this "day of the leaders" in Toronto's 16 contestants a charge of drama, even melodrama. It was almost like new year's eve here in "Bigtown" last night.

The Conservative show of campaign strength was as colorful as it was impressive. The 18 candidates rode in a motorcade, one to a car with his name bannered across it in flourescent paint, with red chairs for each evening said he had set out 2,000 of But between another 5,000 and 7,000 were standing. Conservative organizers put the crowd at 10,000. The caterers said they served 12,000 cups of coffee. And from the platform Toronto Telegram publisher John Bassett, the Conservative candidate in Spadina, in introducing the Prime Minister counted the crowd at "between 8,000 and 9,000." This time there could be a few arguments — the crowd was big. "The biggest yet," was the way the Prime Minister saw it. And when the rally was done, there were fireworks. In a display 40 feet high launching rockets and starbursts, was spelled out "Diefenbaker—Man for All Canada."

BIG LEAGUE EVENT

It was a big league event even for "Bigtown" confessed a Toronto Star editor who had not come prepared to give anything away.

The Prime Minister walked to his car down a corridor of scarlet-sparking torches, and then sped across town to Massey Hall for a rally of the Baptist Federation. Across the street, some 300 young Liberals were massed with "Mike for Metro" and "Down with Bassett" banners.

While the Prime Minister was speaking inside, and then waiting a concert until 11.30, the Young Liberals were chanting —and it could be heard in Massey Hall — "Down with Diefy" and "We Like Mike." Tension for a time mounted as the crowd outside grew, Liberals on one side of the street and Conservatives on the other. Toronto police stepped in between them and, locking arms, kept them apart — but only until the Prime Minister came out. Then the Young Liberals surged forward, broke the police lines and closed in around the Prime Minister's car. There was a moment of frantic scuffling, and then slowly, carefully, the car nosed through the crowd. But the fireworks of the night was still the rally at the CNE grounds. The Prime Minister had been delivering what pretty well has been a stock speech, and was about done, when suddenly he reached into his jacket pocket for what turned out to be a copy of the Khrushchev note. It had "warned" Canada against nuclear arming and accused Canadians of contributing to an "atomic hysteria" directed to provoking war. The Prime Minister was indignant for no other country the world over had taken a stronger stand for peace than Canada. And now the Russian was sending a note to "tell Canadians what they ought to do in his election campaign." Here the Prime Minister paused dramatically, leaned slowly over the crowd and asked: "You know why he is annoyed? He doesn't want this government back in power because it took a strong stand against Soviet colonialism."

Then he added this: "Ladies and gentlemen, we told the Soviet Ambassador to take back his note and do with it what he would."

Angrily, the Prime Minister rejected the Russian attempt to condemn Canada as having a "dangerous government threatening the peace of the world." He threw back the charge with the declaration that all "the world knew of Canada's dedication to peace and disarmament. He recounted the details of the offer he previously had made to Khrushchev of reciprocal aerial inspection of the Arctic for defence installations which the Russian had charged were for "surprise attack."

"With all my heart and soul," declared the Prime Minister, "I swear that every member of my government has worked for peace, and will continue doing so." Resentful of Gagarin's condemnation at the UN of Soviet Colonialism, Khrushchev was well aware of the Prime Minister's intention of moving a formal resolution of decolonization at the next Assembly. And that, and Canada's determination to defend freedom, were the reasons back of Khrushchev's "colossal effrontery," of the interference in the election campaign.

The Russian, said the Prime Minister, had quoted both Mr. Hellyer and Mr. Douglas to support the false charge that Canada was endangering world peace. Khrushchev had complained that both the Liberal and the New Democrat had forecast that Canada was preparing to go in for nuclear arms. The Soviet note had also quoted statements by Defence Minister Harkness, the Prime Minister himself and Associate Defence Minister Sevigny. And it should have been plain, even to Khrushchev as it was to the rest of the world that Canada had taken a firm stand against nuclear arms in peacetime. So, reported the Prime Minister, the Russian note had been "rejected as inadmissable interference with Canadian affairs."

NDP Leader Had Words For Khrushchev

By RUSSELL ELMAN

WINNIPEG (CP) — NDP Leader T. C. Douglas had some sharp words for Soviet Premier Khrushchev and got a big pat on the back from party elder statesman M. J. Coldwell Thursday night.

He climaxed his fifth major rally in four nights with a condemnation of Soviet resumption of nuclear testing last fall as "callous and contemptuous of world public opinion."

Mr. Douglas made the statement before a shirt - sleeved audience of some 4,100 in Civic Auditorium as his party's reply to a Soviet note to the Canadian government protesting what it called "preparation of Canada for nuclear armament."

In re-stating the NDP policy against nuclear arms for Canada, he also condemned United States nuclear tests, especially proposed high altitude series in the Pacific which he said would have "terrible repercussions for the health of humanity."

"Canada has to be independent," he said. "Canada must speak out, no matter who it speaks against, and it must speak for peace."

RETURNS HOME

Mr. Douglas, who flies today to his home constituency of Regina to wrap up his campaign for Monday's general election, arrived here from Vancouver for a pre-rally dinner reunion with Mr. Coldwell, former national CCF leader.

At the rally Mr. Coldwell, now honorary NDP president, said he hoped that in his lifetime he would see Mr. Douglas have the same opportunity to serve the people of Canada as prime minister as he had served Saskatchewan as premier.

Even if it didn't happen in this election, he hoped that when the next election came around Mr. Douglas would emerge as prime minister.

Mr. Coldwell, who came out of semi-retirement to speak for the NDP in the campaign, predicted that the day is approaching when Canada will have if complete medical care plan. "Special privilege" would be fought and defeated.

Thursday's rally was held in the same hall, where a similar-sized crowd turned to hear Prime Minister Diefenbaker May 23. When Liberal Leader Lester Pearson spoke in the auditorium May 28, an additional 700 - persons were accommodated in an adjoining hall.

CRITICIZES LIBERALS

Mr. Douglas also had some criticisms to make of the Liberals.

"The only real difference between Mr. Diefenbaker and Mr. Pearson is that one desperately trying to cling to office, while the other is desperately trying to wessel his way into office."

Describing the Liberal "team" as "strap hangers on a wayward bus," he said "once again they are trying to take us for a ride" but "the same old gang" was still in the driver's seat.

The team members were all either former cabinet ministers; deputy ministers or cabinet advisers, who the people had thrown out five years ago.

"You can be pretty suspicious of men who come to you now promising to do all of the things they refused to do during their 22 years of office."

Thompson Says Party Will Hold Power Balance

By BOB TRIMBEE

EDMONTON (CP) — Social Credit Leader Robert Thompson says his party will hold the balance of power in the next Canadian Parliament and will use it to bring about another election within a year.

Mr. Thompson told a press conference and later a rally attended by more than 1,600 persons here that he expects another federal election "within six months."

No party experts to win the election, he said, Social Credit was breaking ground east of Manitoba in preparation for the second federal election within a year.

"There's going to be another Waterloo this June 16 when Social Credit provides the upset of the election," he told the enthusiastic rally.

Canada no longer can afford a Conservative government and the Liberal's financial policy was little better before that, he said. Only a "false economy" which carried over from the Second World War prevented the Liberals from "being tossed out earlier."

HEADS FOR ONTARIO

Mr. Thompson, who had less than three hours sleep Wednesday night, left immediately after the rally in the 2,750-seat Jubilee Auditorium for a day-long tour of the Niagara Peninsula. His major address, was scheduled for St. Catharines.

In Edmonton, three party candidates, their wives and Premier E. C. Manning of Alberta flanked Mr. Thompson on the stage. As 45-man choir warmed up supporters before Mr. Thompson spoke.

There were few hecklers and most remarks they made were drowned out by the cheers of party supporters.

At one point Mr. Thompson said economic security employment was the basic issue of the campaign and the sound principles of Social Credit offered Canadians new hope.

"By using our credit properly we will have jobs for everyone and this can come about with election of a Social Credit government June 18," he said.

PREDICTS BACKING

Mr. Thompson said his party had a good chance of winning seats in six of the 10 provinces, and in Quebec a three-year organization drive has led officials to look for 15 to 30 seats.

Financial chaos helped Social Credit sweep to power in Alberta's political chaos helped the party gain power in B.C., and a combination of the two will give it national power, he said.

Mr. Thompson told a press conference earlier that Canada's Senate is "one of the most appalling legislative bodies in the world."

It should be reformed so that half its members were recommended by the provinces and the remainder by a non-political committee. Each senator should be appointed for a specific term and reappointed only if he proved he could handle the job.

Under this system, he added, the Senate would be able to carry out many studies now turned over to royal commissions.

Canada Hurt In Purse, Pride Says Pearson

By ARCH MacKENZIE

TORONTO (CP) — Canada has been hurt in both "purse and pride" in the last five years, Liberal Leader Pearson said Thursday night.

Looking ahead, he predicted the Liberals will win Monday's election with a clear majority.

Internationally, Canada could become a leader of the middle powers, matching actions to words and playing a role in "taking the Western world through critical times."

Domestically, a Liberal government would restore some of the zest and confidence that marked the period after 1945 "when we knew we were going places."

Mr. Pearson spoke for 45 minutes to a partisan crowd that attendants at the O'Keefe Centre reckoned at 3,450 in the main hall plus at least 2,000 in the outer lobbies watching his address on closed-circuit television.

It was a lavishly-staged set-piece production competing with Prime Minister Diefenbaker's rally elsewhere in the city.

Attendance inside the hall was by reservation only and produced a forest of placards borne by representatives of the 25 Toronto-area constituencies who lined the aisles with the spotlighted entry of each candidate before the speech.

Later, Mr. Pearson, his wife, their daughter, Mrs. Pat Hannah, and two of the eight Pearson grandchildren got an ovation.

He touched all the main issues advanced during his campaign to date. April 31, He drew a prolonged standing ovation when he said he believed that as leader of the next government he could strengthen Canada's international hand through the United Nations.

Mr. Pearson said Mr. Diefenbaker was accusing the U.S. government of "bowling" because Canada had devalued its dollar to 92.5 cents in terms of U.S. currency.

HASN'T HEARD A 'BEEP'

"I don't see how anybody can be so desperate as to make such a complete mistake," Mr. Pearson didn't know what the U.S. was thinking, but so far as he knew it hadn't even "beeped," let alone devalued.

Devaluation was born in panic and "you'll pay in higher prices," Mr. Pearson said.

The best way to stabilize Canadian currency and restore confidence is to remove the present government, Mr. Pearson said.

With confidence restored, the government then could decide the best plan for the dollar—floating in terms of international exchange rates or pegged as now.

Mr. Pearson spoke after a day touring eastern Ontario between Kingston and Trenton. Today, he ends up at Brantford for a night meeting and flies to Ottawa to spend the last day of campaign in that area.

EXPLAINS SPACE SCULPTURE — Toronto-born Gerald Gladstone introduces "spacist sculpture" to London, England. The 33-year-old sculptor went to Britain a year ago on a Canada Council scholarship and had an exhibition of his work in a Mayfair gallery. Here he explains his intricate steel structure —called Bubble Complex—to Mrs. E. Molesworth, wife of the director of London's Victoria and Albert Museum.—(CP Photo).

Canadian at Launching Pad As Sculpture Enters A-Age

By CAROL KENNEDY

LONDON (CP) — Now sculpture enters the space age—and here's a Canadian at the launching pad.

Toronto - born Gerald Gladstone's one-man show in a Mayfair art gallery May 25 to June 18 turned the place into a set for a science-fiction movie.

Great brooding contraptions of welded metal rods and spheres stood around like prototypes of a Wellsian time machine, bearing names like Super Nova, System A and Star Lock.

Gladstone calls his work "spacist sculpture." He introduces it in elaborate philosophical terms, talking of "continuous time cycles," "symbolical additions to space" and his own conception of mankind progressing through "circular cone-shaped universe."

But there's nothing pompous or rarefied about this volatile, friendly little man who came to London a year ago on a Canada Council grant and has since been teaching at the Royal College of Art. He creates his sculptures there in a big empty studio because as wife Sheila says: "It's terribly noisy when he works at home."

He buys his materials—mild steel rods—by the ton from metal merchants and chops it into suitable lengths. Occasionally he sees a piece of scrap in a junkyard that he can't resist working into a sculpture.

The finished pieces sometimes contain as many as 1,500 metal rods and weigh anything up to 700 pounds.

The 33-year-old Canadian was a painter until four years ago and is largely a self - taught sculptor. One thing that influenced the development of his space-age art was a life-long fascination with higher mathematics.

"Music's all tied up with it too," says red - haired Sheila Gladstone. "Gerry's mad on Bach, Mozart, Haydn—oh, and Gershwin too. He plays half-a-dozen instruments and would have made in the studio if his hammering didn't drown it out."

SHOWN ON TV

On preview day, May 22, it was like rush-hour in the subway in Mayfair's cramped, exclusive Molton Gallery. Gladstone snatched a few minutes away from the buzzing throng to watch himself on television, exploding with laughter at the commentator's baffled expression as the cameras probed the spiky recesses of "System A."

"It's going well," he told a reporter a few days later. "Sir John Rothenstein (director of the Tate Gallery) has just been in and likes it very much. As for the Canadian artists—there have been so many of them here they seem to be coming out of the woodwork."

Gladstone's work is represented in two major Canadian galleries—Toronto and Vancouver—and in several private collections in Canada. He has no plans for returning to Canada but will shortly be moving his family of four to New York where "things like refrigerators and washing-machines are necessities, not luxuries."

How to Treat an ACHING BACK

Science at Work

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Topics This Week: Bird and bee navigation secrets, balloons for scientists, and a space jaywalker.

BIRD AND BEE SECRETS

Humans have made great progress in developing guidance systems for space vehicles, but "it will take 100 years for electronics to catch up with the sophisticated guidance and sensory systems of the birds and the bees," says John L. Burns, former president of Radio Corporation of America.

"Evidence now at hand suggests that in flight the bat finds his way by bouncing ultrasonic waves off solid objects; the pigeon homes on the magnetic lines of the earth; a bird flies thousands of miles from the tree branch in your backyard, and returns to the same branch, through stellar navigation.

"The eye and brain of the hungry frog filter out all discordant information except the movement of the fly his palate craves—a superb example of image recognition and interpretation.

"If we could only translate this characteristic into a mathematical formula — and then into hardware—we could endow an earth satellite with a similarly adaptable 'eye' that would select the precise information it was sent aloft to obtain."

FLOATING LABORATORY

Scientists are getting their own special balloon flight station, to be set up this summer at Palestine, Tex.

From this base, they can release balloons lifting up instruments for high altitude study of the atmosphere and weather phenomena, for astronomical studies above the clouding effects of the earth's air, and for capturing primary cosmic rays.

SPACE JAYWALKER

Hermes is the name of one of the sun's minor planets, a chunk of rock about a mile in diameter, weighing perhaps three billion tons.

Unlike other minor planets which follow orderly paths between Mars and Jupiter, Hermes has an eccentric orbit, and can actually come within about 200,000 miles of the earth, closer than the moon itself, and a near miss, cosmically speaking.

But the chance that it or similar bodies would ever collide with the earth with devastating effects is infinitesimally small, says John MacVey in Space Digest magazine.

BELLEVILLE, ONTARIO, FRIDAY, JUNE 15, 1962

New sawmill of Chisholm's of Roslin is one of the most modern, in Central Ontario with its emphasis on tidiness. In other words there are only logs and lumber, with no waste products left over to clutter up the millyard. Sawdust and bark are burned while slabs are put through a chipping machine and sold to a Trenton paper plant. Pictures shows new mill with a small section of log piles.

Lumber, of course, is main end product of the mill. Here mill worker Clare Carney of Roslin, piles freshly sawn planks.

Joseph Chisholm, youngest of three brothers in the business, digs a wood chips, an end product of the sawmill, sold to Trenton paper company. Slabwood piles are a minus quantity around the Chisholm mill.

Workhorse of the Chisholm sawmill is this big forklift truck which not only carries logs from the dump to mill log rollway, but also takes away the sawn lumber and piles it in the lumber yard.

Chisholm's of Roslin Are in the Chips Which Help Keep Lumber Mill Profitable

Chisholm's of Roslin are in the chips!

In the chip business that is—along with almost everything else that has to do with lumber.

But for Chisholm's, in business for more than a century at the present site at Chisholm's Mills, getting into the chip business meant acquiring of the most modern type sawmill on the market, with the goal of increasing efficiency — and profits.

"Let's face it; these days you've got to utilize everything," stated Joseph Chisholm, youngest of the three brothers who are Chisholm's of Roslin.

Utilizing everything means that nothing it wasted at the sawmill. Every bit of a log that it handles is sawed into some kind of lumber, while the edgings and slabs are cut into chips and sold to a Trenton paper mill for making paper.

The woods chips go to Trenton by a company truck carrying up to seven or more tons.

ONE OF LARGEST

Although the firm was almost completely burned out during the 1949's, Chisholm's of Roslin have rebuilt their holdings and today operate as one of the largest lumber businesses in the Quinte district.

They buy up sawlogs from as far away as 90 or 100 miles and truck them to Roslin where they are put through their sawmill, then the lumber is either processed in their own planing mill or sold as rough lumber.

In addition to the lumber and chip business, Chisholm's operate a builder's retail business and a grist mill which has operated with water power on the Moira River for well over 100 years.

Actually the business originally was a grist mill known as Shipman's Mill. Then back in 1857 Joseph and William Chisholm purchased the mill. Joe Chisholm, one of the original Chisholm co-owners, was the grandfather of the present owners.

Joe, the youngest of the Chisholm boys, operates the sawmill. Donald operates the retail business, while Walter runs the planing mill.

EMPLOY FORTY

All told the business employs over 40 workers and is a big factor in the economic life of the community.

The new saw mill which went into operation only a few months ago employs 11 men.

Sawing of up to 20,000 feet of lumber per day is the ultimate goal for the new mill but with equipment not yet installed the present daily average is still a few thousand feet below that figure.

The old sawmill on the banks of the Moira, operated both by water power and by diesel engines, is no longer being used.

One of the main reasons for Chisholm's installing the new saw mill was to find a market for sidewood which with modern day oil heating was becoming almost impossible to sell.

Selling the slabs to the paper mill as chips was the answer but before this could be done specialized equipment had to be installed.

"We could have installed new equipment at the old mill, but what would we have had in the end but an old mill?" stated Joe.

"So we decided to go for the completely new mill".

And a new mill meant the latest in automatic equipment.

First of all there is the tractor-operated fork truck which takes all the lift out of handling logs and lumber. The lift of the fork truck slides under a half a dozen or so logs and carries them to the mill. Then the same machine is used to pick up the lumber and pile it into piles away from the mill.

Inside the mill there is no more rolling of logs with the old fashioned cantilock. Automatic conveyors take the logs through the barker and put them onto the saw carriage where they are sliced into lumber with a high speed band saw.

Edgings and slabs go through the chipper to be stored in a large overhead bin for later shipment to Trenton.

BURN NO WOOD

Unlike the old fashioned steam operated sawmills, Chisholm's new mill doesn't even burn slabwood.

Instead it is operated by a 500 horsepower diesel electric generator. Electric motors of various sizes spotted throughout the mill operate the mechanized equipment.

The sawdust and bark for which there is no ready market is conveyed into the sawdust burner and burned.

But with specialized equipment in a modern sawmill, it also takes specialized men to operate and maintain it.

The big 36-foot band saw which rip logs into lumber have to be changed twice a day and it is Larry's job to keep them in trim. With the experience gained in sawmills in northern Quebec and Ontario, Larry keeps the mill's complement of band and circular saws in "ripping good" shape. To do it he has a separate shop and upwards of $10,000 worth of specialized equipment.

So with the modern approach to sawmill operation there are no huge piles of rotting sawdust to mark the site.

Instead there are piles of logs, a sawmill, and piles of lumber.

Liberal Agent Is Charged

Hutchinson, the chief Liberal with a summons to appear in magistrate's court June 26.

The charge was laid after an advertisement appeared Wednesday in The Sentinel-Review signed by D. Brown and sponsored by the Citizens Committee for Good Government. It criticized Wallace Nesbitt, Progressive Conservative candidate in Oxford, for not speaking at a four-party public meeting Tuesday.

The Oxford Conservative Association alleges the name and organization are fictitious.

The charge was laid under Section 71 of the act, which says the author or publisher of any notice or advertisement published in connection with a federal election must sign his name and address to it.

Feeley's Lawyer Charged With Absolute Falsehood

TORONTO (CP) — Police Chief W. J. Shrubb of Peterborough has accused Vincent Feeley's lawyer of an "absolute falsehood" and a "dirty insinuation" before the royal commission on crime.

He told lawyer Walton C. Rose Thursday that he did not know in 1956 that his wife was acquainted with the gambler and he said it was a dirty insinuation to suggest that he was aware of this.

Shrubb at the time was on the provincial police anti-gambling squad.

He said in reply to questions that he had nothing personal against Feeley at the time he turned in official reports declaring the gambler was trying to bribe him.

He described as an absolute falsehood Mr. Rose's suggestion that he had suggested to Feeley that the latter see Assistant OPP Commissioner James Bartlett—who was supposed to have influence with the high-ways department—about getting a franchise for a service station on Highway 400.

Shrubb previously had testified that Feeley offered to take him to a partnership in such an enterprise.

Bartlett—now deputy commissioner and second-in-command of OPP—recently suffered a heart attack after an appearance before the commission in which he denied ever giving tips-offs to gamblers, as had been suggested in earlier evidence.

During Thursday's hearing Shrubb's wife came close to collapse on the witness stand as Rose pressed her for details of her association with Feeley—which she had admitted in an earlier appearance—while her husband was a corporal on the OPP anti - gambling squad in 1956 and 1957.

Blonde Mrs. Gladys Shrubb pulled and called faintly for a glass of water as lawyer Rose brought out evidence that she had occasionally telephoned Feeley from a pay station near her apartment.

She could not recollect calling Feeley at the Joseph McDermott-Feeley gambling club in nearby Cooksville, as the lawyer suggested she had done. But she said she had at times called him from a number he would provide when he reached her at home and he was unable to talk on the telephone there.

Mrs. Shrubb, who previously had denied at evidence that she got $2,000 from the gamblers to help persuade the alleged corporal to leave the anti-gambling squad, also said under questioning that her purchase of a Peterborough beauty shop had been financed with the help of money raised through a promissory note backed by Chatham business man Donald Lloyd, who introduced her to Feeley at Toronto in 1958.

Mrs. Shrubb said she had not gone out with Feeley as many as the 15 to 20 times the lawyer suggested.

Under questioning, Mrs. Shrubb said she had never seen her husband's diaries, and specifically one in which he put down information concerning alleged tieups between gamblers and some officials at headquarters.

Mrs. Shrubb, and later her husband, testified that they had not taken seriously discussions with Lloyd as to the possibility of engaging in real estate deals with him in Chatham, where Mrs. Shrubb operated a motel for him. The officer said he had no money for the deal.

Another witness Thursday—appearing at his own request—was Alderman Gordon Feeley of Peterborough—no relation to the gambler—who told a story of alleged "injustices" in his home town that left the commission somewhat confused.

Feeley, admitted former head of the OPP once conferred in his office with his self when he should have been in jail.

He said that, instead, he was rendered but with the help of Vincent Feeley and a lawyer friend, a term for bootlegging reduced to a $100 fine.

Employers Tried To Make Girls White Slaves

WASHINGTON (AP) — Two blonde showgirls testified Thursday their night club employers tried to force them into white slavery.

They made their statements to a U.S. Senate investigations subcommittee whose chairman, John L. McClellan, said the testimony so far received indicates the American Guild of Variety Artists (AGVA) "is apparently failing to perform its duty" to protect its girl members from illicit exploitation.

The committee, which for three days has pried into AGVA's role as a union of show business entertainers, was told earlier that entertainers had been forced to participate in such illegal activities as prostitution, acting as "B-girls" to attract customers and pick-pocketing.

William Scott, former special assistant U.S. attorney for the northern Illinois district, also said Wednesday that some of those girls were recruited in Canada, usually from small towns and rural areas.

IN BACKROOMS

Key witnesses Thursday included Corinne Surette Stein, a platinum blonde from Pittsburgh who told the senators that girls working in clubs in Miami, Fla., and in Chicago, Ill., were expected to do part of their entertaining in back rooms.

She said she escaped the white slavers' net "partly because I was a star and because I refused."

"In Cleveland," she said, "you either mix or you get hit over the head—and you get no commissions."

Mrs. Stein said most customers at such clubs were degenerates. She said she now works only in burlesque theatres as a strip-teaser.

Another witness, Joan Gainsley, New York character actress and dancer, told of working at the 21 Club in Calumet City as a dancer and B-girl.

"Did they try to force you into prostitution?" she was asked.

"Yes," she replied.

WON'T LOSE JOBS

LONDON, Ont. (CP)—Ontario provincial policemen who are veterans or are physically handicapped will not lose their jobs in the civilian radio operators the OPP plans to hire, Judge Bruce J. S. Macdonald said Thursday. He is chairman of the Ontario Police Commission.

U Thant Outlines First Concerted Attack on Old Problems Poverty, Disease

UNITED NATIONS (CP)—Acting Secretary - General U Thant has outlined the first "concerted attack on the age-old problems of poverty, ignorance and disease" under the banner of the United Nations.

Many programs of aid have been undertaken in the last 10 years but the new 10-year endeavor would be the first total attack, "using every resource which is available to us, whether it be national or international in character."

Thant told a press conference Thursday that past and current programs did great credit to the generosity of nations which made them possible but they suffered from a basic limitation:

"They have had to respond to a need which is so staggering in its dimensions that they have not been able to deal effectively with more than a few segments of it."

Thant presented a 146-page report entitled The United Nations Development Decade—Proposals for Action, which was a followup on a UN General Assembly resolution passed last December following a suggestion by President Kennedy of the United States.

The secretary-general said, in effect, that the poor have been getting poorer and the rich have been getting richer, creating a dangerous situation in the world.

Emerging peoples regarded the situation as "morally wrong and politically intolerable" and were determined to use their new political liberty to escape also the bondage of want.

"From this state of affairs arise pressures for change which may build up to dangerous and explosive levels unless they can find a constructive outlet."

Thant said the methods proposed in his report on not representing "any great innovation" but aimed to implement the development-decade goal, as suggested by the assembly, for an annual five per cent of growth in the national incomes of the developing countries. Present rate is estimated at 3½ per cent.

The report recommends expansion in the flow of capital and assistance that would add $4,000,000,000 to $5,000,000,000 annually to the present level. Countries were urged to set aside one per cent of national income for foreign aid.

STOPPING WEEDS

One way of stopping weeds growing on driveways is to lay a plastic sheet, topped with two to three inches of gravel.

Picton News

Pearson Supporters Enjoy Meal of Fried Chicken, Hear Election Issues Discussed

PICTON — "Ever since their mandate of 1957 the Conservatives have been more concerned with the next election than with the problems of the people," Liberal Leader Lester B. 'Mike' Pearson told almost 1,200 people who served a monster meal of excellently fried chicken to hear him on his swing through Prince Edward County, where his mother was born and raised.

Canada's affairs are not in good shape no matter what election talk it stops to the Minister has to offer, said Mr. Pearson. The efforts of the Conservative government over the past five years to meet Canada's problems have been quite inclusive no matter how patriotic their intentions may have been, he added.

Canada must move forward if her economy is to prosper and if unemployment is to be cured, he cried, and then asked how could this be accomplished "when there exists such a fear of the ability of the government."

"You can Mike," shouted an enthusiastic supporter.

"How has unemployment been licked if 485,000 are out of work and Mr. Fleming budgets for another deficit?" he asked. "Even a $2,000,000,000 deficit has not provided 500,000 jobs," he said.

Mr. Pearson stated that the devaluation of the dollar had been forced upon the government as was evident by the fact that $600,000,000 was spent trying to keep at a higher level than the Prime Minister claims he planned for.

"We have no confidence in the Prime Minister's government, but we do have faith in Canada," he exclaimed. The Liberals have a good program, one which was worked on for a year and is not a sudden election platform no matter how the Conservative cabient ministers may sneer at it. They also sneer at the dedicated and courageous people who are Liberal candidates. This is hardly the function of a minister of the Crown, Mr. Pearson criticized.

OUTLINES PROGRAM

Speaking on the issues which face the Canadian people, Mr. Pearson outlined the Liberals' program to get Canadian industry moving. He stated that emphasis would be placed on getting industrial expansion into areas of unemployment and into small communities. New firms and firms which expanded would receive tax incentives especially for those increasing their export business, he said.

Children represent the purpose and objective of the Liberals' national policy, Mr. Pearson advised. "They must live in a country of peace and democratic freedom, have jobs to go to when they leave school and every child must have the opportunity of an advanced education without worry about lack of funds," he said. Considerable applause followed this statement.

He requested that Canadians give the Liberal Party a chance on the basis of the well-thought out program which it offered and by the many excellent young men and women who were its candidates.

Canadians have been "hurt in both pocket and pride" under the Diefenbaker government, Mr. Pearson concluded, and "we must restore" the damage done.

The Liberal leader received a standing ovation at the conclusion of his address. He received the same tribute when he was first introduced and his audience burst into applause at many points throughout his speech.

Lloyd Woolsey, the Liberal candidate for Prince-Edward Lennox, also spoke. He noted there was a "spark" amongst the people of his riding. This was the realization that Canada was truly facing problems he explained.

Mr. Woolsey stated that he offered himself as the Liberal candidate only after he had given the present government as much time as possible to develop its "vision". When this "vision" didn't appear he decided it was time to do something about it, the candidate said.

Mr. Woolsey called upon the voters of Prince Edward-Lennox to "put a stop to the situation" where only one opinion has been expressed by the riding and where that opinion has not been heard in Ottawa.

TREATED TO PARADE

He was referring to the riding strong tendency to vote Conservative for many years.

He stated that he felt the riding had "tremendous" assets which have laid dormant for too long" and that he was prepared to do a good job with the tools which the riding had to offer.

Following the speeches Mr. Pearson was treated to a parade through the town led by the Grenadiers Band and followed by a lengthy procession of automobiles plastered with Liberal banners and posters. Picton certainly noticed his presence and turned out along the main street to give the Nobel Prize winner a warm reception.

The motor cavalcade then carried on through the county to Trenton via Bilgreen Rd. Several impromptu stops were made along the route as school children turned up at several places to greet Mr. Pearson.

Close to 100 citizens waited for Mr. Pearson and the motorcade stopped here for several minutes before proceeding the Carrying Place where a large delegation of Liberal supporters for Robert Temple and Dr. Pauline Jewett, the Liberal candidates in Hastings South and Northumberland ridings respectively enthusiastically received him.

From here on to Trenton RCAF Station, where Mr. Pearson's plane awaited him was a lengthy and noisy procession of close to 100 vehicles including a busload of press people who had seemed to have a field day whenever the procession stopped.

BIG CATS

The male jaguar, native to central and south America, may reach a length of seven feet not counting the tail.

A HAND FOR TOMORROW — Two young Prince Edward county lassies wandered up to say hello and shake hands with Liberal Leader Lester B. "Mike" Pearson during his stopover in Picton yesterday. Almost 1,200 people attended the Liberal rally for fried chicken and the opportunity of meeting and hearing Mr. Pearson and Liberal candidate for Prince Edward-Lennox, Lloyd Woolsey.

Sunday School Lesson

Launching World Religion

By ROY L. SMITH

It was one of the basic religious beliefs of the ancients that each one of the gods enjoyed authority over a particular region, just as a modern sheriff is limited in his authority to a single county. Even more, it was believed that each field had its own little god, and to insure a good crop the whims of these godlets had to be gratified.

The spread of the authority of the Roman Empire had the effect of making orphans of hundreds of gods. The lands over which they ruled, and the governments through which they had operated, were destroyed by the empire's might. The result was that they wandered across the face of the earth in search of new devotees.

In the times of the New Testament several religious faiths were contending for world leadership. Each one aspired to play the role of the master faith of all men. The outcome of this rivalry was an intense competition between the various faiths with hundreds of teachers and prophets travelling across the face of the earth, each one preaching his peculiar doctrine and seeking disciples.

Among these were the Christians, several members of the church being expected to witness for Christ as the Christian faith undertook to take the world captive.

UNDER HANDICAPS

During the first generation of Christendom, however the Christians suffered under a severe handicap. Everywhere the Christians were regarded as nothing more than a Jewish sect. As such, they were treated with all the tolerance accorded to the Jews. But as the Jews became more and more embroiled with the Roman authorities, this promised to be a serious handicap.

This situation was intensified by the successful evangelistic campaigns of the Apostle Paul in Europe. In the confidence that his converts were as surely Christians as any of the Jewish Christians, even though they had not been circumcised, Paul carried their case to Jerusalem. There in great confidence, Paul won the decision, and Christianity was set free to preach to all the world.

From that moment forward Paul, and his European followers, proceeded as though they were expected to take the whole world for Christ. This was not merely an empty phrase. Instead, it was a mighty challenge in which the churches shared, and to which the individual Christians dedicated their lives.

JEHOVAH ONLY GOD

Throughout almost a century an ambition had been growing among the Roman Caesars to the effect that they demanded that the public should worship them as they worshipped gods. To the average European this was no serious matter, for the heavens were full of gods of various sizes and importance, and the addition of one more, in the person of Caesar, presented no problem. But for the Christians and the Jews it became a matter of the utmost seriousness.

Neither the Christians nor the Jews could admit there was any other god than Jehovah. To admit that Caesar was a god was to deny the very basis of the Christian faith.

This meant that the church found itself arrayed against the Empire. Everywhere the hand of Caesar was against every Christian. But the Christians (as also the Jews) were obstinate. They would admit of no compromise. In taking such a position they cut themselves off from all manner of social privilege and civil right.

For example, the "games" were the great patriotic and amusement enterprises. Everyone was expected to attend, and everyone did. With the opening of the games, however, everyone in the great amphitheatre was expected to stand and offer a salute to Caesar, and pledge him their complete loyalty. It was a patriotic gesture but it was also a religious service. And no good Jew or faithful Christian could attend with out violating his conscience.

The result was that the Christians (and the Jews) deliberately and devotedly cut themselves off from all such public assemblies, rather than to appear to disavow their faith. This act of self-discipline and consecration produced a great effect throughout the empire, and caused thousands to ask, "Who is this man Jesus that even should give Him such loyalty?"

Then it was discovered that they were men from every tribe and nation, and Christianity began to break through everywhere, bidding for the support of all the world.

Mantle To Play Tonight

NEW YORK (CP)—The New York Yankees doctor has given Mickey Mantle the go-ahead to play against Cleveland Indians tonight.

Before the Yankees left for Cleveland Thursday night, Dr. Sidney Gaynor said "Mickey can play tomorrow night."

"He's running very well again. Now it's up to him to say when he wants to play."

Mantle, one of the Yankees power hitters, tore a muscle in his groin and has been out two weeks.

Canadian Horse Will Miss Irish Sweeps

LONDON (CP) — Canadian-owned Prince d'Amour has been declared a definite non-runner in the June 30 £70,000 Irish Sweeps Derby, Europe's richest race for three-year-olds.

Prince d'amour, running for the Calgary partnership of Max Bell and Frank McMahon, was badly kicked just before the start of the Derby at Epsom June 6. The colt finished sixth in a field of 26, seven of which fell.

"Prince dAmour will definitely not be running in the Irish Sweeps Derby," a spokesman for the Anglo-Irish Bloodstock Agency told a reporter Thursday. "It is hoped he may be fit enough to be trained for the St. Leger Stakes at Doncaster in September."

Littler Leads By Stroke

Four-Way Race In 'Open'

By DON WEISS

OAKMOUNT, Pa. (AP)—An even, dozen players are within three strokes of defending champion Gene Littler after one round in the U.S. open golf championship but it still shapes up as a four-way race among Littler, Arnold Palmer, Gary Player and Jack Nicklaus.

They were the big four in the first round on the 6,894-yard, par 70-35-35—71 Oakmont Country Club course Thursday.

Littler holed a 100-foot wedge shot for an eagle three on the 460-yard, par - five ninth and stuck three 30-foot putts after that for a two-under-par 69 that led the field of 150.

Palmer and Player both had putting troubles, but wound up with 71s. At 72 was power-hitter Nicklaus.

Young Bobby Nichols and veteran Bob Rosburg trailed Littler by a stroke at 70, the only others to better par. Young pros Billy Maxwell and Frank Boynton and two young club pros—J. C. Goosie and Bobby Schoener of Bethlehem, Pa.—were with Palmer and Player at 71.

LEONARD AT 72

With Nicklaus at 72 were Stan Leonard of Vancouver and amateurs Gene Francis of New York and John Guenther of Reading, Pa.

After today's second round, the field will be cut to the low 50 scorers and tie, for Saturday's final 36 holes.

Sam Snead, trying for the 82nd time to win this tournament, will need a rally to survive the cutoff. After an opening 78, he has 82 players ahead of him.

Al Balding of Toronto fired a 36-37—73 Thursday and Adrian Bigras, formerly of Montreal and now of Fort Lewis, Wash., shot a 37-39—76.

World Soccer

Brazil Strong Favorites

SANTIAGO, Chile (AP)—Brazil stands out as the strong favorite to defeat Czechoslovakia for soccer's World Cup Sunday.

Brazil is likely to field its strongest team. Rightwinger Garrincha got the go - ahead from the International Federation of Football Associations to play in the final after being sent out in the semi-final against Chile Wednesday.

Pele, the inside forward star injured in the June 2 qualifying match against the Czechs, now is fit and ready to take his place in the Brazilian attack.

The Czechs have three doubtful starters—fullback Lala, centre forward Kvasnak and inside left Radraba, who suffered injuries in the semi-final against Yugoslavia.

The Brazilians have one big problem on their hands—whether to bring in Pele and drop Amarildo, Amarildo has played some fine matches for Brazil as Pele's substitute. He got both goals in Brazil's 2-1 victory over Spain.

The Czechs, with a strong defence equal to any in the championship, could contain the Brazilian attack.

The match to determine third place will be played Saturday between Chile and Yugoslavia.

Breaks Record

PARIS (AP)—Michel Jazy of France broke the world record Thursday for the 2,000 - metre run with a time of 5:01.6. The former record of 5:02.3 was set Oct. 2, 1955, by Hungarian Istvan Rozaszvolgyi in Budapest.

LEE GRILLS OBTAINS GRANTS FOR TECHNICAL SCHOOLS IN BELLEVILLE

The Bay of Quinte District High School Board is receiving an estimated $1,700,000 worth of free vocational training facilities, through federal-provincial grants. Two school additions at Belleville are being constructed, one at Moira Secondary School costing $532,600 and the other at Quinte Secondary School to cost an estimated $1,169,000. The Diefenbaker Government at Ottawa provides 75 per cent of the cost and the provincial government 25 per cent. The Moira addition will be open in September, while the Quinte addition is scheduled for completion in Sept. 1963. Mr. Lee Grills (second from left), member for Hastings South in the Diefenbaker government, is seen looking over Moira addition with Principal James Musgrove; Thomas Simpson, chairman of the Bay of Quinte High School Board, and Roy Dulmage, board secretary.

By BOB THOMAS

HOLLYWOOD (AP)—Bonanza's Dan Blocker is 260 pounds of unabashed bulk.

None of that—whoever oil and gluten bread for Dan. Why should he ruin his mealticket?

Dan admits he probably would take off 50 pounds if he gave up the beer and boobs. But he hasn't yet found enough reason. And he'd be in danger of destroying the image of the big Hoss Cartwright are on NBC's Sunday night TV western.

Health problems? He's got none. Even got a top rating in an insurance physical exam recently.

"Can hardly remember when I didn't weigh at least 200 pounds," he said.

SERVED IN KOREA

The army gave him the same bill of health, though at 210 pounds he was well over the usual limit. "We'll make an exception in your case," said the doctor, and Dan replied, "thanks a bunch."

"I was in combat in Korea four weeks before they sent me boots in my size (14)," he remembered.

Dan got out of the army at 265, now tries to maintain the 260. It isn't easy, what with all the free dinners. His memories are still vivid of the meals that weren't so easy to come by.

"You're talking to a guy who picked a lot of cotton in his day," he said. "I was 19 before I found out you were supposed to walk on your feet instead of your knees."

Bonanza is now ending its third and best season, and the company already is grinding out a fourth. Dan figures it could go another year, perhaps two at the most.

Writer Bored, Bewildered By Stravinsky's New Works

By CYNTHIA LOWRY

NEW YORK (AP) — "They bored and bewildered during (the public) don't know if it's bad music or a new approach," said Igor Stravinsky of his work in an epilogue to his new dance drama Thursday night.

This viewer, whose musical tastes run toward Jerome Kern and Richard Rodgers, would not presume to judge the merits of Noah and the Flood, the 80-year-old maestro's latest work.

I still don't understand it.

The dancers wore masks and did more writhing than dancing and leaping. The music was full of dissonances and sharp sounds.

CBS, reputed to have spent almost $200,000 on the production, may feel it made the culture catch of the year with the world premier of the composer's new work. Unhappily, I was both most of it. The most interesting part to me was the last 30 minutes of the hour special when, the musical event concluded, there was a biographical treatment of Stravinsky and his collaborator, choreographer George Balanchine.

Royal Rick Wins Rich Pace

YONKERS, N.Y. (AP)—Royal Rick, owned by J. R. Rick of New Castle, Pa., took command at the first quarter and won the $50,000 International Pace at Yonkers Raceway.

Driven by George Sholly, Royal Rick trounced seven horses, including Australian representative James Scott and New Zealand's Matchwick in the race Thursday night. At the wire, the American pacer was 2½ lengths in front of Irvin Paul, who had a head over the favorite, False Step. It was another nose back to James Scott.

Royal Rick paced the 1½ miles in 2:04.3 and paid $11.40, $5.70 and $3.80.

False Step, driven by Clint Hodgins, of Clandebaye, Ont., and James Scott battled for the lead through a 29.3 first quarter.

Queen's Plate

Don't Favor West Horse

TORONTO (CP) — Racing buffs who stick to form charts aren't giving Welcome Effort much of a chance to win Saturday's 103rd running of the Queen's Plate.

That means the odds are stacked against jockey Chris Rogers' hopes for an unprecedented fourth plate victory.

Rogers, a Hamilton-born veteran, won the King's Plate in 1949 on Epic and in 1950 on Mon Gill and the Queen's Plate in 1964 aboard Colliston. He shared the triple-win honor with four other riders, the last of whom was Bobby Watson in 1941, 1944 and 1945.

There are two reasons Welcome Effort will probably go to the post in the $75,000-added event as anything but a hot favorite among the 14 starters. First, the Western Canada colt could finish no better than third in the second division of the plate trials last Monday even with brilliant veteran Johnny Longden in the saddle. And no Western Canada horse has ever won the plate.

Owner Max Bell of Calgary also has another colt in the race, He's Perspective and he'll be ridden by apprentice jockey Jim Dwyeyer. Welcome Effort drew the No. 9 post position in Thursday's draw. New Perspective drew No. 1.

At first it was thought Longden, 55, would ride Welcome Effort in the plate. But after the trials this week—Longden also rode Sun Dan, the eighth-place finisher in the first division—Longden went back to California. He is to ride Preston Maddern's T.V. Lark in Saturday's $30,000-added Inglewood Handicap at Hollywood Park, Calif. Twelve colts and two fillies will start in the plate, open to Canadian foaled three-year-olds. Post time for the 1¼-mile race is set for 6:40 p.m. EDT.

The weatherman is predicting a clear, warm day for the race, meaning that the track will be fast. A crowd of 30,000, including the Queen Mother, is expected to fill Woodbine race track in suburban Malton township.

Twins, Yankees Run Neck-and-Neck

Tribe Loses To Senators

By JIM HACKLEMAN
Associated Press Sports Writer

That's nifty little scramble in the American League, what with the upstart Minnesota Twins and New York's perennial champion Yankees in their head-locked duel for the lead.

Minnesota trimmed the Los Angeles Angels Thursday 5-4 on Lennie Green's game-winning single in the ninth inning and inched up closer to the idle Yankees.

Meanwhile, Washington's last-place Senators clipped Cleveland 4-3, dropping the Indians one game behind; Kansas City whipped the White Sox for the seventh straight time, 11-8; and Jim Gentile's slugging helped Baltimore take Boston 7-4. Detroit had the day off along with the Yankees.

The Twins left 16 men on base and dissipated three leads but finally got their clincher against Art Fowler in the ninth when Green's two-out single brought in Zoroy Versalles, who had singled and moved to second on a ground out. The Angels kicked up in the last of the ninth against winner Jim Kaat, getting two on with one out, but Billy Moran killed their chance by banging into a double play against reliever Jim Donohue.

The Twins had their opportunities against the Angels' celebrated stay-up-late Bo Belinsky, but held only a 3-2 lead when the erratic southpaw left in the sixth after yielding six hits and eight walks.

Danny O'Connell's bases-loaded single in the eighth inning knocked in the winning run for the Senators, who took the series from the Indians two games to one and won for the sixth time in their last seven starts.

The Athletics dealt Chicago its fifth straight setback and beat the White Sox for the eighth time in 10 meetings this year, pounding out 15 hits against prize rookie Joel Horlen and four other pitchers. Kansas City rookie Ed Charles homered his first two times up, his second coming in the third inning with two on and breaking a 3-3 tie.

Gentile raised his league-leading four-ender to 19 when he connected in the fifth inning with Al Bosko on and delivered another run as the Orioles put it out of reach with three in the sixth.

Win Second Game 9-4

Juniors Wallop Bobcats

By GARRY ALEXANDER
Staff Sportswriter

Rollins Juniors, who couldn't win for losing during the first two games of the schedule, chalked up their second victory in a row at the Fairgrounds last night, taking advantage of walks and wild pitches to down the Bobcats 9-4.

The Cats "treated" pitcher Bobby Green last night and sent Gordie St. Louis to the mound. Bobcats gave him a 2-0 lead in the first inning when Crawford doubled and Lou Scott hit his second run of the season.

But that was the end of the trail for the Tabbies. Bobby Ethier blanked them on one hit over the next six frames while Rollins went to work on St. Louis.

The Juniors scored four in the second when two walks and Kellar's single loaded the bases. Bobby Ethier singled and another made it 3-2. Ethier scored later on Locke's out.

McGuire's double, with two walks and three wild pitches, made it 6-2 in the third. Another walk, two more wild pitches and Zahos' double sent St. Louis to the outfield and Green to the mound in the fourth. Weston added a single and it was an 8-2 ballgame.

Green slapped the Juniors on four hits over the rest of the game, allowing a run in the eighth on singles by Bucky Ethier and McGrimmon. He struck out four and did not walk a batter. St. Louis gave up five hits, walked six and uncorked two wild pitches in his 3 2/3 innings.

Bobby Ethier was touched for four hits over the route, nipping half a dozen on third strikes, while passing three.

The Tabbies rallied in the eighth when the first two batters got on with a walk and an error. With two out, another walk loaded the bases and "Shiner" Murray singled for two runs but McGuire gunned Green's liner to end it.

Paul Zahos stroked a pair of doubles to lead the Juniors. Billy McGuire had one double and the other two knocks, all singles, divided among Don Gardner, Ron Weston, Bucky Ethier, "Pug" Kellar, Cliff McGrimmon and Bobby Ethier.

Floyd Crawford poked a double and single for the Bobcats while Carl Smrke had his two-run homer and Frank "Shiner" Murray a two-run single.

Kellar of Rollins was ejected from the game for arguing a close call. The Bobcats' Doug Murray almost got the same for protesting a called third strike in the ninth.

Powell Back With Orioles

NEW YORK (AP) — John (Boog) Powell, who has been in hospital since being hit on the head by a pitched ball at Yankee Stadium Monday night, left Thursday to rejoin Baltimore Orioles.

Dr. Sidney Gaynor, Yankees club physician who has been keeping a close watch on Powell, said the rookie outfielder probably will be able to play again by Monday.

Powell suffered contusions when hit by a ball thrown by Bud Daley of New York Yankees. The incident, followed by a ball thrown over Roger Maris's head by Robin Roberts, touched off a wild scene during which both managers were ejected.

Pollock Eyes American League

Homes Wanted--Birds, Beavers

By STUART LAKE

OTTAWA (CP)—Time is running out on the Eastern Professional hockey League's fight for survival.

The league has only until Tuesday when it holds its annual meeting" to relocate two of its six teams. Officials say they are ure to do so would mean the loss of financial backing for Kitchener - Waterloo Beavers and Sault Ste. Marie Thunderbirds and the end of the league itself.

The league's plight was revealed at the recent National League meeting in Montreal. New York Rangers, who finance the Beavers, and Chicago Black Hawks, the bankroll behind the Thunderbirds, announced they will not sponsor the clubs unless they are moved to other cities.

It was reported that heavy financial losses were incurred by the Rangers and Hawks operating the teams the last two seasons.

League president John Urie said Thursday no definite progress has been made in finding new homes for the two clubs.

ONLY TWO MADE MONEY

From a financial point of view, the most solid clubs in the league are Hull-Ottawa Canadiens, a farm club of Montreal Canadiens, and Kingston Frontenacs, backed by Boston Bruins. They were the only teams to make money during the 1961-62 season.

Detroit is said to be willing to continue backing Sudbury Wolves. North Bay Trappers are backed by the NHL and while the club reported looking for a new home, there is no great rush to leave North Bay.

General manager Sam Pollock, who built the Ottawa club into a big hand in founding the league three years ago, says he still has hopes the league will survive. But because of the "uncertain situation" Pollock says the Canadiens are sounding out the possibility of an American League franchise for the Hull-Ottawa area.

The league began play in the 1959-60 season and five NHL teams took an active interest in its founding. Only Toronto Maple Leafs didn't ice a farm team.

League founders said its main purpose is to produce players for the NHL and a number of EPHL players have made the jump. They include Jean-Claude Tremblay, Gilles Tremblay and Bobby Rousseau of Montreal Canadiens; Cliff Pennington and Pat Stapleton of Boston Bruins; and Al MacNeil who saw action with Montreal last season and recently was traded to Chicago.

Sport Slices...

RARE, MEDIUM, WELL-DONE

By Geo. H. Carver, Sports Editor

It was the "Night of the Hunter."

They could call him the "Mighty Moe", for, yes verily, these sports-bleary eyes have not seen such a long-distance blast since the days of Stan Hagerman, Penny Mills, Vern Goyer and Sammy Mulholland.

Master Murray Hunter, who they tell me will take on the shackles of marital bliss in the not too distant future, "laid on" a high outside Fort Hope pitch the other night.

It had Ruthian power and the accuracy of a Mantle-Maris shot. It zoomed, levelled off partly and jetted past a surprised Fort Hope outfielder to nest, then roll from a spot roughly 390 or 400 feet from the plate.

It cleared the left-centre snowfence, said by park officials to be some 380 feet from the plate. The ball landed, at least so it appeared from the press-box some thirty feet over and beyond the fence.

It was the first out-of-the-park blast of the current season and highlighted a three-hit performance at the plate by the Kenmore shortstop. He slashed out a triple standing up and a double to round out a neat three-for-four stint at the plate.

The eighth-inning hit performance of the Kenmors when they blasted out six clouts, including the homer and Billy Moxon's double, was a solid indication of the team's batting power.

Once or twice before they have clustered their clouts when hits meant runs, but they weren't the powerful smashes that marked their display against the Hopers in that eighth inning uprising.

The Kenmor pitching is developing too. Billy Latchford and Larry Sedore are fifteen cents in that more or less dismal display against the Petes in the league opener, but since that time the corps has steadied away.

They gave up seven hits in the 6-5 victory over the Kingston entry, then Stan "Lefty" Reid delivered his two-hit masterpiece against Peterborough last week. Billy Latchford came up with a neat five-hitter the other night and it looks like Coach Sid Forster is well fortified in the mound department.

The Kenmors, idle league-wise for the next ten days, take on the Camilton Clippers of the South Hastings League here Sunday at the Fair Grounds, starting 8.30 p.m. Next Wednesday they play a return tilt at Camilton, starting 6.45.

SOFTBALL

Meanwhile on the softball front, RCAF Flyers and their nifty little lefty, Mike Ratushniak, put an end to Joyce's Real Estate's undefeated string up Trenton way the other evening.

Ratushniak besieg Joyces 2-0 in by far the best game of the year. The Real Estate boys are still on the loop's top rung with five wins and one setback for night's game) with five wins and one setback for ten points. RCAF has three wins and two losses, the Bobcats three wins and four losses and Rollins' improving Juniors, two wins and five defeats.

Rollins, after losing their first five games, have settled away and are playing good ball. They topped the Bobcats 9-4 last night. The Tabbies are in desperate need of another pitcher to back up workhorse Bobby Green.

Crowds have been small for the eight o'clock games at the Fair Grounds so far this season but will certainly pick up if the clubs can come up with a few more like that Joyce-Flyer shot-to the other night.

There is a full slate of action on the agenda for next week and Commissioner Bobby Bell has merry men and hoping to see a vast improvement in the fan attendance.

RODGE-PODGE

Tonight the Stanlee Brothers, blonde hunks of masculine wrestling dynamite take on "Haystack" Muldoon and Ray Gordon in a return engagement to what should be a rough-tought, the bout between "Mr. Kleen" and Dick "Bulldog" Brower. If the "Bulldog" is angry and likely will be, there should be more fireworks . . . Tomorrow afternoon comes the Quinte Driving and Riding Horse Show, followed by the harness meet at night, with post time eight o'clock . . . Another fine card of racing is assured.

Quinte Soccer

Batawa defeated the RCAF by a score of 7-1 in a Bay of Quinte soccer league match played at the air station last night.

Leafs Beat Crackers, Wings Win

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Baseball folk say double plays are a pitcher's best friend. Johnny Gabler of Syracuse Chiefs would be the last man to argue the point.

The Chiefs came up with a dazzling display of defensive play and backed Gabler with four twin killings as they defeated Richmond Virginians 5-3 in their International League game Thursday night.

Meanwhile, Toronto Maple Leafs picked up 15 hits to beat Atlanta Crackers 7-1 and Rochester Red Wings snapped a four-game losing string with a 7-5 triumph over Columbus Jets. Buffalo Bisons and Jacksonville Suns were rained out at Jacksonville.

The Chiefs were outhit 9-7 by the Virginians, in last place in the league race, but the double plays saved Gabler. He gave up two hits with a man out in the eighth inning and Bob Miller took over. Miller struck out two batters in sending down the side in order in the ninth frame.

Len Gabbrielson and Ted Kazanski led the third-place Leafs on their scoring rampage. Kazanski swatted two home runs. Gabrielson clouted a round-tripper and a triple and Neal Chrisley added the icing with a home run in the seventh inning.

Rochester bunched two walks, four hits, an error and a wild pitch for four runs in the fifth inning and then coasted behind Billy Short. Alex Castro mopped up for the Red Wings, who moved into a tie for fourth place with Atlanta.

"Only He Could Make A Tree!"

OAKMONT, Pa. (AP)—Misfortune in the form of a fir tree struck chunky Phil Rodgers of Houston, Tex., in the first round of the United States open golf championship.

One under par coming to the 328-yard, par-four 17th hole Thursday, Rodgers hooked his drive into a tree at the left of the green. The ball weaved into the branches of the evergreen and he took four shots to get out of trouble. He was on the green in six strokes and two-putted for a whopping eight. He wound up with 35-39—74.

"It was like hitting a ball down a flight of steps," moaned Rodgers. "The ball was about waist high in the tree. With each cut I took, it dropped down one more branch and it was five shots before I got it down on the ground."

No Fridays For Public At Mosport

TORONTO (CP)—The public no longer will be admitted to Mosport Park on Fridays pending Saturday race meetings.

General Manager Jim Clayton said Thursday the directors were forced to take the step because of incidents that occurred in the park before last Saturday's 200 - mile international sports car race. Two refreshment booths were broken into and ransacked, a number of padlocks were smashed, gates were lifted off their hinges and the track itself was littered with broken glass.

The gates were open all day Friday, practice day, and throughout the night. About 8,000 of the 28,654 paying fans arrived before 8 a.m. Saturday many camping overnight.

Clayton said in future public admission will not begin until 8 a.m. on race days.

Braves Kick Dodgers Around

Redlegs Hand Giants Second Zero

By JIM BECKER
Associated Press Sports Writer

There's rumbling in the ranks of the National League—the Braves in be back room are showing signs of life.

Los Angeles Dodgers and San Francisco Giants had been threatening to run away and hide from the rest of the league, but it appears the other clubs have found them.

For instance, Cincinnati Reds hung a second straight three-hit shutout on the Giants Thursday night and emerged with an 8-0 victory. Milwaukee Braves whacked the Dodgers around 7-1 as Bob Shaw won his eighth game of the season.

The defeats left the Dodgers two games on top over the Giants. The revitalized Pittsburgh Pirates won their sixth straight game, 6-3 over Chicago Cubs, to close to within 6½ games of the lead.

The Reds' triumph pushed them into a fourth-place tie, 7½ games away with St. Louis Cardinals. The Cardinals and Philadelphia Phillies were idle.

BACK IN BUSINESS

The old firm of Frank Robinson and Joey Jay, vital to Cincy Reds' pennant drive last year, was back in business against the Giants.

Jay, a 21-game winner last year, raised his mark to 9-6 for the campaign as he scattered three hits to shut out the Giants for the second nigh in a row. The Giants have scored only two wins in their last 10 battles. Robinson drove in four runs, three with his eighth homer.

The Giants also lost the services of ace left hander Billy Pierce (9-2) who gave up a double to Vada Pinson and then was spiked on the right ankle by Eddie Malahanne as he covered first base. Don Larsen took over and Robinson singled Pinson home.

Robinson bombed his three-run homer off Larsen in the third inning. Pierce, charged with the loss, will be out about 12 days.

Shaw (8-3) sliced his earned run average to 1.92, tops in the league for starting pitchers, as he gave the Dodgers only six hits. His mates got him five runs in the first inning off Stan Williams (4-3) when Tommy Aaron got on base on an error, went to third on a single by Roy McMillan and scored on a sacrifice fly by Eddie Mathews. Henry Aaron then hammered his 12th homer.

The Pirates, who like their wins in bunches, kept their third victory string of the year going as they jumped off for two runs in the first frame, saw the Cubs tie things on homers by Billy Williams (9th, 24) and Ron Santo (9), and then went out of reach when Don Hoak hit a three-run homer in the fifth.

It was career hit No. 1,001 for Hoak. He hit No. 1,000 in the fourth inning.

Bob Friend (7-7) went the route for the Pirates, who earlier had win streaks of 10 and seven games. Dick Ellsworth (4-6) lost.

Houston manhandled the Mets for seven runs in the first inning, including Carl Warwick's home run, and coasted to a 10-1 victory. Jay Hook (4-7) faced six batters without getting any out before departing. Bob Bruce (5-1) went all the way for the Colts.

SEEK ASYLUM

VIENNA (AP) — Police said Thursday two young Hungarian soccer players have asked for political asylum here. Police refused to disclose their names. They were on the team of Upsei Dozsa which played in Manhus, Italy, recently.

British Amateur

Yankee In Quarter-Finals

HOYLAKE, England (AP)—Richard Davies of Pasadena, Calif., tangles today with David Palmer of England in a key quarter-final match of the British amateur golf championship.

Their struggle over Hoylake—one of the cradles of golf—claimed the spotlight now that Ireland's Joe Carr has been eliminated.

Davies, a 30-year-old real estate man, has advanced through the field with a display of power. He dropped England's Geoffrey Marks 3 and 2 Thursday afternoon after defeating Peter Flaherty of Ireland 4 and 4 in the morning.

Palmer, a 28-year-old York shireman, ousted Robert Sweeny, 30, of Palm Beach, Fla., the winner of this coveted crown, in 1937, 6 and 4 in the fourth round. Then he outlasted Jack Jones of England, by one hole in the afternoon.

John Taylor of England defeated Pat Brady of Reidsville, N.C., and fellow countryman Roger T. Robinson to stay in the chase. Today he meets Brian Clarence of England, who defeated Carr and England's Miles Burgess.

Carr, the dashing golfer from Dublin who had won the title three times, bowed 3 and 1 to Chapman.

BRITAIN TAKES LEAD

EASTBOURNE, England (AP)—Britain took a 2-0 lead against Brazil in the quarter-final round of the European zone Davis Cup competition Thursday. Mike Sangster scored a 6-4, 6-4, 6-4 win over Carlos Fernandez and Billy Knight, veteran of eight years of cup play, slashed out a 6-3, 6-3, 6-1 decision over 17-year-old Thomas Koch.

Astrological Forecast

Saturday, June 16

By SYDNEY OMARR

Aries (Mar. 21 to Apr. 19)—Better listen and analyze. Don't believe everything you hear today, even from trusted associates. Check facts. Attempt to perceive motives. Then decide.

Taurus (Apr. 20 to May 20) Others look to you for example. Be diplomatic and understanding. Money question and understanding. Money may arise. Instead of pressing, "give in". By so doing, you actually achieve goal, purpose.

Gemini (May 21 to June 21) —Don't be discouraged by one who may insist that you "give ground". Tonight good for relaxing, for looking at situation from new angle. Ideas and time on your side!

Cancer (June 22 to July 21) —What others say today and what they mean could be two different things. Better check memory. Look for reasons why. Take initiative in finding facts.

Leo (July 22 to Aug. 21) —Tonight fine for expressing your best side. You could shine in the moolight! Emphasis on understanding an on romance. Assist business associate.

Virgo (Aug. 22 to Sept. 22)—You may feel "closed in". If you permit imagination to run loose, this feeling turns into brooding. But if you discipline thoughts, day could bring success.

Libra (Sept. 23 to Oct. 22)—Making claims today, or threats to be avoided. Let actions, past record speak for themselves. Control impulsive tendencies. You gain by giving.

Scorpio (Oct. 23 to Nov. 21) — The more you press today, the less you are apt to accomplish. But charm, humor, willingness to concede minor points could make this day and evening memorable.

Sagittarius (Nov. 22 to Dec. 21) — You are at peak of cycle . . . tonight you could actually grab hold of that illusory thing called "happiness". Good for new contacts, independence, originality.

Capricorn (Dec. 22 to Jan. 20) — What you believe to be occurring and what is actually taking place may not be the same. Don't certainly. Apply ability to perceive and analyze. Act only when complete picture is in focus.

Aquarius (Jan. 21 to Feb. 19) —Trips and travel between you and happiness. Better trust friends. Be gracious in accepting apology, or offering one. Bear no grudges. Be "big" in all ways.

Pisces (Feb. 20 to Mar. 20) Your actions today could have great bearing on immediate future. One who has faith in your abilities could place you in spotlight. Be confident, not arrogant.

this is wonderful month for trying something new, different as far as vocation or hobby is concerned. Year in general sees you preparing for future. Beginning with October look for basic changes.

General Tendencies: Cycle up for Scorpio, Sagittarius, Capricorn. Special word to Gemini. By refusing to "panic", you gain needed respect, admiration. You find out who really cares about your welfare.

If today is your birthday . . .

Babysitting No Soft Job

By JACK HUTTON

Two letters have arrived on my desk in the last week regarding babysitting—that time-honored profession by which most teen-age girls (and the occasional fellow) make pin money.

Exhibit A—a young mother of two children who feels that babysitters should pledge themselves to a code of honor before launching a sitting career.

Exhibit B—a 16-year-old Halifax girl who submitted with her letter a carefully prepared list of do's and don'ts that more parents should follow when leaving Junior with a sitter.

Mrs. C. B. W. (also signed "Fed-Up Mother of Two") writes: "You've mentioned babysitting as a good summer job. Tell me, how many teenagers figure it is a chore that you might cancel out at the last minute because of a date. Just think what it does to our evening!

"Don't agree to look after a small baby if you've never had experience in caring for one. It either means that the youngster is going to be neglected, or the parents are constantly being phoned at their party.

"Don't say that you'll stay all night if your parents haven't agreed to it earlier. We feel great when a mother or father telephones later to accuse us of being slave-drivers or responsible for juvenile delinquency."

Interesting words, but Joan Brent, 16, of Halifax, has her own list of what babysitters expect from parents.

BE AVAILABLE

"Do leave a number where you can be reached at any time during the evening.

"Do leave a list of other important numbers—the family doctor, neighbors, fire department and police. Most sitters should know the last two, of course.

"Do tell the sitter approximately what time you'll be home, and try to stick to that time.

"Do not leave the sink stacked with dirty dishes unless you offer to pay the sitter extra for doing them. An extra 15 cents an hour is a good yardstick.

"Do tell the sitter all you can about your offspring—his or her nickname, the exact bedtime, what he should or shouldn't eat and when.

"Do spell out for the sitter in a tactful way the snacking privileges, and show her where the snack can be found.

"Do make sure that she gets home safely. If you are unable to drive her home, send her home in a taxi. The parents' responsibility increases, of courses, the later it becomes."

Joan: "Don't feel, please, that we sitters are trying to have it all one way. We realize that we accept a great responsibility in looking after the welfare of another person, but the simple rules I've outlined help so much."

And, she added, parents with really large families—four children or more—should expect to pay extra rates, especially if there are young babies in the family who need special attention.

We're staying on the fence in this issue. But you may at least find the two points-of-view interesting—if only because they prove that parents and sitters really have the same worries in mind.

ELECTION QUIZ

How many teen-agers in Canada are interested in the federal election, and have positive views about the political platforms of the parties involved? This is a most question this week.

Our friends in Toronto, Montreal and Vancouver tell us that while a significant number of young people are helping to canvass homes most teen-agers are apathetic about the election.

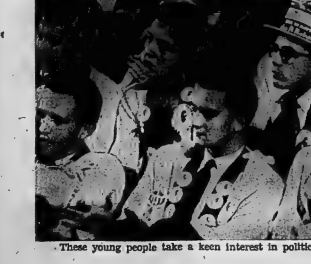
What about you? Could you name the candidates in your riding? Do you have any idea of the basic issues which they've been discussing?

Who is the member now representing you in Ottawa?

An interesting situation in the Montreal constituency of Mount Royal is that 75 young people are working for their McGill University professor in the election—even though many will be unable to vote.

The students, who are helping Prof. Charles Taylor, a professor of political science at McGill University, call him "Check" in his New Democratic Party headquarters. Quite a difference from the classroom.

Several of the students decided to give up summer employment to work unpaid for Prof. Taylor. On June 18 all the students will put in a full day as scrutineers at some of the 289 polling stations in Mount Royal constituency.



As Carol Brainin, a McGill political science student, phrased it: "I'm too young to vote and I feel I simply have to do something in the election, you know, to feel that I'm part of it." Bravo to Carol and other teen-agers who feel the same way!

NEW LINGO

Anyone heard the latest slang phrase in the Russian teen-ager's vocabulary? It's one word—"Iron."

Recent visitors to Moscow report that the word has come to mean a superlative about us. What an "Iron" book, an "Iron" girlfriend, an "Iron" weekend.

Wonder if they also apply that to the Iron Curtain?

These young people take a keen interest in political meeting.

"Fest a Second"

"He was five, feet, seven inches high — and $3,000 short!"

Tyendinaga Twp. Council

Tyendinaga Township Council at their budget meeting approved a combined Township tax rate of 51.5 mills for farm and residential and 56.4 mills for commercial and industrial properties. The combined rate composed of the rates for County, Township and High School purposes is up 1.8 mills from last year due to an increase in High School requisition. The County rate of 19.1 mills is down 1.6 mills from last year, the Township rate of 11.5 mills is down 1.5 mills from last year and the High School rate of 21.2 mills is up 4.9 mills.

The average of Elementary Public School rates shown a decrease from last year. The breakdown is: School Area No. 1, Res. and Farm 13, Industrial and Commercial 14.5; School Area No. 2 Res. and Farm 9.7, Industrial and Commercial 10.8; No. 17, Res. and Farm 17.5; Union Richmond Twp. Area, Res. and Farm 12, Industrial and Commercial 13.3; Hungerford and Tyendinaga Area, Res. and Farm 6; North Thurlow Area, Res and Farm 17.7, Industrial and Commercial 19.7; Separate School No. 6, Res. and Farm 17.1, Ind. and Commercial 19; Union Separate Schools, Res. and Farm 13, Industrial and Commercial 14.4. The rate for Shannonville Street Lights is 2.6 mills down 3 mills from 1961.

Township Council passed by-laws to enlarge School Area No. 1 to include School Section No. 17 and to enlarge School Area No. 2 to include the inactive public school sections of No. 18, 20, 24, 28, and 30. The by-laws are subject to the approval of the Minister of Education and would come into force, if approved, on January 1, 1963.

These by-laws will bring all public school sections in the Township into a school area.

A Reminder, Just Mark X On Your Ballot

OTTAWA (CP)—If you want your ballot to count in Monday's federal election, mark an X on the ballot with a black lead pencil in the space opposite the name of your chosen candidate, Chief Electoral Officer Nelson Castonguay said today.

Mr. Castonguay issued his last - minute reminder in the hope of reducing the number of rejected ballots. In the 1958 election 69,842 of 7,367,139 ballots, less than one per cent, were rejected. In 1957 it was 74,710 of 6,090,80, slightly over one per cent.

Each polling booth is equipped with a pencil and a sample ballot is on the wall as a guide to the voter.

To determine why ballots are rejected, Mr. Castonguay studied all 74,710 from the 1957 election and found that the largest group, 35 per cent, were ruled out by deputy returning officers for such reasons as:

D OESN'T COUNT

Writing "yes" after the name of one candidate and "no" after names of others, blacking out names of all but one candidate, crossing out names of all but one candidate, using three or four X's for one candidate, drawing a line through a candidate's name, marking an X in FRONT of the names of all but one candidate.

Twenty-three per cent—voted for more than one candidate, 12 per cent used a tick mark instead of an X and eight per cent of the ballots were completely blank.

Another 7½ per cent lost their vote by using a pen or colored pencil they brought with them to the poll. Five per cent wrote facetious remarks on the ballot and 1½ per cent used nonsense.

SPIDER SPECIES

There are nearly 60,000 species of spiders, ranging from tiny mites to ones measuring 4½ inches.

City Hall Blast In Algiers Kills Six, Wounds 43

Terrorists Put Torch To Private Property

ALGIERS (AP)—The Secret Army was feared today to be capable of destroying much of Algeria by remote control in its terrorist scorched - earth campaign to reduce the territory to a wasteland.

Secret Army commandos shattered Algiers' massive city hall with explosives Friday night hours after heavily damaging a municipal hospital and destroying a big power dam. Fires flared late into the night as European terrorists put the torch to private property throughout the capital.

The explosion in the city hall killed at least six persons and wounded 43 others who were using the building as the Secret Army demolitionists.

Grim police officials, standing knee deep in shattered glass and debris, said the Secret Army had planted an estimated 200 pounds of explosives in the city hall weeks before a conference of Premier De Gaulle's government moved into guard the building.

FEAR OTHER PLANTINGS

They said the charges apparently were set off by someone who had only to enter the building, light the fuses and walk away. Other city hall blast charges are planted in other facilities throughout the territory.

The Secret Army command in Algiers ordered launching an all-out offensive of destruction to begin last Thursday midnight. In the first 24 hours it spread through the territory, European terrorists in the city threatened even greater destructive deeds.

DAMAGE DAM

Other Secret Army agents struck 150 miles south to the east, blowing up the control installations at Ain Dargaid Dam, a major supplier of power for Algiers. Officials said repairs would take at least 10 months.

At Sidi Bel Abbes, historic home of the French Foreign Legion, six grade schools and high school were burned.

Secret Army agents set the territory by the thousands heeded Premier De Gaulle's call to leave everything that might be of use to the Moslems. Stores and office buildings were burned to the ground in scattered parts of Algiers. Automobiles were set afire in the streets where they were abandoned. Even household furniture went up in smoke.

STRIKE OF TRUCK DRIVERS STILL UNSETTLED

Wait-and-See Idea Adopted

MONTREAL (CP) — The strike of 1,400 local truck drivers has turned into a tired, wait-and-see affair, as though worn out by the violence that marked its opening days in mid-April.

Both the Motor Transport Industrial Relations Bureau, representing the eight strike-bound companies, and the International Brotherhood of Teamsters (IBT) have said they are ready to resume negotiations that broke off June 1, but neither has indicated any willingness to back off the stands that led to the breakdown.

The violence reached a climax 13 days after the strike started when two trucks, trying to leave a strike - bound terminal, were halted by a mob of pickets who hurled a barrage of paint bombs, bricks, stones and Molotov cocktails.

One truck was set afire.

Police fired 20 shots into the air and a barrage of teargas shells to break up the mob.

FIRMS LAY CHARGES

The strike has seen three of the eight strike - bound firms lay criminal charges of provoking an illegal strike against the union and some of the officers of Local 106.

All eight firms have sued the local for a total of $2,000,000 for damages they say have suffered during the walkout, on grounds the strike is illegal.

The strike, combined with the walkout of 7,200 Teamsters in Ontario, has halted almost all truck movements between Quebec and Ontario. About 1,200 trucks used to make the run each way between Montreal and Toronto every month.

However, movement of freight has not been seriously affected since trains have taken up the bulk of the load.

The strike now is demanding a 30 - cents - an - hour wage increase, payable in equal parts each year through the life of a three-year contract. The last company offer was a 36-cents-an-hour package.

MAKE UP TO $7,500

The basic wage rate for teamsters in the Montreal area now is $1.55 an hour, the companies say highway drivers — making up about eight or 10 per cent of the total number of strikers — earn $7,500 a year; city drivers make $4,500 a year and warehousemen about $4,000 a year.

A conciliation board that studied the dispute recommended a wage increase of 16 cents an hour.

Originally all trucking firms were involved in the strike. Three have since signed new contracts accepting the Teamsters' demands.

Tension Rises Despite Drop in Refugee Flow

HONG KONG (Reuters) — Hungry refugees from Communist China continued to stream into this British colony this morning, last count 1,000 in the first 24 hours it spread through the territory. European terrorists in the city threatened even greater destructive deeds.

DAMAGE DAM

The number of Chinese who break through by sea and land into Hong Kong is an official secret but one source with knowledge of the situation said there was "greater activity" this week along the border than there was six weeks ago before the big rush of refugees began.

"But it's a drop in the bucket compared with three weeks ago when we were getting up to 5,000 illegal immigrants a night," he said.

Despite increased marine patrols, Chinese also are getting into the colony by way of the sea route from Macao, the Portuguese colony which has an open border with China.

Dancer Derided at Union Meet For Protest at Being Stripped

WASHINGTON (AP)—A sultry - eyed dancer testified Friday she was stripped naked on her first stretcher job and thrust out to perform in a glaring spotlight.

Anita Lopushok, who said she now is known in the nightclub world as Fatima and specializes in Latin - type dances, told Senate investigators she was hooded down when she tried to complain at a union meeting.

She said she complained about alleged collusion between Teamster Hoffa owners and the American Guild of Variety Artists brought Senator John L. McClellan to his feet in denunciation of what he called a "national disgrace."

McClellan, an Arkansas Democrat, is chairman of the Senate labor rackets committee which is looking into allegations that some union officials have connived with strip and clip joint operators in forcing young girl entertainers into prostitution.

Before recessing the hearings until next Tuesday, McClellan asked Martin Ragaway, AGVAI new Chicago branch manager, what he has done for the girls.

Cavenaugh replied:

"Not anything sir. Not so far."

"What have you done about the working conditions this national disgrace?" McClellan persisted.

"Nothing," said Cavenaugh.

Cavenaugh at first denied, then said he could not recall having anything to do with importing girls from Canada or elsewhere.

The committee had earlier heard testimony that agents of the Hoffa syndicate recruit young girls from rural areas in Canada and the United States, promising them bright stage careers.

Mrs. Lopushok testified her unexpected debut as an unadorned dancer occurred in a Detroit nightclub in Aleba.

She said she noticed other girls going out to perform and returning naked. She did two numbers in a skimpy costume, she said, and then the manager sent two bartenders into her dressing room.

"One took hold of me, and one tore everything off," she said, and then they forced her out into the spotlight. She said she found the spotlight comforting from one standpoint — it blinded her view of the customers.

100,000 to Labor to Speed Gathering of Vote Returns

TORONTO (CP) — Teamwork of The Canadian Press and its 102 member newspapers, an army of electoral workers and the telegraph companies will provide Canadians with the results Monday night of the federal general election.

All told, more than 100,000 persons will collect, tabulate and report on the millions of ballots to produce a fast and comprehensive picture through newspapers, television and radio of how the country voted.

From the time ballot boxes are opened after the close of polls, about 97,000 electoral officials and returning officers will provide progressive voting counts to newspaper correspondents in each constituency. The telegraph companies have a vast network of wire to feed returns to CP's cross-country news wires.

A special compiling staff at the Canadian Press head office in Toronto will turn out a speedy flow of progressive returns—half a dozen reports from each seat—and give the general picture in thumbnail statistical detail at frequent intervals.

The complete CP service, which forms the basis of both published and broadcast reports election night, goes to the CBC for television and radio and—through Broadcast News, a CP subsidiary—to 243 private broadcasting stations over their 9,000-mile network.

The national news gathering co-operative set records in 1958 both for speed and for completeness of individual poll returns.

At 7:02 p.m. EST—only 62 minutes after polls closed in Ontario and Quebec—CP reported re-election of the Progressive Conservative government, Eighteen minutes later, it reported an over-all majority and indication of a cross-country sweep. The previous record for reporting an election outcome was 75 minutes after the close of Ontario and Quebec polls, in 1953.

When the flow of returns stopped on election night in 1958, CP had tabulated 96 per cent of the vote compared with 94 per cent in 1957 and 90 per cent in each of the previous three elections.

Because of an amendment to the Canada Elections Act at the last Parliament, it will be later

Big Political Guns Fire Last Salvos of Campaign

BY THE CANADIAN PRESS

Canada's big political guns fired their last major salvos of the campaign Friday.

By Monday night it will be all over but the vote-counting to decide who will form Canada's next government.

Some 9,800,000 Canadians are eligible to pick the 265 MPs who will be chosen Monday from a record 1,012 candidates. Voting for a dozen constituencies was deferred until July 16 in one case, Stormont in Ontario, because of the death of the Liberal candidate there. Polls will be open Monday from 8 a.m. to 7 p.m. local standard time.

From now on the sole campaign sounds to be heard will come only from the hustings. Partisan appeals on radio and TV—or even broadcast reports of such appeals—were stilled by law at midnight Friday night.

Reverberations sounded again on Friday night over Russia's protest note charging Canadian preparation for nuclear armament—a note rejected by the government and condemned by all political parties.

Prime Minister Diefenbaker, in a Hamilton speech, urged voters to return his government to show Premier Khrushchev that he can't bully the Canadians.

Liberal Leader Pearson, campaigning at Woodstock and Brantford, said Mr. Diefenbaker was trying to appease the Soviet intervention for political purposes. Neither Premier Khrushchev nor President Kennedy would decide the election outcome "although they seem to be the prime minister's chief supporters at the present time."

His mention of the U.S. pres-

British Doctors Ready to Help Saskatchewan

LONDON (Reuters)—A group of British doctors announced today they will offer their services to the Saskatchewan government if doctors in that province carry out their threatened boycott of the provincial medical insurance plan to become effective July 1.

A spokesman for the group said the British movement was launched when doctors in Saskatchewan were told of the plan appealed to friends in England for help.

The spokesman said more than 10 doctors working in Britain's national health service have announced they are prepared to go "and more are coming in all the time."

The group plans to make a formal proposal to the Saskatchewan government Sunday.

Russia Has Agreed to Increase Shipments of Foodstuffs to Cuba

By HAROLD MORRISON
Canadian Press Staff Writer

Russia has quietly agreed to step up its food shipments to Cuba.

A curious element in this agreement, as seen by American research analysts, is that the reported increase includes canned meat—at a time when Soviet Premier Khrushchev claims there is a shortage at home necessitating a 30-per-cent price rise for Soviet housewives.

The United States agriculture department estimates that on the basis of the reported agreements, Soviet shipments to Cuba in food, machinery and fertilizer will rise by 40 per cent this year over shipments in 1961.

Russia has agreed to supply Cuba with wheat, flour, corn, barley, potatoes, vegetables and vegetable oil, butter, lard, canned meat, canned fish, baby food and rice. These are in addition to trucks, tractors, factories, steel and other products.

In an extension signed in May and announced by the Cuban government, Russia agreed to step up its shipments of sugar, including 45,000 tons of wheat flour; 30,000 tons of rice; 2,000 tons of baby food; 10,000 tons of rice and 3,000,00 cans of condensed milk.

Cuba's dependence on such a distant source for part of her vital food supply is an indication of Fidel Castro's problems in his own Latin American backyard.

In terms of transportation costs, it would cost less to import from Central and South American countries—if Cuba had the cash.

Instead, Russia ship so much food to Cuba when there is a shortage at home?

The conclusion seems to be that the Kremlin realizes the importance of Cuba to foreign policy operations. Critics can be rebuffed; supporters assisted. And if any of that retained a foothold in the Caribbean is a matter of great Kremlin urgency and priority.

Waterway To Be Double-Barrelled --Diefenbaker

Two Announcements Made at Hamilton

HAMILTON (CP) — Prime Minister Diefenbaker has announced the all - Canadian Welland Canal will be a double-barrelled waterway between Lake Ontario and Lake Erie.

He coupled the announcement of the multi-million-dollar project for twin Welland Canal locks, with the declaration that toll payments on the eight-lock waterway are to be suspended immediately.

The two statements delivered without warning at an election rally drew cheers from the Prime Ministers from more than 1,000 persons at a lunch-hour gathering. He spoke on behalf of Welland Conservative candidate Allan Pletz.

"In keeping with our policy of improving transportation facilities of this country, the government has reached the conclusion that it should proceed, as quickly as possible, with the twinning of the locks on the great Welland Canal here."

Last month, the government announced property around the four single locks that would be twinned, but did not say when the proposed project might be tackled.

WILL TAKE YEARS

"It will take many years to complete this huge construction project," said Mr. Diefenbaker. "In the meantime, the payment of tolls on the canal is to be suspended immediately."

The government has been under pressure to drop the tolls ever since they were first imposed when the Welland Canal Section Part of the $475,000,000 international seaway linking Montreal and Lake Ontario.

Tolls on the seaway are set at a lower level than on the St. Lawrence River system. They were intended to cover the capital cost of deepening the Welland to the seaway depth of 27 feet.

Vice - Admiral E. R. Mainguy, president of the Great Lakes Harbors Association, said in Toronto he was "extremely pleased" with the news. The association has been calling for abolition of the Welland toll since it was first applied on April 1, 1959.

"I think it's a very wise move," Admiral Mainguy said. "They are returning Welland canal to the traditional toll-free inland waterway. It will help trade and shipping."

He said there would likely be an immediate response to the move. When tolls were abolished on the Detroit River canal in 1993, he said, traffic increased by 40 per cent during the following year.

The Queen Mother will present her daughter's personal gift of 50 guineas to the winning owner.

Some 30,000 race fans and thousands of other citizens were expected to turn out for more informal glimpses of the Queen Mother as she moves around the city.

GUEST POLICE ESCORT

Fifteen motorcycle policemen were to escort the Queen Mother on a circular route 15 miles to Toronto's outskirts from the Port Hope residence of former Governor-General Vincent Massey, where she spent most of Friday and stayed overnight.

At the edge of the city, the schedule called for her transfer to an open car for a slow drive downtown to city hall.

The mile-long Field Regiment was to fire a 21-gun salute from an adjacent park while the Queen Mother inspected a 100-man guard of the Toronto Scottish Regiment, of which she is colonel-in-chief.

After a welcome by Mayor Nathan Phillips, the royal party was to drive a few blocks to the Canadian National Exhibition grounds for the Ontario government. A 100-name guest list included representatives of politics, the law, the church, education and business.

On the way to the races, the Queen Mother was to take a slow drive past a park in Sunnybrook Park where thousands of veterans and members of the public were given a reserved viewing spot.

At Woodbine, 50 planned and mounted members of Canada's Horse Guards were to accompany the Queen Mother-Vanier, who is a horse-drawn state carriage — to the royal box.

At nearby Toronto International airport, the Queen Mother will inspect a guard of honor of the Royal Hamilton Light Infantry, receive a farewell 21-gun salute and say goodbye to host officials, including Governor - General Georges Vanier, before boarding her plane for home.

Fire Rating of Tweed Forest District

Department of Lands and Forests fire rangers and other officials girded their figurative loins — and kept equipment at the ready today as a bright sunny and relishes weekend got under way.

With the warm dry weather of the past few days conditions using the fire rating in the timberlands area of the department's Tweed district rose to "high".

In fact two small fires broke out in Palmerston and Admaston townships yesterday and are being patrolled. They are under control and constitute no immediate danger.

The fires were started by a carelessly-tossed cigarette and a careless camper who forgot to extinguish his camp fire.

Department officials expect a more or less heavy influx of campers and others to the timberlands area during the long hours.

They urge extreme caution as the forest bottoms are rapidly drying out causing dangerous fire hazard.

As one official remarked, "a little common sense will save more valuable timber and timberland than all the fire-fighting equipment in the world".

There is a reduction of 1.1 mills in the county rate from last year, but the high school rate for Bay of Quinte is 6 mills higher than Stirling-Rawdon is 5.5 mills higher. In 1961 Sidney township paid 142 mills for 1960 Secondary School education in addition to 1961 High School authority rates.

Hope to Avoid Molestation Of Children

Once again the Kiwanis Club of Belleville is presenting to the public a booklet called "The Caution Cowboy" with the thought of preventing—unpleasantness and incidents of molestation. The booklets are being distributed to the rural and district by Nelson Bailey of R.R. 1 Bleckford of the Belleville City Police Department.

The city police department, through the safety officer, has been distributing the booklets at this time of year, and it is hoped that small children are playing on their way home after school and are more cautious of the "molester" than during the winter months.

The pamphlet, by message in cartoon form, is distributed to the children in the lower grades in the public schools, both urban and rural. Last year 3,000 copies of this pamphlet were handed out.

The booklet is provided by the Kiwanis Club through the Boys and Girls Work committee and is authorized by the school boards.

Copies are given to all grades in the public schools and upper grades one through four and grades five to city schools.

The Kiwanis Club of Belleville is requesting the assistance of parents in reading the booklet and explaining it to their small children.

dent was a reference to Mr. Diefenbaker's statement that the American government was "bowling" over devaluation of the Canadian dollar's exchange rate.

"If C. Douglas, at a rally in his home constituency of Regina, said the Diefenbaker government is sure to be described as one of the "most inept, indecisive and incompetent in Canadian history."

IN MEMORIAM

ADAMS. — In loving memory of our dear son, John James, who passed away June 18th, 1958.

Sadly missed by his wife, Jean, and son, John.

In life we loved you dearly
In death we do the same;
Oh, we think of you, dear son,
And our hearts are sore and with pain;
Oh this would be a heaven,
If we just saw your voice again.
You were gone but not forgotten
Treasured memories we have got
Precious thoughts shall ever linger
Around the place where you are not.

—Sadly missed by Mom and Pop.

ADAMS. — In loving memory of our dear son, Colin James, who passed away June 16th, 1958.

KELLAR. — In loving memory of a dear father, Herbert A. Kellar, who passed away June 18th, 1956.

New Publication On Blind Work In Production

Volume one, number one of a new publication went into production last month with a limited supply of readers. It is called the "White Cane Chronicle", and what is unique about it is that it is printed in Braille, and goes out to all the blind people in the community. A few typed copies are also sent to interested persons and members of the Hastings County Advisory Board.

The editors are Clarence Morris, and his associate Arlie Scott. The paper lists coming events, birthdays, news of interest to the blind, obituaries and in memoriams.

The latest issue has a letter from a girl who wants a pen pal. In her letter she says, "I am 18 years of age and wish to correspond with young Canadians in uncontracted Braille in order to improve my English. Write to Miss Agnes Palheo, Farkasdomli Gyula, XIV Thokoly, Ut 74F, Budapest, Hungary."

It also notes that after July 1st Readers' Digest is now on 33⅓ records will be changed to 16 2/3 RPM records which will require four speed talking book machines.

Among the coming events is the annual meeting of the Louis Braille Society in Wilsonborough; the final business meeting of the White Cane club at the Y.M.C.A. June 26, and the summer camp at Lake Joseph which opens on June 23.

A personal item notes that Mary Kuzma who used to be in Belleville is now employed at Western Hospital in Toronto.

The editors are to be congratulated on making this contribution in the interest of the blind, especially since there is no charge to their reading public.

Funeral Home Operator Held On Fraud Count

AKRON, Ohio (AP)—The operator of a funeral home where the embalmed bodies of nine Negro infants lay unburied for months was charged by police Friday with falsifying burial certificates and obtaining money under false pretenses.

Clarence Irby, 50, was named in five misdemeanor charges filed after the babies' decomposed bodies were found June 3 in a hallway of a funeral home he operated.

Irby, who lived in an apartment upstairs, has been quoted by police as saying he embalmed the bodies of the babies, all stillborn or only a few days old. But, Irby said, he didn't know who put them in the small passageway between the funeral home and a garage.

He is also accused of falsifying three certificates and taking $55 under false pretenses from Mr. and Mrs. Allen Salters and $45 from Sally M. Sumler.

The Salters told police they tried to find their baby's grave and couldn't. They said the infant died Jan. 2, but there was no funeral because Mrs. Salters was ill.

The funeral home had been in receivership and virtually out of business since early this year.

ANCIENT SPORT

Falconry, the hunting of birds or small animals with trained falcons, was known in ancient China and Egypt.

Belleville's Kinsmen-sponsored Community Swimming Pool is being completely renovated for the summer, at a cost of about $1,500. The interior of the pool has been resurfaced, and is being repainted by the Kinsmen themselves. Jim Clelland, of Sarnia, pool manager for the summer, seen above, is also painting in his spare time. The work will be completed and the pool opened by June 30. Jim graduated from high school this year, and will continue to business college in the fall. Last summer, he was supervisor of a pool in Gorrie, Ont. His qualifications include the Royal Lifesaving Society's Certificate of Distinction, the Society's highest award.

Saskatchewan Medical Care Rules Listed

REGINA (CP) — Regulations dealing with the Saskatchewan medical care insurance plan scheduled to begin at two weeks were announced Friday night.

Earlier Friday, Premier Woodrow Lloyd refused to meet with an estimated 500 persons who went to the legislature in a 12-car cavalcade to present petitions and ask that implementation of the plan be delayed.

The cavalcade was organized by Keep-Our-Doctors Committee members representing Prince Albert, Premier Lloyd's home riding of Biggar and other Saskatchewan centres. It followed a cavalcade held two weeks ago of about 300 cars, which presented Mr. Lloyd with petitions from all over the province, carrying about 46,000 signatures asking for the delay.

Doctors in several areas have said they will leave the province rather than work under the compulsory, comprehensive and prepaid program. And the provincial College of Physicians and Surgeons has announced it will provide only hospital-based emergency services beginning July 1.

Rod Thompson, speaking for the Prince Albert committee on the steps of the legislature, called for repeal of the entire Medical Care Insurance Act.

REVEAL REGULATIONS

Medical Care Commission Chairman Dr. D. D. Tansley, who announced Thursday that 55 applications have been received from United Kingdom doctors interested in practising in Saskatchewan, Friday made public the regulations under which they would work.

First progressive returns will start moving on news wires shortly after polls close in Newfoundland—5:30 p.m. EST or 6:30 p.m. EDT.

3,000 Children Line Route As Queen Mother Drives By

TRENTON — Around 11:45 a.m. yesterday, the Queen Mother stepped daintily down the ramp of an RCAF V.I.P. "Yukon" aircraft at Trenton, to be greeted by Group Captain D. J. Williams, Commanding Officer at RCAF Station Trenton, Lt.-Gov. and Mrs. Keiller McKay, Mayor A. M. Haig and Mrs. Haig of Belleville and Mayor D. J. MacDonald and Mrs. MacDonald of Trenton.

The Queen Mother chatted briefly with each member of the welcoming party. She seemed to be smiling her prettiest for the battery of cameramen pressing for advantage.

Then she entered her special car and smiled and waved her way through streets in the east end of town. The planned-for route, along 6 RD Road, to Dixon Drive to Sidney Street and so on to 401 Highway, had been altered due to repair work on Sidney Street. The official party did go up Dixon Drive, where the Queen Mother was greeted ecstatically by almost 3,000 public and separate school children. Kindergarten and Grade 1 students had been taken to Dixon Drive by bus, but the older children had walked through town to neat, well-ordered rows, with their teachers. Some of them carried their lunches and nibbled away on sandwiches, cookies or bananas while they waited for Trenton's special guest.

Grown-ups, too, had flocked to the area through which the official party would pass. When the Queen Mother's car came opposite one middle-aged woman, she exclaimed, involuntarily, "Isn't she beautiful!" Whether the Queen Mother heard the remark or not, the fact of the matter is that she turned and smiled and waved her hand at the woman in question.

It was all over too quickly, the lady of the quiet charm and the infectious smile was gone and the cheering marched back along the route they had come. Grown-ups, too, motored or walked back to their homes.

A fashion note for the ladies

Mrs. V. Kennedy Changes Jobs After 20 Years

TRENTON — On Friday, Mrs. Violet "Vi" Kennedy, for 20 years an employee of Central Bridge, retired as an employee of this firm and prepared to take up her new duties as secretary to Trenton's clerk - comptroller, O. W. Larry. Mrs. Kennedy was presented with an engraved silver tray by her fellow office workers at Central Bridge and E. J. Langan, vice-president of the manufacturing division of the company, joined with James Duncan, works' manager, in playing hosts at a farewell party, at the Trenton Country Club.

Mrs. Kennedy went to Central Bridge in 1943 when Canada was at war. She started out in the ship building division as secretary to Herbert Ditchburn. In those days, Central Bridge was engaged in manufacturing tugs, which were shipped to all parts of the world.

Her next job was that of secretary to B. B. Hill, managing director. Then, she recalls, the company was making structural steel parts, bridges and tanks for oil trucks.

Finally, she ended up as secretary to Mr. Duncan.

A few months ago, Central Bridge office activity was transferred to the Toronto central office, for the most part. When Mrs. Kennedy was offered the important post of secretary to the clerk-comptroller, Mr. Duncan agreed that it was a "must" for her, and relinquished her with reluctance.

Mrs. Kennedy is perhaps best-known for her activity with the Trenton Business and Professional Women's Club where she holds the position of first vice-president.

WATERWAY TO

PLEASES CHAIRMAN

Said Daniel Nocera, chairman of the Canadian Great Lakes Deep Sea Committee which is made up of agents for foreign vessels:

"Diefenbaker is going to get my vote."

Several shipping officials questioned by reporters asked how specific the prime minister had been as to whether the suspension would be permanent or last only until the lock-twinning project was finished.

R. J. Haskin, president of the St. Lawrence Seaway Authority who was in Toronto to open a new marine terminal, said he was not certain how soon the tolls would be removed. An order-in-council would be necessary first.

Each ship using the canal has been paying two cents per gross registered ton plus two cents for each ton of bulk cargo and 4 cents for each ton of general merchandise.

Mr. Noonan said the suspension might give some small stimulation to export cargo from U.S. and Canadian ports above the canal.

Common-Sense Policies Needed

Canadians go to the polls Monday.

All parties, at one time or another, have urged voters to base their choice at the polls on the record of the Diefenbaker Government during the last five years.

Let us look at the record. Until the dying weeks of the Liberal regime, old age pensioners received $40 a month. They now get $65. Pensions for the handicapped, the blind and war veterans, have been proportionately increased. A nation-wide hospitalization insurance scheme, with the provinces co-operating, has been instituted. These measures represent that sharing of the country's wealth and prosperity with the aged, the unfortunate and the ill which are demanded by persons with a lively conscience. The Diefenbaker Government has also increased payments to provinces, providing some assistance to them in meeting the mounting obligations resulting from the country's growth, and has managed to enter the field of education without unduly disturbing the advocates of provincial autonomy.

All of these are achievements of the first order.

In four years the Conservatives have had four budgetary deficits, amounting to the total of $1,940,000,000. In other words, the Diefenbaker Government has done many of those things which ought to have been done—but it has fallen short by almost a billion and a half dollars of levying sufficient taxes to pay for them. It has lived on credit. The day will come when, if this policy is followed by any government, the credit will run out. The longer this is delayed, the steeper will be the price we Canadians will have to pay.

There are two obvious ways to end these deficits. Both have their disadvantages. One is to reduce expenditures. But it is much more difficult to say how. As we have stated, the increased expenditures by the Diefenbaker Government were justified. What is much more difficult to justify is any further increase in such social security measures at this time. But, of course, at election time all parties, and particularly those not burdened with the responsibility of government, make lavish and sometimes irresponsible promises. The second obvious way to end the deficits is to increase taxes. No party, though, has the courage to advocate such a course when it is appealing for votes. Increased taxes are as unpopular as yesteryear's castor oil—and sometimes just as necessary. Unfortunately no palatable substitute for increased taxes has been devised yet, like castor oil, it is a remedy which can be overdone and an overdose can make the economy sicker, rather than healthier.

Besides these obvious ways of ending budgetary deficits, there is a third, more agreeable solution. This is to so stimulate the economy that the existing tax rates will yield sufficient revenue to pay for all present expenditures. It is this solution to which both the Conservatives and Liberals appear to be committed.

Unfortunately, the realist will find it difficult to escape the conviction that they live in a dream world. It is true that the economy today is not booming as it was in those post-war years when the Liberal administration reported surplus after surplus—but it is equally damned by many of its critics for its sound decision to use this surplus to pay off small portions of the national debt, instead of reducing taxes and eliminating the surpluses. But, despite silly "blue ruin" talk, our economy is not yet ready to take out boots off and run for five years and will not become so unless these deficits are permitted to continue unchecked. In other words, these are normal times, neither boom nor depression days. Some improvement in the economy may be achieved—but this in itself is unlikely to provide adequate additional revenue.

What is needed is a four-fold attack: 1—An end to further increases in spending for the time being—and a holiday from election pledges which, if implemented, would make such increase inevitable. 2—Every effort to stimulate the economy, so as to derive more revenue from present taxes. 3—A diligent program to reduce unnecessary expenditure, especially where existing legislation is being abused, as it is in the case of Unemployment Insurance. 4—Such increases in taxes on luxuries as are necessary, with the aid of the other three steps, to bring revenue into balance with expenditures.

If the voter knows a party he thinks will implement such a four-point program, or even a reasonable proportion of it, that is the party for which he should vote—and by doing so he will be voting in the best interests of Canada, of himself and of his children.

Ottawa Offbeat

Current Campaign Lacks Distinction and Color

BY RICHARD JACKSON
(From The Ontario Intelligencer's Ottawa Bureau)

OTTAWA — Well, what do you know . . . they made it.

Those iron men, Prime Minister Diefenbaker and Liberal Leader Pearson, still alive and sometimes even looking like they're liking it, have come through their eight-week endurance contest . . . just about everyone probably including a lot of medical men who said that a couple of grandfathers in their mid-sixties just couldn't take that kind of punishment.

It is a tribute to both heads of state that they took the worst beating, Diefenbaker and Mike in blood and sweat, the voters in the plain boring down-around-the-ears boredom.

There were old speeches, those dead horses they beat, those same tired arguments, those shopworn charges and counter-charges could be pretty deadly if you had a solid diet of them . . . and if you did not, you can thank the reporters out on the campaign trail, and the editors here on your hometown newspaper for conniving, with ingenuity defying all the laws of science, to vary the political menu.

This will not go down in the election records as one of those unforgettable campaigns.

BROKEN RECORD

As the Prime Minister the other day put it in one of his remarks, wryly . . . "It is going to be awfully hard to top the drama of the 38 campaign . . . I hope for I've tried, and you've seen what has happened."

But if John Diefenbaker is disappointed with the way the campaign has gone—he's not reason is not doing any cheering, either.

They both started out eight weeks ago with what might be called a "high" . . . In other words, when the show closed last night, each was delivering what was basically the same speech.

What else could you expect? A new approach every day? A fresh pitch every night?

Making two, three, four and often a half dozen speeches a day, that clearly was impossible, even for the willing help of a handful of idea-men and speech writers.

There just are not enough new political ideas kicking around, not enough issues or even variations of them to stretch that far.

So you get the same old jazz with new gimmicks and gizmoes as they might develop. But even the gimmicks did become dreadfully familiar . . . the reporters with short memories lasted so they could recite "the speech" off the top of their heads.

Biggest Bang Unnoticed

Vancouver Sun

While the great nations brandished intercontinental rockets, hydrogen bomb tests and orbiting astronauts, the world's biggest bang passed unnoticed almost this week.

A United Nations statistical report showed that the planet's population has exceeded three billion for the first time.

Right on schedule, too — according to the 1960 estimates. Somewhat ahead of the 1962 estimates, which predicted it for 1965.

Not only is the world population exploding, the rate of its increase is also soaring. Eight years ago a U.N. demographic survey placed the rate at 1.8 per cent per year.

In parts of Asia and South America, it is estimated at 3 per cent per year.

It seems a bit futile to worry about a possible population explosion when this cancer, is Sir Julian Huxley puts it, is already gnawing at the bowels of the human race.

It took the world at least 200,000 years to produce its first billion. Five human beings, in 1833, it was necessary to add the second billion, in 1933. The third billion has been achieved in 27 years. Obviously we haven't got any more room for any more people.

If the present rate remains unchanged, we will add another three billion in 30 years — and the rate of addition in 33 years — less than the lifetime of many babies alive today.

The UN Food and Agriculture Organization estimates 58 per cent of the people in Asia, 35 per cent of the people in Africa and 20 per cent of the people in South America are not enough to eat.

It is not only the poor nations that suffer.

Chicago University reports the American birth rate so high the national economy will not be able to absorb all those born even now without serious dislocation.

In contrast to the billions devoted to armaments, the U.S. government recently estimated $6 million has been spent on efforts to produce a cheap and effective birth control pill.

There is no world-wide birth control campaign, and little prospect of one.

This bears all the symptoms of lunacy.

Back scrapers to hockey players. I can see no reason why, if these wages are legitimate, they should not be paid. After all, if they had asked for $10,000 the day of the parade the public would have got it. I for one am helping to pay off the deficit over five years, so that's $7,000 compared to a half million. Let's give it to them. They went over, they won for us, we rooted, looted and yelled, now let's pay.

THE PACKSACK

By GREGORY CLARK

Dr. Alan Secord, the veterinary surgeon and well-known Canadian sportsman, was flying home from Montreal with his wife and decided to stop over in San Francisco for a couple of days. They were getting tired of being yourself car and run down to Los Angeles and look over that fabled region. But after being driven in from the airport to their hotel in a taxi, and after having a brief walk-around in the city, the traffic prevented so shocking a spectacle that Dr. Secord had second thoughts. On the four-lane and six-lane highways, the speed limit is 65 miles an hour. But if you go less than 65, a policeman overtakes you and signals you to get crackling. Dr. Secord is 60 and not 80.

In the hotel, the Secords ran into another Canadian vet, Dr. Warner, who has lived and practised in Hollywood for years. There, was the usual lively exchange of conversation, and Secord asked Warner how often he comes home to Canada.

"Oh, I come up to see my family in Orillia most summers," said Dr. Warner. "It's a good drive. But I pass up Toronto. The traffic in Toronto terrifies me."

The Secords went right out and rented a car.

Some Basic Understanding Of Alcoholism Eludes Us

By JOSEPH G. MOLNER, M.D.

Dear Dr. Molner: We have a daughter, now 35, who is an alcoholic. We have tried everything we know but nothing helps; not even short treatments. She goes back to drinking again. We have tried keeping money away from her but she gets gifts from her friends. She always comes back to mother and dad when she gets down and out. Can you give us any advice?

Drinking doesn't kill many people, at least not quickly, but it ruins more lives than any other disease I know.

We've put an end to smallpox (unless people become careless about vaccinations). We've stopped typhoid, diphtheria, polio. The majority of pneumonia patients recover. Cancer is being cured 35 per cent oftener than used to be the case, and heart patients have gained even more in comfort and longer useful lives.

But alcoholism? Some basic understanding of it still eludes us — something we must find out if we are to cure it more often.

When an alcoholic genuinely wants to overcome his trouble, it always can. But when a patient is being ruined by alcohol yet still refuses to be convinced that he needs curing, what can we do?

Alcoholism is more than mere habit, else millions who drink would become alcoholics. Rather, alcohol takes charge when the drinker loses his resolve to become a crutch, and escape, a means of blinding himself to his worries, troubles, sense of uselessness, or whatever.

I can offer three thoughts:

1 — You can't pamper an alcoholic. If you keep on picking him up after his spree, he isn't grateful. He just takes it for granted and expects the same kindness next time he has his "fight."

2 — Sometimes, and at painful length, an alcoholic at least hears himself say that is, and wants to change. At that point, hardly anything can prevent him from succeeding.

3 — Alcoholics Anonymous, which I cannot praise too highly, will gladly give it back, counsel, friendship, to anyone who really wants it. But AA is no use to waste its time on people unless they really care. It also knows that you can't expect a person to be into seeing the light. He has to find it for himself.

4 — There's a kindred organization called Al-Anon, made up of friends and relatives of alcoholics. This group can be reached through Alcoholics Anonymous, and is a source of help and information for people waiting for a loved one to wake up.

Note to Mrs. A.Z.: When we say we don't know about the underpinnings of pill, that's what we mean. We haven't found them to be harmful, else we'd have banned them. We can't tell whether any long-range troubles may develop except by further use.

What are cysts? How should they be treated? What can you do to help rid yourself of ulcers and stay rid of them? For answers, read Dr. Molner's helpful new booklet, How to Heal Peptic Ulcers and Keep Them Healed. For your copy write to Dr. Molner, care of this paper, The Chicago Sun-Times Syndicate, 211 East Ontario, Chicago, Ill., enclosing a long, self-addressed, stamped envelope and 25c in coin to cover handling and postage.

MUSIC

Listening to the pealing organ, or before a huge chorus rendering some stirring hymn, or at a symphony concert interpreting the wonderful compositions of the old masters, have you ever thought of what a blessing God has given us in music? I suppose He had left us without music. Suppose nothing but the sound of our voices, and that unctuous turmoil of the world, the cephalovs reports accompanying catastrophe were the only sounds we ever heard. But God gives us music. Why do some and North America prefer their music on a diabolic scale. The rest of the world for the most part prefers the pentatonic scale. But we have our music and they have theirs and each is satisfied and thrilled.

Anyone reading the Bible must be impressed with the assurance given us that one of the outstanding features of heaven will be its music. We think the music of this world is inspiring; sound of our voices in music! Suppose He had left us without music. A Lift For Living

Laws of Liberty Link Freedom, Common Sense

By DR. RALPH W. SOCKMAN

We Americans pride ourselves on being a free people. We boast that ours is a land of free speech, free ballots, free enterprise, free churches. Liberty is one of the dearest words in our language, and especially today when the most crucial public issue is the preservation of free society in a frightened and increasingly fettered world.

A few years ago in Russia I talked with some leading ministers of the Baptist Church. They said, "We are free. We can print our Bibles, baptize our babies and bury our dead." Yes, they were free to help people get to heaven, but they were not at liberty to suggest social changes for a better life on earth. We of the Western World would hardly call that religious freedom.

Yet, with all our talk about liberty, how free can we really be? It is not freedom of worship we go to the church or synagogue of our choice. No police guards bar our entrance or exit. The preacher can speak out on racial integration, medical care for the aged or other public issues. But in the house of God something restrains cultured laymen from standing up and shouting what they think of the service. And even though the preacher enjoys a free pulpit, if he is a good minister of the gospel he does not feel at liberty to say everything that comes into his head. He is restrained by a sense of responsibility to his congregation.

LAW OF LIBERTY

Let us test ourselves by a principle laid down in the Epistle of James, 11:12, "So speak and so do as they that shall be judged by the law of liberty."

To speak of the law of liberty seems paradoxical, doesn't it? We think of law as restraint put on liberty. But the fact is that even freedom has its laws. Consider God himself. God is omnipotent. We refer to Him as Almighty God. But does this mean that God can do anything He pleases? Not in the sense we commonly use the expression, "do as we please." God has set laws by which He Himself is governed in order that His own children may comprehend Him and live under His rule. Granted that an omnipotent God could make stones fall upward as well as downward, but how could we live in a universe where stones fall toward the earth today and perhaps away from it tomorrow, where it is wrong to steal on Mondays and Wednesdays and right to steal on Tuesdays and Thursdays?

The all-powerful Heavenly Father restrains His strength by law in order that His children may learn to live in an orderly world.

Think of this law of liberty in relation to our earthly parents. When I was a small lad my father laid down certain rules for my conduct which he enforced at times big enough still painful to recall. But when I came of age I moved from my father's home in Mt. Vernon, Ohio to New York City. No longer did my father physically control my conduct. Nevertheless, I refrained from doing certain things in New York lest I would hurt the feelings of my father in Ohio. I was restrained by the law of liberty.

I had by obeys his parents because he fears they may punish him if his disobeys. A good boy obeys his father and mother because he fears to hurt them. Where love reigns in families and friendships, we obey the unenforceable.

Furthermore, thoughtful person are restrained by a sense of fitness. In 1922 I was on a students' tour of Europe. We were at a restaurant in the Austrian city of Innsbruck. At that time the Austrian currency had depreciated to almost no value in American money. One of our American students took an Austrian bill of high denomination, rolled it into a taper and from the candle on the table lighted his pipe. Quite a harmless thing if done in Niagara Falls or Newark. But in himself started a fire that night in Innsbruck because it was a reflection on the national pride of the Austrians.

Unless we learn to live under the law of liberty, voluntarily ourselves by love, decency, honor and fitness, we shall go on multiplying policemen and government bureaus and even dictators.

BULLETINS FROM BIRDLAND

By WINIFRED E. WILSON

LATE ARRIVALS

The happy event of Warbler migration through settled Canada is strung out for two good months. Heralded by ruby-crowned kinglets, before April 15 over the region has generally arrived north of our border line. The black-throated green is often a close second, though the black-and-white or the northern water-thrush may get ahead of it. All these are quickly followed by ovenbird, yellow warbler, and so on. But June is nearly upon us, or may have begun, before a Connecticut or a blackpoll has been seen.

The Connecticut, one of our rarest warblers, has a restricted breeding range. Travelling from its South American winter quarters singly or in small groups, Connecticuts use the Mississippi flyway, then spread out in an east-west strip along the southern edge of our coniferous forests from eastern Canada to the Rockies. Individuals are occasionally spotted in western Quebec where there are many tangles in low or swampy woodlands. There may be more birds than we might suppose by the numbers reported, because this warbler likes to keep hidden in shrubbery.

IDENTIFICATION

Unless mistaken for mourning warblers, males should be recognized by the dark blue-grey hood which comes right down over the throat. The upper parts are olive, the under side lemon yellow, nearly down to the end of the tail, and the white ring about the eye is distinctive. The Connecticut's song could be mistaken for a yellowthroat's or an ovenbird's, but it is an even "beecher-beecher-beecher", with no syllable accented.

The blackpoll has been called the Arctic form of the warbler tribe", because of its lengthy migration route. Wintering in Brazil and northern South America, they may journey as far north-west as Alaska. No blackpoll travels less than 2500 miles, and some may fly 7000 miles.

County Home L.A. Visits Residents

The regular monthly meeting of the Women's Auxiliary of the Hastings County Home was held on June 11 with 26 members present and eight organizations represented.

The president, Mrs. Clarence Holmes, welcomed everyone and read a poem by Wilhelmena Stitch.

Committee reports were given and various business items given attention.

Mrs. Christopher reported there had been 39 visits made to the Home since the last meeting.

Mrs. Boogard thanked all who had given their time and assistance in the therapy room.

Mrs. Yorke thanked Mrs. Day for taking full charge of entertainment arrangements during her absence.

Mrs. Davidson and Mrs. Yorke were elected to take charge of the taking of pictures during the birthday party.

The ladies were informed that the new lawn umbrella and table which they were purchasing had been ordered and would be used for the comfort of special care patients.

The president closed the meeting with a poem entitled "Foolish People".

The ladies later met with the residents in the dining room for the usual birthday party.

Mrs. Day led in a lively singsong and presented Mrs. Bird at the piano. Miss Pearl Brown, resident gave a humorous reading.

Mrs. Bennett and Mr. Brenton, both being 80 years young, cut the beautiful birthday cake.

Mrs. Fred Aikens and Mrs. Leon Trupp poured tea, and everyone enjoyed cookies with their tea, while chatting with the honored guests.

There will be no meetings in July and August and in the fall a double birthday party will be held.

Soroptimists Elect 1962-3 Officers at Installation Meet

The joint installation dinner of the Port Hope - Cobourg and Belleville Soroptimist Clubs was held at the Prince Edward Room of the Hotel Quinte on Thursday evening, with a large attendance. Mrs. Ena Corke as chairman, welcomed the guests and members and turned the meeting over to Mrs. Helen Upper of the Port Hope — Cobourg Club.

Following the dinner, Mrs. Muriel York introduced Mrs. Annie Werren of Stirling, as guest soloist, who sang "Into the Night" and an English folk song, "Little White Cottage", in beautiful voice, accompanied by her sister, Mrs. Mildred Morrow.

Belleville-Pr. Ed. Group Plans Bus Trip

The regular monthly meeting of the Prince Edward-Belleville Ladies' Club was held at the Recreation Centre last Wednesday.

The president opened the meeting and extended a welcome to all present.

The corresponding secretary reported two get-well cards and one sympathy card had been sent. "Thank you" notes were read from Miss Beale, McMullen and the Cooke family.

A bus trip was discussed and it was decided to go to Alexandria Bay, U.S.A., in July.

Mrs. Gorsline, convener, presented the following program: Mrs. Farnsworth conducted a short devotional period by reading the 121st Psalm, her topic, "The Bible Imparts Life," and concluding with a prayer; a humorous reading by Mrs. Baird, "Don't Nobody Tell Me," and "Our Bill," by Mrs Parliament.

Everyone enjoyed the novel contest conducted by Mrs Gorsline, "The Sense of Smell," with Mrs. Baird receiving the prize.

Mrs. Gorsline and Mrs. Martin, conveners, and their group, served lunch at small tables and a social half hour was enjoyed.

Syracuse Bus Trip Planned By Ladies' Aux.

The Ladies' Auxiliary to the Army, Navy and Air Force Veterans in Canada held its monthly meeting in the auditorium, Front Street, on Monday evening with a large attendance. President M. Draycup, called the meeting to order with the usual two minutes silence.

Syracuse was decided on for the annual bus trip.

Food From World Over Offered at Seattle Fair

By SHIRLEY and BOB SLOANE

SEATTLE — A travel agent once confided in us that he secretly believes Americans travel only to eat, paying the penalties of foot soreness and cultural cramp just to work up an appetite between meals.

Here in the shadow of the Space Needle, where the little orange elevators crawl up the girders like bugs on a giant flower, none need be disappointed. There are at least as many different places to eat as there are exhibits, and we do mean different.

Seattle is first and foremost a city of the Northwest. The air smacks of Alaska, and deep-red sourdoughs are a not uncommon sight on the streets. Thus the steak-and-potato emporiums are inevitable, formally dressed in velvet upholstery and high prices as befits a great city showing off a World's Fair.

The Fair grounds have their share of these, though the universally good one is 600 feet off the ground atop the needle and usually requires an hour or two hours in line.

It's worth the wait. The elevator zipping by the curved girders gives the sensation of a space launch, and the 360-degree aerial view from the revolving restaurant is more spectacular than anything an airplane can offer.

THE FOOD CIRCUS

The true trencherman, however — particularly the one on a budget will find his glory in the countless stands and concessions on these 74 acres. Is something a little off the Big Circus, he will reach Nirvana.

This Big-ring carnival performs under the huge roof of an armory. One need never eat the same dish twice in half a summer. Almost every conceivable food of the world has been gathered here into a string of snack bars and cafes surrounding a 30,000 sq. ft. patio, which we will now proceed to tell you, though you probably won't believe it.

It is a 12½-ton fruitcake that looks as if it were prepared for Paul Bunyan's wedding. It is actually surmounted by a sugar figure of the woodsman and a revolving 400-pound model of Mt. Rainier, Seattle's magnificent landmark. The cake is for sale at sampling 15 cents a slice or $42,000 for the whole business (a customer once threw a check into a bowl before asking for two tons). The pieces sold are dug out of a tunnel at the base.

The cake was built (baked? manufactured?) from, among other things, 10,500 pounds of sugar and a pinch of salt — 500 pounds. It is crowned with artful sugar seals of the 50 states and surrounded by a garden of candy rocks; So much for dessert.

For the main course we might choose a Mongolian steak sandwich — "Specialty is the mailmaking," confides the proprietor — grilled on a grease-less, smokeless grill, or a frankfurter hot dog on a stick which is dipped into a mixture of ingredients, also secret. It might be washed down with an Orange Julius, a concoction of orange juice and — you guessed it — vanilla ice cream.

SMORGASBORD OFFERED

For a happy marriage of east and west, we might try a hot dog wrapped in pizza, or a Danish hot dog on a pumpernickel bun. Scandia offers kippered salmon and Swiss Polar Chinese combination plates. There's tempura on a stick dipped in an un-secret soy sauce, or sukiyaki on a bun in the Japanese corner. Both the Dutch and the Danes offer smorgasbord.

The health addict might fancy the "World's First Astronaut Menu — Energy Protein Shakes and Juice," which is one way of trading in on the science theme of the fair. Another might be an infrared toasted sandwich.

Spaghetti and seafood, quiche and enchiladas, strawberries and sukimi all are consumed standing and sitting by the throngs in staggering volume. Only the menu is not solo for consumption on the premises, though they do give away up to $100 worth a day in paperback quarter-slices.

Elsewhere around the grounds, you'll find the Belgian waffles that were such favorites at the 1958 Brussels Fair, heaped high with ice cream and strawberries. A little French restaurant serves onion soup, croques monsieur and other legitimate delicacies, though the wine is cooked by Mamaan behind the counter. Much as she may have done all her life in some provincial village. And if anyone knows enough about Korean restaurants to have a yen for one, there is such a place here.

For those who just can't make it to the next stand, dozens of automatic vending machines stand waiting around the grounds. They sell everything but Metrecal, which may be given the biggest boost in its history by the Fair.

Fifty Ladies Attend Tea For Lee Grills

Mrs. Stuart Howell of 82 Northumberland Crescent, Stanley Park, held a tea in honor of Lee Grills, Progressive Conservative candidate for South Hastings, Mr. Grills addressed the gathering of 50 ladies, describing his tour of the industries of the area. Mr. Grills said he did not limit his visits nor his interest in the industries to election time.

In answer to a question regarding the entry of new industries to the area, Mr. Grills said it was mainly the Chambers of Commerce whose job it was to attract such newcomers, but he had in many instances tried to further the interest of prospective industry by bringing persons from other parts of the Dominion to see what Hastings has to offer. He has done his utmost to sell the idea that South Hastings is a good location for industry, with markets in Toronto and Montreal.

In answer to a question on the sewage disposal plant, Mr. Grills assured the group that once it is installed, Belleville will be able to work towards being the bathing capital of the County with the Bay of Quinte cleaned so that the can-take advantage of the park areas that have been created by the harbor commission. The Federal Government was paying a large portion of the cost of the disposal and saving the ratepayers of Belleville at least $60,000.

Mr. Grills was given a resounding ovation, and spent some time chatting with individuals during the serving of the tea.

Mrs. Howell was assisted by Mrs. Everett Windover, Mrs. Sam Mulholland, Mrs. Helen Pretsman, Mrs. Ernie Toulson, Mrs. Deboer, Marion Bagnall and Mrs. Phillip Weatherall.

RECIPE FOR A FRIENDLY VACATION

If you're planning to travel with friends this Summer, let courtesy keynote the trip.

We know of no agreeable young couples who recently made a three-day trek to a seaside resort, and, using this formula, they got along swimmingly.

When two or more couples take a trip together, it's important that they be compatible. Our foursome has a lot in common, so I made the business of almost living together enjoyable instead of wearing. Driving, dining, sports and expenses were all shared with equal good humor.

Here's how they went about solving the troublesome details that often put a crimp in a jaunt of this type.

On the subject of expenses, they agreed on a simple expedient right from the start. One couple paid for gas and highway tolls on the way to the shore and the other couple paid on the way back.

Dining checks were handled just as effortlessly, and without any detailed accounting. There was no set regulation, such as "you pay for lunch and I'll pay for dinner," instead, the man who reached for the check paid it, being made a note of his outlay. Before starting home, the men sat down, figured what each had spent, then settled up the difference. Their wives packed on the bags in the meantime.

While they spent most of their time doing the same things, they found it was free to do so, and the others did not have to feel intimidated. Considerations of the group was the theme of the trip, and it paid off in complete harmony.

Driving, too, can put strain on a traveling relationship, but our group of friends had a amiable solution for this, too. Very often, the couple who owned the car become built-in chauffeurs during an entire vacation. Reader's Digest has suggested usually expected to drive the other couple on short excursions and shopping sprees during the entire stay. Not that it's really expected, but they feel guilty if they don't.

No so, in this case. When the couple who were passengers wanted to go off by themselves to sightsee or investigate a part of the outlying shops, they either walked or took a bus. Even if the driver offered to take them, they politely declined and, suggested he go over and look at the other side.

It's little things like this that can either strengthen friendships on vacation or make them come apart at the seams, due to their basic good humor, consideration and courtesy, our friends arrived home feeling even closer for the experience and the relaxation they got on the trip.

AOTS Club Holds Family Night Party

RAWDON—On Thursday evening June 7th, approximately 24 members of Rawdon circuit A.O.T.S. Club gathered in the Orange Hall at Wellman's for their family night party.

President Craig Watson opened the meeting and John Carlisle was in charge of the devotional. Mrs. Gerald Clancy conducted the singing and Mrs. Craig Watson was the accompanist. The program consisted of a vocal duet by Janice and Valerie Clancy. Mrs. Gerald Bennett gave two vocal solos and Mrs. Burton Morton contributed two readings. Mrs. C. Watson rendered a piano solo and Mrs. Jim Pollock a vocal selection. Appropriate items were read by Herbert Smith and Mrs. E. McKeown. Gordon Hoard recited his festival Bible verses.

At the close, the Club members served sandwiches, cookies, strawberries and ice cream and all enjoyed a social half hour of fellowship.

Carol H. — I'm trying to find a way to keep my baby. Edwin B. — She should offer the baby a normal home, through adoption.

Carol H.—I must make a decision within a month which will affect the rest of my life. It concerns my beautiful baby girl, born two months ago.

I'm 36 and was widowed ten years ago after a miserable marriage to a man who was an alcoholic and abused me. When he was killed in an accident, I moved in with my mother.

In the course of my work as a receptionist, I drifted into a relationship with one of the salesmen. In the company, a rule against men and women pregnant I didn't tell him, but quit and worked elsewhere as a typist. Now that the baby is here and I have seen her, I'm torn between two wishes. Should I keep her, despite my other reluctance for immediate adoption into a well-run home and a complete family?" Her answer must depend upon whether her love, ability and strength will make up for the early lacks.

Edwin B. — Carol has made a mess of her life so far. Why should she, by making life hard for the baby and my mother, be the kind of person who'll be reminders of her—mistake and start her life anew. The adoption procedure is the best course.

Carol's present apartment, which she shares with my mother, is no place to raise a baby. I can't be of any help. I have a home family to support out on the West Coast. Besides, I'm in the Merchant Marine and I'm on the high seas ten months out of twelve.

She should have agreed to give up the baby long ago, without looking at it. There's not enough money for her to stop work and take care of it, and there's no one else to do this for her. My mother is aging and infirm. That baby's entitled to a real mother and father and a family.

The Council: Just as marriage is not for love lost look to it North Star for stability and direction, so do confused adults turn to God's word for answers to their disputes: "What's best for the child?"

Fastening our seat belts to that consideration, we can address ourselves to Carol and her brother on the merits of their positions. After two excursions into disaster, her marriage and her affair, can Carol be fit herself to give two vocal solos and Mrs. Burton Morton contributed two readings. Mrs. C. Watson rendered a piano solo and Mrs. Jim Pollock a vocal selection. Appropriate items were read by Herbert Smith and Mrs. E. McKeown. Gordon Hoard recited his festival Bible verses.

At the close, the Club members served sandwiches, cookies, strawberries and ice cream and all enjoyed a social half hour of fellowship.

there's this to be pointed out to Carol: she's not a bad girl, she's a child; that is, her father is gone, and he loved and believed by her mother. Despite the moral stigma of her birth, the baby has a home life in a precious symbol to Carol of momentary happiness. With a home from a father who is married, Carol may be able to find her daughter after work and on weekends. And in a better financial position, either through earnings or marriage, the physical setup can be improved. The major concern must be for emotional setup.

Hence our suggestion is that Carol undertake psychological interview mentioned above to help her in her emotional strength. If she is deemed capable of working out the many problems parenthood alone, she must still answer for herself the question: "Should I dare I, deprive my other child her chance for immediate adoption into a well-run home and a complete family?" Her answer must depend upon whether her love, ability and strength will make up for the early lacks.

Note: Please do not write The Council re: adopting this baby. She is the ward of an Adoption Service, awaiting Carol's decision.

LETTER FROM MILDRED DILLING: HARPIST

(Concluded)

"And the harp, and the viol . . . are in their feasts . . ."—Is. 5: 12.

This concludes Miss Dilling's letter to her friend Mrs. John Descoron, 221 John St. She writes:

The social life in Djakarta is found fascinating as I was invited to many parties in the various embassies where I met people from everywhere. The costumes were a constant delight. The Indonesian women are the epitome of femininity and beautiful daisy little creatures in their colorful batik sarongs and long-sleeved plain jackets of harmonizing colors or those which swear loudly; but in any case, the effect is always charming.

I had a sarong and kabaya made and asked the Indonesian friends in whose home I was staying how they liked it. They admitted quite frankly that they didn't like it at all. My hair, for one thing, isn't the right color. It should be black and straight.

Leaving Djakarta was a wrench. At least a dozen people and friend came to wave me away, but when I landed at Singapore—there were friends waiting for me there — friends that go right on with the unusual crush of photographers and journalists. Mr. Goh Soon Tee, the Singapore Minister, asked the consulate to let me give a concert with his string orchestra.

It was held in the fine, big, air-conditioned Victoria Theatre for a sold-out house. It was a surprisingly good orchestra and the leader (a violinist, of course) was a boy genius of eleven. He was the first violin I played. At one of the rehearsals, this little boy broke an E string and I offered him a home from my harp on the A string until we finished. He was very emotional in the spontaneous way of a Hellfix and an amazing technique.

We did Handel and Rosie concertos and the Debussy Danse Sacree and Danse Profane. I also played two groups of solos and gave a talk on my harps and their history. The way I made the harp is new to the audiences and they all want as much as they can get.

On September 1st I landed in Kuala Lumpur in Malaya. The next night I played a command performance for the King and Queen of Malaya at the Royal American Ambassador and Mrs. Baldwin and a few other notables were present. We all had dinner after my recital.

The King and Queen are a perfectly charming, natural young couple. As soon as I started to play, the Queen sent up for four of their ten children to get out of bed to come down to listen. I never saw children so fascinated. He has to show how to play on my little Irish harp so our dinner music was provided by the princes and princesses picking out their favorite tunes — over on a cot-ner. The next day they sent me a gold wrist watch piece of silk made in Kalanga in Malaya.

The concerts all over Malaya were great fun and beautifully organized. Those up-and-coming people gave them a real loyalty, and cleared as much as $3,500 Malayan (or $1,400 U.S.) for the Rotary benefit in Penang. In Ipoh the concert was under the patronage of the Sultan of Perak who had me brought to meet him and the Sultana after the concert.

In Alch Star, the lovely Sultana of Kedar, my hostess, sat and sat in the front row. I was presented to her at intermission. At the Independence Day in Indonesia, Madame Soekarno, the President's wife, is a handsome woman, sat in the front row also and opened the international Golf Match.

I had been asked to play at the musicale arranged for my birthday party in June but he had suddenly flown around the world and cancelled it in Moscow instead.

In Malaya, as in Indonesia, I was showered with gifts — silver, batiks, etc. Oriental hospitality is lavish and their friendliness has been very touching. It is now Thanksgiving Day 1961 and I am celebrating it in Taichung, Taiwan. I can indeed lift up my thoughts in thanks for all the blessings I have had during these past seven months. I arrived on Taiwan on November 17 and played in Taipei and taught some eager little harpists.

Here in Taichung I have given three programs in two days at schools and a college run by American missions to crowds of standing room only of 1,000 or 1,500. Besides the floral tributes among the Chinese it was also, after each concert, presented with a red, blue or white satin banner with beautiful Chinese characters which, I am told, spell out flattering sayings such as "The music from your harps will resound in our ears rather than in our hearts."

Friends have been saying, "You ought to write a book about all this, "Well, I've done it. Here it is . . . Your wandering minstrel from the land of Mildred Dilling. P.S. From Dec. 1 to 13, I'll be in Thailand playing in Bangkok Chiengmai and Lampang and should be home in Japan before Christmas. Tokyo, Los Angeles and Chicago. There will be time to unpack and repack my new harp before I start and start the American tour that will send me south in Tiny Georgia, on Jan. 3. I'm not exactly a home-body! Wherever you are, I'll be seeing you as we shall go from Florida to Victoria, B.C.

Zone F-3 Legion Branch Holds Rally

DESERONTO — The Zone rally of Zone F-3 of the Canadian Legion was held in Deseronto last Sunday, with the Branch 360 as hosts. Some hundred legionnaires were in attendance including the members of the Col. Phay Wills Branch from Belleville, the only women's branch in the zone.

The prize for the best attendance went to the Col. Phay Wills Branch which had 80 per-cent present.

A goodly number of items of business were discussed with all branches reporting an increase in membership.

At the conclusion of the business meeting, a parade was held to the cenotaph for remembrance. Here the Zone Zone Commander, Dr. D. C. Wright-Clapp was served by the members of the Deseronto Ladies Auxiliary.

Zone Commander, Harry Goudier, thanked the ladies on behalf of the visitors.

During the social hour that followed many representatives of the different branches commended the Deseronto Branch for its new hall. Many intimated that they are looking forward to an invitation to the opening which will be held in the early fall.

Christ Church Closes Season With Supper

A busy half year was climaxed on Tuesday afternoon when the Parish Guild of Christ Church met in the parish hall for its closing meeting. A delicious pot-luck luncheon was the first order of business and members and guests thoroughly enjoyed this portion of the meeting.

Special guests included Archdeacon the Venerable J. B. Creegan and Mrs. Creegan, the Reverend and Mrs. Everett Smith, and the Reverend Michael Chavvil. Also welcomed as special guests were several ladies who provided a hilarious program later in the afternoon entitled "The Culture Club". Members of the talented cast were: Mrs. H. Elvidge, Mrs. C. Bavgess, Mrs. R. Berry, Mrs. H. Pitt, Mrs George Adams, Mrs G. Shaw, Mrs. A. McGeachie and Mrs. C. McGeachie. Mrs. F. Mordon, Mrs. A. Clarke and Mrs R. Gaetz.

The business portion of the meeting was presided over by Mrs. Gordon Slavin, and interesting and important reports were given by the various convenors. Correspondence included several "thank-you" letters and a card of thanks from the Guild of Christ Church, Hillier. A letter of appreciation was received from the Deseronto Ladies Auxiliary.

Mrs. Georges Adams reporting on the "Blossom Tea" held recently, saying that this event had been most successful and thanking all those who had worked so hard to provide such such good results. Mrs. Fred Burtt reported that the Guild had catered to a banquet done during May. Twenty-four cards were sent out by Mrs. Slavin on behalf of the Guild to people who were ill.

Following considerable discussion it was decided that a cheque would be forwarded to the Church wardens this month. President, Mrs. Slavin, closed the meeting and thanked all a happy holiday and restful summer. Benediction was pronounced by Archdeacon Creegan.

Answer: Very sorry! One line is missing. Step 3 of Strawberry Cheesecake (May 26, 1962) should read: Beat 3 teaspoons unflavored gelatine in 2 tablespoons cold water. Add remaining strawberries and chill. When slightly thickened, spread over cheese and lemon filling. Chill until set.

Be Positive Wheels Are Well Balanced

By EUGENE R. MILMOE

When a wheel is out of balance, there may be no noticeable effect when you drive at a fairly slow-to-moderate pace. But it's a different story at high speeds. Even a well-balanced wheel is inclined to bounce when the car is really moving along. When a wheel is out of balance, a dangerous bounce action can take place at high speeds or serious because the bouncing wheel isn't holding the road and is being up in abnormal vibration, thus hindering driver control.

In some cases, an unbalanced wheel will also wobble seriously. Less important, but nevertheless another argument in favor of wheel balance, is the economy factor. Naturally, a bouncing tire is going to wear pretty quickly, too.

And, speaking of tires, remember that they don't wear evenly — a front wheel will eventually cause a properly balanced wheel to become unbalanced. That's why a periodic check every several thousand miles, at least, is worthwhile.

FROM D-M.: "When m y car runs over a rough road surface, the right 'front a ide dips very much. Does this mean a bad spring?"

(A) It could be due t a weak spring. Or a faulty shock absorber might be allowing the spring to bounce.

C.H. writes: "Why should our ignition points burn up after just six months? The car is only driven on short trips.

(A) Burned points can be due to a defective condenser or to misaligned or incorrectly gapped points. Oil on the points will also cause burning.

T.L. asks: "I've had to put two new fan belts on my car in less than seven months. Isn't this a bit ridiculous?"

(A) You could be using the wrong belt . . . Perhaps one that's too tight, too loose or doesn't fit the pulley grooves properly. There's also a chance that rough pulley grooves are wearing away the belt.

From J.G.: "I have a '52 with automatic shift that constantly overheats. After running about five minutes at 50 mph, the temperature goes up to 240 degrees but drops to 180 a minute after I slow down to idle speed. We've tried almost everything but can't cure this."

(A) A lower radiator hose which collapses at higher speeds, a slipping fan belt or automatic transmission slippage would seem to be the likely troublemaker.

Successful Living

Canada Needs Nurses, Therapists

DORIS CLARK

DEAR DORIS:—Last year when unemployment was at its height I published statements that there was no unemployment among persons qualified in any of the some 25 different careers in the public health field.

At this time many young persons are looking for employment and many have the baking of the opportunities that exist. This is a great worry to not only the young people but their parents.

Because they do not know of these opportunities early enough, many of the potential recruits do not take the classes or subjects which they need. We have done quite a lot of work along this line and have recruited with some success, getting, for instance, 35 per cent of the senior matriculation girls into nursing schools.

I might mention my own field of health education, in which the salaries for rank and file personnel go up to $7,000 annually. Yet this week we are offering positions to three Americans, having advertised the jobs vainly from Victoria to St. John's.

There is a great need for therapists—physical, occupational, recreational, speech, etc. There aren't half enough dentists in Canada, while there is unused accommodation in schools of dentistry.

I believe that some mention of this personnel shortage in the health departments and hospitals would be a national service. Here again, inquiries can be directed to their provincial health departments.—Christian Smith, Director of Health Education, Province of Saskatchewan.

DEAR MR. SMITH—Thank you. This is the same right across Canada. Students and parents, take note!

DEAR DORIS—I was glad to read the letter from "Bundle of Nerves" as I was positive there was no one like that but me. I cannot go out to church groups or tea as I shake so badly I could not hold a cup.

The last time I went to Communion at church I shook so badly trying to get the wine, the cups rattled and everyone looked. I just sit at home afraid to join in any groups or go where there is a gathering of women. I really like being with people and am told I have a pleasant personality and people seem to like me.

I was asked to a couple of parties this winter so when the tea was passed I said I had stomach trouble (which I did at the time) and the other time I left before the tea was served. I felt like a fool and got all red in the face, as it's an awful from the time I step out the door and cannot think of anything else except when the tea or coffee will be passed. Then my stomach just starts to shake so.

So I would like to let this other person know she is not suffering alone.—UNHAPPY.

DEAR UNHAPPY—It may be physical. It may be mental. It may be traceable to a traumatic experience when you were little. Or to too little self-expression now.

People who tell you to forget it mean well, but would do no better themselves. Until you root out the cause, you'll shake. Can your doctor suggest a physical reason? If not, get him to refer you to a psychiatrist. This is the kind of thing which can be treated with high hopes.

Ontario Sends 85 Members To Federal House and Plays Key Role in This Election

By FRASER MacDOUGALL

TORONTO (CP) — Simple arithmetic points to Ontario's key role in the June 18 federal election.

The province elects 85 members to the 265-seat House of Commons, nearly one-third of the total. That compares with 75 from Quebec, 33 from the four Atlantic provinces and 72 from the West including Yukon and Northwest Territories.

All four political parties, sensing on the conviction of their expressed beliefs that Ontario may prove decisive in this election, are battling vigorously for the support of its voters, from descendants of United Empire Loyalists to recently - arrived European immigrants.

Conservatives and Liberals have entered candidates in all 84 constituencies voting June 18 — one election in the 85th was deferred to July 16 because of death of a candidate. The leaders have been in and out of Ontario again and again during the campaign which opened April. Prime Minister Diefenbaker launched it with a formal campaign kickoff. Both he and Liberal Leader Pearson are concentrating heavily here in the closing rush.

NOMINATIONS ELECTED

The reorganized New Democratic and Social Credit parties have candidates in almost all — almost as assiduously as their cold-shoe rivals. The NDP is contesting 82 of the 85 seats and Social Credit 70. The NDP's T. C. Douglas and Social Credit's Robert Thompson have swept into the province for frequent barnstorming tours.

Provincial party leaders have been active in behalf of federal associates. Premier Robarts has come out solidly for Mr.; Diefenbaker. Liberal leader John Wintermeyer has hit the campaign trail with Mr. Pearson. Donald C. MacDonald, NDP, has been speaking almost nightly for Mr. Douglas.

Social Credit's Philip T'Kally, a former mines minister in the provincial Conservative government, intended to be a candidate but his entry was rejected on nomination day because his nomination papers lacked the required number of signatures of eligible voters from his chosen constituency, Toronto Broadview.

Regarded as traditionally Conservative, Ontario nevertheless has been prime political fighting ground. It formed the Conservatives 18 times in 34 general elections since Confederation. But five of the six times it went Liberal, that party captured the country.

Its swing to the Conservatives was the decisive factor in 1957 in ending 22 years of Liberal government in Canada. Of the party's winning total of 109 members, 61 came from Ontario which had elected only 33 Conservatives in 1953, Liberal strength fell to 20 from 30.

The province boosted its support to 67 Conservatives in 1958 when the party won 208 seats. By dissolution last April, the number was down to 63 due to three by-election losses and one vacancy.

The Liberals, who won 15 seats in 1958, gained two for a total of 17 by dissolution. The NDP elected two members four years ago and its successor, the NDP, gained one parliamentary seat in a 1960 by-election in Peterborough.

The Conservatives run up ponderous majorities in their 1958 gains. Biggest went to Frank McGee in York - Scarborough with 30,377. Another 26 recorded margins of 10,000 or better. Only one of the 67 was below 1,000 — and by contrast, five of the 15 Liberals won by less than 1,000 votes and their biggest was the margin by which Rodger Mitchell in Sudbury topped the Tory candidate — 5,135. The three CCF winners recorded majorities of 226, 1,080 and 2,002.

MAJORITIES WIPED OUT

The opposition parties cite results in seven byelections since 1958 to buttress their argument that the big majorities aren't so impregnable. The NDP overturned a Conservative majority of 11,778 in Peterborough to win by 2,861. Leeds, Conservative by 2,530 four years ago, turned Liberal by 2,548. Toronto Trinity went Liberal by 771 after a provincial Conservative's government, intended to be a candidate but his entry was rejected on nomination day because his nomination papers lacked the required number of signatures of eligible voters from his chosen constituency, Toronto Broadview.

Regarded as traditionally Conservative, Ontario nevertheless has been prime political fighting ground. It formed the Conservatives 18 times in 34 general elections since Confederation. But five of the six times it went Liberal, that party captured the country.

The opposition parties cite results in seven byelections since 1958 to buttress their argument that the big majorities aren't so impregnable. Toronto Trinity went Liberal by 771 after a provincial Conservative's government had called the election.

In Grenville - Dundas and Hastings - Frontenac, Conservative candidates were by-reduced majorities. The Liberals increased their by-election margins in Nipissing and Algoma East Russell.

Party strategists on all sides face nagging imponderables, a major one of the impact of population growth and shifts since 1958, particularly in the burgeoning suburbs around Ontario's major cities.

Others include purely provincial issues—the reaction to a provincial sales tax, retirement of former Conservative premier Frost and the effect of evidence before a royal commission investigating crime.

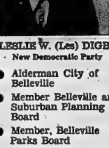
MANY DEMARGATS

Distribution of population presents campaigners with a many-sided pattern. In traditionally Tory Toronto, immigrants from Europe since the war are a major factor. French-speaking Canadians are a powerful voting force along the Ottawa Valley and in Northern Ontario. Rural areas in Southern Ontario, their farm populations shrinking apace, are still dominating feel in the province's political life.

Seven of the Conservative cabinet's 24 members are seeking re-election in the province: Finance Minister Fleming in Toronto Eglinton; Trade Minister Hees in Toronto Broadview; Immigration Minister Fairclough, Canada's first woman cabinet minister, in Hamilton West; Labor Minister Starr in Ontario; Health Minister Monteith in Perth; Works Minister Walker in Toronto Rosedale and G. Ernest Halpenny, cabinet without portfolio, in London.

The Conservative total includes the only father-daughter team ever to sit in Commons: Hon. Earl Rowe, in Dufferin-Simcoe, only member of the 1926-30 Liberal cabinet still active in politics; and his daughter, Mrs. Jean Casselman, in Grenville-Dundas.

SHARP FACES FLEMING



Mr. Pearson, seeking re-election in Algoma East, heads an array of Liberal prominents that includes former cabinet ministers Paul Martin in Essex East and Paul Hellyer in Toronto Trinity. Walter Gordon, a key figure in formation of party policy, is running in Toronto Davenport. Mitchell Sharp, former deputy trade minister, is battling Mr. Fleming in Toronto Eglinton.

David Lewis, a founder of the NDP, is a candidate in the Toronto suburban area of York South. Hazen Argue, MP since 1945, is seeking re-election.

Key NDP candidates are brothers, Bob Good in Brantford and A. C. Good in Brandt-Wentworth. Their father, W. C. Good, was Progressive MP for Brant from 1921 to 1925 and for years was a leading figure in the co-operative movement.

Grain, Chief Agricultural Product of Prairies, Has Become Most Vital Topic

By PHIL ADLER

EDMONTON (CP) — In Prairie provinces political successes largely measured by the record of the farmer.

Grain, chief agricultural product of Manitoba, Saskatchewan and Alberta, has become the most vital topic in the June 18 campaign for the region's 46 Commons seats.

Prime Minister Diefenbaker maintains his government has done more for the farmer in five years than any other government in a 35-year period.

He has urged farmers to boost grain production because, he says, the government has found markets, referring particularly to the agreement to sell 186,700,000 bushels of wheat and 46,000,000 bushels of barley to Red China over a 3½-year period.

Liberal leader Lester Pearson and Social Credit leader Robert Thompson have criticized government secrecy on the Red China wheat deal. Both have hinted that perhaps the agreement was reached with the Chinese before the arrival in Ottawa last year of Agriculture Minister Alvin Hamilton.

GUARANTEE PRICE

Mr. Pearson has promised that a Liberal government would guarantee a $2-a-bushel minimum for wheat sold for domestic and Canadian consumption during the next three years. He has also said the Liberals would replace present acreage payments with a "system of support on the basis of farmer need rely."

Mr. Thompson says Social Credit believes the two-price system for wheat "is the only hope for the Canadian farmer." The system—one price for exported wheat and a higher one for domestic wheat—would increase exports and open new markets, he said.

T. C. Douglas, New Democratic Party leader, has said the farmer is going broke. An NDP government would establish producer-appointed marketing agencies for all farm commodities and would negotiate yearly a guaranteed parity price.

Mr. Diefenbaker and Mr. Pearson have made flying tours of the Prairies but more has been seen of Mr. Thompson and Mr. Douglas, both of whom are making their first bids for seats in the Commons as national leaders.

PROVINCIAL HELP

Provincial leaders in Alberta and Saskatchewan are giving active support to their federal candidate. This has not been so noticeable in Manitoba, though Premier Duff Roblin turned out for Prime Minister Diefenbaker's visit to Winnipeg and Liberal leader Gil Molgat was on hand for Mr. Pearson's.

The election raises some interesting questions for all parties. The Conservatives in 1958 won 47 of the 48 seats, an unprecedented sweep. The only opposition member from the Prairies in the last house was Hazen Argue, CCF-NDP parliamentary leader until he resigned to run as Liberal in Assiniboia. He hopes to hold Assiniboia, the Saskatchewan seat he first won for the CCF.

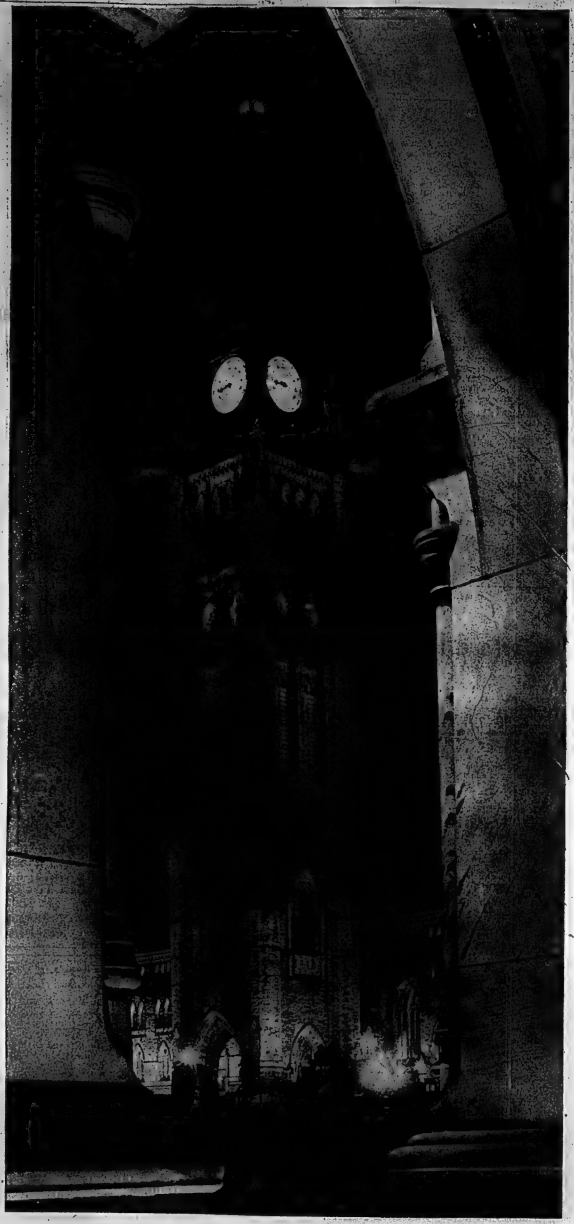
Social Credit, which appeared to be the federal scene with 17 MPs in 1935—15 in Alberta and two in Saskatchewan — reached a high point in 1957 with 19 members, 13 in Alberta and six in British Columbia. It was wiped out in 1958. One question is whether it can come back in Alberta where it forms the provincial government, and how strongly.

The Liberals, with as many as 33 Prairie seats and never less than 24 from 1935 to 1958, dropped to six in 1957 and were also blanked on the Prairies in 1958. They would need a majority in the East to form a government without substantial Prairie support.

NDP MAKES BID

The NDP, formed last year as a coalition of the CCF and organized labor, is striving to rebuild the representation once held on the Prairies by the CCF.

Founded in 1932, the CCF had among its moving spirits several members of the old Progressive, a farm-protest movement that sent 64 MPs to Ottawa in 1921. Under the late J. S. Woodsworth and later M. J. Coldwell, the CCF had four Prairie MPs among its seven members in 1935. After hitting a peak of 28 members—including 18 from Saskatchewan and Manitoba—in 1945, it fell to 13 (seven from the Prairies) in 1949; rose to 23 (14 Prairies) in 1953 and 25 (13 Prairies) in 1957. Of the eight seats in 1958, only one was from the Prairies. They were elected as MP in Alberta.



Mr. Douglas, architect of Saskatchewan's compulsory medical care insurance scheme, has been pushing a national health plan as part of the NDP platform. Saskatchewan's controversial labor code, hammered out when Mr. Douglas was premier, is to go into operation July 1. Doctors say they will not practise under it and it has become a hot issue in the province.

Three of the four national party leaders are seeking election on the Prairies.

Prime Minister Diefenbaker is opposed in Saskatchewan's Prince Albert riding by Saskatoon lawyer Roger Carter, of the NDP, Ken Solheim, Social Credit, and George Newell, Liberal. Mr. Carter is the only incumbent are making their debut in politics.

Mr. Thompson is also in a four-way fight in Red Deer, an Alberta seat won in 1958 by Harris Rogers who is seeking re-election.

Mr. Douglas faces a similar battle in Regina where Conservative Hazen

Before you vote on your future...

CANADA'S ECONOMY is moving to new heights of prosperity. In the past month, about 250,000 new jobs for Canadians—the largest employment increase in Canada's history!

Canada's shipyards are booming; lumber exports are reaching record highs; farm prices are up and markets expanding; our wheat is once again moving from the elevators to feed a hungry world.

Canada's economy today is stronger, healthier than any in North America. Government action, courage and confidence brought Canada through the crisis of the Liberal recession, despite the voices of "gloom and doom" who were so eager to sell Canada short.

For the first time in years, Canada is selling more goods abroad than she is importing. Credit has been expanded, inflation has been checked.

The veteran, our older citizens, the weak and afflicted—the forgotten men and women of Canada five years ago—are today enjoying higher standards of well-being and achievement.

Every Canadian Province has benefited from a national program for expansion and development; the long-neglected Atlantic Provinces have been given new measures of equality and opportunity from a Government that believes in one Canada, united and strong.

And Parliament has been restored as an instrument of the people's will. Arrogant Liberalism and entrenched bureaucracy are now but a nightmare of the past.

For five years, the Government of John Diefenbaker has served Canada well. It has fulfilled its pledges, honoured your trust and kept faith with the Canadian people.

There is more to do, more to build, more to challenge and achieve. The Government of John Diefenbaker will do it, in your service and in your trust.

It is worthy of a further mandate which your personal ballot can help bring about by voting for your Progressive Conservative Candidate on June 18th.

Two Railway Engineers Retire After Long Service

Friday was retirement ? day for three Canadian National Railway employees in Belleville.

Two railway engineers, Mr. E. Bradshaw, 124 Queen Street, and A. W. Jordan, 47 Crier Street, made their final runs on passenger trains, while Yardmaster Jack Casey of, Belleville, also retired from the railway service.

Mr. Bradshaw, who started with the railway at Trenton back in 1918 as fireman and has been running out of Belleville since 1930, came down the noon train, while Mr. Jordan made his final run on the afternoon train in from Brockville. Engine banners noting the engineers' starting and retirement dates decorated the diesel locomotives for each run.

Close friends of the two retiring railroaders were on hand to offer retirement congratulations.

Having a great love for travel, Mr. Bradshaw says he has been looking forward to retirement for some time. Mr. and Mrs. Bradshaw have a summer cottage in North Hastings and holiday in the south in the winter.

While admitting that the modern diesel engines do a better job, Mr. Bradshaw nevertheless is touched with nostalgia for the old steam locomotive.

"The passing of the steam locomotive has meant that much of the glamour is gone from railroading," he said.

"Years ago the young boys used to stop and watch the big steamers go by. Now with the diesels it is just another big car."

For the immediate future, Mr. and Mrs. Bradshaw have plans for more travelling, with a visit to Europe being in mind.

Mr. Jordan commenced his railway career back in January 1923 and is retiring after 39 years' service.

Both retired railroaders expect to continue to make their home in Belleville.

ISSUES GUIDE

OTTAWA (CP) — The Resources for Tomorrow Conference held in Montreal last fall to adopt a guide for the development of Canada's renewable resources has issued its final report - conference publication. The federal resources department said Friday that the publication Guide to Benefit-Cost Analysis in Canada is the evaluation and selection of projects to be undertaken.

80 Publications Off the Racks In Nova Scotia

HALIFAX (CP) — A radio gospel preacher's threat to lay charges and a Crown prosecutor's opinion on what constitutes obscenity have swept about 80 United States and Canadian publications off the racks of Nova Scotia newsstands in the last three weeks.

Leaders of clergy, authors and teachers groups call the move "one man censorship" and "pressure - group tactics." The wholesale magazine distributor involved says there should be some better method of dealing with the question.

Rev. Perry Rockwood of Halifax says charges were not discussed when the distributor, H. H. Marshall Limited, agreed to remove certain publications from sale.

This decision, he says, was taken at a meeting with Peter O'Hearne, Halifax Crown prosecutor, Detective Superintendent Roy Mitchell of the Halifax police and Charles Marshall, vice-president and managing director of Marshall's, the chief magazine distributor in Nova Scotia, Prince Edward Island the Newfoundland.

Mr. Rockwood's People's Gospel Hour is broadcast on 47 North American radio stations. They include 29 stations in Canada and the 16-station Yankee network in the U.S..

ASKS FOR OPINION

Mr. O'Hearn says Mr. Marshall asked him to examine certain publications and say which of them, in his opinion, were obscene in terms of the Canadian Criminal Code.

Publications removed from the stands include the Canadian papers Flash, Hush and Midnight, such U.S. periodicals as Playboy, Escapade, Gent, Scope, Photorama, Dude and Cavalier and some pocket-size books.

Rev. Max DeWolfe, Baptist president of the Halifax - Dartmouth Ministerial Association, says he does not like "this type of censorship."

"I have no axe to grind for these magazines so far as content is concerned but I feel this can be carried to the point where a small group could deprive the public of worthwhile publications." He says education provides a more positive approach to the question, censorship a negative one.

Dr. Clifford Whitfield, president of the Nova Scotia branch of the Canadian Authors Association, says authors in general are opposed to any form of censorship. "A board similar to those that censor motion pictures would be better," he feels.

Mr. Marshall says he feels Nova Scotia should establish an advisory committee on literature similar to those in Ontario and Alberta. An Ontario committee set up two years ago consists of an English professor, a lawyer, a librarian and a sociologist.

Gasoline Prices Start Retreat

TORONTO (CP)—Retail gasoline prices, raised last week, started to retreat in Toronto Friday.

Texaco Canada Limited, Sun Oil Company Limited and Cities Service Oil Company Limited have rescinded price increases to dealers, Kenneth Langdon, secretary of the Ontario Retail Gasoline and Automotive Service Association, said.

White Fluff Consists of Poplar Seeds

That storm of white fluff floating through the streets for the past few days is not dandelion seeds, according to H. G. Bates, a botany teacher at BCIVS.

Dandelion, locust and poplar seeds are very similar, but the present storm seems to be poplar, he said. Locust, if they bloom this year, will be coming out during the next few weeks.

Each tree produces about the same amount of seeds every year, Mr. Bates said, but some years the seeds appear heavier than others because of the wind. A light breeze will keep the seeds in the air, sometimes carrying them for miles. If the breeze blows them across a city, as seems to be the case this year, people begin to talk about "so many seeds."

Clark Bronson, of 12 Forin Street, inspects some of the poplar seeds coating the lawns near Queen and William Streets. The layer of fluff is exceptionally heavy at this corner.

Two Canadian Rockets Fired, Tests Success

WALLOPS ISLAND, Va. (CP) Two Canadian Black Brant III rockets were test-fired here Friday and although maximum altitude was not achieved, Canadian and U.S. officials described the tests as generally satisfactory.

The Brant - range, solid-fuel rockets, part of a family of vehicles designed for deep space shots, reached an altitude of 56 miles on the first test and about 62 miles on the second.

A. W. Fia, chief engineer for Bristol Aero-Industries, Winnipeg, the manufacturers, said the altitudes reached were about 10 per cent below predictions.

ESKIMO DOGS

Believed to have originated in Siberia, the Eskimo dog is related to the Siberian husky and the Samoyede.

J. Casey, Day Yardmaster At CNR 20 Years, Retires

When Jack Casey went to work for the CNR in Belleville in 1911, his salary was $26.61 a month. He was a call boy, "shipgirl" to the men whose messages he carried, and he worked from 6 at night to 7 in the morning, seven days a week. That was a good job in 1911.

But things have changed on the railroad. The call boy has been replaced by the telephone, and Jack Casey was day yardmaster for the Belleville yards for more than 20 years. Yesterday he retired. Mr. Casey has 51 years of service with the old Grand Trunk and the Canadian National Railways.

Harry Theobald, chairman of Lodge 108 of the Brotherhood of Railroad Trainmen, presented Casey, for his retirement, with a purse and his life membership card in the brotherhood.

Mr. Casey has been a member of the lodge since it was formed. Jack was well known as a baseball player when the Nationals were in their prime. He was an outfielder and a good one and he could hit a ball a country mile. Jack played on the team that won the title in 1919.

Also present at the presentation were Jack Casey Jr., a yardman, and Harold Webb, a fireman and Mr. Casey's nephew.

Economic Expansion Pledges Form Core of Platforms Laid Down by Four Leaders

By BEN WARD
Canadian Press Staff Writer

Pledges of economic expansion, more jobs and national development projects form the core of the platforms laid down by the four parties seeking power in Monday's federal election.

Some variations on these themes have cropped up during the six weeks of campaigning, but the emphasis is on greater prosperity—all without mention of any new taxes.

EMPLOYMENT

Conservative — Prime Minister Diefenbaker says government policies already in action are paying off in thousands of new jobs and increased employment under control. He predicts that employment will reach a record and unemployment will hit an all-time low by late summer.

Liberal — Lester B. Pearson calls for measures to encourage new industries, stimulate research and open up more natural resources, thus creating more jobs. Unemployed would be retrained and the jobless level kept below 3 per cent.

New Democratic—T. C. Douglas promises full employment within 12 months through federal economic planning which would create jobs where needed and put manpower, capital and resources to work filling them.

Social Credit—Robert Thompson would increase consumer buying power through a basic annual income payment to stimulate production and keep industry at full employment.

FINANCE

Conservative—A plan, no details given, which would afford the small Canadian investor a chance to obtain shares in present and future Canadian industry; Canadian dollar pegged at 95½ cents in United States funds; expansion of the Industrial Development Bank to encourage more industrial and development interest.

Liberal—Policies aimed at restoring confidence in the Canadian dollar; end to tight money financing within two years; equalization payments to provinces, ensuring each the same per-capita revenue from income sources shares with Ottawa; tax incentives to stimulate the industrial economy.

NDP—Encouragement of Canadian investment, through savings, in development of the economy; freeing of the Canadian dollar to find its own level.

Social Credit—Tax exemption of $5,000 for fathers; payment of a basic annual income to aid; elimination of the national debt in 20 years; pay-as-you-go financing.

SOCIAL WELFARE

Conservative — Mr. Diefenbaker proposes a federal-provincial conference to study a portable contributory retirement pension plan.

Liberal—Mr. Pearson pledges old age pensions of $75 a month, a $10 increase; a contributory pension plan, and partial medical insurance covering the young, elderly and unemployed.

NDP—Mr. Douglas promises a $75 old age pension; a portable supplementary pension plan; federal payment of 50 per cent of a medical insurance program.

Social Credit—Mr. Thompson would continue family allowances for another five years past the present limit of 16, and provide medical insurance for the aged, jobless, and those not now covered by private plans.

DEFENCE

Conservative — No nuclear arms for Canada while a chance remains for world nuclear disarmament.

Liberal—No nuclear arms unless developments make them necessary.

NDP—No nuclear arms at any time.

Social Credit — No nuclear arms in Canada but possible acceptance under NATO control.

AGRICULTURE

Conservative — A 10-point farm policy including further stabilization of prices; improved crop insurance; more loans to co-operatives; drive for greater export sales; guaranteed acreage payments to Prairie grain growers.

Liberal—A 42-doubtel minimum for wheat; deficiency payments for oats and barley; a national nutrition program to enlarge markets for dairy products.

NDP — Parity prices; a system of producer marketing boards; capital assistance for farmers to buy new equipment and adopt new techniques.

Social Credit—A two - price parity system for domestic and export sales; easier credit; new tax benefits.

TRADE

Conservative — More export credit insurance; bilateral food disposal programs within the Commonwealth particularly to aid the West Indies.

Liberal — An Atlantic free trade area; support for British entry into the European Common Market and other trading groups.

NDP — Common-wealth free trade; eventual customs union with the United States; no trade with Communist nations.

DEVELOPMENT

Conservative — A second Trans - Canada Highway; national power grid; Prince Edward Island causeway; more parks and recreation areas; special aid to the Atlantic provinces.

Liberal—More transport facilities to open the north; cabinet minister to plan aid to depressed areas; loans for municipal projects; special Atlantic aid.

NDP — A capital fund to finance schools, hospitals and housing; purchase of foreign control in industry; national power grid; massive public works in the Atlantic area.

Social Credit—Seaway at Moosonee, Ont.; Chignecto Canal; low-cost housing in municipalities; more power exports to the U.S.

Among the scores of other promises made by party leaders and their chief lieutenants were these:

Conservative — A separate ministry of water; removal of Welland Canal tolls; efforts at international agreement on a 12-mile fishing limit; retention of the Columbia River power treaty; royal commission to study the tax structure; special commission to hear Indian grievances.

Liberal—Aid to The West Indies in a Colombo-like plan; a 12-mile fishing limit with or without international agreement; a new Canadian national flag; more aid for Maritimes coal; special tribunal for Indian land claims; renegotiation of Columbia River treaty.

NDP—A national plan to feed low-income families; special ministry to protect consumers from high prices; bargaining rights for the civil service; renegotiation of the Columbia Treaty; food-processing industries on a co-operative basis; modernization of the Indian Act.

Social Credit—A non-political committee to pick a national flag; the vote for immigrants after a year's residence; Canadian membership in the Organization of American States; the vote for 18-year-olds; national council to mediate labor disputes; sale of Trans-Canada Air Lines to private interests; non-political committee to appoint judges.

Forces Abroad To Get More Smaller Dollars

OTTAWA (CP) — Increased living allowances for Canadian soldiers and airmen serving in Europe were announced Friday night by the defence department. Increases range up to 367 monthly, and are retroactive to May 1.

Under a new system being introduced, allowances will be tied to the cost of living in the various countries in which Canadian personnel are stationed.

Defence Minister Harkness said in a statement the new system responds to changes in cost of living abroad, including changes brought about by international currency values.".

The advantage of the system to the servicemen is said by the assurance that he can afford per-same standard of living abroad that he would enjoy in Canada, as well as receiving the basic amount to provide for the conditions of foreign service.".

The following ranges of monthly increases for married accompanied by their family will occur:

France $1 to $4; Germany $3 to $22; England $6 to $32; Netherlands $1 to $28; Antwerp $19 to $67.

Garden Notes

Hardy Plants for Clay Soils

By FLORA M. SAVILLE

Clay soils are slow to warm up in the spring, difficult to work when wet or too dry and they bake hard in hot dry weather. Another drawback to this type of soil is that the winter water level is often near the soil surface.

Many plants cannot take this combination but there are others that are not fazed by them. The Campanulas have some members of their family that do well in clay and they do well in sun or partial shade. The old fashioned Cup and Saucer plant or Cathedral Bells are Campanulas and still good for our gardens. They have tall spikes of bloom with cup shaped flowers. C. Carpatica grows only one foot tall with large blooms. This is fine for the border planted in groups, also at home in the rock garden. C. Glomerata, C. Rotundifolia and Basket Campanula are all good. This last one is especially fine for hanging baskets, window boxes or raised planters. The flower stems droop gracefully downwards. Campanulas are usually blue, either light or dark, but there are several good whites and some pinks.

DISAPPEAR IN WINTER

Platycodons are called Balloon Flowers since their unopened buds swell to a round ball-shape before unfolding to star-shaped blue flowers. Mark the spot as Platycodons completely disappear during the winter.

Another plant that does the disappearing act is the Oriental Poppy. They, too, should have their resting place marked. The new hybrids have lovely shades from deep red to pale pink, salmon and white. They send down long tap roots that seem to stand any soil condition.

Physostegia is a lovely pink-lavender shade has funnel-shaped blooms on spikes. These stand 30 inches tall. The plants look well all season. The new hybrids have much larger blooms than old types and these are fine for cutting, and specked as a robin's egg.

Many of the English perennial asters enjoy clay soils and have the height and color range is wide.

Astilbes were called herbaceous spireas for many years. Now we buy them under their real name, Astilbe. These have fine frothy blooms and fernlike foliage. Some good ones are A. Koblenz very deep pink, Peach Blossom pink, A. Bridal Veil creamy white, Red Sentinel red and the crimson Etna. Apply a light non-packing mulch to avoid having the root dry out as they are near the surface. The dwarf hybrids are good too in pinks, lavender and white.

HAVE LONG SEASON

The Sedums tolerate clay well too. The pale jade green of S. Spectabile forms a rounded mound that looks well all summer, and in late summer a froth of funny pink blooms appear and these too, look well for a long time. S. Dragons Blood spreads a mat of deep rust red that is attractive as an edging plant or as a rock garden plant. The Sedums have many interesting forms, all hardy and drought resistant.

Delphiniums and Lupines do well in clay too. The handsome Pacific hybrids are spectacular but not long lived. For years of bloom choose the less showy types such as Chinese Delphinium. These are three feet tall and bloom from late June to frost, dark blue, mid blue pale blue and white.

Aconitum, Monks Hood takes two to three years from seed to bloom size plants but they last for years. They are as showy as delphinium and make good companion plants. They require heavy soil and some light shade during the heat of the day. They may be planted among shrubery as they grow three feet tall. A. Napellus blooms July to October A. Wilsei (also known as Barkers variety) is one of the choicest perennials with large spikes of fine blue flowers suitable for cutting. Another good strain is the Fischeri Aconitum Massive spikes from August to September.

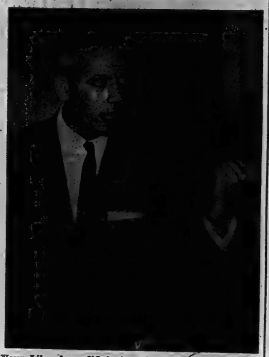
On Monday: Cast Your Vote For Your Future... Elect

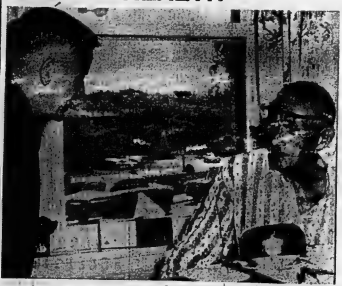
A SPEAKER



Robert Temple is a man well prepared to speak out on the floor of the House of Commons for the needs of Hastings South and Canada. His acceptance as a speaker by his party was confirmed when he was selected as the keynote speaker for the Liberal Party's coast-to-coast radio broadcasts during this election campaign. Bob Temple will give our riding a voice in Ottawa.

TWO LEADERS

Bob Temple and Mike Pearson are both leaders, each in his own right. The leader of the Liberal Party is well known as a leader of world opinion and in the fight against communism as well as a great parliamentarian. Hastings South's Bob Temple is acknowledged as a leader in Liberal circles. His views on education and on assistance for the farmer have been integrated as parts of the current Liberal Party's program.



A FIGHTER

Your Liberal candidate is not afraid to openly and publicly state his views in a forthright fashion. He did so at Melrose before the Farmers' Union on the political hot potato of vertical integration and the farmer's freedom. He is prepared to fight for the farmer on this issue and has stated his dedication in this respect. (Above picture was taken at this moment at Melrose).

The Liberal Stand for Tomorrow . . . Requires Active Representation

HEALTH

The Liberal health plan will provide free health care for children up to 16 years of age, most retired people, and the unemployed. Remaining Canadians will be fully covered except for a low annual cost. The plan will also provide for the expansion and improvement of hospital and medical facilities. Prescription drugs and children's dental care will be added to the plan also. Bob Temple explains details to Ward Farley in Trenton Memorial Hospital.

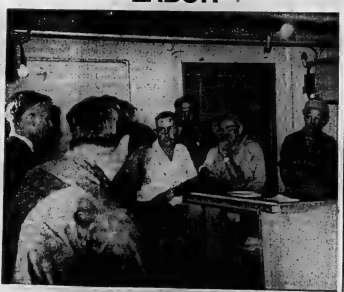
EDUCATION

The Liberals plan to invest in the youth of Canada by providing 10,000 four-year scholarships annually open to all students entering university. A student loan fund will also be established for students wishing to advance their education but held back because of financial reasons. An extension of family allowances will be made for students over 16 years of age. Public financing of universities will be improved. During a recent visit to Tyendinaga Bob Temple explains Liberals' concern for children's future.

PENSIONS

The present federal pension will be raised to $75. a month. Implement a national contributory pension which will provide a total pension income to up to almost $360 a month for married couples. People will be allowed to retire at 65 if they so choose. Pensions will be provided for disabled persons, widows and orphans. This will be worked out in conjunction with the provinces where necessary. Bob talks over some of the Liberals' plans to secure Canadians' future with Mrs. Ray Flowman of Bayside.

INDUSTRY



A Liberal government will provide tax incentives to new companies and to firms that expand especially to those in areas where new jobs are most needed and export business requires increased facilities. The Industrial Development Bank will be expanded to provide more Canadian capital for Canadian enterprises in both large and small industries. Similar policies will be extended to small businesses also. Robert Temple explains Liberals' plans to help Canadian industry to bring up Canada's productivity with local industrial workers.

AGRICULTURE

The Liberals advocate a policy of vigorous promotion of the sale of dairy products nationally and to use surpluses as aid to needy countries. Long-term financing will be provided for the establishment and development of farmers' co-operatives for processing or marketing. A framework will be provided for farmers to operate, if they wish, co-operatives and marketing boards on a national scale. Candidate Temple explains findings of his farm committee to Farley Vermilyea and notes Liberals' solutions for these problems.

LABOR

Liberalism believes in the rights of the individual. On the basis of this belief Liberals are opposed to compulsory arbitration and feel that conciliation procedures can be speeded up, without lessening freedom of negotiation, to better serve the individual. A Liberal Government will will also institute a federal labor code for industries under federal jurisdiction and for work done under federal contracts. Bob Temple talks over some of the issues facing Canadians today with a group of workers from Beaver Construction in Belleville.

Well Content, PM Departs For Home Riding

By RICHARD JACKSON

HAMILTON — Prime Minister Diefenbaker, emotionally called it "one of the great days" of the long campaign — and, well content, flew home to Prince Albert today, sure in heart and mind that Monday would bring the victory.

This city of steel, he found last night, had a heart of gold. It had given him "The Word" — the same word he had been hearing all across the country these past four weeks.

It rang in his ears all day, from Toronto to Welland on the Niagara border and back to Hamilton.

"We Want John" over and over again. Here in Hamilton it wasn't so much what was said, but how it was said. It rose from the mass and rattled the hotel suite windows, seven storeys high, in the Royal Connaught when a cheering crowd —and a horn-tooting traffic jam filled Main and King at the dinner hour. There was a band, and lights twinkled and cars plugged the twin Main and King streets eight lanes wide. And there was Hamilton Mayor Lister Ellen Fairclough, more than competent pitching in while, directing it all. The Prime Minister was supposed to be resting after a day full of campaigning, for the big evening rally. But he and his wife, Olive, handsome as ever in blue, came to the window, leaned out and waved until they went away.

The rally was big — 2,007 filled every seat in the Palace Theatre and another 500 stood in the aisles and it was lively; sparked by a Prime Minister very much "up" and enjoying it all and by some bright and good humored heckling. There was a picket line of some 20 unemployed waiting outside the theatre, carrying such signs as "John Not Soba" and "Grief With Diefe", and they gave the Prime Minister his only booing of the day. But the boos lacked conviction and accordingly the Prime Minister waved in acknowledgment.

Inside the theatre, Ellen Fairclough had brought enthusiasm to such a shimmer by the time the Prime Minister entered, that they greeted him, kicking off the rally by singing "Jolly Good Fellow," a rite customarily reserved for the closing ceremonies of such meetings.

WIDELY APPLAUDED

Them he interrupted the Prime Minister's speech — and it was one of those in which he said nothing — to say not-said before — with 57, by actual count, bursts of applause.

The hecklers interrupted too. They were only a tiny handful, but they were in good voice, and some of their lines weren't bad. Even the Prime Minister laughed.

"We all have a mission in life," the Prime Minister had said in discussing the challenge and opportunity for youth. "What's yours, heckler?"

"To throw you out of office," with a free country, my friend," shot back the Prime Minister. "You get your chance Monday."

Then, lampooning the Liberal battle cry, "Take a stand for Tomorrow", the Prime Minister suggested it might be better to "stand for today or, more or so "just plain, take a stand."

"You'll be sorry," yowled a heckler, "when we take a stand Monday."

The Prime Minister then spoke of flying back to Prime Albert to vote. "Don't get out there very early," he reported. "Haven't done much campaigning there."

Why, John?" bawled a heckler. "He doesn't have to," yelled secondly sits in reply, "That's the answer," laughed the Prime Minister, "that's the answer."

In his short speech he fought another near-diplomatic wound with Premier Khrushchev over that Soviet note, ticked off Liberal Leader Pearson and his eggheads and defended devaluation.

There was a second massive traffic jam when the Prime Minister left the theatre. A in curb-to-curb crowd was waiting for him, and police held back cars, truck and buses while he hand-shook his way down the block and across the street to the hotel.

The night's rally and the good day of campaigning swept him up to such a peak of enthusiasm that he broke his own self-imposed prohibition against election forecasts.

Ever since the long campaign started, he had been just a bit disdainful of what he called "prophesies," and had been exceedingly careful to make none. But rules, even self-imposed ones, were make to break — especially at times like last night. He had got "the feel" of the crowds. Things had been soaring ever since Vancouver and Monday's rally only blew about sweeping.

There was the sweet smell of victory in the air. "I'm not the gal wind, now, so he could come right out and say that then on Monday, "The Victory Will Be Ours". Earlier in the day, he had flown by train to Welland, there to campaign for Liberal candidate, John Pietz, and against Lou Marsh in neighboring Niagara Falls.

Miss Le Marsh, Liberal MP for Niagara Falls, had been drawn an orotorical beak on the Prime Minister, and roughing it on the handpicked fans in the house, because she was a woman, he let her have it right back. But on the stump things were a little different.

So he could get into Judy's country and talk about her opponent, Conservative Hamilton Mayor Douglas, rather pointedly as "A Lady."

From Hamilton, after noon, he had driven back across the Niagara fruit belt and around the Lake to Oakville for a short visit with friends and a brief rest. Then he had driven past 10 miles of manicured estates to the air-cooled Arena Inn on the lakeshore for a rally and dance-dock where tonight there's waiting under the stars to Louis Armstrong's trumpet and orchestra.

He had spoke about the campaign. Sixty days was "a long, long time", and he had 7000 miles of travel a long long way. The kind of campaigning in these days of air travel, fast cars and good highways, of widespread newspaper, press and electronics was just a little too much.

He wasn't too about aerial campaigning.

"You don't get to meet many of your fellow Canadians at 10,000 feet", he reported. So one of Parliament's earlier jobs would be to take a look at the business of campaigning and the changes that should be made. "The campaign ought to be shorter", was the way the Prime Minister felt about it. "The last eight weeks have been hard, but good, very very good . . . and a little too long".

Socred Leader Makes Plea for Fiscal Reform

ST. CATHARINES (CP) — The national leader of the Social Credit party added his active campaigning for Monday's election with some broadsides Friday night at the Conservative and Liberal parties.

Robert Thompson flew in Ontario for a one-day visit to the Niagara Peninsula, where party officials believe Social Credit has its best opportunity to elect a member from the provinces.

He joined Herbert Heggtveit, national secretary of the party and candidate in Lincoln riding, and other standard-bearers for a Thursday-night tour of communities in Lincoln and neighboring Welland constituencies before coming on to a final rally here.

Although visibly tired, he stepped out of character with his prepared speech and aimed at the campaign tactics of Prime Minister Diefenbaker and Liberal Leader Pearson, interspersed with a call for fiscal reform to help the ordinary man.

He asked whether the prime minister's "new look" government now "because he thought it could get votes." Similarly, he questioned Mr. Pearson's pronounced an increase in old-age pensions if he were to win votes ago to attract votes.

"The Liberals have done the same thing. Why? Because there are 900,000 old people in Canada who need help and politicians would like to have. It amounts to political bribery."

He said the purpose of the two major party leaders on television was to stage "John Not Sobs" and "Grief With Diefe", and they gave the Prime Minister his only booing of the day. But the boos lacked conviction and accordingly the Prime Minister waved in acknowledgment.

Inside the theatre, Ellen Fairclough had brought enthusiasm to such a shimmer by the time the Prime Minister entered, that they greeted him, kicking off the rally by singing "Jolly Good Fellow," a rite customarily reserved for the closing ceremonies of such meetings.

Douglas States Govt.'s Defeat 'Almost Certain'

REGINA (CP)—New Democratic Party Leader T. C. Douglas put the finishing touches on his national election campaign Friday night with a declaration that Monday's voting will produce "a political upset."

The former Saskatchewan CCF premier told an overflow audience of about 3,000 at a rally in his home riding that the Conservatives now are "almost certain to go down to defeat."

Earlier in a paid political telecast, he forecast there would be a change of government here Monday as the NDP playing "an important role" in the next Parliament. He did not estimate the number of seats the 208 NDP candidates would win.

Today, he was scheduled to put the finishing touches on his campaign speech ahead of his election in Regina constituency, where he has to overcome a strong Conservative challenge recorded in 1958.

Douglas drives 70 miles southeast to Weyburn to speak at a rally in support of NDP candidate Hazen Hansell, seeking to replace former CCF-NDP member Alex Nesbitt.

WILL ATTEND INQUIRY

Mr. Douglas, if, was used to reporting to the old Weyburn riding federally and also provincially, will be at a special Sunday afternoon at Fife Lake, about 60 miles south of Moose Jaw.

At Friday night's meeting he said he will attend because of cause of the size of the crowd, as he did Thursday at Vancouver.

He first mounted a soapbox in the same Regina public square before a crowd in the 2,200-seat Exhibition Auditorium's 1944 campaign. Two political persons stood along the walls and in the aisles listening.

Then he climbed onto a barrel in the adjoining stables section and, after a brief account to about 500 persons, who had gathered to hear his first address by loud-speaker relay.

The principal theme was the "almost certain" breakthrough Premier Woodrow Lloyd, members of his cabinet and provincial CCF members of the legislature.

Mr. Douglas said Prime Minister Diefenbaker's administration has been headed certain to go down to defeat as one of the most inept, inefficient and incompetent governments in Canadian history."

CRITICIZES PC RECORD

He said there was one of economic stagnation, record unemployment and depressed farm incomes.

The NDP chief criticized what he called the government's "slow but steady strangulation of the Canadian Broadcasting Corporation" and the "undermining" of Canada's national resources.

"The Diefenbaker administration has steadily whittled away the power, prestige and the potential for public service of the CBC."

He charged that the government's surrender to pressure from the Canadian Pacific Railway to introduce a privately-owned transcontinental routes has resulted in both Trans-Canada Air Lines and Canadian Pacific Airlines running deficits.

The NDP defence of his party's medical care platform and the program due to come into force in Saskatchewan July 1 that drew the loudest and longest prolonged applause of the evening.

Mr. Douglas said one of "the most impudent acts of political intimidation" he had ever seen was the Liberal party's campaign in Saskatchewan.

"A small group of doctors, well known as supporters of the Liberal party, joined hands with Premier Ross Thatcher and Liberal Leader Ross Thatcher and are trying to rid the people they are concerned with the doctor-patient relationship."

The NDP leader arrived earlier in the day from Winnipeg. He was driven in a motorcade from the airport to a downtown committee room — avoiding on the way another motorcade organized in protest against the provincial health care plan.

Millions Paid To Prop Dollar Says Pearson

By ARCH McKENZIE

BRANTFORD (CP) — Hundreds of millions of dollars have been paid from the exchange fund in the last two weeks to prop up the Canadian dollar, Liberal Leader Pearson said Friday night.

"And this in the midst of a financial crisis," he told a crowd of more than 8,000 here at his final rally before Monday's federal election.

He said the government is resorting tight money with higher interest rates and there exists a "crisis that will explode into further devaluation unless the government is changed."

He accused the Progressive Conservative government of copying its words from Russian economic ones.

Soviet Premier Khrushchev had said "we will bury you." Mr. Pearson told the outdoor rally the congregated in Victoria Park.

MUST BUILD STRENGTH

It was important to build up free trade between provinces and unity, yet the governmenol opposed Britain's entry into the European Common Market and United States attempts to liberalize trade.

It was a colorful climax to the campaign that Mr. Pearson began April 9 in Prince Edward town. Free soft drinks flowed and thousands of youngsters who attended.

There were four separate bands, including the Canadian Six Nations Indian reservation.

Mr. and Mrs. Pearson arrived standing on the motorized farm wagon drawn by two horses that cut up every time the 1 p.m. gun on the citadel blasted.

Mrs. Pearson was lifted bodily from the wagon. Representatives of more than 10 constituencies were on hand to hear the speech delivered from the steps of the public library.

The rally followed a visit earlier in the day by Mr. Pearson with his mother in Toronto and then calls at London, Woodstock and Paris.

From here he motored to Hamilton to fly to Ottawa where he will visit various points today.

Woodstock, Mr. Pearson said President Kennedy and Mr. Khrushchev won't decide the fate of Berlin without Prime Minister Diefenbaker had injected himself into the campaign.

HAVE OF REFLECTION

He sounded the same note here but his main emphasis was on the fact that "additional United States dollars and of gold have been depleted further in the last few days as a result of a run on the Canadian dollar, now at 92.5 American cents as of May 3.

He repeated his assertion that the devaluation was "a case of panic" and followed the use of $600,000,000 in last October to attempt to keep the dollar at a 95-cent level.

The Canadian public because people were exchanging Canadian dollars for other currencies.

There were newspaper reports last week that Bank of Canada might have used substantial amounts of the $2,000,000,000 to counter the run on the dollar.

"We don't know how many," Mr. Pearson said but it will be "hundreds of millions."

PAY IS REFLECTED

The result of devaluation and tighter money is going to be paid for by the Canadian—paid for in the stores, he said.

Mr. Pearson said the latest unemployment figures had been "rushed out" before the election and showed a drop of 100,000 jobless in May compared with April. The total of 325,000 unemployed was still twice the total in the corresponding month of the last year of Liberal government.

It was a "cruel hoax" for election purposes to claim that unemployment was licked. All the experts were saying that the current economic activity would tail off by autumn.

MADOC JUNCTION

Eggleton Cemetery Gets Clean-Up

MADOC JUNCTION — The annual "bee" for the Eggleton Church Cemetery was held last Wednesday with a good number present.

The men folk of the community, also several interested persons who have family plots here, gathered with power lawn mowers and other tools.

During the morning the grass was cut and trimmed.

At the noon hour, members of the Eggleton UCW served a bountiful dinner on the church grounds, with friends in attendance from Stirling, West Huntingdon, Mount Pleasant, Tweed, Royal Oak, Mitch., Belleville, Elzgrton, and Carmel. The pupils from the school also enjoyed the dinner.

During the afternoon the men returned to the cemetery where they erected a new fence across the front, replaced posts and repaired parts of the other three sides. The fences and new posts are to be painted at a later date.

Proceeds from the dinner were most gratifying and a few dollars grew to substantial amount toward the cemetery fund.

Much credit is due those who have taken such an interest in the appearance of the cemetery grounds on the hill.

BROADWAY ACTORS — Scottish-born Douglas Campbell and Frederic March perform in a scene from the Broadway play Gideon, which closed after a six-month run. When the play, a biblical story of battles between Philistines and Israelites, first opened Campbell was in the title role. He switched to the role of God when March left the cast. Campbell says there is little chance for success on Broadway of a legitimate serious play. (CP Newsmap)

Commercialism Is Killing Broadway Theatre Claim by Scottish Actor, D. Campbell

By Joseph MacSween

NEW YORK (CP)—Broadway theatre has become a "fun fair" for people seeking a good time, says Douglas Campbell, the Scottish actor who now makes Canada his home.

Campbell's words were, in a way, an epilogue for Paddy Chayefsky's Gideon which closed after a six - month run because it was going at the box office despite critical triumph.

Commercialism is killing Broadway theatre, said the Glasgow-born star, adding that he hopes the same will not happen in Canada.

"Although Canada doesn't have a large theatre, what has been started in Stratford, Ont., is a cultural even that can establish a tradition for the whole country," he declared.

"So far the United States has not been able to do this. In this sense, Canada is ahead. Stratford is viewed as an international event and people everywhere know about it."

Campbell's feeling is that salesmanship has brought to Broadway an attitude of carnival so that garish isolated captions, serious plays — far more absorbing than the fluffy kind — haven't got a chance.

MONEY TALKS

"The critics are not producing what they want to create but what they think they can sell." Such things as 'party' bookings tended toward disastrous standards.

Chayefsky also has spoken of Broadway's "economic futility," saying the famed street is "okay for musicals, but you just can't afford to put a legitimate, serious play on there any more."

Campbell and his wife, Ann Casson will appear next in The Goodsellers, opening in Stratford July 6. Tom, 10, one of their four children, will be a page in the same production.

In Gideon, biblical story of a battle between the Hebrews and the Medianites, Campbell performed a rare Boadway tour de force by switching from the give title role to that of God after time, says Douglas Campbell, Frederic March left the play. the play before I ascended into the heaven," said Campbell as he wiped sway makeup in his dressing room after a final performance.

"No, you can be sure I have no urge to to slip into the role of the Almighty away from the theatre. I'm one of his lowliest subjects."

GOOD REVIEWS

Campbell received critical acclaim in both roles and he admitted that this gave him — in his first Broadway appearance —a considerable lift, but "that doesn't mean I consider Broadway the greatest thing since the invention of white bread."

The system in which an actor performs the same part night after night seems wrong to Campbell, who prefers instead the idea of reperiory theatre, in which roles vary and other members of the cast — not only the star — have a chance to show their stuff.

A company, for instance, could start a Chayefsky repertory and alternate the author's three plays.

"This would give the actors new experience and attract varying audiences. Audiences could go to see what one man's view of sin is, Shakespeare is the only one now getting the full treatment."

Campbell moved to Stratford —now his home — in 1953 with Tyrone Guthrie and Alec Guinness to start the Shakespearean Festival and he subsequently founded the Canadian Players as actor-manager-director.

MAY DIRECT

After the forthcoming Stratford appearances, he may direct a play on Broadway next fall and he also will join Guthrie in a new theatre project in Minneapolis — presenting classical repertory.

The red - haired actor approaches theatre with obvious dedication but has some pungent opinions to offer over other matters, including the ban-the-bomb movement of which he is a vigorous supporter.

"This is something we've brought on our own bloody heads, but there's no excuse for inflicting it on the kiddies and on future generations who have a right to make up their own minds," he declared.

As God, Campbell used his powerful voice with stirring effect but actress found him a more patient and kindly deity than that portrayed by March, who sometimes frightened old ladies.

Campbell's switch from Gideon to God was amusingly appropriate in terms of the play, which ends with the character Gideon turning from belief in God to belief in man's right to aspire.

After Gideon walks off wearing God's gold mantle, the aspect of the lord muses:

"Well, let them den my gold ephod

"And let him be proper God

"Well, let him try it, anyway . . . "

Gubbins climbed right back into the saddle in the third and came through with the upset winner of the day, Most Impressive, which paid an eye-popping $109.

His last winner, Pepit in the eighth, paid $7.

In the featured sixth race Landon Farms' House Boy took the lead from the start of the 6½-furlong dash, finishing 2¼ lengths in front of Warfield, and paid $15.60.

Jerome Ties Record for 220 Dash

EUGENE, Ore. (AP)—Harry Jerome of Vancouver, running for Oregon, tied the U.S. National Collegiate Athletic Association record for the 220-yard dash Friday with a timing of 20.7 seconds.

Jerome's effort came in the second heat of the 220 quarter-finals at the annual U.S. collegiate track and field meet. The record was set by Ed Collymore of Villanova in 1958. Later Jerome tied the mark again in the semi-finals.

Shotputter Dallas Long of Southern California tossed the shot 64 feet, seven inches, to better his own NCAA record of 63.3¼ set last year.

Another NCAA record was tied when Frank Budd of Villanova ran the 440-yard dash in 45 seconds in the preliminaries. Budd ran third to Jerome in the second heat of the 220.

Jerome was first in his heat in the 100 with a time of 9.5 seconds.

The finals of the meet were to be held today.

Two Canadians survived the 880-yard quarter - finals. They were Sig Ohlemann of Vancouver, who ran first in the third heat with a time of 1:49.8, and Ergas Leps of Toronto, first in the fourth heat in 1:52.8. Ohlemann competed for Oregon and Leps for Michigan.

Ohlemann qualified with a second place in the second heat of the semi-finals with a time of 1:50.6. Leps failed to qualify.

Dave Steen of Burnaby, B.C., another Oregon athlete, finished fifth among the seven qualifiers in the shotput. His distance was 58 feet, three-quarters of an inch.

"JUNGLE FIGHTERS"
Starts Monday

"Jungle Fighters" (formerly "The Long and the Short and the Tall"), the long-awaited film production by Sir Michael Belcon of the controversial Willis Hall play which took London theatre-goers by storm, will have its local premiere here Monday at the Park Theatre for its first showings. Laurence Harvey, Richard Todd and Richard Harris are starred.

"The Long and the Short and the Tall" is the story of a patrol of British enlisted men, young untrained soldiers who are cut off behind the Japanese lines during the cruel Far Eastern campaign of World War II.

But it is not conventional stiff-upper-lip tale. Here are men fighting suddenly into close proximity—under the strain of jungle warefare. Men of completely contrasted character and outlook who are embittered by the futility of a battle in which their actions seem to count for nothing. Men cracking in an atmosphere of heat, dirt, disease, and the incessant threat of sudden Japanese attack.

Willis Hall's keen-edged dialogue expertly probes beneath the surface of these men; their hopes,fears, petty hatreds and final disillusion. Wolf Mankowitz has written a script from Hall's play which throbs with the stark tension of men in predicament.

Harvey, Todd and Harris are supported by a fine cast in this explosive story. The main feature roles are taken by David McCallum, Ronald Fraser, John Mellen, John Ross and Kenji Takaki — recreating the roles of a captured Japanese soldier which he played on the London stage.

On the same program Sophia Loren (best actress of the year) stars in "Girls Marked Danger".

'Adios' Sets Track Record

BUFFALO, N.Y. (AP) — Henry T. Adios, the 3-to-2 favorite, streaked a 1:59 4-5 mile at Buffalo Raceway Friday night to win the sixth race in the Harness Tracks of America (HTA) pacing series and set a track record. Shadydale Hanover was second and Mighty Tide third.

By BOB THOMAS

HOLLYWOOD (AP)—"If they thought they were getting Paul Drake, they were mistaken. Because what they got was me, nobody else."

William Hopper was talking about the producers of Perry Mason and his career role in it. And he was talking like Bill Hopper — or Paul Drake, take your choice — frankly and businesslike.

"Paul Drake in the Erle Stanley Gardner books was an entirely different character," he remarked. "I play him my way. Now I'm amused to read Gardner's new books. Paul Drake now comes out like me!"

Many an actor would chafe at playing second banana in a television series, Not Hopper.

"I couldn't be more pleased," he said. "I tested for the Perry Mason role. I got it, and it was the best thing that ever happened to me.

IS DEDICATED

"Why? Because I've seen what it has done to Ray Burr. The poor guy has had to dedicate his life to Perry Mason. I remember in the first two years, he used to stay up until midnight every night to work out changes that would improve the script.

"Even now he must live at the studio while we're working. He has no outside life whatsoever. He has a beautiful house at the beach, but he never sees it. Luckily, he is the kind of guy who enjoys his activity. If he has nothing to do for three weeks, he ends up in the hospital."

Bill comes by his acting naturally. His father was the noted actor Dewolf Hopper. His mother was columnist Hedda Hopper, also acted.

FAMILY TALENT

Igor Stravinsky, Russian composer and conductor, had early music training from Rimsky-Kosher, leading bass of the St. Petersburg Opera.

RARE, MEDIUM, WELL-DONE

By Geo. H. Carver, Sports Editor

Wren Blair, resting from what is believed to be a National Hockey League knockout punch to the jaw of the Eastern Professional Hockey League, has recovered and countered with a jab that may or may not call for a recount.

The National Hockey League majority in a 4-3 decision voted against the future financial backing of EPL clubs. Only Kingston and Hull-Ottawa voted "yes."

Blair has dreamed up a smaller economy size Eastern Pro League which embraces four of the NHL clubs, and you don't have to make two guesses as to their identity.

He has sent a brief of his idea to owners and general managers of the four clubs. The new "Blair League" would include Kingston, Hull-Ottawa, Sudbury, North Bay and Syracuse, N.Y. Each team would be limited to 14 players and no players over 23. August 1st, would be allowed to play.

The idea is good in one sense, that it would provide a pasture field for over-age junior "A" colts who have been given the by-by by NHL scouts and who could improve with experience. Actually the league would be a "Junior A" set-up under a professional blanket.

Blair tries to avoid any "packing" with his suggestion that players from each of the four organizations would be pooled and balanced teams picked at the start of the season.

But there is the gimmick that might toss his idea clean out the hockey window. He suggests the four NHL teams mentioned give the league full financial backing. Isn't that what Chicago and New York voted against in the death poll of the Eastern Pro League?

The gate receipts, according to the Blairian plan, would be pooled so that no one organization enjoys a profit while others lave in red ink. He says the four sponsoring clubs would take an equal share of the responsibility.

Financially, Blair takes last year's EPL net income, not counting Kitchener and the Soo, of $395,-$2147, adds an estimated $100,000 from newcomer Syracuse, $27,000 for overall program advertising, pre-season exhibition games with NHL squads, $15,000 and arrives at a total of $537,821.41.

Blair's new budget ($105,850 for each club,) with incidentals would take only, he says, $529,250 to operate. He says drawing as poorly as the club did last year, this would mean the new circuit would finish in the red.

But, he goes on, money would be saved by carrying only fourteen players per team as compared with 17 or 18 last season. The fact that all players would be under 23 years of age would mean salaries would be lower. The old experienced pros, Blair says, are the expensive players. He might get a surprise in this department.

Blair will plead for the support and acceptance of his brief on the grounds that "young players, bantams, midgets, etc., minus what they see. If there is good hockey in their cities such as this proposal will provide, we will encourage more Ontario youths to play the game because of what they see."

It's a good pitch. But I haven't noticed any decline in minor hockey in the province in communities where no upper-brackets teams were playing. In fact the OHA reported a record season last year. Thousands of Ontario kids never see or have never seen a pro game. And it hasn't made any change in their natural urge to play hockey.

I don't agree with Blair when he says, "if hockey dies in the cities there will seriously cripple enthusiasm for the game throughout this productive province." Eastern pro or no Eastern pro, the youngers from Broken Tooth, Crippple Creek and other hinterland communities will be out in their usual strength and with equal enthusiasm in their quests for minor hockey titles.

Blair is reported to have the blessing of NHL president Clarence Campbell ("It's a good idea") and Lynn Patrick ("he's behind it".) But he needs above everything the "blessing" and what have you of a guy named Joe Fan. However the Eastern Pro League will probably deal with the suggestion at its "death-or-survival" meeting in Ottawa next Tuesday.

BASSETT BEATEN

TORONTO (CP) — Davis Cup playing captain Don Fontana, John Swann, Frank Mott-Tville and Don Flatt, all of Toronto, reached the semi-finals Friday in the Toronto Cricket, Skating and Curling Club ranking tennis tournament in a meeting of former Davis Cuppers. Swann-Mott-Tville eliminated John Bassett of Toronto 10-8, 6-1.

ROBBED OF RECORD

HELSINKI, Finland (AP) — Pentti Nikula, 22-year-old Finnish vaulter, cleared the world record height of 16.2 Friday but a pit attendant caught his pole and the jump will not be recorded. Nikula's record-shattering pole would have fetched him into the pit, possibly dislodging the bar, if the attendant had not grabbed it.

Indians Blank Yanks, Twins Beaten

Bombers Drop Four In Five

By JIM BECKER
Associated Press Sports Writer

When Ralph Houk was in the United States Army things were never like this.

The New York Yankee manager was a Major in the Second World War. He got few, if any, weekend passes to play baseball and privates never gave him any trouble.

But things are different now. There are plenty of weekend passes going around.

Private Jim (Mudcat) Grant got one of them and took the opportunity to shut out Houks Yankees 3-0 for Cleveland Indians Friday night. Grant became the first Cleveland pitcher to set the Yankees down without a run since Early Wynn did it June 8, 1957.

It was the fourth loss for the Yankees in five games. They have scored only eight runs over that stretch.

Minnesota Twins, with a chance to take over the American League lead, dropped a 6-1 decision to Kansas City Athletics. Los Angeles Angels lost 7-6 to Chicago White Sox. Detroit Tigers were handed 2-0 by Boston Red Sox, and Baltimore Orioles whipped Washington Senators 5-4.

YANKS HOLD LEAD

The Yankees still have a lead of one percentage point over Minnesota, with Cleveland three percentage points back.

Houk said before the game that the Indians that Grant "always seems to get a pass when those guys are playing us." Grant's seventh victory in win over the Yankees this season and third in five tilts.

The Yankees have beaten him once.

A crowd of 42,422, largest of the year in Cleveland, roared when rookie Al Lopez banged his two-run homer in the sixth inning to break up a scoreless duel between Grant and Ralph Terry, who had shut out the Indians the last 16 innings he faced them to that point. Ty Cline, another rookie, marked his 23rd birthday with a run-scoring single in the eighth. Grants record moved to 4-1, Terry's 7-6.

Camilo Pascual, leading Minnesota pitcher, lost his third straight game to Kansas City. The Athletics tagging him for two runs in the second inning on triples by Norm Siebern and Ed Charles and a double by Gino Cimoli and knocked him out in the fourth with four more, with Joe Astroz two-run double the big blow.

The loss dropped Pascual 5-4 on the year, but he is only 1-3 against the Athletics. Bud Walker (7-4) won for Kansas City with help from Ed Rakow. Walker struck out Rocky Colavito and then Floyd Robinson tripled them both home. Reliever Don Mossi gave Ken Hamlin and Roger Kemmerer (3-4) got the win with Terry (3-5) the loser. The early lead in a bid quest for his 266th major league victory. Boston right-hander Don Lee, in trouble all the way, fashioned the shutout against the slumping Tigers, who left 11 men on base.

The Red Sox bushed over two runs in the first inning on three singles and an error off Don Mossi (6-6) and got an insurance run in the ninth. Conley (6-6) beat the Tigers for the third straight time.

Milt Pappas (7-3) scattered eight Washington hits and belted his fourth home run of the season. Baltimore got five runs off Don Rudolph (3-2) in five innings and added three more in the seventh. Jackie Brandt also homered for Baltimore. Dick Hicks and Chuck Hinton hit homers for the Senators.

Race Winner Draws Fine Of $1,000

INDIANAPOLIS (AP) — A. J. Foyt, winner of the 100-mile Milwaukee race last Sunday, was fined $1,000 by the United States Auto Club Friday for an incident following the race.

Henry Banks, USAC director of competition, also issued a "severe reprimand" to the 28-year-old Houston, Tex., driver in the Milwaukee race while the yellow caution flag was out.

Foyt, driving a Watson Special Artz., drew the heaviest fine—$100, Jim Hurtubise and Shorty Templeman were fined $75 each. Fines of $50 apiece were levied against Rodger Ward, Parnelli Jones, Don Davis, Rodger Dunan, Bob Veith, Bud Tingelstad and Johnny Mauro. Len Sutton was assessed $35.

Littler Drops Back

Palmer, Rosburg Lead In 'Open'

By DON WEISS

OAKMONT, Pa. (AP) — Arnold Palmer gets up at dawn today, hops into his car and drives 40 miles to work.

By dusk he may have barged through another heavy day job at the office—and be winning the United States open golf championship for the second time in three years and earning $15,000.

Palmer, 1962 Masters champion, shared the open lead with paunchy Bob Rosburg going into the final 36 holes today.

Each had a total of 139—fashioned when Palmer blazed over the 6,364-yard Oakmont Country Club course Friday with a three-under-par 66 and Rosburg added a 69 to the 70 he fired Thursday.

Behind them were Billy Maxwell at 141, Jack Nicklaus, Gary Player and Bob Nichols at 142, and defending champion Gene Littler and Mike Souchak Jr. at 143.

Palmer, who lives at nearby Latrobe, has a great position to capture the 72-hole event.

TWO CANUCKS SURVIVE

Two of the three Canadians in the field survived the 150 mark to make the cut. Stan Leonard of Vancouver had a two-over-par 73 Friday for 145 and Al Balding of Toronto had a 77 for 150. Adrian Rigras of Montreal was cut after he soared to an 80 for 154.

Palmer and Rosburg zoomed past Littler Friday to grab the lead. Littler lost his putting touch and ballooned to a 73.

Hitting the ball superbly from tee to green, Littler ran into frustration on Oakmont's massive, lumpy-bedded greens. He three putted the first hole, rolled on birdie putts of 40 to 45 feet and hit a climax of futility when he dubbed an easy two-footer for a one-over-par six on the 396-yard 12th.

SHOULDERS SAG

Littler's face seemed to pale and his shoulders sagged when the ball lipped the cup and veered away. Until then he had knocked in 10 straight pars but didn't have it in him to go the round.

Palmer, determined to add the U.S. and British opens and the U.S. PGA to his 1962 triumphs, made a strong early move with his impressive second round.

He didn't drive as well as on Thursday, when he failed to reach the green in two, but made up for this with sharper work around the greens.

Sports Snapshots

Eighteen months ago Yvon Durelle vowed he would never return to boxing. "I'll never be that hard up," said the cracky-voiced Canadian and former British Empire light - heavyweight champion.

He was already hard up when he fought Archie Moore at his home town of Bale Ste. Anne, N.B. People had heard this sort of thing from other fighters over the years.

They came from men who collected their last big purse and then slipped into the ranks of the has-beens, almost penniless fighter. Fans felt sorry for them, but they didn't knock their brains out in the ring to see these chaps trying to make comebacks.

With this background, it wasn't surprising the other day when Durelle announced in Calgary that he would return to fighting. He is living in a couple of bouts in Western Canada in July and then he hopes to get a crack at Moore.

WAS CROWD-PLEASER.

Maybe someone should stop him, but I don't think boxers would have licked their chops over Durelle's quick announcement a couple of years ago when he was quite a name in Canadian boxing circles. He was a crowd - pleaser but his four careers — ending fights for him on the canvas, on pants, a badly beaten man.

His last fight was in Moncton, N.B., against Paul Wright, an unknown from Saint John, N.J. the Moncton boxing and wrestling commission immediately barred Wright from fighting in that city again.

The battle scarred French-Canadian became known nationally in 1957 when he beat highly - touted Percy Anthony in Detroit. A year later he earned about $60,000 from six fights, including $15,000 for his first battle with champion Archie Moore.

He had floored the champ several times and was within minutes of winning the title when Archie tagged him with a knockout punch in the 11th round. In 1959 his purses totalled about $18,000 from a return match with Moore when he knocked out in the third round, and a losing bout with Toronto heavyweight Tommy Chuvalo.

LOST EVERYTHING

Chuvalo, a journeyman battler, put him on a fancy beating and Durelle then announced his retirement, which didn't stick. His next was a loss to Jimmy Wright.

Then things really went wrong for the 33 - year - old fighter-fisherman. He sold his car, a fishing boat and his speedboat.

He owed an $8 - a - day job with the New Brunswick department of lands and mines when he quit to fight. He was fined $33 for failing to file a 1959 income tax return and almost went to jail but managed to borrow $100 to pay the fine and Canada Packers presents for his family.

"I knew I probably spent a lot of money foolishly," he told Eddie St. Pierre of the Moncton Times - Transcript. "I just kept some car companies in business."

Cards Grease Skids Under Giants

By JIM HACKLEMAN
Associated Press Sports Writer

Charlie James of St. Louis Cardinals would love to bat against Billy ODell of San Francisco Giants all the time.

Come to think of it, the Cardinals probably wouldn't mind playing their National League schedule strictly against the Giants.

James and the resurging Cardinals knocked the fallering Giants and southpaw O'Dell 5-3 Friday night, thanks to victories in the last 11 games in the last 11 starts for San Francisco. The Cards have beaten the Giants six times in a row after dropping four of their first five games against them.

James got the Cards off winging with a three-run homer in the first inning, later whacked O'Dell for a pair of singles, stole a base and scored another run. It gave the St. Louis outfielder seven hits in 13 trips to the plate and six runs batted in against the Giant lefty this season.

Jim Golden of Houston Colts pitched a five-hit 3-0 victory over Los Angeles Dodgers, whose lead over the Giants remained at two games.

Pittsburgh Pirates won their seventh straight battle, setting up for seven runs in the eighth inning by relief pitcher Milwaukee Braves 8-4. Philadelphia Phillies mounted a 10-run barrage in the third inning to defeat and scored Cincinnati Reds 13-8 and Chicago Cubs trimmed New York Mets 5-4.

Even the return to home in Candlestick Park, where they have won at an .800 clip this year, didn't help the Giants. James hit his first homer of the season after Breathless Mahomes by Curt Flood and Fred Whitfield knocked in all the Cardinal pitcher Ray Sadecki scored.

San Francisco got seven hits and six walks off Sadecki but could score only in the third inning, when Orlando Cepeda's single and Felipe Alou's double knocked in runs.

Cepeda was hurt trying to score on Alou's hit and left the game with a thigh injury after colliding with Cardinal catcher Gene Oliver.

James is batting only .277 against the rest of the league's pitchers, but his hit at .583 mark against O'Dell raises his overall average to .321.

Golden, a right hander given only a 3-2 chance to beat Colts in last fall's expansion draft, scattered five hits, one of them singles, did not allow a walk and faced only 31 men.

Ron Perranoski gave Dodgers Norm Larker and Bob Lillis, Golden, Larker singled in a run in the first inning against Don Drysdale, going for his 11th victory of the season, and Lillis tripled and scored on Cold Al Spangler's double in the eighth. It was the fourth loss in seven games for the Dodgers, who overcame a six-run count in a rally keyed by Roberto Clemente's grand-slam homer and Dick Groat's clinching single. Held to three hits by Tony Cloninger going into the eighth inning, the Pirates bunched Clemente's big hit, an infield single and two walks against an assortment of Milwaukee pitchers.

Hank Aaron did most of Milwaukee's slugging with a baseload homer, three singles and five runs batted in. Jack Lamabe was the winning pitcher and Don Nottebart lost.

The Phillies' 10-run third inning was highlighted by Roy Sievers' grand-slam homer and a single. Fifteen Phils batted against Jim Maloney and Johnny Klippstein.

Even with a 12-0 bulge, winner Art Mahaffey failed to finish. He was rapped for five unearned runs in the fifth inning and was lifted for Christ Short in the ninth when the Reds scored three more. Tony Gonzalez had two, Cubs runs off loser Roger Craig with a single in the fifth and Ernie Banks socked his 28th homer of the season, against Craig in the sixth frame.

Atlanta Shades Leafs 5-4

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Most baseball players are content to get the winning hit or make the key fielding play, but not Atlanta's Chuck Hiller. He turned out to be a one-man gang against Toronto in a 5-4 Cracker victory in the International League Friday night.

Shannon hit his first home run of the year to give Atlanta a 5-1 lead in the fifth but Toronto rallied for three in the sixth. Then in the eighth with Neil Chrisley first and none out, Rocky Nelson lined a single to f i e l d Hiller. Shannon perfect throw to third caught Crisley and after that reliever Bob Dallke struck out Ken Aspromonte and Clay Dalrymple.

In other games, Richmond bunched nine runs in the second inning and went on to rout four Syracuse pitchers 13-3. Rochester Red Wings came from behind to beat Columbus 7-6, and Billy Smith won his seventh for Buffalo, blanking league-leading Jacksonville 5-0.

SCORES ON DOUBLE

Earlier Shannon had singled and scored on Hiller's homer in two-run double.

Jim Rowland allowed four hits over the first two innings then blanked Syracuse the rest of the way. Richmond's rally ended an eight - game losing streak, sent 11 men to the plate in the big second inning. Bob Hale had four hits and a sacrifice fly for the Braves, Ed Sauer the Vees.

Rochester spotted Columbus three runs in the first on Bob Saverine's homer then stormed back. Cal Ripken's grand slam homer and second in as many nights was the deciding blow for the Red Wings.

Smith permitting no runner past second as Buffalo chopped a full game off Jacksonville's league lead. The southpaw blanked the Jets on seven hits, fanned nine and walked two in completing his seventh game.

Minor Baseball

The Braves scored nine runs in the first inning and never looked back last night as they defeated the Indians 22-5 in Peewee baseball fixture at the Alemite Field.

The winners scored at least one run in every inning while pounding out 18 hits.

Indians had five hits and scored in the sixth inning to end the last inning.

14 Start In Queen's Plate

"Flaming Page" Favorite

By JACK SULLIVAN
Canadian Press Sports Editor

TORONTO (CP) — It's about a 75-yard walk from the clubhouse to the horseshoe-shaped winner's enclosure at Woodbine racetrack and the odds were swinging towards E. P. Taylor making it a most rewarding one running of the Queen's Plate. This is an old story for Taylor.

The multi-millionaire Toronto industrialist-sportsman has a petrified it six times in the last 13 years to accept the Queen's gift of 50 guineas, a $5,000 gold cup and some walking-around money, such as cheques for up to $30,000. He has dominated the Canadian racing scene since 1940 and there's no sign of a change.

Fourteen horses are expected to prance on to the track at about 6:04 p.m. tonight, with the Queen Mother and about 30,000 citizens and visitors from the stands, Thousands others will watch on the CBC's national television network.

Chopperion and the filly Flaming Page will carry the Taylor colors and the morning-line has made the Taylor entry 5-to-2 favorite, but a lot might change from early in the week when the odds-makers were reluctant to name a choice.

BRED FOUR MORE

But the Queen can't argue with success, and that's a commodity Taylor owns. Since 1940 Taylor has been the breeder of four other horses which won the Queen's Plate — Radiac — foaled three-year-olds.

The Taylor influence is dominant in both races.

Three other nominees were bred by the 72-year-old president of the Jockey Club and one—the expensive King Gorm who cost $35,000 at the yearling sales conducted by Taylor, now is owned by Mrs. J. J. Boylen, wife of Toronto determining magnate Jim Boylen.

The other is Ken Kenarch Park, bought for $15,000 by Harry Addison and Gordon Hall of Toronto and Buffalo Jewels bought by Col. K. R. Marshall, chairman of the Jockey Club, who won the plate in 1961 with Blue Light, another Taylor-bred horse.

The plate picture was clouded somewhat in the two-division trials at Long Meadow when the longshot Reckless Nick crossed home in front but with King Gorm third behind Flaming Page in another longshot. In the other two division, Peter's Chop beat Chopperion.

The stewards have been wondering whether these victories in trials whether Chopperion, King Gorm and Peter's highly - favored Sun Day — rightly place finisher in one division — were non-muddlers.

FORECAST—SUNNY

The long-range forecast may have had something to do with the experts climbing on the Flaming Page bandwagon. It called for sunny and warm weather, 70 to 80 degrees.

In 1961 Chopperion won Canada's richest two - year - old race, the $35,000 Coronation Futurity. Then he was shipped to Kentucky where he failed to be been trained by Horatio Luro, who piloted Decidedly, winner of this year's Kentucky Derby.

Flaming Page also was shipped to the U.S. last fall and returned just a week ago to win the $60,000 Canadian Oaks. Canada's richest race for fillies. He also was trained by Luro and finished second to Cicala in the Kentucky Oaks.

Ring Gimmick Backfires

'Mr Kleen' Nips 'Bulldog'

By GEO. H. CARVER
Sports Editor

Now, all together, kiddies! "Mr. Kleen, Mr. Kleen," wasn't scared for just a minute. He cleaned the ring of "Bulldog", not bothering to be in it".

That's about it. The ferocious Dick "Bulldog" Brower met his match here last night in the television commercial wrestler and retired, tail between legs, with his first local defeat.

The "Bulldog" deprived of a favorite gimmick, ring turnbuckle, turned to another foeman-writer, that of trying to move the ring by using the opposition's head as a battering ram from an outside corner of ten feet.

But "Mr. Kleen" had other ideas. The pair had split the first two falls and the bald-pated wrestler was getting the worst of a terrific "Bulldog" onslaught. He was tossed out of the ring and while "Bulldog" followed, ready for the kill.

Brower posed "Kleen" for the battering ram tactic and "Bulldog" rushed. But "Kleen" the bald pate aimed for the ring boards when it happened ed.

"Mr. Kleen" twisted out of the hold and "Bulldog" was crushed into the ringside with his midriff. He rolled on the arena floor with "Kleen" climbing back into the ring. Referee Tiger Thakor tolled the count and finished before the "Dog" could crawl back. That was it.

"Kleen" came off the ropes with solid body smashes to the jaw as the "Bulldog" in the first fame the "Bulldog" in the first fame. The match while almost took the second but missed a smash and went down under terrific punishment. Then the "Bulldog" crashed down on him from the top ring rope — and that was it.

The blonde Stanlee Brothers Stan and Stanley Bob put on on a colorful biddy-buddy brother act against "Haystack" Muldoon and Jay Gordon. The bout ended in a 45-minute one-limit draw.

The strutting Stanlees who sought self-sympathy after each setback more than after their match in the agile Gordon and the ponderous but effective "Haystack". We have seen better tag-team matches here.

In the preliminary Billy "Red" Lyons won over George Kosti after 18 minutes of spirited wrestling.

Yank, Welshman In Final

HOYLAKE, England (CP) — Richard Boone (Boone) Davies, an American, and John Povall, a Welshman, shoot it out today for the British amateur golf championship.

Their appearance in the final is a surprise. More famous golfers in the field fell by the way.

Davies, 31 - year - old Pasadena, Calif., real estate man, not Povall, a salesman of women's shoes and handbags, recognized golfer visually as golfers of international class. But after this tournament they will both have their place in the upper strata of the game.

Davies is a muscular player who stands five feet two inches and weighs 195 pounds. Povall, fair - haired, about five feet, eight inches tall and weighing 160 pounds, is almost as long off as Davies and some say hits his irons as far. Davies' 36 - hole duel over the 6,932-yard Hoylake course with its par of 36-36 — promises to be a test in big hitting and putting.

Davies reached the big round with a 5 and 2 victory over Rodney Foster in the semi-finals and a 2 and 1 victory over David Ayton in the quarter-finals Friday. Both Foster and Palmer are Cambridgemen and rising stars in English golf.

Povall surprisingly eliminated British Walker Cup player Brian Chapman by one hole in the semi-final afternoon round. Scotland's Harry Klnlock 4 and 2 in the quarter-finals.

Pay Tribute To Barilko

TIMMINS (CP) — A United Church minister paid tribute Friday to Bill Barilko at the hockey star's funeral.

Rev. W. C. Mills spoke of the sportsman, killed in a plane crash nearly 11 years ago, as "a great athlete."

"He was exceptionally friendly — he had a smile for everyone," the clergyman said. He always played the game well."

The funeral was attended by about 100 of the hockey player's former playing mates.

Pallbearers included former Maple Leaf teammate Harry Watson, Bill Juzda, Stanley present Leaf defenceman. Stanley who was playing for New York Rangers at the time of Barilko's death, grew up with him here.

Barilko disappeared Aug. 26, 1951, on Dr. Harry Hudson's Timmins dentist, while flying to South Porcupine near here from a fishing trip to James Bay. Last week the wreckage of the light plane was found in dense bushland about 65 miles north of Cochrane.

Cast Your Vote For A Leader

Robert Temple Sums Up National, Local Issues

"Next Monday we, the citizens of Canada, will be choosing our representatives and our government for the next five years. The kind of government which we get will be the kind, as one political philosopher once observed, 'which the people deserve.'

"Although I do not believe that the people of Canada have had the kind of government which they deserved for the past five years, I do not wish to criticize the Diefenbaker government of deliberately going against the best interest of the Canadian people.

"I firmly believe that the Conservative government did the best possible job which they could. Unfortunately their best has not been good enough for the times which we are living in.

"When other countries in the free world were forging ahead, building up trade and industry, increasing their national productivity, and creating jobs at such a rate that there were more jobs than people Canada was not.

"Instead Canada was experiencing record unemployment. Each new budget laid down by the Conservative government plunged the Canadian people even further into debt. Tens of thousands of small businesses went bankrupt. Large corporations experienced lay-offs and one even went out of business placing over 14,000 people out of jobs overnight.

"This resulting in a loss in national productivity to such an extent that it has not been able to stay even with Canada's natural growth of population. Besides the many unemployed more of our young people were entering the working force without enough education or training to place them in the jobs that were available.

"Emergency and short term action was taken by the government to try and cure this situation. The result has been however just that an emergency measure, not a long term proposition.

"If the Conservative Party were to have recognized the temporary nature of their past actions and have presented Canadians with a more stable long term program when Mr. Diefenbaker decided to go to the country, one might be able to accept their past actions as justifiable mistakes.

"Such, however, has not been the case. I have heard no recognition given to the problems which face Canadians by our Conservative members or cabinet offhanded fashion. They have met ministers except in a very not bothered themselves to even do this. Hence we see no positive program from them to show how they would assist Canada in assuring her the prosperous and progressive future which she deserves.

"When this sort of vision and honesty is lacking I can only say that the past government of leadership and action which has not given Canada the kind our country and we Canadians deserve.

"The Liberals recognize these problems. This is not enough to justify the confidence of the people by itself, but the fact that the Liberal Party, which I am proud to represent in Hastings South, both recognizes these issues and has a positive practical program for overcoming these difficulties does justify your confidence.

"This is not just a matter of one candidate asking you for your vote so he can go to Parliament. Representation in Ottawa is now a job, not a sinecure the people of Hastings South deserve o a cushy job. I feel that the people of Hastings South and of Canada need active, sound representation and leadership more so now than they have ever needed it at any time in the past.

"There is a job to do. In the past five years the Conservatives' record has shown that they cannot do this job. The Liberals, under the Hon. Lester B. "Mike" Pearson, have both the desire, the ability and the program to do the job of getting Canada out of the red and back on her feet.

"We have no fond vision of grandeur or power. There is a $2,000,000,000 deficit to take care of. There is a faltering national economy to rejuvenate. There are 1,000,000 jobs to be created. There is a devalued dollar to restore. There is a future which must be made secure for our children. There is a place to be gained amongst the free nations of the world and this place should be at their side, not at its tail end.

"There are things which are going to require hard work and sound planning. I am prepared to take on this responsibility as your Liberal Member of Parliament. I pledge myself to fight for your, and Canada's, best interests and for the future of your children and our country.

"It is with this full realization of just what it means to ask to be your representative in Parliament that I ask you to cast your vote for me on June 18th".

(A ful description of Mr. Temple's actions as a candidate and as a leader in the Liberal Party, together with an outline of the Liberl program for restoring Canada's confidence and prosperity may be found on page 15 of this edition.)

Broker's Advice

Do Not Prevent England Joining Common Markt, We May Join Too

By DAVE OANCIA

LONDON (CP)—The head of the Montreal and the Canadian Stock Exchanges predicted Friday that within five to eight years Canada will be able to prove to Europe that her associate membership in the burgeoning community will be an advantage.

"No one can predict trade flows five years in advance," Eric W. Kierans, president of the two exchanges, said in an addres to in Federation of British Inustries.

"But I suspect that many will find it useful to consider the advantages of adding our raw material base, agricultural strength and energy resources to our potential.

"At the very least, such a union could be useful intermediate step and hurry along that wider multilateralism that must be the West's eventual goal."

Kierans, in an address to British's leading industrialist, felt confident Europe will become more dependent on Canadian sources for the supply of many of her needs for non-ferrous metals and ferro-alloys.

INCREASE CAPACITY

"It would seem clear that a close association with Canada would greatly improve European capacity to compete on a long-term basis against U.S. and Russian industrial might.

Kierans, in stressing his strong support for Britain's membership in the Common Market, rejected the theory that Britain faces a choice between the Commonwealth and Europe.

"The choice must be made by the Commonwealth and it is a choice between the acceptance of change and adaptation to the new environment or a refusal to respond to the new challenges and so separate ourselves from the main stream of economic activity."

He thought the vision of an all-embracing Atlantic trading community made up of Europe, Canada and the United States still is far off.

What is important about the new European community, he added, is that Britain should be a member for political as well as economic reasons. No one in Canada should place unnecessary obstacles in the way by harking back to the agreements and traditions of another age.

If today is your birthday this could be year of vital change and self-discovery. By knowing what it is you really need.....you can move ahead constructively. Think for yourself. Act on convictions, not on basis of impressing others.

Virgo (August 22 to Sept. 23) Negative suggestions from one who may mean well should be taken with grain of salt. Your own judgment apt to be razor-sharp. Be considerate but do what must be done.

Libra (Sept. 24 to Oct. 23) Pushing too hard could prove costly. Take time to attend to details. Follow your instincts about others. If family member comes up with creative idea, follow through on it!

Scorpio (Oct. 24 to Nov. 21) Favorable lunar aspect today indicates success in connection with letters, telephone calls. Move about, obtain as many opinions as possible. Read newspaper. Absorb knowledge. Be aware.

Sagittarius (Nov. 22 to Dec. 21) Being diplomatic will gain you much more today than would any amount of forcing. A smile, handshake or cheery greeting turns the tide in your favor. Try it and see!

Capricorn (Dec. 22 to Jan. 20) Moon position indicating your lunar cycle is up. Means your soul-searching of past three days enables you to see "daylight." Act and realize your cause is right.

Aquarius (Jan. 21 to Feb. 19) If you can face responsibility and greet it like a healthy challenge, this becomes great day. Otherwise, you "annoy yourself with needless worry. You can handle what occurs.

Pisces (Feb. 20 to March 20) Favor is returned. But you must make it clear that future course is not influenced by courtesies extended. Without being rude, speak honestly about obligations.

If today is your birthday this has been hectic month. Wonderful for vacation, but hard to get back "down to earth." Generally, you are individual of artistic temperament and could hold your own in any drama, music or art class.

GENERAL TENDENCIES:—Day when fluidness plus pleasure combine for greatest success. Pay heed to public relations counsel. This applies to all signs. Special word to Capricorn: Cycle at peak. You must not permit well-meaning associate to throw cold water on plans.

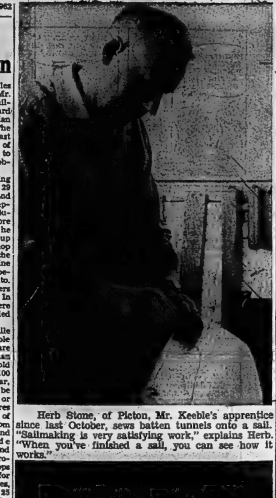
Sails Made in Belleville Go to Japan, Siam, Lebanon

This time of year is Charles Keeble's busy season. Mr. Keeble, Belleville's only sailmaker, has been working hard all year though, on Canadian and foreign sail orders. The foreign orders during the past year have included six sets of sails to Japan, one set to Bangkok, and one set to Lebanon.



Mr. Keeble began making sails in Toronto about 29 years ago. The first six and a half years, he was an apprentice, working for an old-timer and little more. More than fifteen years ago, he moved to Belleville and set up shop here. The present shop is well established, and is the only sailmakers' and marine hardware specialty outlet between Montreal and Toronto.

Mr. Keeble even gets orders from within Toronto itself. In the whole of Canada, there are only about six qualified sailmakers.

Production in the Belleville loft, employing Mr. Keeble and two apprentices (who are paid fair rates, of course, that the apprentices of the old days), will be more than 100 full sets of sails this year, about half of which will be replacements for worn-out or torn sails. Each set requires from 12 to about 50 hours of work, and prices run from about $60 to several thousand dollars. Materials include cotton, dacron, nylon and terylene. The shop also produces canvas tarpaulins, tops for boats, and the sailcloth for Hollie Bonesaw's sailing kites, made in Brighton, Ont. 23 kites have been made so far this year, with orders for 10 more on hand.

Special work includes putting windows in sails (for racing use where several boats may be running in close quarters to round a buoy), and special rigging jobs, such as the St. Lawrence II, of Kingston. This is a 75-foot brigantine, used as a training ship for sea cadets. A sister ship is being built in Toronto now, and Mr. Keeble may be asked to rig out the new one next winter. The job will involve about 6,000 square feet of sails.

For a man who loves sailing and boats, sailmaking is a perfect job, except for one small detail. Mr. Keeble has been so busy rigging other people's boats he has not had time to do any sailing himself for years.

Herb Stone, of Picton, Mr. Keeble's apprentice since last October, sews batten tunnels onto a sail. "Sailmaking is very satisfying work," explains Herb. "When you've finished a sail, you can see how it works."

Charles Keeble of Belleville, the only qualified sailmaker between Montreal and Toronto, hand-stitches rope hem onto a sail. Mr. Keeble has been making sails for nearly 30 years, but has not got time to sail himself.

The Golden Years

This Widow, Like Many Others, Asks 'Where Are My Children?'

By THOMAS COLLINS

The psalm of a widowed Mother —

"It is appalling how grown children, especially sons, can walk off from a good home, from the love and care th a t were there, and cast their lots for life with girls they hardly know. With no f e e l i n g of gratitude, no affection, and even no interest in the parents they leave behind.

"Certainly sons are brought up and trained with the intention that they will be good husbands and fathers. The mother is always trying to keep the father in line so that he will be a good example in this regard. Certainly every parent wants the children to go out into the world well educated, adjusted and tuned to live the Good Life.

"They go all right. But often without a care or thought for the parent who did that for them.

"Most of the older parents nowadays are widows, as you know. Many of these widows, through the long years, gave their children their thought and consideration, without any the same for the hardworking man who was father and husband. Many of us say now, what it is too late, that we should have reversed things, and done more for the husbands. But we felt responsible for the children . . .

GROWN UP AND GONE

"So now the children a r e grown up and gone. And on occasion they dash in for a few minutes. You are so t a k e n aback, and your heart is so full of love and surprise that you don't get on the beam quickly enough to say, or ask, or discuss what is in your mind. Because they are off again.

"You try to remember birthdays of the grandchildren, anniversaries of the children, and little things like that. You try to send little gifts. Three-fourths of the time the children don't acknowledge them.

"When married s o n s occasionally seem to resent the remembrances of the older parent, and sometimes the parent, too. The old home, the old household relics are junk to them. They have no sentiment for what was dear to our home. They show no devotion to the principles we tried to instill in our sons. Yet they were glad enough to grab off the sons and the 'junk' and the principles produced.

"These married children can't realize that they are fixing things so they will get the same from their children that they are getting from them — only more so, because they are not trying to instill the habits and concepts in their children that we tried to instill in ours.

SHARE WITH CHILDREN

"Most widowed mothers like myself have enough money to get along, and maybe a little over. We are afraid to spend what is extra on ourselves or on a trip. We worry lest we might need the money for a long illness when we wouldn't want to be a nuisance to our children. We can't know what illness might come, or for how long, or for what cost. So the extra money we have stays with our children, in the hope that it will encourage them to keep their home better.

"Grown children, while often ignoring their parents, will a shame.

The committee will welcome any non-competitive exhibits to be set up for display purposes only.

sometimes keep a sharp eye on what their parents own. They will step in to save the house or any other property that is in danger of being lost. These watchful things, of course, they will inherit when the parent passes on . . .

This column thus says what it has said many times before. The way some adult children are treating retired parents is a shame.

Canada Votes Today In 25th General Election

Result May Not Be Known Till Tuesday

By BEN WARD
Canadian Press Staff Writer

Canada votes today in its 25th federal general election.

Sometime tonight—or perhaps Tuesday morning if a cliff-hanger develops—it will be known whether Prime Minister Diefenbaker's Progressive Conservative government is to get a new five-year mandate or be replaced by a Liberal, New Democratic or Social Credit administration.

The election falls on the 147th anniversary of the Battle of Waterloo in which Wellington defeated Napoleon. It could be a political Waterloo for one or more of the four major parties.

The decision rests with a record 9,300,000 eligible voters who will elect 264 members to the Commons today. Voting for the 265th seat—absentee vote in Eastern Ontario—was deferred to July 16 due to the death of the Liberal candidate.

Generally fair skies with cool temperatures were expected over most of the country. No heavy rain was in sight for any region, although showers were predicted for Newfoundland and scattered showers for sections of Saskatchewan, northern Manitoba and northwestern Ontario.

Polls are open from 8 a.m. to 7 p.m. local standard time. This is 9 a.m. to 8 p.m. in places where daylight time is observed. An extra voting hour in the evening was added since the last general election in 1958.

NUMBER IS RECORD

A record 1,012 candidates are in the field, including 87 women. The Conservatives have a full slate of 264 and the Liberals are running all but one, except one, where their candidate's nomination was rejected on a technicality.

The New Democratic Party, making its first general election bid less than a year after it was formed by the old CCF party and labor, has 217 candidates. The Social Credit party has 229, more than double its previous record entry. A dozen Communists and 76 others complete the lineup.

A minimum of 133 seats must be won by any one party to form a majority government.

Mr. Diefenbaker, 66, is heading to become the first Conservative leader since Sir John A. Macdonald to win three general elections in a row.

Lester B. Pearson, 64, hopes to lead the Liberals back into the position of power they held for 22 years before Mr. Diefenbaker scored the upset victory of 1957 to form a minority government.

Since Confederation in 1867 the Liberals have governed for some 73½ years and the Conservatives 49, other two-year-or-less parties have never held office.

Sir John A., the first prime minister of Canada, won the country's first election, then lost to the Liberals and then came back with victories in 1878, 1882, 1887 and 1891. Weakened by the strain of that final campaign, he died three months later.

WINS RECORD VOTE

Mr. Diefenbaker worked with a minority government for less than a year before calling the 1958 vote that gave him a record 208 seats, reduced the Liberals to 49, left the CCF with 8 and knocked Social Credit out of the Commons.

By dissolution of Parliament April 19, deaths and byelection losses had cut the Conservative standing to 203. There were 51 Liberals, eight in the CCF-NDP group and three unaffiliated.

In the 1958 election, there was a record turnout of 79.5 per cent as 7,287,297 of the 9,165,986 eligible voters cast ballots.

While the Conservatives swept the country on the civilian vote, the armed forces gave the Liberals more than 70 per cent of their vote. This resulted in one change in Conservative victory by 65 votes election day becoming a Liberal win by 200 votes when the result of the service polling was added about a week later. The service vote also defeated Mackenzie King in Prince Albert in 1945.

This year, there are 139,183 eligible service voters—servicemen in Canada and overseas, servicemen's wives in Europe and veterans in hospitals in Canada. The result of their polling, taken last week, will likely be announced next Saturday—and could influence the decision in close races as before.

CANADIANS CAN VOTE

Added to the voters list for the first time this election by act of Parliament are all Indians of voting age and 3,000 to 4,000 residents of the far-north districts of Keewatin and Franklin, the latter in the enlarged constituency of Northwest Territories.

An estimated 59,000 to 60,000 Indians will be eligible to vote. Previously, only a limited number could vote.

Eligibility for voting in advance polls—held June 9 and June 11—was broadened and produced a record turnout of possibly 100,000. The highest previous total was 11,700 in 1957.

The size of the advance turnout and the big crowds the leaders drew during the last stages of the campaign are taken as a record vote.

On voting day, three of the leaders were in their home constituencies—Mr. Diefenbaker in Prince Albert, Sask., NDP Leader T. C. Douglas in Regina East, Sask., and Social Credit leader of the Social Credit party, Robert Deer, Alta. Mr. Pearson, defending Algoma East in Ontario, was at Ottawa.

During the eight-week campaign up to the election, attention was concentrated on unemployment, devaluation of the Canadian dollar's exchange rate and the state of the national economy.

DEFENDS POLICIES

Mr. Diefenbaker defended the government's handling of the economy, said it succeeded in the unemployment problem was being beaten. Mr. Pearson, taking a leaf out of John Kennedy's 1960 American presidential campaign, said a Liberal government was needed to get the economy going again.

New Scientific Version of Bible Discards Story of Adam and Eve

LONDON (AP) — The story of the Garden of Eden has been cut from a newly-published scientific version of the Bible because "the whole idea of Adam and Eve won't fit in with modern ideas."

The new interpretation was published by Dr. Brian Pamplin, a Durham University scientist and active member of the Church of England.

He said his aim was to provide a scientifically accurate account of the creation. He did not, in essence, challenge the Biblical story.

Pamplin's version starts like this:

"In the beginning God thought out the pattern of creation. The Lord God said let there be light, energy and matter."

Matter and energy form atoms and let atoms combine and condense to form solids and liquids and let stars and planets evolve in their millions! And it was so."

Pamplin explained his reasoning in a pamphlet.

"There need be no clash between the revealed truth of Genesis and the discovered truth of evolution," he said.

"The order in which things were created as told in Genesis is the order in which they would develop by evolution."

Pamplin discarded the story of Adam and Eve, Pamplin explains creation thus: "So man and woman, male and female, from the higher animals by the spirit of God."

The Pamplin version may be discussed by leading scientists and clergy of the Church of England.

Rev. H. Hartley, rector of Solihull, said he is trying to get the matter brought before a church commission of theologians and scientists.

QUEEN MOTHER WORE COLORS OF HER HOST

Presents Guineas To E. P. Taylor

TORONTO (CP) — Queen Mother Elizabeth wore the colors of her host at the races Saturday and watched jockeys wearing the turquoise silks of horseman E. P. Taylor direct their mounts first and second in the Queen's Plate.

The royal visitor was wearing turquoise dress and hat for the final engagement of her nine-day Canadian tour, the 103rd running of the Canadian classic for thoroughbreds.

The Queen Mother flew home to London following the race and arrived Sunday.

Industrialist Taylor's filly Flaming Page beat 12 colts to win the Queen's Plate. Chopin Ion, another Taylor entry, finished second.

The Queen Mother presented Mrs. Taylor, president of the Jockey Club, with her daughter's personal gift to the winner of the guineas.

Secret Army and Moslems Have Arranged Peace Pact

ALGIERS (AP) — A pact between the Secret Army and Moslem nationalists brought a halt today to the Secret Army's scorched earth campaign in Algiers and Oran, Algeria's major cities.

Neither arson nor bomb attacks had been reported in the greater Algiers area by noon. Shooting also petered quietly in Oran, the extremist European stronghold in the west.

"I drink to the health from Oran" indicated the Secret Army group shared there might not abide by orders from Algiers to end the campaign of destruction and death.

But Jacques Chevallier, former Algiers mayor who acted as intermediary in negotiations that resulted in Sunday's truce agreement, said all ex-colonels in the Oran region except Yves Godard have agreed to the accord.

(Reuters news agency said it learned the Oran branch of the Secret Army had asked for 24 hours to consider the truce.)

There was unaccustomed peace within Algiers.

Groups of Moslems emerged from their barricaded quarters and mixed with Europeans in some parts of the city. Half-tracks looped with troops stood by for any emergency while helicopters hovered over the city.

The news from Algiers must be heard with caution," the Secret Army in Oran said of the announced agreement with the Moslem National Liberation Front.

"For the moment we do not have enough information to make any comment . . . we are keeping intact our means of action."

Most of the deserting French Army colonels forming the Secret Army's military command are hiding in the Oran area. In recent weeks they obviously have been acting independently of the Algiers group that carried out the negotiations with the Moslems.

The Secret Army in Algiers in its broadcast called for a halt to arson and murder as of midnight. This broadcast followed separate announcements by the Moslem nationalists and the Algiers extremists Sunday that they were ending their bloody feud to join forces in

Cuba Makes Show of Force To Counter Demonstrations

HAVANA (AP) — The Cuban government paraded tanks, troops and artillery through the streets of Cardenas Saturday and President Osvaldo Dorticos lashed out at "wretched counter - revolutionary provocations" he said took place there a few days ago.

This was the first indication there had been any trouble in the coastal city 90 miles east of Havana.

Dorticos' speech at a political rally duplicated there may have been disturbances over food rationing.

"It is true we are confronting difficulties and shortages," Dorticos said, but these "are consequences of imperialism's economic aggression."

"Here is the battle, the little we have we distribute equally and better," Dorticos said. "We must not allow the enemy to take the offensive."

He told the crowd to "squash the counter - revolutionaries in the cities."

Then referring to the military vehicles, Dorticos said:

"We do not need those tanks or sub-machine-guns. To crush them, all of you alone are enough."

The crowd then started chanting, "Al paredon, al paredon" — to the firing wall.

"If they want to seize the reins of a revolution, let them provoke us if they want," Dorticos said. "We are sure that the presence of popular multitudes . . . will frighten them."

At one point in his speech the crowd began to chant:

"Fidel, Khrushchev, we are with you both."

After the televised military parade, the government radio said the show of strength was prompted by "little groups of counter - revolutionaries, parasites and lazy ones who came into the street waving counter-revolutionary signs."

Similar demonstrations were described on the broadcast, as bands, thieves and dope fiends.

There have been recent reports of anti-Castro demonstrations elsewhere in Matanzas province.

Two demonstrations were said to have occurred in the city of Matanzas, about 30 miles west of Cardenas. Accounts reaching Miami said crowds composed mainly of

NUCLEAR RACE INCREASES WAR DANGER—RUSK

Appeals Anew For New Agreement

CONCORD, N.H. (AP)—State Secretary Rusk warned Saturday night the danger of war by accident is being increased by the unchecked nuclear arms race and he appealed anew for an enforceable disarmament agreement.

"Only one breakthrough is required," Rusk said. "The Soviet Union must realize that it cannot eat the cake of disarmament and keep the cake of secrecy . . . It is our hope that the Soviet Union will come to realize that secrecy is a dangerous anachronism in a nuclear age."

In a speech to the New Hampshire Council on World Affairs, Rusk blamed the Soviet Union's unwillingness to accept a disarmament inspection and control system for the failure of East-West negotiations to halt the arms race.

Rusk reported that if the "upward spiral" in nuclear destructive power continues to grow it could "by 1966 be double what it is today."

CITES DANGERS

"There are four specific dangers which the East and West now face which could be the basis for early action in disarmament field.

"First, there is the danger which arises from the proliferation of nuclear weapons under the control of an increasing number of individual nations. At present these nations seem to possess their own nuclear deterrents, but the spread of nuclear weapons creates conflagration increases.

"Secondly, there is the danger of outbreak of war by accident, miscalculation or failure of communications. This danger grows as modern weapons become more complex, command and control difficulties increase, and the premium is on ever faster reaction.

"Thirdly, there is an increasing danger that certain areas will become man's newest battlefield.

"Fourthly, there is the danger that mounting proportions of our nations' resources—skill and treasure will have to be diverted to the business of developing newer and newer armaments. Neither the United States nor the U.S.S.R. has so set up its schools, hospitals and highways that we can afford not to put the better use the funds and energies and talents which go to produce warships and tanks and missiles."

U.S. Will Fire Biggest Blast Tuesday Morn

HONOLULU (AP)—The U.S. nuclear testing force made ready today to fire the biggest blast over the Pacific since the explosion—about dawn Tuesday EDT.

The mammoth explosion was expected to produce a fireball as flash brighter than sunshine and to be visible in Hawaii 750 miles northeast of the Johnston Island launch site.

Scientific communications throughout the Pacific will be disrupted for almost two days after the shot, 50 to 500 times as powerful as the atom bomb dropped on Hiroshima.

Convict Buries Self Alive For Five Days But Back in Cell

SAN QUENTIN, Calif. (AP) — James P. Winton, the wandering convict of San Quentin Prison, is back in his cell today after a bizarre escape attempt.

He didn't get outside. Instead, the 23-year-old burglar buried himself alive for five days 30 feet inside the prison wall he intended to go over Sunday morning.

Winton came out of his hole carrying a 35-foot garden hose and grappling hook for wall scaling.

A guard on the wall spotted him in the moonlight, and marched him back into the maximum security area.

For a hiding place, the prisoner had dug a tunnel about a trench two feet wide and one foot deep and covered it with old boards, newspapers and dirt.

Winton took with him a bottle of water and a handful of figs.

He was holed up under shrubbery just outside a vocational shop. Searchers walked around his hiding place many times.

Winton escaped from San Quentin last November but the FBI recaptured him Jan. 6 in Marianna, Fla.

He was awaiting trial for this escape when he tried it today. Otherwise, he would have been released from jail last month.

Discover Body Of Prisoner Hit By Bullets

27 Others Wounded, Three Guards Beaten

MONTREAL (CP)—The body of a prisoner was found today in the wake of a vicious riot at St. Vincent de Paul penitentiary Sunday, Allen J. MacLeod, federal commissioner of penitentiaries, said today at a press conference.

Mr. MacLeod said the body of the only person to die as a result of the riot was found in the prison hospital.

He said the man was wounded by rifle fire and either was taken or walked to the prison hospital where he died.

He was identified as William Alder, 41, of Montreal, who began Dec. 24, 1959, serving a seven-year sentence for breaking and entering with intent.

Mr. MacLeod, who has ordered an inquiry into the worst riot in the big penitentiary's 80-year history, said the flare - up "obviously was planned for several weeks and possibly months, by a small group."

He said no unusual complaints had been received by penitentiary officials in recent weeks.

Mr. MacLeod said that apart from the dead prisoner 27 others were wounded by rifle fire. Twenty - two of them, including three in critical condition, are in St. Mary's Veterans Hospital here. Five others are in the infirmary at the minimum-security Lavergne Institute, sentenced to the penitentiary on the northeastern outskirts of Montreal.

THREE GUARDS INJURED

Three guards were injured when beaten by prisoners, but they are not in serious condition.

A total of 650 prisoners, whose cell blocks were destroyed or heavily damaged by fire last night broke out Sunday in several spots, spent the night in the open air in 90-degree weather.

They were penned behind barbed wire and guarded by Canadian army troops in steel helmets and armed with bayonet rifles.

The rest of the 1,200 - odd prisoners slept in their own cells, unlocked by the fires.

About 100 troops still were on the job today guarding the prisoners who have not eaten since noon Sunday.

The penitentiary's kitchen was destroyed by the fire and meals were being made to set up a temporary kitchen.

One riot - torn main cell block was still burning just before noon today and as soon as firemen put out the fire and the block is cleaned up the prisoners will be moved back there, Mr. MacLeod said.

The riot, which erupted during exercise period at 3:45 p.m. Sunday, left six two - storey buildings in the penitentiary compound gutted by fire. Only the shell of the huge dining hall with its red and twisted steel-bars remained of the structure, which Warden Michael LeCorre said cost between $2,000,000 and $2,000,000.

Hundreds of shots were fired inside the prison walls as the worst rioting reached their peak, and observers in the vicinity feared far into the night.

NO LIVES LOST

Mr. LeCorre told a post-midnight press conference that no lives were lost in the melee.

1841 U.S. PENNY FOUND IN GARDEN NEAR SHANNONVILLE

While working in her flower garden last week, Mrs. Charles Wood of R.R. 1 Shannonville unearthed an 1841 U.S. penny in excellent condition. The date of the coin was easily distinguished and rimming the date were thirteen stars, the original states of the union.

It would be interesting to know just how and when this coin was brought into this section of the province. Mrs. Wood is quite proud of her find and will keep it to hand down to future generations of her family.

Khrushchev Answers British Labor Members

MOSCOW (Reuters) — Premier Khrushchev has told a group of labor members of the British Parliament in a letter that Western leaders are "deliberately leading the Soviet Union in another round of competition in the sphere of improving nuclear weapons."

The Soviet leader replied to a letter from 15 prominent labor MPs on the question of nuclear disarmament, the Soviet news agency Tass reported Saturday.

Khrushchev said the Western leaders "are perfectly aware that their efforts to resume the (nuclear) tests will set off a chain reaction.

"Such a competition is dangerous and unreasonable. If we are compelled to do this, there must be no doubt that the responsibility rests with the NATO powers and only with them."

Khrushchev claimed it is already possible to conclude a first-step agreement because it has "now been proved irrefutably" that national facilities for detection would assure proper verification of an agreement.

TWO FOUNDATIONS

"There are now absolutely no foundations for the United States and Great Britain to refuse international control and verification, which in fact they demount to setting up an espionage system," he said.

"As you see, a solution of the problem of banning tests does not depend on us."

Khrushchev said "another instance of deliberate aggravation of world tension is the series of high - altitude nuclear tests planned by the American government."

Fire Rating Tweed Forest District

Rain, the forest rangers right bower, did not come up with a helping hand last night which rain hasn't been in the southern areas of the district.

Scarcely more than a sprinkle fell over the timberland. At Stoco Lake the fall was 0.01 inch; at Tweed 0.03 inch and at Bancroft .05 inch.

Foresters or rangers left a fire burning near Round Lake last Friday and the result, two acres burned over the fire is under control and being patrolled. Another small fire is also under control.

Lands and Forests Department officials flew men and equipment into Round Lake since 35 miles north of Sharbot Lake.

The fire rating in the Tweed forest district was made to high today with many parts of the district drying out.

Temperatures which ranged from 80 degrees over the week-end dropped sharply last night in the area. 70% general temperatures in the morning was 51 degrees. Deere dropped to 41 and Bancroft to 46 degrees.

Complaints Keep Returning Officer Busy

That local party supporters are taking the election campaign seriously was indicated by the number of telephone calls received — mostly complaints — being received at the office of William Vanderwel, returning officer for Hastings South.

The phone calls have been ringing all morning," stated the clerk at the returning office. "We have had to keep a staff mostly to register complaints, most of them for minor matters."

One of the more common complaints was that the literature of one or other of the candidates was discovered by the "other" party supporters attached to a fence or pole near the polling booth.

Another complaint was that the election proclamation sheet was not being tacked up inside the door of a polling booth, not outside the booth as is called for.

An added set of calls to the returning officer were for last minute transfers for voters, the deadline for which was 5 p.m.

A check at several of the polling booths showed a "fairly good" turnout of voters up until noon, although the main influx of voters was expected during the noon hour and after work late this afternoon until the 8 p.m. closing of the voting places.

At Albert College Manor on Highland Ave. there had been 60 voters up until noon out of a total of 175 on the list. At Pinnacle Street 32 out of 175 had voted by noon.

There were 410 votes cast at the advance poll, but the results of advance voting will not be known until at least two hours after the regular polls close. Under the election regulations the advance poll votes are counted on the until 10 o'clock this evening.

Golden Hawks Will Headline July Air Show

RCAF Trenton with present the biggest and what it hopes the best annual airshow offered to visitors from all parts of Central and Eastern Ontario when the 1962 edition of Trenton Air Force Day will be celebrated on Saturday, on July 21.

Headlining an imposing array of both giant transport aircraft and the latest in supersonic jet aircraft will be the world-famous and acclaimed RCAF Golden Hawks. The Hawks are currently engaged in their annual trans-continental tour of major U.S. airshows and next year's show will definitely be a must for those who have been unable to see the RCAF precision team in action previously or any year when they have been screened by the speed and precision of jet aircraft.

The RCAF's newest supersonic jet additions, namely the CF-104 Starfighter and the CF-101 Voodoo are expected to make an appearance and all visitors will have an opportunity to see close-hand and also in flight these modern flying machines capable of speeds in the range of 1000 miles per hour.

PLAN "AIR DANCE"

Sabres from Air Defence Command, Argus and Neptunes from Maritime Command, and Chipmunks from Training Command and a host of Trenton's own Transport fleet, including the C130B Hercules, C-119 Flying Box Car, North Stars, Cosmopolitans, the Canso Dakotas, the SA-16 Albatross, Otters, CC106 Yukon and others too numerous to mention, will fly past. For early arrivals and individuals interested in the numerous ground facilities at Trenton, a colorful display of static aircraft and exhibits will be available and centred in the massive six acre Yukon centralized hangar, especially built to house the fleet of 125-passenger Yukon giants.

Bands, booths, and a host of other services will be present and complete and individuals would be well advised to set aside July 21, and organize an afternoon outing at Trenton for this outstanding annual event. Gates will open at 12 o'clock noon and all those driving in from distant areas are advised to come early. Public relations officials at Trenton remind all concerned that there is no admission charge for this event. A general open house policy will be in effect once again, the theme will be "Bring Your Camera and Record Your Visit.'

Hold Suspects, Intercept Loot On Express Car

WINNIPEG (CP)—Police in Sudbury have intercepted two express packages believed to contain the $42,000 loot from last Thursday's Winnipeg bank robbery.

The packages were taken off a Canadian Pacific Railway train Saturday night and opened later after a special warrant was received from Fort William.

Police here said only they were "satisfied" with what was found inside the packages, but it was understood they contained stolen money.

The packages, shipped from Kenora, Ont., 125 miles east of Winnipeg, were on their way to separate addresses in Montreal.

Two men in their 30s were arrested Friday in Fort William in connection with the armed holdup of a west end Winnipeg branch of the Bank of Montreal.

The suspects were taken off a CPR train. The Canadian Police said the men boarded the train at Kenora after spending the previous night there.

Police learned of the package from Kenora Kenora agent Joe Roy, who said one of the suspects had shipped them to himself.

Sudbury police were notified.

Truck Squashed, Driver Trapped

BRANTFORD (CP) — Firemen worked for an hour and a half today to free a Toronto district man, trapped in the squashed cab of his transport truck after it careened off Oshawa's Corners, six miles north of here.

Frank McPherson, 31, of Etobicoke was taken to hospital with cuts and bruises about the legs, arms and face. Authorities described his condition as good.

Provincial police said Mc-Pherson's truck, loaded with ilmenite sand, was rounding a turn when it jackknifed. The transport rolled across a grass boulevard and into a ditch, where it came to rest on its roof. Mc-Pherson was pinned inside by the crushed roof.

Blast Damages Toronto Store

TORONTO (CP) — A mystery explosion tore through a two-foot brick wall and damage to a midtown discount store early today.

The blast was heard more than two miles away and shattered windows for blocks around residents nearby were thrown from their beds but no one was injured.

Police found a small spring in the centre of the explosion. They believe a time bomb may have been placed at the rear of the store — Honest Ed's, at the corner of Bloor and Bathurst streets.

The blast in an open porch shattered the wall and blew two steel doors from their hinges. The store's safe is located several feet from the doors but apparently no attempt was made to open it.

Two Elderly Men Die of Heart Attacks

Two elderly Mayo township residents living at their Hermon home, died within minutes of each other Friday day, apparently from heart attacks.

The two brothers were found Friday noon by witnesses who saw one of the men stumble.

When they investigated they found George McMunn dead outside the barn and minutes later found the body of James in the house.

Coroner Dr. G. W. Anderson of Bancroft said both men had apparently died from heart attacks.

Next of kin is Arthur McMunn, son of George McMunn, one of the dead men.

Police said that Frank Robbins of Stirling and Allan Stewart of McArthur's Mills saw one of the McMunn brothers walking from the barn to the house.

Five minutes later the man left the house and returned toward the barn. He stumbled and fell just outside the barn.

Investigation revealed both the McMunn brothers dead, George at the barn and James in the house.

Provincial Police Constable Hooker from Bancroft investigated.

Twenty-seven prisoners were injured, he said, three of them seriously, and the guards were taken to hospital with superficial wounds.

Allen J. MacLeod, commissioner of federal penitentiaries, told a later press conference a three-man board of inquiry will make a full investigation of the 10-hour riot.

Mr. MacLeod, who flew to the prison during the night, said the board will comprise three senior officers from the penitentiaries department—one from Ottawa, one from St. Vincent de Paul and the third from another Canadian penitentiary.

All guards and prison officials, as well as the prisoners involved, will be questioned.

There was no immediate indication of who the ringleaders were. Some 140 of the prisoners were serving life sentences.

The commissioner said one of the buildings suffered heavy damage, among them the Roman Catholic chapel, the kitchen and all the work buildings.

Prisoners would have to be occupied with outdoor activity until the facilities could be restored.

Ambulances shuttled back and forth continually between Montreal hospitals and St. Vincent de Paul, a community opposite Montreal Island on the north side of Riviere des Prairies. Some were still moving at 4:30 a.m.

Cars were pressed into service during the afternoon, buses sharing in place of ambulances, to carry injured men to Montreal. One ambulance in the north-end suburb of St. Michel collided with a car. Its drivers and the passenger, a nun, were also taken to hospital in another ambulance.

Many of the injured removed by ambulance were suffering from head wounds. One ambulance passenger was covered with blood from the waist up.

The riot was quelled by a combined force of soldiers, RCMP, Quebec provincial and municipal police. Warden Le-Corre estimated the force at 400 soldiers, 60 federal and 40 provincial police. An undetermined number of police were surrounding municipalities patrolled the grounds outside the walls, he said.

Later, three army buses arrived from Quebec City, carrying about 150 armed soldiers of Quebec's crack Royal 22nd Regiment.

Warden LeCorre said the riot had every appearance of a well-planned manoeuvre. Flames and black smoke rose from the buildings within the compound shortly before and hundreds of howling prisoners ran about with a variety of makeshift weapons—knives, pipes, "zip" guns and Molotov cocktails—home-made gasoline bomb.

Firemen from St. Vincent de Paul, first outsiders on the scene, were met at the gates with a hail of shots.

Repeatedly, fire fought the flames from aluminum ladders propped against the 40 - foot outer walls. Reinforcements arrived from the fire departments of Montreal, Montreal North, St. Francois and Duvernay.

Efforts to put out the fires were hampered by the rioting prisoners and a lack of water. Two pump trucks loaned by Montreal roared back and forth between the prison and the Riviere des Prairies, carrying water. Firemen perched on a truck's aerial ladder above the walls squeezed every last ounce of pressure from the hoses to reach the nearest fires.

Prison communications blacked out and electric power failed as the flames ate the insulating wires.

It was not until the first bus-load of reinforcements—the 25th Central Ordnance Depot in eastend Longue Pointe—arrived at the prison that firemen entered the prison's east gate under escort. TAKE UP POSTS

Soldiers and RCMP officers armed with automatic weapons took up posts along the walls. Other federal police carrying riding crops went into the prison while two-man teams of noniformitary guards armed with rifles ranged the grounds outside.

As darkness settled, soldiers filed in carrying flashlights and spotlights operated by a gasoline generators.

Prisoners, still lightly - clad from the afternoon's exercise period, were herded at bayonet point into two groups at opposite corners of the compound. They were then searched against the north wall where many, having no cells, spent the night in the open.

Early reports of the rioting said six men were killed and as many as 35 others wounded in what generally was an attempt at a mass jailbreak.

Warden LeCorre confirmed that prisoners had tried to scale the walls and to occupy other buildings in the compound.

"We had to shoot," he said, "but we didn't shoot to kill."

CONDITIONS CALMER

Speculation as to the cause of the disturbance centred on the cramped conditions in the old institution, one of Canada's most over-crowded.

It is the only one of the federal penitentiaries in which convicts live in cells in their cells every night, with no evening activity.

Some 400 prisoners still are housed in cells which a royal commission headed by Justice Fauteux said in 1956 should be condemned without qualification.

Many of its cells still are using the "bucket system" for lack of plumbing.

Only five months ago, Justice Minister Davie Fulton announced a reorganization plan for St. Vincent de Paul that called for the destruction of 300 cells that were "outdated. 30 years ago."

The justice minister described the conditions, so congested that the prisoners could put in a full working day, as "most undesirable."

Mouth-to-Mouth Respiration Saves Boy, 6

JACKSON'S POINT, Ont. (CP)—Mouth-to-mouth resuscitation by an unidentified bather was credited with saving the life of a six-year old boy who dragged out of Lake Simcoe here Saturday.

Guenther Heindeck of Toronto apparently was pulled under the surface by a wave during a children's picnic at a Salvation Army camp near here.

Donald Cronsberry, 22, of nearby Sutton brought the boy to shore.

"Some man grabbed him from me and immediately began started the mouth-to-mouth resuscitation on him," Cronsberry said. "Within a couple of minutes his eyes fluttered open."

Dr. George Burrows of Jackson's Point said: "If it wasn't for that unknown man, this boy would have died.

FOUR HOURS HOUSE

The Monday segregatory climaxed an eight-hour visit to Toronto that featured a drive through the city to a civic reception and a luncheon given by the province's premier.

She arrived by car from an overnight stay at the Port Hope home of the former governor-general Vincent Massey.

Crowds lie deep in places lined her route along Highway 401 and downtown to city hall, where some 4,000 Torontonians were assembled to cheer her.

A 21-gun artillery salute broke two windows and shook surrounding buildings as the royal guest inspected a 100-man guard of the Toronto Scottish Regiment, of which she is colonel-in-chief.

Before boarding her plane at the airport, the Queen Mother inspected another guard provided by the Royal Hamilton Light Infantry.

Campbellford Child Drowns In Trent Canal

CAMPBELLFORD — Shortly before seven p.m. last night, 5-year-old John Haig, the son of Mr. and Mrs. Douglas Haig of Campbellford, Belleville, fell into the Trent Canal, just below No. 10 Lock.

The child had been playing around the locks with Donald Kirton and Robert Barlow, both six, of West Hill, late in the afternoon. Lockmaster Stephen Copperthwaite warned the children not to play around the river and had watched them drive down the road towards the Haig farm, which is situated five miles south of Campbellford. He testified that they had heeded his warning. Mr. Copperthwaite returned to his duties. A short time later, he saw two of the boys near the water below the lock. As he approached them, one of the children ran to him and raised a tear-stained face.

"Johnny" walked into the water and it went over his head."

Mr. Copperthwaite dived into the water immediately and searched the area, but was unable to locate the child. He called to bystanders in the vicinity, who joined in the search.

Mr. Copperthwaite shouted for his wife to call the fire department.

Minutes later, firemen arrived, equipped with water rescue equipment. Almost an hour later the child's body was recovered and firemen worked with a resuscitator until it was apparent that it was too late.

The Haigs have two other children, James 17, and Orlinda, 7.

Two Kinds Of Mind?

Students at technical institutes possess, or should possess, a "different kind of intelligence" from that required by students who attend universities.

Authority for that statement is Dr. D. H. Craighead, principal of Hamilton Institute of Technology. He told delegates to the annual meeting of the National Conference of Canadian Universities and Colleges that a boy who shows a trend toward the theoretical approach to the solution of a problem should be encouraged to attend university, but a boy who takes the practical approach should attend a technical institute.

This is just a new twist to an old contention, that there is, indeed, a fundamental difference between the theoretical and practical mind. Those who hold this view fall into two schools. "There are those who regard the practical man with scorn, as lacking the intelligence required to theorize, to draw general conclusions from particular facts. On the other hand, one is frequently told of the machine operator who has to instruct the machinist, or the construction foreman who revises the engineer's plans so that the structure becomes feasible.

Personally we have always had the suspicion that the practical man who improves on the "book-learning" of the inexperienced is just a smarter man who would have enjoyed even more marked superiority over his theoretically-minded rival if he had had a better book-learning himself. The "practical approach" is quite often an intelligent man's way of attempting to solve a problem regarding which he lacks the necessary theoretical knowledge. The man who takes such an approach is usually much more valuable than the man who, ignorant of the appropriate formula or equation, just throws up his hands and does nothing. But the man who is unable to devise some practical method of solving a problem is only a little worse than the man who will not use theory under any circumstances.

If Dr. Craighead had his way, all the practical-minded men would be technicians—and all engineers would be wedded to pure theory. This would seem to be a pity.

What Price Hypnosis?

The Calgary Hypnosis Society has offered free hypnotic treatments to Grade 12 students trying final examinations. The Society thinks that, by "relaxing" the students, post-hypnotic suggestion may help them get higher marks.

If the scheme worked, there could be only one explanation. Hypnosis would not have taught the students anything. It would only have assisted them to recall what they had once known—and had buried deep in their memories.

It would thus, in a sense, be an aid to memory.

Is this what we want? In one sense, it emphatically is, for if facts were easier to memorize, students could spend more time in learning to think and less time in storing away a jumbled assortment of facts which may or may not be of use to them in life. And they can be recalled.

On the other hand, there is nothing as valuable as a good memory—and we do not always have a hypnotist at our elbows when we have lost the grocery list, cannot recall what the boss told us to do or have forgotten the name of an acquaintance.

What is more, there are occasions when, unhypnotized, we reach deductions from a few known facts. If we are able to memorize more easily, we might memorize more. There would be a danger that the lazy-minded would end up thinking less, instead of more. This might make life easier, as long as we never faced a situation for which there were no precedents in our own experience or in the experience of those who wrote the books we memorized.

But what would happen to the first man to meet Martians if he had memorized all human experience but never learned to think an original thought?

We have one vote in the U.N. just like Chad, the desert oasis with a population of 100,000 nomads, and 300,000 camels and hyenas. We have played the role of international patsy in the U.N. and on the world scene too long—
U.S. Senator Strom Thurmond.

Some people read books as something to keep them pulled, and some to try and find out how the world works—what life is and how we can find a way through it. They seem to be both perfectly good ways of approaching books. And I suspect many of us do both of them—Sir Charles Snow.

Strictly Personal
We Soon May Be Unable to Smell a Rat
By SYDNEY J. HARRIS

Speaking of "auto-suggestion," as I was recently, reminded me that a chemistry professor at Stanford some years ago tried an unusual experiment in class.

He held up a vial labelled "Violet Essence," and asked the students to raise their hands as soon as they could detect the odor. Within 15 second after he had removed the cork, every pupil in the front row was up; and in less than a minute, three-fourths of the students indicated they smelled the perfume. As you might expect, the vial contained nothing but water.

This may be a case of suggestibility, but I'm not sure that it has something to do with our weakening sense of smell. The human race is gradually losing its olfactory powers, and we are ashamed to admit it — just as a person growing deaf will stubbornly insist he can hear well.

No less an authority than Dr. Richard van Mises of Harvard sometime ago told a convention of the American Association for the Advancement of Science that "in few generations" the human sense of smell will be completely abolished — that the small toe has been steadily degenerating through the ages.

What would then happen to our sense of taste is a matter of great speculation. It is doubtful whether we can taste at all if we are not using our sense of smell we are eating or drinking. During a cold, for instance, when our nose is stuffed up, food and beverages lose their flavor.

In primitive times, apparently, man's sense of smell was almost as keen as that of most animals, and he probably could remain in emergency situations, when we would "smell" a rat, or hostility in the atmosphere around us. But, as we become increasingly civilized, and so industrialized, our noses are losing their old power to detect and discriminate.

St. Jerome writes that St. Hilarion was able to detect more than a hundred different odors in a single perfume at the first time, to detect the odors by merely sniffing his body or his clothes or garments. And a 19th century Englishman, who became a Mrs. Mitchell, who was born deaf, nevertheless had this gift to distinguish visitors by the individual smells, and also estimated their character with remarkable accuracy.

The sense of smell flourishes only close to nature; the farther away we get, the more blunt and dulled it becomes. Even a urban creature, puffing on his cigarette, breathing in polluted air, victim of a dozen super-perspiratory viruses a year, has no more sense of smell than a burrowing mole has for its eyes.

The sense of smell flourishes only close to nature; the farther away we get, the more blunt and dulled it becomes.

Go to West For Long View
Windsor Star

In every election campaign people are prone to think "take a long view" of things. But the "long view" in its primary meaning applies to that which can be seen with the eye, rather than the mind.

Urban peoples do not have much opportunity for the "long view" in this sense. They look up and down the street, or they can look up at the sky. Rural peoples have a much better opportunity and this is particularly true of those in the plains and the foothills of the West.

It always is an experience for Easterners to visit the Prairies and, on a clear day, to see as far as the eye can see. Often that is a long way away. The horizon is far off.

It is even better if one is standing at the foothills looking down over the plains. Or, conversely looking up to the plains and looking up at the foothills in the distance. Then one gets a concept of space and, even of time, not possible in a more crowded environment.

Children Die, Jail Mother
Hamilton Spectator

A mother, who left her five small children at home alone while she went gadding, has been sentenced to five months in jail. The sentence did not arise from the fact that she left her children alone, but that they were burned to death while she was away.

The mother had undoubtedly received punishment enough in the loss of her children, but nevertheless the three - month sentence is not unjustified. There are far too many parents these days who put pleasure before their sense of responsibility, who flit about like night hawks while their children remain at home unattended.

Some parents can afford baby sitters, but there are many who cannot. But whether parents can afford sitters or not, they are still guilty of neglect if they consistently flee from their duties in search of momentary pleasure.

Pro Drivers Courteous
Stratford Beacon-Herald

Riding in a Toronto taxi, we were in a stream of traffic hustling north on Avenue Road, when our taxi-driver slowed smoothly to a stop, and put his arm out the window to beckon to the driver of the car in the next standing crossways in the middle of the street.

The driver of the other car had found himself stranded in the middle of the wide street, in the middle of making a left turn out of a side street, and had been waiting indefinitely for a gap in the 40-mile-an-hour flow. Our taxi-driver gave him the break he needed. It was an incident that happens, or was gone in the space of 10 seconds at most; the two drivers were strangers to each other, could not see each other's face clearly, and would almost certainly never see each other again.

Using Highway 401 as our route of comment, we visited the city of Stratford, after a few necessary hours in the metropolitan maelstrom, we overtook a car truck on a long upgrade. The loaded truck was making heavy going of it on a long climb, and we took the chance to get ahead of it. After overtaking, we realized that a car coming toward us was moving faster than we had expected, and we cut in sooner and more sharply, in front of the truck, than one would normally do.

The truck driver's reaction was to lift his foot from the accelerator. We had been slightly discourteous in the manner across his lawn, and he responded by being at once courteous to us and stopping down engines upward a bit.

I wish you'd mentioned your weight, for reasons we'll get to. This condition, also known as visceroptosis, is really rather common.

Sufferers of visceroptosis — simply a dropping of the abdominal organs apparently have a weakness of the fibrous or supporting tissues (ligaments, etc.) which hold these organs in place. This may in many cases be a "born weakness," as some people have small feet, weaker eyes or whatnot. It occurs much more often in people who are thin. Perhaps for that very reason many of them do not understand the function of a specially fitted girdle, which isn't, as is so often the case, intended to give constriction and the automatic nervous action of the digestive tract but becomes sluggish. Bloating, belching and vague abdominal distress are symptoms.

Since the victims so often are thin, a girdle is a welcome help rather than a hindrance. A few pounds of "padding" can help the visceral drop down organs upward a bit.

Small meals, both of them, but a couple of reminders that generally speaking the professional drivers do not cause the accidents. Men whose business it is to drive a truck or bus usually requires them to drive a great deal, are the ones who set the good examples on the streets and highways. Most of them make their own application of the Golden Rule, and drive as they would be driven by.

The bad-tempered drivers are the amateur drivers, and the least courteous among them seem to be the rawest amateurs.

Krupp Too Big To Be Broken
(London Free Press)

Survival by the Krupp industrial empire in Germany through two world wars, famines, feats and many changes of government affords the student of Big Business a classic example of durability on a grand scale. Krupp is the Industrial Rock of Gibraltar against which the waves and tides of war have broken in vain.

It is an astonishing story. In 1945 most of the Krupp factories were in ruins. Those that remained were being operated by the Allies. Alfred Krupp, the head of the empire, was sentenced to 12 years' imprisonment for using slave labor, looting occupied countries and producing armaments for the Nazi regime.

But, as I say, the Krupp empire has survived. The prison sentence was commuted after six years later, with the proviso that Alfred Krupp divest himself of his own holdings in the business. He was given until January 31, 1959, to do so. Five years when that day arrived, Germany was a staunch ally of the West. Krupp was given three more years to comply.

His deadline came last May 31 of this year. But no one seriously believes now that the Krupp empire will ever be disturbed. Time breeds apathy; the United States, France and England no longer care. Even if they did, they have no way to enforce an order given up in other times, under vengeful circumstances.

Alfred Krupp is today a billionaire, possibly the world's richest man. His fortune is no too huge to dismember, and now it is larger than ever. And, who knows, the West may some day need the Krupp industrial complex. Such are the fortunes of war — and peace.

On Job Risks

London Evening News

A man who tried to pay his restaurant check in Piccadilly reached into his pocket and pulled out a live snake as well as several pound notes. Panic resulted. When order had been restored the diner explained he was working as a snake charmer in a nearsby theatre. He had forgotten he had the snake in his dressing room.

Reds No Help To Blue Baby
Vancouver Province

David Paul Johnson of Philadelphia, a railroad worker, went to Russia because he thought Russian medical care was far advanced and he would be treated as sustained for one of his young sons, a "blue baby." He has returned, a disappointed man.

There was one short examination by Soviet doctors, but apparently no sign of adequate medical care. In a week, he had used up his funds. He returned to the United States. "I have made an exceptionally big mistake," he said.

Johnson says it took him only 10 minutes to see how badly he had been misled. The people he saw were illiterate, he said. He saw the Soviet Union as "an evil, bad thing."

This is a view of Russia from the inside. Here was no coddled tourist being shepherded from one to the other countries with a determination to retain pre-conceived theories.

David Paul Johnson has another cause for gratitude that he realized his "tragic mistake." When he returned to the United States, the country that he had abandoned for Russia, he got his old job back and is solvent again.

BRAINS WERE MEANT TO BE USED

We live in an age when whether we want to or not we are being forced to think. Certain ages are like that. Other ages are not. Ours is one of the former. We have been put in the hands of any preceding generation. Success or failure is up to us today more than ever before.

This means that we have to use our minds. Psychologists assure us that even the most unerudite and learned only use a small portion of their brain power. Sometimes when we get dreadfully up against it we suddenly find ourselves capable of reason and resourcefulness which we never knew we possessed. But why wait for the crisis to bring this forth? Why not put it to constant use in life? Undoubtedly they are the ones who feel the greatest joy in living, who see life as it really is, who learn how to put two and two together, find out why a thing is stupid, no account person comes to occupy a position of trust and to have considerable influence, but not often. The general public is kind to fools. They know who uses his brains and who doesn't. Hide your "brain," as the youngsters say, for the Creator has given you one.

THE PACKSACK
By GREGORY CLARK

The population explosion that has been talked about in recent years is most apparent to those people who thought they had a lovely little hideaway in a summer home or cabin, situated lake in the backwoods. There are no backwoods any more. Roads, aircraft, radio and TV have eliminated the backwoods.

I heard an amusing discussion between two friends at lunch.

"My grandfather," declared one heatedly, "had the gumption sixty or seventy years ago to explore the north country and find an ideal little lake on which to build a summer home where we have enjoyed now, three generations of us, ever since. He had to take a train six hours, then hire a farmer and a team of horses to get his family into the wilderness abode. All the building materials, to last a decade subsequently all the supplies, had to come by that tortuous route. If there was an illness in a child, ten hours to reach our doctor, cottage-less by now."

"Yes," said he, "all you need is the gumption your grandfather had, and go prospecting for a new summer hideaway, a few hundred miles north, some place that takes you ten hours to get there.

"Well," said he, "all you need is the gumption your grandfather had, and go prospecting for a new summer hideaway, a few hundred miles north, some place that takes you ten hours to get there.

Austin Watkin, Mother, Repeat Hyde Winners

The first repeat winner of the C. L. Hyde and Son Trophy for lawn bowling occurred on Saturday at the local greens, when Mrs. Anne Watkin and her son, Austin Watkin, emerged victorious after three tough games against keen competition. All the more remarkable about the win was the fact that Austin Watkin has returned to lawn bowling after an absence of two years. This was his second tournament of the year but he has lost none of his skill and his mother was deadly as his partner. They were presented with the trophy and replicas for the senior member of the Hyde firm, Mr. C. L. Hyde, who in his day was a real good bowler and who has never lost interest in the pastime. The prizes were all of excellent quality and mostly electric.

Another Belleville rink of Walter Elliott were close behind Mrs. Thelma Fitzgibbon and her second place, while Harold and Stella Buck of Kingston were in third place, Harold is a former baseball player in the old CORL while Stella is an old Belleville girl being the daughter of Peter McDonald. As usual, Mr. and Mrs. Horace Ormshaw of Trenton got into the act with fourth place in the three-game high category.

Tom and Mary Bruce of Kingston headed the two-game winners, while George "Fiber" McGee and his partner, Mrs. Grace Clapp, were in second place. George Free and Mrs. Georgia Maybee of Campbellford were the high one-game winners with Eddie Dennison and Mrs. Vi Matthews of Kingston in second place.

There were 33 rinks in play and they enjoyed playing on the fastest greens the local club has ever had. The greens were a credit to the greenskeeper, Charles Matthews, and the greens chairman, Dorg Rowe. Many remarks were made of the excellence of the greens. Sure some of them were tricky but no one could complain of the fastness. All one had to do was drop the bowl and blow on it and it was quickly to the other end. The visitors were loud in their praise of the careful grooming the greens had been given. The weather was delightful, the competition keen, the hospitality excellent and the refreshments served by the women's section splendid. It was a fine tournament and there are more to come.

Veterans Enjoy Sports Program, 500 on Hand

Twenty of the 28 units in the Ontario Provincial Command of the Army, Navy and Air Force Veterans Association, participated in the Provincial Command Sports Meet, in Belleville, Saturday. About 500 men turned out.

This year was the second the event, annual since 1946, has been hosted by Belleville's Unit 201. Last year it was held in Hamilton, next year it will be in Lakeview. Sports chairman for the meet was Stan Melbourne. Charley Featherstone, Provincial sports secretary, assisted. The sports committee included Dick Burns, Hank Ford, Percy Kelly, Ted Mowers and Bill Salter.

The darts championship was won by Kitchener in a "story book finish." B. Montague of Kitchener was matched against E. Vanacker of Simcoe, bolder of several championships, in the final throw, with, 70 points to make up. He made the total in two long-shot throws, bringing Kitchener into the lead.

N. Hughes won the billiards for Kitchener. The Simcoe team took the euchre, Parkdale took cribbage, and L. Cardinal took the snooker for the Toronto team. Final event of the day, horseshoes, went to the Lambton team.

Judges for the meet were C. Webber, D. Burns, S. Melbourne and A. Taylor. The final event of the day was a non-competitive dance, featuring bagpipes and drum supplied by No. 201 Unit.

building a new Algeria.

Through Dr. Chewki Mostefai, leading representative of the National Liberation Front and a member of the provisional Algerian executive, the Moslem nationalists promised an amnesty for the Secret Army terrorists who have killed an estimated 2,000 Moslems in the year or more than they have been operating. European soldiers were promised a new future in the Moslem-led Algeria that will emerge from a referendum July 1.

Details of the agreement still have to be worked out. The Secret Army broadcast called on the terrorist commandos to remain vigilant while holding their fire. "We have been cheated many times in the past," the announcer said.

DE GAULLE APPROVES

At Montbeliard, France, tour- ing President de Gaulle called the announcement "a decisive step for an agreement between the two communities, Moslem and Christian."

Weary and tense Europeans were uncertain as to what attitude they should adopt.

Some felt Mostefai's announcement was not enough. They wanted a pledge by the nationalist government in exile in Tunis, the future masters of Algeria.

But there was no immediate statement from the Tunis leaders. This could be interpreted either as a sign that they considered Mostefai's statement sufficient or that they did not wish to engage themselves more formally for fear of opposition from the Moslem masses.

F. Burrowes Wins Opening Yacht Race

Yesterday afternoon the brisk wind which swept across the Bay of Quinte provided just the right touch for some exciting sailing for the first race of the season for local sailboat racing buffs.

A large field was not evident at the start of the event, however with none of the keel class boats present, and the race settled out to be a hardfought duel between two O'Day class centreboard craft skippered by George Haggis and Freeman Burrowes.

Haggis was first across the starting line with a minute and 45 seconds lead over the Burrowes boat. The course extended from just off the harbor entrance blinker buoy to a marker buoy off the Deloro Stellite plant fence over to a point just off Cedar Island then a long leg back to round a buoy near the bridge on Baybridge Road and finally back to the start-finish line.

Despite their late start the Burrowes' crew managed to gain steadily on Haggis, whose crew experienced some difficulty shortly after the start in getting his new spinnaker up. The delay proved to be costly as the one and Burrowes overtook the class leader on the second leg and slowly gained second upon second in a tacking session along the third leg, to round the final mark a scant few minutes ahead of Haggis.

The race, which was the first of the season for the Bay of Quinte Yacht Club championship, was timed and conducted by the Royal Canadian Sea Cadet Corps "Quinte," whose ship served as committee boat.

CANADA VOTES

The other two leaders, T. C. Douglas, 57, of the New Democrats and Robert Thompson, 44, of Social Credit, scanned the them that the two old parties had run failures in office and that fresh policies were needed by Ottawa.

The four leaders barnstormed chiefly by air, running up big air mileages and often jumping overnight from one end of the country to the other.

Closing figures of the campaigns centred on Ontario and Quebec which have 139 of the seats—excluding deferred woodcock and hold the key to power.

The government looked to traditionally - Conservative Ontario, with 85 seats, for the core of its strength. The province has given the Conservatives a majority of its seats in 18 out of 24 elections and in 1958 elected 67 Conservatives, 16 Liberals and three CCF.

The Liberals had high hopes in Quebec which four years ago went Conservative for the first time since 1930, giving Mr. Diefenbaker 50 seats and the Liberals 35. The other parties were shut out.

WEST HAS 54 SEATS

There are 70 seats in the four western provinces. The Conservatives swept the West in 1958, winning all 14 seats in Manitoba, all 17 in Alberta, 17 out of 19 in Saskatchewan and 18 of the 22 in British Columbia. The CCF collected the other five.

It was much the same story in the 11 ridings of the Atlantic region. Conservatives took Nova Scotia's 12 and Prince Edward Island's four. New Brunswick picked seven Conservatives and three Liberals. Newfoundland gave the Liberals a 5-2 edge, the only province to resist the national sweep.

The far-north ridings of Yukon and Northwest Territories were split by the Conservatives and Liberals. The N.W.T. seat, then called Mackenzie River, was the only Liberal victory west of Ontario.

Simon Bowers Drowns When Boat Capsizes

A 76-year-old Bancroft man, Simon Bowers, was drowned early Saturday evening, when his boat capsized on Island Lake, about five miles south of Bancroft.

Provincial Police at Bancroft said Mr. Bowers was taking some friends to his cottage on Island Lake when the accident occurred.

Mr. Bowers was believed to have been taking Mr. and Mrs. Jerome Sless of Toronto, and an unidentified child and man, to the cottage. They were pulled to safety.

Coroner Dr. O. W. Anderson pronounced Mr. Bowers dead at the scene and an inquest has been ordered.

A widower, Mr. Bowers, leaves a son and two daughters.

Conservation Area Popular

The Col. Roscoe Vandervecr Conservation Area, along the banks of the Moira River near Thomasburg, was a popular picnic spot for Belleville and district residents over the weekend.

Not only were there Scouting activities at the Scout camp at the entrance to the Area, but another 150 cars were admitted to the main conservation area.

Gateman at the entrance to the Area said Sunday was the biggest day enjoyed so far.

The mishap was investigated by Provincial Police constable H. W. Brown of the Bancroft detachment.

Town Engineer Dismissed On Recorded Council Vote

PICTON — At a special meeting of town council Friday night, the services of the town engineer, Herb Gray, were dispensed with on a recorded vote. Only dissenter was Councillor Andrew Jarvis.

Mr. Gray charged in a statement that council gave him instructions which conflicted with his conception of duty.

The engineer specifically mentioned the building of the Spencer St. extension on property owned by Mayor H. J. McFarland, this being built to accommodate a new industry, Proctor-Silex Ltd.

"My attitude is that my duty is to serve the true interests of the ratepayers of Picton. I can not accomplish this when their elected officials instructions do not conflict with this conception of duty," Mr. Gray wrote.

"In my judgment the road to the new plant, having been constructed on the owner's property at his direction and for the development of his interest, cannot be the object of reimbursement by the use of public funds."

Mr. Gray read press reports announcing purchase of the property and then one about the Ontario government deciding it should not pay a grant towards the cost, leaving it to the town.

"My employers are the people of the town. I have neither the desire nor inyself in the submission of a form required of me at council meeting on June 11, to wit, a request for supplementary grants from the Highway Department for the Spencer Street extension," the statement concluded.

Council approved a supplementary by-law which listed the estimate of $18,300 for the Spencer St. extension.

While members of council praised Mr. Gray as an engineer they were critical of his lack of co-operation with the street committee and council. Committee chairman Randolph Clapp said Mr. Gray would not even speak to him. "It is my opinion this stems from an intense dislike of the mayor and his company," Mr. Clapp said.

"The engineer is seeking public sympathy," charged Deputy Reeve Barney Hepburn.

Mayor McFarland said the property involved was worth $50,000 and was given in industry in order to get it here.

"If the street is going to cost taxpayers a cent, I will give it to the town," the Mayor stated.

Solicitor R. Nourse stated the town was getting a bargain.

It was pointed out taxes from the new industry will mean $5,000 to the town.

"I'm willing to go to the people on this matter," said the mayor and Councillor Clapp and Dep. Reeve Hepburn offered to resign.

The street committee was given a vote of confidence on their action.

Councillor Jarvis said council's action may end its relationship with Mr. Gray but "this may not be the end of the situation." He did not elaborate.

YOU HAVE A HAND IN THINGS CANADIAN
when you own Life Insurance

Surprising? Yes—but true. Like most people, you have probably thought of your life insurance as protection for your family —as a good way to save money regularly —as a valuable collateral if you need a loan for an emergency.

Actually, your life insurance dollars are more than an investment in your personal security and your family's. These dollars are also an investment in Canada. They stimulate growth and progress and help make this country a better place in which to live and work.

At this moment, 9 BILLION DOLLARS of life insurance savings are invested in important Canadian enterprises — through the purchase of bonds and stocks and through mortgages.

These hard-working dollars are helping to finance great projects all over this country such as pipelines, shopping centres, bridges and highways, homes, apartment and office buildings, schools, factories, industrial plants and power developments. These investments create employment opportunities, too.

The income from these investments benefits you directly, by reducing the cost of life insurance to you and the 9 million other Canadian policyowners.

Congregation Entertains Pastor, Wife

Last Wednesday evening the congregation of Holloway Street United Church, entertained in honor of the Reverend C. W. and Mrs. Coleman. The occasion was the 25th ordination anniversary of Mr. Coleman to the ministry, and also the 25th anniversary of their marriage.

The church was beautifully decorated with pink and white peonies for this special event, with the Reverend O. Wager acting as chairman for the evening, which included musical selections given by Mrs. C. Reid which were greatly appreciated.

Mr. L. Digby, clerk of session, paid tribute to Mr. Coleman's 25 years as minister in the United Church, and Mr. R. Scott presented him with a briefcase. Tribute was also paid by Mr. G. R. Gobbe to Mr. and Mrs. Coleman's 25th wedding anniversary, and Mrs. H. Dixon presented them with a sterling silver rose bowl.

The Reverend Alexander McDowell, of Eastminster United Church, who was ordained at the same time as Mr. Coleman, brought greetings on behalf of the Presbytery. The Reverend Harry M. Davis, the Reverend M. G. McFarlane and the Reverend R. Veasey also brought greetings from the various United Churches in Belleville.

WRIGHT — PATRICK

FRANKFORD — Frankford Full Gospel Tabernacle was the scene of a lovely double-ring wedding ceremony on Saturday, May 26, at high noon, when the Rev. Percy Speqing united in marriage Helen Margaret Patrick, only daughter of Mrs. Mary Patrick and the late Mr. Bert Smith Patrick of Frankford, to Charles Albert Wright, only son of Mr. and Mrs. Percival Wright of Belleville, R. R. 2, Ontario.

The church was decorated with baskets of pink snapdragons and baby white 'mums and satin bows on the guest pews. The home decorations were pink and white streamers and pink and white bells.

The traditional wedding music was played by Mrs. Gordon Smith. The soloist was Miss Beverley Wannamaker, cousin of the bridegroom, who sang "O Perfect Love" before the ceremony and "Together with Jesus" during the signing of the register.

Given in marriage by her uncle, the Rev. Reg. Solmes of Brownsburg, Quebec, the bride was radiant in her floor length bridal gown of French lace with satin and lace bouffant skirte, tapering to a train of French lace. The bodice featured lace appointed sleeves and scalloped neckline. Her shoulder length veil was caught up with a princess tiara crown. Her only jewellery was a string of cultured pearls and she carried a cascade of pink Sweetheart roses and lily-of-the-valley.

Her attendants, Miss Gladys Brenton of Corbyville, was maid of honor, Miss Gail Walker of Tamworth, and Miss Lois Wright of Belleville, R.R. 2, sister of the bridegroom, were bridesmaids. All were attired in street length dresses of rayon taffeta with boat neckline and three-quarter sleeves and full skirts. They wore over-the-face veils with white accessories and carried cascades of baby white 'mums centred with pink roses.

The groomsman was Mr. Gordon Smith of Frankford, and the ushers were Mr. Arden Wannamaker of Trenton, Ontario, and Mr. Paul McInroy of Peterborough, Ontario, cousins of the bridegroom.

The reception was held in the lower church auditorium, decorated with pink and white streamers and pink and white bells and, vases of pink and white gladioli. The bride's table was spread with a white linen cloth, centred with a three-tier wedding cake, topped with love birds and wedding rings, pink and white candles in candelabra and pink and white streamers added the nuptial accent.

The bride's mother received the guests wearing a street-length sheath of lace over blue taffeta with wide cummerbund and peplum, with white orchids and corsage of pink carnations. She was assisted by the bridegroom's mother wearing a two-piece sheath of beige silk brocade, beige accessories, green flowered hat and corsage of pink carnations.

For the wedding trip to Washington, D.C., and points south, the bride chose a blue sheath with matching three-quarter length coat, white accessories and corsage of white carnations.

Guests were present from Quebec; Kitchener; Penetang; Oshawa; Peterborough; Campbellford; Belleville; Trenton; Stirling; and Stockdale.

The happy couple are residing at 128 East Moira St., Belleville, Ontario.

Prior to her marriage, the bride was honored at a kitchen shower held at the home of Mrs. Gordon Smith, Frankford; at a church shower held in the Fellowship Hall in Belleville, by Calvary Temple ladies and a presentation given by co-workers at the Mead Johnson plant in Belleville where the bride is staff laboratory technician.

The waitresses at the reception were: Misses Connie Wood, Sandra Purvis, Mary Ella Grant, Carolyn Reichert, Gloria Reilly, and Kathleen Gunter, all friends of the bride.

U.B.C. Operates Nursery School and Kindergarten

VANCOUVER (CP) — The youngest students at the University of British Columbia are a group of children who travel daily from throughout the Greater Vancouver area to a kindergarten and nursery school operated by the college education.

"A laboratory of human behavior" is the way the child study centre is described by Mrs. Charles Borden, its director.

From UBC's standpoint, the centre "is valuable" in that it gives students of education, medicine, psychology, social work and nursing opportunity to observe child behavior "at a time when it can best be studied —when a child's personality is developing."

The parents who pay to send their youngsters to the centre recognize other advantages. The children are enjoying a satisfying educational experience.

For example, they're taught about the food they eat, by each watching plants growing in a garden and by touring wholesale food distributors and bakeries. They also learn natural science, crafts and social skills.

The observation periods don't bother them. "They get used to it and carry on as if they (the observers) weren't there," says Mrs. Borden.

And to illustrate the popularity of the centre, next year's classes are already booked up.

Young Couple Feted by Congregation

A most enjoyable evening was spent, recently, by the congregation of the Alliance Church when they met in the lower auditorium to honor two of the members, Miss Otte de Rondet and Mr. Bob Schnitzler, whose marriage takes place on June 30.

Mr. Bill Rodberg was chairman for the evening. The hymn singing was led by Judson Rae after which Mr. Harold Ward led in prayer.

Miss Terrchea Alyea showed a series of pictures, both slides and movies, of the recent Jubilee Council of the Christian and Missionary Alliance, held in Miami, Florida, and also pictures of interesting places such as the well-known Seaquarium, Parrot Jungle and beauty spots in Florida.

Mr. Bill Rodberg made the presentation to the honored guests. The gifts were enclosed in a large windmill which had been attractively made by Mrs. G. Freeman, Mrs. A. Chumbley and Mrs. B. Rodberg. The bride and bridegroom-to-be both expressed their sincere thanks for all the lovely gifts, and thanked the people for the wonderful fellowship they had enjoyed since coming to the church.

Refreshments were served at the close of the evening and Mr. Wilbur Leonard said the grace.

Those assisting in serving were Mrs. W. Rodberg, Mrs. P. Allan, Mrs. J. Lumley, Mrs. G. Freeman, Mrs. C. Ackerman, Mrs. A. Chumbley and Mrs. H. Sheldon.

Something New Added

By TRACY ADRIAN

Though this bathing cap looks like any well-made modern style, it has two most important features. One is that it neatly keeps the hair dry while swimming and diving and, two, is comfortable on the head and does not crease the forehead.

The secret is a specially designed soft water seal band all around the inside. It deepens back of the ears where water seeps in easiest. This is really a boon with the intricate hairdos that are so popular this season.

Logging Camp Women Well Trained Firemen

PORT ALBERNI, B.C. (CP) —When the siren sounds at Franklin River, the ladies of the volunteer fire brigade spring into action.

Six of them dash for the fire hydrant line in their married quarters section of the small Vancouver Island logging community. The other four head for the brigade's 1946-model flame-red firetruck.

And, say the men at the MacMillan, Bloedel and Powell River logging camp, the girls are expert firefighters.

The brigade was organized in 1953 to protect the camp while the men are scattered at logging operations as far as 25 miles away.

The members wear red caps, blue jackets, red waterproof pants, white scarves, gloves and high rubber boots.

Pat Harris, the chief and twice a grandmother, wears the brightly painted helmet she received when she joined the brigade at its founding.

"We got a big kick out of it," says Mrs. Harris, "and at the same time we really feel we're doing something worthwhile for the camp."

With the help of the company fire marshal, Mrs. Harris has trained her crews in how to fight various kinds of fires, use extinguishers and hose, assuring a fireman's axe and keep equipment in condition.

Mrs. Ann Hagenouw, who came to Canada from Apeldam, drives the truck and the other women say she reverts to her native Dutch for the proper expression when the truck gets stuck in the mud.

The ladies have answered six real alarms in nine years—they saved a house but the camp school burned to the ground. At other times the children keep things interesting by turning in the occasional false alarm.

WORKS ON A DOME?

BERLIN (AP) — Max Riemann, leader of the banned Communist party of West Germany, said Sunday the West German government is working feverishly to develop a German nuclear bomb. He told a Communist meeting in East Berlin that the Bonn government had set up a secret nuclear center at Juelich, in the Eifel Mountains.

"Mr., Mrs. Tournament" Is Golf Club Success

There is one thing that can be said about the ladies of the Bay of Quinte Country Club. On "Father's Day" they are excellent "mothers."

At the annual "Mr. and Mrs. Tournament" golf event today, the mothers took over, with some help from the males) and the results were one of the best tourneys in years.

Some 54 couples from five district clubs played over a sun-drenched course under near-perfect golfing conditions, albeit some greens were a trifle "dry."

The host club took the major share of the wins and handed some awards. Quinte couples and individuals won 14 of the 18 awards with Meadow of Trenton RCAF Golf Clubs winning two each.

The major award, the tournament championship and the Wilson Concrete Trophy, was won by Mr. and Mrs. Stan Armstrong of Quinte who carded a low net of 62.

Second low net went to Mr. and Mrs. Earl Peacock, RCAF with a 72 with Mr. and Mrs. Hopwood—Jones, Quinte taking third with a 74. Fourth and fifth low nets were carded by Marion Leader and Mrs. Dan Cuthbertson, RCAF, 74 and Dr. and Mrs. Ron McPherson, Napanee, 75.

Mr. and Mrs. Val Smith carded the first low gross score of 89 followed by Mr. and Mrs. Mac White with a 90. Turning in scores of 91's were Mr. and Mrs. Spence Wonnacott, Mr. and Mrs. Alex Ingram and Dr. and Mrs. Earle MacDonald.

Don Stanton won the putting award with his 31 with Stan Waddington, Napanee second with a 32.

Jack Belanger took the hidden ball prize and Mr. and Mrs. Ray Michaud won the consolation. Mrs. Charles Taylor and Steve Bowerman won the closest-to-pins prizes.

There were several door-prize draws.

The post-tournament dinner, a marked tribute to the culinary artistry of Mr. and Mrs. George Hogan, the club stewards, was followed by the presentations.

The tournament committee consisted of Norman Steve and Mrs. Joy Bowerman, Mr. and Mrs. Don Lunn, Mr. and Mrs. Dan Mahoney and Mr. and Mrs. Jack Diamond.

In a gracious "Father's Day" gesture, the ladies waived the assistance of their committee partners and conducted the presentation ceremonies.

Mrs. Bowerman announced the winners and distribution was made by Mesdames Lunn, Mahoney and Diamond.

The special presentation of the Wilson Concrete Trophy to the tournament winners was made by Mr. Peter Acton representing the donors.

Bay of Quinte Club president G. H. "Bud" Trill extended the official welcome to the out-of-town guests. He noted the tournaments were growing better every year and extended his congratulations to the winners.

Representatives of the visiting clubs, Picton, Trenton, Napanee and RCAF, paid individual tributes to the excellence of the tournament and the hospitality of the host club.

Tribute was also paid to the Quinte Club professional George Balazs for the fine condition of the course by the "tournamentants" Miss Barbara Graham and Mrs. Jim Ketcheson, and to the stewards, Mr. and Mrs. Hogan for excellence of the tournament dinner.

Mrs. P.W. — Because of a slight blemish she won't go anywhere.

Rima W. — Why parade these ugly blotches? I'll go to a doctor, by hook or crook, before the...

Mrs. P.W. — When I received a notice from the P.T.A. that the students were going to offer a debate on Nuclear Testing at the next meeting, I was sure Rima would be one of the participants. She's the outspoken events reporter on the high school paper and has written a series of articles on the Geneva conference and other talks about the topic.

But it's the same old story. She has a faint "strawberry mark" on one cheek and she thinks nobody looks at any other part of her but that. As a child she didn't mind it. We called it "an angel's kiss." When she grew self-conscious about it, I bought her a cosmetic that made it, like magic, become mixing a little more lately, so I thought the problem was solved. But now she's again backing down from group activities. She's not a competitive person and she's letting her imagination make too much of a slight imperfection.

Rima W. — My mother implies blunt. Maybe all fond parents are. I'm 18 years old and in a high school where beauty took is more important than what you know, how you feel, how you act or anything else. And what my mother calls a slight imperfection is very obvious at 8:1 it's the map of Australia around the eye. That people who bought me just make it all the more conspicuous.

Even though my folks think it's nothing, and I should forget about it, it's on my mind constantly. I went to go to a skin specialist about it. But years ago some doctor told my mother as it would get lighter and fade, so she won't listen to anyone else. It's no lighter, it spoils my appearance, and if I can't get rid of it I certainly won't walk around displaying it.

That's why I backed out of the debate in school. I'll be in the audience.

The Council: Fond parents aren't blind, Rima. It's the "nonfonds" who are. The fond ones see a teenager's pain and try to struggle it in practical, commonsense ways. We think your mother has done this. But we also think she's ready to try a more serious approach in view of your growing distress and frustration. Another business fix the moves to the calls.

Parents of any teenager suffer not only from him, but for him and with him. Much of our suffering comes from the handicap frustration of not being able to do anything to help him. So when one of the brats may come from inside himself, from his emotions and sensitivity. But no one, type of worry — the teenager's appearance, his health and growing — it never may safely enlist outside aid to help the youngster follow through.

Rima's obsession about her face may be unhealthy, but it's typical of many adolescents, dermatological problems. But since more and more specialists these days are psychiatrically oriented — that is, aware of the psychological factors operating in the conditions they treat — a visit to one good skin man may suffice. That "map" Rima describes is called a "cutaneous hemangioma" and we read of successful cases. The Children's Hospital, such blemishes by tattooing. Teenagers are reported so impressed that they plunge into school and social activities after one or two treatments. The only drawback to make is that Rima's anguish can probably be eased by another path front, and we urge Mrs. W. to get busy in that direction.

As to the emotional restoration necessary for Rima's participation in teenage treatments, we think it's a do-it-herself possibility. Once her outer appearance is more comfortable, she can summon her inner beauty, her zest, insight and interests to complete her attractiveness.

Mr., Mrs. Dennis Kehoe Mark 40 Years of Married Life

On June 10, Mr. and Mrs. Dennis Kehoe were honored on the occasion of their 40th wedding anniversary by a turkey dinner held for them by their family in the parish hall.

During the afternoon they received many friends and relatives, also in the parish hall.

They were the recipients of many gifts including a five-piece chrome suite by their son.

Mr. and Mrs. Kehoe were married on June 5th, 1922, in St. Charles Borromeo Church at Bond, Ont., and were attended by Mrs. Bridget Walsh and the late Mr. Peter Enright. Mrs. Kehoe was the former Kathleen Enright.

Both Mr. and Mrs. Kehoe have been active in church work with Mrs. Kehoe being a member of the Catholic Women's League and the Altar Society. Mr. Kehoe is a member of the Holy Name Society and the Knights of Columbus.

They are the parents of six sons; including Gerald, of Belleville, Director of Read, Terry of Toronto, Francis of Oshawa and Kenneth, of Kingston, the sixth son, Vincent, is deceased. There are also 19 grandchildren.

Says Church Fails Children Should Enlarge Horizons

VANCOUVER (CP) — The church doesn't seem to be doing much to help youth meet the changing situations confronting it, says a senior high school counselor.

"Neither the church nor we, the parents, are giving young-sters the help we had as children," says Mrs. Shaw Thompson, mother of two teenagers.

"We should be inculcating in the young certain moral attitudes as a basis on which to live a place of, physical skills.

"As a result, youngsters' young people for jobs that may vastly different from those trained for them. Automation is removing jobs done for years by persons as bank employees and telephone operators."

The Delbrook Senior High School counsellor said she feels the church could be a great help in enabling youth to test its ideas against reality.

"Our attitudes of older men and women could give them an opportunity to share in some of the problems without embarrassment or fear of criticism."

The church should also help enlarge the horizons of youth, she thinks. Then, they would be able to see the problems of the world's children as parallel to those of Christian children.

"It's shocking in these swift-moving times to find that small children have no idea of the ethics of civilizations other than their own."

Women's Activities

BY, ANDREW'S W.M.S.

Mrs. M. W. Barlow, president, opened the June meeting of the Women's Missionary Society of St. Andrew's Presbyterian Church, with the reading of a poem appropriate to the season, "Vacation" and extended also her personal good wishes for a happy holiday season to all members, this being the last meeting until September.

The subject of study, begun at the May meeting, dealing with Presbyterian Church Work, was continued by Mrs. R. E. Jones and Miss H. Blair, with Mrs. R. Boyce acting as leader. Some of the solutions suggested to problems currently being discussed were reviewed from the notes of the secretary. These, together with other suggestions, presented as having been found useful, were dealt with by the group in charge in a concise and interesting fashion. They were listened to with keen insight by the many facets of the "downtown" church and its problems, with some solutions.

At the conclusion of the study period Mrs. Boyce introduced a piano trio consisting of Lynn Williamson, Janis Cook and Iona MacLean, who brought considerable delight to listeners by their presentations as a trio as well as in solo numbers.

VISITS COUNTRY HOME!

The president made reference to the visitation to Hastings County Home when 15 members of the WMS had visited there during the week of June 3rd, and what a pleasure it had been to do so.

She also referred to the successful garden party held last at Amherst Island on May 31, Mrs. Vernon Weir gave a short resume of its highlights.

Mrs. O. J. Reed gave a full report of the Synodical meeting held in April in Victoria Church in Toronto, to which she was a delegate with Mrs. T. Weir and Mrs. W. H. V. Walker.

The welcome and welfare committee, Mrs. Yorke and Mrs. Kane reported 36 calls made on shut-in members of the congregation. These with calls reported by other members of the Auxiliary made a total of 52.

"ANNIVERSARY BOOK"

The 10th anniversary of the Women's Missionary Society (Western Division) of the Presbyterian Church in Canada, will be held in Montreal in May, 1906. To mark this occasion an "Anniversary Book," has been designed for the purpose of giving to everyone within the Society, from other women and men, teenagers and children in the congregations, and friends outside of the Presbyterian Church, an opportunity to enter his or her name in the book. There will also be special "In Remembrance" pages.

The "Key Woman" in charge of the "Anniversary Book" is Mrs. Jean Andrew's Church, Belleville, is Mrs. J. R. Dimmond, who advised she will send out forms / at the September meeting. It is suggested that anyone wishing to enter their own or someone's else name in the book should contact Mrs. Diamond early in the fall season as this work is to be completed by the end of December 1962.

All the pages from all the congregations will be bound in a book which will be presented at the Centenary celebration in 1964, and carefully preserved as a part of the history of the Society.

Mrs. M. W. Barlow was chosen as delegate to attend the W.M.S. training course at Albert College July 9-13. Any members may attend the evening sessions.

Mrs. D. MacLean announced a coffee party to be held by the Evening Auxiliary of the W.M.S. in the home of Mrs. G. R. Cameron on Wednesday, September 26th. In soliciting the support of the Afternoon Group, Mrs. MacLean pointed out that the money raised is to be used to help the Auxiliary continue to meet its obligation assumed sometime ago to supply funds for the education of a young and worthy Christian girl in India and is a special endeavor outside of their usual missionary work.

Sugarless Strawberry Jam

by Mary Moore

I am tempted to ask for a little sympathy or "just a kind word". I'm feeling persecuted because I have been doing experiments on strawberry jam without sugar for my diabetic friends. There are 12 little jars of strawberry jam in my refrigerator. There have been domestic errors.

At long last, after many working hours and much concentration, I have one which I think these hungry folk will enjoy on their morning toast.

MONDAY

Dinner Menu

Chilled Vegetable Juice; Cabbage Rolls; Frenched Green Beans; Carrot Dice; Lemon Sponge Roll; Coffee.

SUGARLESS STRAWBERRY JAM

(Created for diabetic patients).

Two cups mashed fresh best-quality strawberries (see below), 4 teaspoons gum tragacanth powder, 1/8 teaspoon citric acid, 1-16 teaspoon salt, ½ teaspoon red food coloring.

In a grater under running cold water wash the berries, I bought and used 1 quart but it was a generous quart. Pat them dry. Mash them in a flat-bottomed pan. Measure 2½ cups. Remove ¼ cup and into it stir the gum tragacanth, (Buy this at the drug store. It cost me 35c for 1 oz.) in powder form. It is your thickening and it is tasteless and edible gum.) When well mixed, stir this paste into the remaining mashed berries. Add the sugary tablets as directed. Stirring until sugary tablets have dissolved and jam is boiling — this takes about 5 minutes. Add the red food coloring, boil up for a minute. Pour into sterile pint jam jars and seal with melted paraffin, adding second coating when first is cold. Cover with lids.

Special note: This sugarless jam should not be trusted to keep without refrigeration. Store it in the refrigerator all the time, it has a lovely fresh taste and color.

PEADY'S RHUBARB AND BANANA BETTY

The following may not be a new idea to home-style girls but it is to this family. We mixed fresh rhubarb and fresh bananas in a betty. We think it is excellent.

1 cup sugar, ¾ teaspoon cinnamon, ¼ teaspoon nutmeg, ½ teaspoon salt, 1 cup packaged dry breadcrumbs or 1½ cups soft fresh breadcrumbs, 4 cups finely chopped rhubarb, 2 sliced underripe bananas, ¼ cup water, 4 tablespoons butter (¼ cup).

Mix together the sugar, spices and salt. Butter a medium casserole and into it put 1-3 of the crumbs, then ½ the combined rhubarb and bananas. Sprinkle these with ½ of the sugar mixture. Repeat. Pour water over. Sprinkle with the remaining crumbs. Dot generously with the butter. Cover and bake at 350 deg. Fahr. for 1¼ hours.

Another delicious variation of a "betty" is to use some pre-portions as above but use fresh sour cherries instead of rhubarb.

PLEDGE AID !

UNITED NATIONS (CP)— The United Nations technical assistance board pledged Canada governments pledged a record $41,380,000 in 1961 to help developing nations. This was an increase of $7,700,000 over the previous year. The board said, however, it must get an additional $5,000,000 to keep pace yearly to meet demands expected to pile up during the UN development decade ending in 1970.

SPEAKING of MANNERS

PATRICIA LEWIS.

MEATNESS IS REALLY A NECESSITY

Neatness is always an asset. In some instances, it even improves manners.

Take an ordinary thing like a handbag, for example. If it were kept in apple-pie order, instead of crammed with confusion, courtesy would take a rapid turn for the better.

I wish I had a nickel for every time I've been kept cooling my heels while the female in front of me fished frantically through her bag for change to put in a turnstile, parting the height of the rush-hour. (And a dime for every time I've had to wait outside a phone booth while the person inside turned her bag and a pocketful pandemonium trying to find the number she wanted to dial.

It would seem that the bigger the bag the more it's used for cold storage. At lunch recently, a friend thought she had lost her wallet and ransacked her bag while the rest of us patiently waited. As she pulled out the contents, we laughingly made an inventory.

So help me, it included two compacts, an odd pair of driving gloves, a pair of reading spectacles for the children, a bright bonnet of old bills from greengrocers, but the sort store's small, several unmatched safety pins, the top of her pen, a pierside raisin, several change, clippings of recipes, a crossword puzzle book. And, finally, away at the bottom, her wallet.

This gives a slight illustration of what the women have to plow through to find a particular item. It was amusing to us at the time, but an overnight bag is no laughing matter.

It isn't as when others are inconvenienced. Subway and bus drivers are annoyed when they have to wait while a bag is suspended in search of a fare. Shoppers get annoyed when a salesgirl is tied up while a customer hunts for her charge plate. Waiters get sullen when a diner her stand a seemingly endless search for the Diner's Club card she just knew she put in her bag that very morning.

I even got a bit of one in a cafe where an overstuffed pocketbook slowed up an otherwise happy marriage. A rising young executive was invited, with his wife, to dine at the home of his employer. Once on the highway, his wife hadn't find the directions instructions he had given her to put in her bag. By the time she had emptied it and found the paper nestled among some gum wrappers, they had gotten miles beyond the turn-o-f point and arrived at the party a half-hour late. Naturally, the boss wasn't impressed with their tardiness, and it took a while for his welcome (and the soup course) to warm up again.

So you can see that effect an makeup handbag can have on courtesy and good manners. A bad Summer's days makes an ideal time for visiting cupboards and giving all three a complete overhaul.

MAKE THE MOST OF SUMMER DAYS

Don't let "dog days" bite you.

There's nothing you can do about the weather on hot, humid days, so why not let the weather work for you?

When the temperature's soaring, who has enough stamina to wall paper a room or overhaul a closet? But by using whatever strength you can muster it's possible to do a few nonstaying odd jobs — and then boost your morale.

For instance, instead of reclining in the shade and reaching for the umpteenth glass of cold lemonade, why not reach for a pencil and start working on your Christmas card list?

Like everyone else, you probably put this off each year until Santa is halfway down the chimney. And, like everyone else, you probably forget to send cards to faraway friends and relatives simply because you can't find their addresses in time.

What could be more refreshing on an oppressively hot day than sitting down with a big Thumbing through last year's cards might supply a much needed pick-me-up! Every friend of ours always makes up her Christmas list on the hottest day in Summer and, as a result, has a wide reputation for being extremely thoughtful. Everyone, from great-aunts on down, is carefully noted and remembered as she beats the heat by concentrating on Christmas.

Another friend actually looks forward to "dog days" so she can take a leisurely and well-rounded attitude on social correspondence. On these occasions she sits at her desk with the windows open wide and writes breezy answers to every letter that have been sitting in the top drawer for months. Notes, too, are cheerfully penned to friends who may be under the weather or just to those who haven't been in a long time to let them know they're fondly in mind.

Many women we know take advantage of the hot weather to regain to file away recipe clips and work out dinner menus for upcoming parties. A warm day is also a good time to take stock of age when you can take the time to do it, down and plan your lists. For once you can get a proper balance of personalities and temperaments. Avoid spoiled with too many introverts and too many extroverts.

In the final analysis the hair of a dog day might be just the remedy needed to brush up on your social graces. The idea is to work with the weather so it will work for you.

Issues of Unemployment, Devaluation of Dollar Main Points in Campaign

By JAMES NELSON

Canadian Press Staff Writer

The politicians, taking different lines of argument in the campaign for Canada's general election, say they are worried about your pocketbook.

With unemployment and the devalued Canadian dollar, the Liberals say, it's getting blacker and thinner, and a Liberal government, if elected, "get Canada moving forward again."

The Conservatives say that with increasing employment, growing foreign trade, and increasing resource development at home, your billfolds are bound to get fatter and fatter.

Liberal Leader Pearson, making his second bid to become prime minister, has concentrated most of the eight - week election campaign on the issues of unemployment and devaluation of the dollar.

Prime Minister Diefenbaker, seeking a third mandate in five years for the Progressive Conservative party, cites the increased number of persons employed and says the problem of high unemployment will be licked by this summer. He says devaluation affects only the external value of the Canadian dollar, and that it's still worth 100 cents domestically.

T. C. Douglas, national leader of the New Democratic Party, argues that neither old party can put more money in people's pockets unless they plan the economy on a socialistic pattern. He has promised that an NDP government would pay 60 per cent of the cost of medical care programs undertaken by the provinces.

Social Credit Leader Robert Thompson says too much of the country's money is absorbed in paying off debt and the interest on it. A Social Credit government formed by him would adopt the principle that anything that is physically possible can be made financially possible to avoid social debt.

Mr. Diefenbaker has repeatedly pointed to greatly increased federal government expenditures on social security and welfare as the groundwork treasuries—the latter, he says, being the real reason for the deficits his government has amassed.

The prime minister also campaigned on a program of carrying out Conservative commitment policies for the celebration of Canada's centennial in 1967.

SAYS IT'S FEARSOME

Mr. Pearson interpreted this as building on the foundations laid by the Conservatives in the last five years and said it was a fearsome prospect.

Keeping the dollar at 92½ cents in U.S. funds, announced May 2 by Finance Minister Fleming, was based upon how the Liberals as a government acknowledged that its financial policies created lack of confidence in Canada abroad.

Mr. Fleming recalled that the Liberals, before the campaign started, had promised to float the exchange rate from its premium and fixing it. The Liberals said later they thought the dollar should be at par with U.S. currency.

The devalued dollar means more and other markets abroad for Canadian goods, the government maintained. It also meant a big boost to the Canadian tourist industry, a greater earner of U.S. dollars than wheat.

SEE HIGHER PRICES

But the opposition parties looked on the other side of the coin. Devaluation, they all said, would mean higher prices for Canadians on their domestic purchases.

Unemployment was the oldest issue of the campaign but unlike many others which cropped up for short-lived periods and then disappeared, it continued strong to the end.

Almost on the eve of the big vote, the government reported that unemployment had dropped by 149,000 from April to May. The 336,000 total at mid-May, it said, represented 5.1 per cent of the labor force—lowest percentage for May since 1957.

The report came out at a time when the government was saying the unemployment problem would be licked by this summer. But other parties all promised virtual full employment would be achieved by their policies if the voters gave them a chance.

BORN FISHERMEN — Interest in fishing is as natural as breathing to the youngsters of Gloucester, Mass., a major port for more than 300 years. At one time it wasn't unusual for a lad to be taken to sea aboard a fishing schooner before he was in his teens. Today, most shipwrecks in which children were involved are still related by oldtimers. Gloucester Men Swap Yarns, Mourn the Days of Sails

By Joseph MacSween

GLOUCESTER, Mass (CP)—Every now and then the yarnspinners gossip because their voices were lost in the lonesome moaning and screaming seagulls.

Shoots were exchanged with fishermen on a jolly bit — preparing for a voyage in an atmosphere of sea smells so pungent they could be tasted.

It was a typical morning at the Fresh Seas wharf, beside the jetty from which Capt. Ben Pine used to take out his Colonial sloop. Capt. Angus Walters and the Lunenburg schooner Bluenose.

A possible revival of the North Atlantic fishermen's championship was the starting topic of conversation but it led to a discussion of this 300-year-old port's ancient ties with Canada's Atlantic provinces and lakes in the rich language of the sea.

So great has been the number of Canadians sailing from Gloucester that when a ban was placed on aliens in the Second World War the fishing fleet was all but crippled.

Such Nova Scotia — sounding names — all captains — as Archie McLeod, Alphonse Boudreau, Wallace Bruce and Anthony Searz cropped up repeatedly in the wharf conversation.

DRINK FISHERMEN

The drone of the diesel is much more familiar in Gloucester harbor than the sound of flapping canvas and swinging booms, and the veterans of sailing days say engine - driven ships are producing a pampered younger generation.

"There aren't even any drunk fishermen anymore — not the way they used to be," growled Capt. Colin S. Powers, Labrador, N.S., native and one - time crew member on the Columbia.

A plaque on a wharf shed tells how Howard Blackburn and his dory mate were separated from their schooner in a blizzard on 4 January morning in 1883 off Newfoundland.

Losing his mittens in the bitter cold, Blackburn carefully curled his fingers around the oars so they would freeze that way and rowed a day and a night to shore, his mate dead from exposure in the dory bow.

Blackburn later became a saloon keeper but made two solo voyages in sloops to Europe — minus fingers and toes, amputated after his Newfoundland ordeal.

Fisherman Freemans Fralich, about 85, spoke with Everett R. Poulter, 70, about an incident in the Grand Banks in 1928.

"I was below for a mug - up and was getting some of the trawls when I saw a boy asleep in his bunk, about nine years old. It was the first time I noticed him. His fist was clenched under his head and there was a tear on his cheek as he drowned.

"I said to a friend, it's an awful thing to bring a boy like that to sea. The salt water may get in his veins. Sorrow is the only thing that goes in the wake of a vessel. He will work hard. He will freeze. He will never go to school.

"Just as I got on deck, the liner trucks were anchored forward, and he walked right through. I went overboard, but the lumbers crushed down in the ice's'le and closed it off so nobody could get out. Perhaps the boy never knew what happened."

WARMING DRINK

"Nine out of 25 'os us were picked up. I was left with only clothes on my back but that didn't matter so long as I got a warming drink of rum.

"But I'll tell you something. To this day often I wake up in the middle of the night and I see that kid with his clenched fist and a salty tear on his cheek, and I still wonder what he was dreaming of."

"Mr. Fralich could be a fiction writer," a listener commented.

"It's no fiction," said harbor master Tony Freitas, 63. "I went with Ben Pine to tell the boy's mother. And it wasn't only the boy — his father died on the same boat."

Prime Minister Awaits Results In Prince Albert

By ROBERT RICE

PRINCE ALBERT, Sask. (CP) — John George Diefenbaker casts his vote today over two thousand miles from his home constituency of Prince Albert riding.

The Tory leader is the last of the party candidates to cast his ballot in what is described as the "day of decision" to herald a new deal for the Canadian people.

The last day of the election campaign started at 8:30 a.m. for the Thompsons and their children when TV crews arrived at their farm home southeast of here.

Mr. and Mrs. Thompson expect to vote about 9 a.m. today at a polling station in Pendale, about four miles from their home.

Mr. and Mrs. Thompson and their seven children—they have two others attending a school in Calgary—went to a Baptist church here Sunday morning. They had lunch at home and the Social Credit leader had a short relaxing lake of an a trip through the farming country where he was raised.

Their first visit was at a Salvation Army band concert at Island Lake where Mr. Thompson was circulated among the crowd shaking hands. He sought out old timers who were family friends for many years.

VISITS PARENTS

Children, campaign assistants and reporters were hustled off in cars to the home of Mr. Thompson's parents about 25 miles west of here. He left the vehicles behind when he travelled with his brother Howard, a wealthy farmer, to visit Social Credit party agents who will be at the polling stations.

The family later went back to Innisfail where 30 residents of the area's senior citizens' home here were waiting to meet them. Mr. and Mrs. Thompson led a sing-song and called on residents who were confined to their rooms.

Mr. Thompson ended his campaign by predicting the Social Credit party here "will hold a balance of power in a badly split Parliament. He appeared confident of personal victory.

This was Mr. Thompson's first bid for government office. He was elected leader of the Social Credit party in 1961 and since has stumped the country seeking a comeback of the party which won no seats in the 1958 general election.

He predicted a Social Credit sweep in Quebec and a gain of four or five seats in each of the Western provinces.

Socred Leader Spends Hectic Day in Riding

By JOHN MATTERS

RED DEER (CP) — Social Credit Leader Robert Thompson spent a hectic day Sunday tying up the loose ends of his campaign in Red Deer constituency.

The last day of the election campaign started at 8:30 a.m. for the Thompsons and their seven children when TV crews arrived at their farm home southeast of here.

Mr. and Mrs. Thompson expect to vote about 9 a.m. today at a polling station in Pendale, about four miles from their home.

NDP Chieftan To Cast Ballot In Regina City

By RUSSELL ELMAN

REGINA (CP) — New Democratic Party Leader T. C. Douglas planned an early work day to a neighborhood school to cast his ballot in what is described as the "day of decision" to herald a new deal for the Canadian people.

The 57-year-old former Saskatchewan CCF premier and his wife, Irma, were to take a short stroll to Davis School polling station at 9:30 a.m.

Making his first bid for election as NDP leader, he chartled a full day's workasheet of visits to polling stations and NDP campaign offices in Regina City riding.

Tonight, after the polls close at 8 p.m., he was to go to a ballroom in the Hotel Saskatchewan to keep track of the election returns.

In 1958 Regina City was won with a 12,033-vole majority by Progressive Conservative Ken Brunt, who is seeking re-election. Fred Johnson, Liberal, and Arthur E. Blakeney, Social Credit, also are running.

Saturday he drove 150 miles southwest to a picnic at Fife Lake. Some 1,000 men, women and children ate corn-on-the-cob, played baseball and went swimming.

Mr. Douglas spoke in support of NDP candidate Cecil Bailey, who is trying to replace former CCF-NDP House Leader Hazen Argue as MP for Assiniboia.

The NDP chieftain termed Mr. Argue's defection to the Liberals last February as a "betrayal."

ATTACKS ARGUE AGAIN

Saturday night in the south-east Saskatchewan city of Weyburn, which he has represented federally and provincially, Mr. Douglas also took Mr. Argue to task.

Before about 1,300 persons in the hockey rink, he denied an allegation by Mr. Argue that the NDP receives financial support from American unions.

"Not a single American dollar or trade unionist contributes to the NDP," Mr. Douglas declared.

The Weyburn rally, in which Mr. Douglas also elaborated on NDP farm policy, was preceded by a motorcade through the city and a buffet supper.

Liberal Leader Awaits Verdict At Ottawa Home

By ARCH MacKENZIE

OTTAWA (CP) — Final election-campaign shots fired, Liberal Leader Lester Pearson today for the country's answer. His first official election-day act was casting his own ballot, scheduled at about 9:45 a.m. in the constituency of Ottawa East, Liberal in the last Parliament.

His final declaration Saturday, capping a last busy day and a hard-driving eight-week campaign, was a bitter allegation that he had been subjected to "slanderous lying distortments" by Finance Minister Fleming. It was his strongest language of the campaign.

Mr. Fleming in Toronto Friday had made "some of the most slanderous statements one politician could make about another," Mr. Pearson told about 400 persons in the city hall of Ottawa's just across the Ottawa River.

"It shows how desperate they are," he said, referring to Mr. Fleming's assertion that Soviet Premier Khrushchev had calculated was his 21ith speech since beginning April 25 in Prince Edward Island.

Sunday, face burned by extra hours in bright sun, he relaxed with his wife, who had shared much of the campaign travels with him, at their cottage in the Gatineau area of Quebec's north-east, and Mr. Pearson's own constituency is Algoma East in Northern Ontario but he votes in Ottawa as a resident.

After voting today, he was scheduled to visit national Liberal party headquarters in downtown Ottawa to shake hands with staff members. Then he was willing all his allies in the Centre Block of the Parliament Buildings.

Most of the afternoon would be spent at his home, aides said, and Mr. Pearson would be at party headquarters for the night to welcome victory or his second attempt to become prime minister, accept defeat, or ponder the party course in the event that the 9,800,000 eligible voters gave none of the four parties a clear-cut parliamentary advantage.

Mr. Pearson has wound up in good health, good spirits and confidence of success, aides and reporters. He expressed confidence that the Liberal party, which had 49 per cent of the Commons members after the 1958 election, was still a wave of support back to power.

EMPHASIZES CARLETON

Saturday's last action touched Ottawa suburbs and shopping centres by car cavalcade, with most emphasis on the traditionally - Conservative riding of Carleton.

Then Mr. Pearson invaded another Conservative - strongbold in Brockville-Gaude, riding by helicopter to Cardinal on the St. Lawrence River. He landed at a local sulky-racing meet and addressed about 300 at the city hall.

At Hull in the windup, Mr. Pearson spoke in both French and English and said he was proud that he had said nothing anywhere in Canada that he could not say at any other point in the country.

Liberalism stood for equal opportunity for the two founding races of the country.

PROBLEMS ARE SERIOUS

Liberalism stood ready to confront the party with serious problems nationally and internationally, he said. In the two weeks, the government had had to spend hundreds of millions of dollars in holding of gold and United States dollars to stave off a run on the Canadian dollar.

Mr. Pearson said the government was fighting to avoid further devaluation before today's voting. Because of lack of confidence in Canada's dollar, there was selling of Canadian currency and the threat of an international rate lower than the present 92.5 cents in terms of U.S. money.

Wants To Forget She's Married

DORIS CLARK

DEAR DORIS:—Seven years ago I married an alcoholic—without knowing it. He never supported us. I tried to get help for him, but one day he was very cruel to the children and threatened me. So I left him.

I have not heard from him for two years. I find he married me under an alias, and I don't want to bring children up under his name. I want to forget this marriage and him.—MRS. R.

DEAR MRS. R.:—To be married under an alias would not invalidate the marriage.

To have him declared dead he would have to be gone for seven years, and sought for without success.

Best thing to do is seek him out and try for evidence for divorce. If you are receiving government help, talk to your welfare officer about this. These officials are most helpful in locating deserting husbands.

DEAR DORIS:—What is the marital status of a man who was married in Canada, and divorced and married to wife No. 2 in U.S.A.? Is this marriage legal in Alberta? Can wife No. 2 inherit his property, or will it revert to wife No. 1, who has since remarried also?—SEEKING ADVICE.

DEAR SEEKING—He couldn't just pop over the border for purposes of divorcing and remarrying. But if he took up residence here, got an American divorce and then married Wife No. 2, the divorce and remarriage would be legal both here and there.

Wife No. 1 no longer has any claim on him, outside of the divorce settlement, whatever that was.

DEAR DORIS:—I understand that a widow would get a widow's pension, and if she had children also mother's help for children under sixteen.

Even if she owned her own home, and was making a small salary working part time (as this would not be enough to live on) would it be paying for balance of home, she would still receive some pension.

Now I have been told this is not so. Please straighten me out as I cannot understand how a widow can support a family and keep a home besides. It would be impossible unless she had a high education and a good paying job.

If I am right, where could one apply for this pension and mother's help.—CURIOUS.

DEAR CURIOUS—Right. In every province there is mother's allowance or some type of social assistance for just the case you describe.

The welfare officer helps her work out a budget, and supplements her income with an amount to make up the difference. We all know children need their mothers and homes take time and energy to run.

Focus on Health

By The Associated Press

Topics this week: A danger in rhubarb leaves, anti-fatigue pills, and life saving on the highway.

RHUBARB POISONING

Rhubarb is a favorite food of many persons, but don't eat the raw or cooked leaves or blades of the plant. They can be poisonous, even fatally so, warns the poison control centre of the New York City health department.

The rhubarb leaf stalk, generally used for cooking and baking, is perfectly safe. But the leaves or blades contain oxalic acid, a poison.

PEPPER-UPPER

In tests on 100 men and women complaining of chronic fatigue, it was Formica of Oldsa8a050 N.J., found, that tablets of potassium and magnesium salts of aspartic acid restored normal energy to 87 within six weeks.

Twenty-six received dummy pills or placebos for a time as well as the real asparatas at other times, and benefitted only when taking the real tablets. The 87 reporting benefits said they became more alert, cheerful and energetic, and that sleep refreshed them.

LIFE-SAVER

A safety expert estimates 800 lives have been saved each year in automobile accidents because of improved safety locks installed in automobile doors since 1956.

The analysis is based both on the assumption that 40 to 50 per cent of cars now have the locks, and on an investigation of accidents.

The locks cut the frequency with which doors opened and occupants were thrown from cars.

BLOCKING HEREDITY

Someday it may be possible to keep children from inheriting diabetes from their parents, says Dr. Charles H. Best of Toronto, co-discoverer of insulin.

The possibility is promised by increasing knowledge about genes and chances of chemically treating them to avoid inherited diseases, he explains. It has recently been found that the Chinese hamster has a hereditary form of the disease, and this could permit genetic experiments not possible with humans.

MILK FLAVOR

Light from white fluorescent lamps, often used in grocery display cases, can change the taste of milk — even that in cardboard containers, reports Walter Dunkley, University of California food technologist.

The unpleasant "light flavor" develops only in the outside cartons close to the lamp, and then not in all cartons, he finds. Some people don't notice or mind the change in flavor, while others object strongly.

52 Fatalities Across Canada During Weekend

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Drownings ran traffic deaths a close second in weekend fatalities across Canada during the weekend.

Of 52 accidental deaths computed in a Canadian Press Saturday 26 were from traffic mishaps and another 20 from drownings.

Ontario had the largest toll with 19 deaths, 10 in traffic, five from drownings and two from other causes.

The CP survey covers the period from 6 p.m. local times Friday to midnight Sunday.

The survey does not include natural death, industrial accidents or known suicides.

Ontario deaths:

Leo George Demarce, 38, of Royal Oak, Mich., drowned Saturday when his boat capsized in Lake St. Clair while he was fishing.

Brian William McPherson, 9, son of Mr. and Mrs. Arthur McPherson, of RR 1 Glanford, when he was hit by a car while riding his tricycle Saturday.

Miss Jeanette Damm, 68, of Red Rock when his car left the blowout, hit a ditch and rolled over on Highway 17, 20 miles northeast of Port Arthur.

Princess Royal Presents Colors To Regiment

VICTORIA (CP)—A crowd of about 8,000 sat in Brilliant sunshine at Beacon Hill Park here Saturday to watch the Canadian Scottish Regiment receive new colors from the colonel-in-chief, the Princess Royal.

The spectacular ceremony was the high point of the princess' five-day stay in Victoria, and she was wearing the dress uniform of her regiment. Below a rose of merlot, she wore a diamond - encrusted regimental badge, which was a gift to her from the trustees of the Canadian Scottish when she visited the city in 1955.

Later in the evening, the Princess Royal was guest-of-honor at a regimental dinner.

The 63-year-old aunt of Queen Elizabeth later flew to Vancouver, where she was to stay overnight before continuing on her 16-day tour of Canada.

VANCOUVER (CP) — Not all the students in Cecil Cock's Grade 12 class at Vancouver's Magee High School go on to become lawyers but when they graduate they at least have some knowledge of the law.

Once every trim the students are taken to court to see how the machinery of justice works.

During the last term of the current school year, for example, 90 students spent a day in a trial last ended in a death sentence for Eric Liston, accused of shooting a police detective.

Mr. Cock says the students' day in court is one of the most important parts of a law course that forms part of the social studies curriculum.

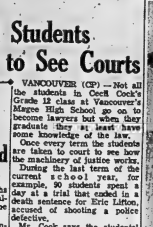
They see the practical operation of democracy in that the courts do everything to ensure that a person gets a fair trial.

The visit also dispels the false impressions students get about the courts from television and the movies, he said.

UNLIKE PERRY MASON

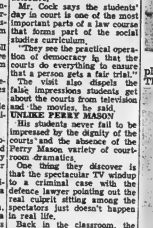
His students never fail to be impressed by the dignity of the court clerk and the absence of Perry Mason variety of courtroom dramatics.

One thing they discover is that the spectacular TV windup to a criminal case with the defence lawyer pointing out the real culprit sitting among the spectators just doesn't happen in real life.



Back in the classroom, the students discuss the case and the basic principles of law involved.

Mr. Cock, who has been taking students to court since 1946, said many of them take the course with the hope of going on to study law at university.



He said judges have been most helpful over the years and occasionally a judge invites students into his chambers to explain court procedures, particularly the etiquette to be followed in court before the start of the case.

The law course covers history of the courts, sources of law and basics of trial and appeals with special emphasis on the legal position of minors.

"We are also careful to impress on students the need to use their time just to sales contracts."

Elmer Gerow, of Picton, won first place in the Hackney horse class at the Third Annual Belleville Spring Horse Show held at the Fair Grounds, Saturday.

Diane Parks, winner of the child's pony class, receives her ribbon and trophy from David McDonald, ring steward.

Another member of the horse committee, Gerald Vance, Belleville's fire chief, looks on.

Many Reasons Why You Should Vote Today

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

So you don't think it's really worth while to go out and vote today?

You'd rather just sit under the old apple tree, glass in hand?

Well, consider this: Just about 600 provincial parliaments were appointed.

Today were a missed lot. There was the Mad Parliament, the Good Parliament, the Parliament of Lilliput, the Pickwick and the Addled Parliament. The last got its name because it never could make up its mind to do anything.

There was also the Barebones Parliament, so named because it was full of saints. The Praise God Barebones, a Puritan.

In much more recent times—historically speaking—the long record of British parliamentary affairs there was the Parliament when seats in Parliament were sold to the highest bidder. Men of wealth and power gave their seats to their friends for favors received. Often it was the friends might get out of them.

CORRUPT PRACTICE

From the prices quoted of them paid, the benefactions must have run high. The Reform Act of 1832 put an end to this.

Remember, too, the days, and so recently, in Britain when women went on the rampage for the right to vote? Today the forenoon coffee party at which the ladies of the neighborhood gather is an important engagement for the campaigning politician.

Today the right to vote is clearly outlined in the Canada Elections Act. The franchise is conferred on all Canadian citizens or British subjects, men and women, who are 21 years of age, have resided in Canada and have been ordinarily resident in Canada for 12 months.

Excellent Horse Show Given By Riding, Driving Club Many Children Show Ponies

By ANNE M. McDONALD

"What is so rare as a day in June" was indeed applicable throughout the day on Saturday afternoon as favorable weather, sunny skies and an enthusiastic crowd at horse lovers welcomed the "2nd Annual Belleville Spring Horse Show" held at the Fair Grounds. Sponsored by the Quinte Driving and Riding Club, exhibitors came from a wide area to take part in 20 classes of horses and ponies.

Competition was very keen particularly in the children's classes and saddle horse classes with 10 and 12 entered in a class.

JUDGES FOR SHOW

Judging took place in two rings with Miss Helen Chamberlain of Ottawa, who was chief instructor of the Ottawa Pony Club, judging hunter and jumper, while assisted by ring steward Miss Joan Kellett of Kingston. Mr. Bert Mann of Peterborough, the well known light horse exhibitor judged harness and saddle classes with ring stewards, Dave McDonald and Laverne Way.

Entries were capably handled by Buddy Zebedee, Marjorie Steele and Mrs. A. Corfield.

The announcers were Art Corfield and W. D. Reid assisted by Warren Lloyd. It was good to see and hear Mr. Reid back in the harness after a long absence due to a lengthy illness. The telephone system was arranged by Clark Steele. Special appreciation goes to Mr. Nicholson and the Parks Board for arranging the fencing and preparing the grounds.

Mr. P. Stewart, president of the Quinte Driving and Riding Club extended a warm welcome mentioning that one of the purposes of the Club's Constitution was to present a Horse Show as well as races. Another event is the annual dance which takes place in the Spring and which the public is always invited to.

Complete results of the Horse Show are listed. Points were given to the first 3 finishers in each event. Ribbons were given to all children participating. Names in brackets are donors of trophies. Horses' names are followed by name of rider or driver.

Plans for an even bigger and better show for 1963 are being made.

Nuclear Stralegy If War Came Spelled Out

ANN ARBOR, Mich. (AP)—Defence Secretary McNamara spelled out Saturday night the nuclear strategy the United States would use if major war came to pass—including no city bombing unless driven to it by Soviet action.

At the same time, he challenged, without naming names, President de Gaulle's plan for France to go it alone with her own nuclear weapons and strategy.

He raised questions about the dangers created by a relatively weak nuclear national including the possibility that its very weakness might invite a preventive attack by Russia.

McNamara set forth his views in a speech prepared for the University of Michigan commencement.

On nuclear strategy in event of attack on the NATO alliance, McNamara said the principal objective of the United States would be "destruction of the enemy's military forces, not of his civilian population."

CAN STRIKE HARD

But McNamara attached this qualifying clause:

The strength and nature of the alliance make it possible to retain, even after massive surprise Russian attack, sufficient reserve striking power to destroy an enemy society if driven to it."

To this implied warning against city attack by Russia, McNamara added that "we are giving a non-city strategy the strongest imaginable incentive to refrain from striking our own cities."

He said "we confidently expect to maintain in the years ahead" the balance of nuclear power.

The Russians have superiority in non-nuclear forces today but "this superiority is by no means overwhelming," McNamara said. Collectively, NATO has the potential for defence against such forces; in making a choice NATO has more men under arms than Russia and her satellites, he said.

Algonquin Park Wolf Attacks 3 Fishermen

KITCHENER (CP) — Three fishermen in Waterloo Provincial Park today told of being attacked by a wolf in Algonquin Park Saturday. The wolf bit Basil Hall and hastily - fashioned clubs after them had taken refuge in a tree.

Wallace Nutt, Robert (Robby) Robinson and Basil Hall were walking across a portage between Smoke Lake and Lake Opeongo when the wolf spotted the wolf.

Nutt, 22-year-old man, dropped his pack and climbed a tree when the animal charged at him.

Nutt and Robinson, according to Hall, threw rocks from the trees with hunting knives. The wolf attacked Hall's pack and then started up the trail after the other two men.

Hall said:

They fended him off by swinging their clubs and eventually the wolf gave up the trail and all three fought a rearguard action to get their boat on Lake Opeongo.

"When we got there we saw a big commotion and we thought it us. they had chased a wolf out of our boat," Nutt said.

"We found the wolf had chewed up a rope and a life jacket and stripped the plastic from stern light as well as scratching the boat."

He said that later they reported the incident to an Ontario Department of Lands and Forests warden who told them the wolf had escaped from a departmental compound nearby where he was being trained to try to make contact with a wolf pack.

PLANS U.S. WALK

LONDON (Reuters) — Russian - born marathon walker Dr. Barbara Moore, 59, plans to walk across the United States again this summer. She said at her suburban home today she hopes to finance the trip by raising a mortgage on her house. Dr. Moore walked from Montreal to Toronto in August, 1960, and took 19 days to cover the 350-mile distance.

Macmillan Says Peerages Out This Year to Avert Loss at Polls in By-Elections

LONDON (AP) — Quietly the word has spread among Conservative party rank - and - file members in the House of Commons:

"Harold says peerages are out this year."

This means Prime Minister Macmillan does not want to deplete his ranks by letting elected members accept honors moving them over to the House of Lords. Vacancies mean by elections and recently Macmillan's Tories have lost ground at the polls.

A change in voting loyalties seems to be spreading across Britain, and the trend could be a change in Britain's relations with the United States.

The Labor party has gained strength in special elections and in balloting for council seats in the next general election. It is pledged to move toward a more middle-of-the-road position in the cold war—away from U.S. views.

COMPARE PARTIES

Labor supporters are Socialists, indeed, to the left of the conservatives, who are in effect a free-enterprise party. Although they have accepted many elements of the welfare state.

In between, the Liberal party seeks to make the best of both sets of the political coin.

They hold only seven seats today in the 630-member House of Commons, but have emerged as a possible third force menacing the two - party system's tidy frontiers.

Many voters appeared to be shopping for a change perhaps for a middle way.

Recent by-election results point to disenchantment with Macmillan policies and with the leading Socialists. But Socialists still must remain strong on the broad shoulders of the giant labor unions.

If this pattern holds good in the next general election—due by mid-1964—the Conservatives will be the largest party in the House. The Liberals may find themselves exercising a power-balance role. Britain's electoral system is delicately poised a mere three-per-cent swing of votes could soak up the present Tory margin in the Commons.

Conservatives and allies now hold 366 seats, Labor 255, Liberals 7 and Independents one, with one seat vacant.

Mid - term voting, however, rarely is a rally to support general elections. Macmillan can soon hold the election in the next two years to take to the hustings.

Part of the prime minister's time is mortgaged to the outcome of Britain's negotiations to join the European Common Market. He is captive of those negotiations until he knows the result.

If Britain's bid succeeds, Macmillan can represent the linking of Britain Europe as the start of a new era of prosperity, if it fails he can put out a resounding call for a closing of ranks behind him to meet grave crises ahead.

Neither Labor nor Liberal party opposes entry into Europe's trade group, Labor is worried lest the terms of the agreement emerges and will attempt, if it seems Britain gets a poor deal.

Labor last ruled in the six postwar years ending in 1951.

RESTRICTED PREVIOUSLY

If the party led by Hugh Gaitskell should win, it would be free from the austerity policies it followed in the aftermath of war. It would be free from most of its electoral pledges to nationalize many basic industries. The coal mines, railroads, public utilities, airlines and the bulk of British land and health services were taken into government (now Lord) Attlee was prime minister.

Britain's Socialists today are more reformers than radicals. Against left-wing protests they are trying under Gaitskell's leadership to present an image of moderation.

A foreign policy goal of Gaitskell supporters is reconsideration of Britain's nuclear deterrent as a first step towards formation of a non-nuclear club of countries shunning all but classical weapons.

Labor would be honor-bound if it came to power to loosen ties with the U.S. but stay out the Atlantic alliance and NATO, usually organizations he was Labor that led Britain into NATO in the first place.

CBC Newscasts To Be Reviewed By Governors

OTTAWA (CP) — Dr. Andrew Stewart, chairman of the Board of Broadcast Governors, says members of the board will conduct an informal review today of the Broadcasting Act's ban on election-eve political broadcasting after receiving complaints about CBC newscasts.

He said in an interview Sunday that some broadcasters told the board they had received directives from the BBG which were not consistent with what the publicly-owned CBC was doing.

"We are going to go over the act and the various statements the board has issued," Dr. Stewart said, "There may be a difference of interpretation as to what is involved."

Both the Broadcasting Act and the Canada Elections Act prohibit electioneering by radio or television on election day and in the two days immediately preceding it.

The Broadcasting Act, section 17, says:

"No licensee shall broadcast a program, advertisement or announcement of a partisan political character on any day that an election is held for the election of a member of the House of Commons, the legislature of a province or the Council of a municipal corporation, or on the two days immediately preceding any such day."

FORMULA POLICY

On April 30, the BBG issued a statement of "guiding principles and policies for information of broadcasters, speakers and agencies" drawing attention to this provision of the act. The April statement said:

"Political broadcasts on any Dominion, provincial or municipal election day, and on the two days immediately preceding any such election day are prohibited by section 17, paragraph five of the Broadcasting Act.

"This restriction applies to all forms of partisan political nature until polls are closed, and also to political spot announcements with the exception that unsponsored non - partisan announcements identifying people to vote are admissible.

"Political broadcasting in this campaign must conclude at midnight on June 15-16, 1962."

The Canada Elections Act, section 99, says this about political broadcasts:

"No person shall be allowed to broadcast a speech or any entertainment or political program over the radio, on the evening polling day and on the two days immediately preceding it, in favor or on behalf of any political party or any candidate at an election."

The act did not give the source of the complaints against the CBC. He said the committee was formed in this manner and were not detailed.

Spokesmen for the CBC approached for comment on the complaints, said that two CBC telecasts Saturday included news reports of statements by Lester Pearson and Finance Minister Fleming, quoting their precise phrasing.

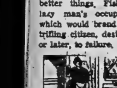
The spokesmen said the CBC feels the newscasts gave a balanced, objective account of public statements and did not violate broadcasting regulations.

16 Communist Guerrillas Were Killed

SAIGON (Reuters) — Sixteen Communist guerrillas were killed and 8 others captured in an operation southwest of Saigon Saturday by armored amphibious troop carriers, government reports said.

The reports said the American-built troop carriers were used for the first time in a large scale operation in South Viet Nam.

The 30 troop carriers were divided into two companies but one company was bogged down in deep mud.



The other plowed through the mud of flooded Long An province, churned over mud walls hiding rifleflade and hammered machine-gun bullets at Communist guerrillas escaping over the riceflelds.

The vehicles traveled at such speed, reports said, that many that almost all the guerrillas fleeing were run down.

What Women Think of Fishing

Time was, and not too long ago either, when fishing was held in rather low esteem by the average female member of the household. Men who wasted their time fishing were held, by most of the lady folks, to be shiftless, no-account creatures who should be devoting their energies, such as they were, to better things. Fishing was a lazy man's occupation, one which would brand him as a trifling citizen, destined, sooner or later, to failure.

Today, happily, the distaff members of the family is likely to take a somewhat more cooperate view of the royal sport of angling. True, she does this with reservations, but what the revels of our various V.I.P.s who are ardent devotees of the science of the angle she will tolerate, and sometimes encourage, her city-bound spouse to take a weekend off and indulge himself in a bit of healthful outdoor recreation.

Actually, such tolerance more often than not may not be such an altruistic example of unselfish self-sacrifice. She makes the grand gesture, spends her angler on his way, but in the back of her mind is the prospect of a few restful days while hubby is not underfoot, cluttering up the house, and generally in her way. She can indulge herself in such things as shopping trips, bridge parties, and so on, with no thought to the normal press of household duties.

ULTERIOR MOTIVES

Then, too, the little woman may, and usually does, have ulterior motives when she places her seal of approval on a fishing trip. There may be a certain item of wearing apparel that is expensive but much desired. No right-thinking husband wishes to see his wife deny herself to buy a new hat, or to say no to such a request either a cheerful granting of leave for a fishing trip. Not if he's smart, he won't.

There are some wives who submit to fishing trips only with reservations. Their favorite question is this — "What time will you be home, dear?" The younger husbands, newlyweds, tend to step into that pitfall. So they pin themselves down to an appearance time. That, my boys, is a fatal error. Miss time out of 'em, the fishing is right at its peak at the exact time at which departure is necessary, if that returning schedule is to be met.

The experienced angler has one, and only one, stock reply to that question — "Expect me when you see me, dear." he will say, always with a smile. The first time he does this there are repercussions. If he can weather these — and many of us do — he is a fortunate man indeed, deserving of the title of angler. If he can't — well, his fishing days will not be happy ones.

There is always the expedient of indoctrinating the better half into the mysteries of angling. Teach the little helpmeet the joys of broad lakes, booming surf, and flowing streams. Of course, this involves such things as casting lessons, lengthy explanations of the basic rules of fish lore, goat to motion considerable financial outlay — in a matter of extra equipment.

Should he be a member of a club, then he must face the door looks of his fellow members when he shows up with his bride. He knows that this involves less rare-form conduct, expurgated language, reasonably complete attire, and inevitable toilet-room complications. And he knows, just as well as do his fellow members, that women in a fishing club are a bloody nuisance. But if that's the price he must pay, he goes through with it and hopes that his friends will understand.

COMMON-SENSE APPROACH

Last winter there came a letter from a woman who seems to have a common-sense approach to the question of having a fishing husband. This, in part, is what she had to say.

"Dear Mr. Knight:

"Would you be kind enough to tell me where my husband can find your solunar tables?

"After thirty-five years of unenlightened indifference, my husband has adopted fishing as a hobby with frightening enthusiasm. He came home with books from the library to sink a sturgeon and the cellar is becoming inhabited with wonderful, colorful contrivances. Of course I go along with this innovation (ten seconds' reflection on the other sorts of alcohol he could be getting at to instead is enough to send me out to buy him a double fistful of plugs myself) and I sympathize with the miserable luck he had last season for starting his hobby; but when he says 'spring is coming' with a familiar gleam in his eye, this year I must put up with the realization that he is thinking of fish.

"Of course he tried to get hold of your solunar tables but the bookstores didn't have them. He found them in our newspaper.

"And he is peering forlornly through the snow, waiting for the day he can take your tables in one hand, a thermometer for testing thermal layers in the other, his tackle box under his arm, and be off to a wetter, happier world.

"Thank you so much for helping us.

"SINCERELY YOURS."

Now there, my friends, is a sensible girl, a pearl without price. Should you be having trouble getting away, it might be an idea to show the little lady this letter. Anyway, it couldn't do any harm.

Johansson KO's Briton In Eighth

GOTEBORG (AP) — Ingemar Johansson of Sweden crashed two terrific rights onto the jaw of Welshman Dick Richardson, to win the European heavyweight championship in the eighth round before 56,000 almost hysterical fans here Sunday night.

The blow stood streaming from a cut in the corner of his left eye, Johansson sent Richardson slumping groggily to the canvas for a count of eight.

The big Welshman, defending his title for the fourth time, rose groggily to his feet and Johansson stormed in with another pulverizing right which dropped Richardson like a stone.

The Welshman rolled over onto his back, out cold. The fight was two minutes, 40 seconds of the eighth round in the scheduled 15-rounder.

Johansson, weighed 200 pounds, Richardson 200.

Both fighters appeared to be in command from the start, although he suffered a cut over his left eye in the 58th round.

The Associated Press gave Johansson every round, except the seventh, which was even.

Up Purse In Rich Track Epic

LAUREL, Md. (AP) — The purse for the Washington, D.C. International will be increased from $100,000 to $125,000 this year, President John D. Schapiro of Laurel race course said today.

The International, which will be held for the 13th time Nov. 12, has drawn entries from 15 foreign nations since its inaugural in 1952.

The race—only U.S. turf classic with a walk-up start—is run at a mile and a half. Laurel pays the transportation and living expenses for the horses, owners, jockeys and handlers.

With the purse at $125,000, the winner's share will remain at $70,000. Second place will be worth $15,500, an increase of $500, the prize money for third will jump from $10,000 to $13,500, the fourth place will be worth $11,000 instead of the $5,000 earned last fall.

Also, for the first time, horses finishing fifth, sixth and seventh will earn $2,000 apiece.

Kidd Fails To Break Record

LONDON, Ont. (CP)—Bruce Kidd of Toronto failed Saturday in his plan to break the Canadian record for three miles, and his coach blamed it on the heat and the poor calibre of Canadian competition.

Kidd, 18, who recently set a United States record of 13:17.4 for the event, took part in the Ontario senior men's and women's track and field championships here.

He won the three miles in easy fashion, lapping all except one of the other runners. His time was 13:46.4, far off the Canadian record of 13:31.2.

"It just shows that the rank and file of ample up here is not improving," said his coach, Fred Foot. "In fact, they're going downhill."

George Sheperd, Kidd's teammate from the East York Track Club, equalled the Canadian open 440-yard hurdles record of 52.2 set by former U.S. Olympian Eddie Southern in Vancouver last year. It established a Canadian native record. Sheperd set the previous time of 52.4 in 1960.

Bill Crothers, East York's star half-miler, also failed in his bid to set a Canadian record. He ran the distance in 1:51.6, two seconds over the record.

Defeats Czechs 3-1

Brazil Soccer Champions

SANTIAGO, Chile (CP) — Brazil's aging stars proved themselves anew Sunday with a 3-1 defeat of Czechoslovakia in a successful defence of the World Cup soccer championship.

The Brazilian team that retained the title included eight of the 11 players who won the cup in 1958 by defeating Sweden 5-2 in Stockholm.

Now the fabulous Brazilians will disband and begin reorganizing for the 1966 world championship in England. Because of their age, most of the team will not play again in a World Cup championship.

The Brazilians became the second team in the 32-year history of the championship to win the two straight titles. Italy won in 1934 and 1938.

The Czechs, who produced some brilliant soccer in the final, finished second in this championship with Chile third and Yugoslavia fourth. Sixteen teams—were entered originally.

The Czechs, who reached the final largely on the strength of their defensive play, produced the first fast-moving attack.

The score was 1-1 at halftime, and the second half started with the Czechs gradually getting on top.

Then Brazil struck with a goal in the 69th minute. Zito caught the ball on his chest from a lob by Amarildo and Pele was ahead.

That changed the whole face of the game. Brazil suddenly had all its confidence back. Centre forward Vava scored again in the 76th minute—and it was all over.

The Czechs had taken an 11th-minute lead on a goal by Masopust. Amarildo levelled the score in the 14th minute.

The Tracks

NEW YORK (AP)—Prove It staged a rousing stretch run to capture the $35,000 Inglewood Handicap at Hollywood Park, California, Saturday. But he had to survive a foul claim for his victory.

Three horses battled it out for the runner-up positions in a photo-finish mixup, with Orbit second and Rabbler, the longest shot on the board, third in the field of 10 contenders.

The crowd of 46,317 waited several minutes while stewards studied, and disallowed, a foul claim by jockey Bill Harmatz, who rode the pack-setting Winonly.

Harmatz accused Prove It, with Henry Moreno up, of cutting off coming over on him in the run down the stretch.

The time for the 1 1-16 miles was 1:41 flat.

Prove It, the lesser half of the heavily favored entry with Olden Times in the Rex C. Ellsworth mile, paid $6.60, $3.20 and $2.60. Fred W. Hopper's Winonly, winner of three straight stakes, closed up fifth. T. V. Lark was sixth.

In New York, Kelso toyed with five rivals in the mile and a quarter Clem McCarthy Memorial Handicap at Belmont Park, coasting on the power in the final eighth of a mile to win by 2¼ lengths in the slow time.

It was the first victory in two starts this season for Kelso, who brought home one of the year honors to Mrs. Richard C. du Pont in 1960 and 1961.

Kelso was timed in a good 1:35 3-5. Prohibitive favorite with $2.50, Kelso paid $2.50, $2.40 and $2.10.

PARIS (AP) — Mrs. Kilean Hennessy of Maidenhead, England, bit at the first leap over the river obstacle in front of the grandstand and went on over the other 22 obstacles to win the Grand Steeplechase de Paris over four miles at the Auteuil course Sunday.

Mrs. Hennessy, one of England's top steeplechase jockeys and winner of the Aintree Festival this year, held on gamely and kept Mandarin under control. The bit was broken and dangled beside the horse's head. Veteran observers said it was the only previous instance in France where a horse had won a steeplechase under such circumstances.

Mandarin, an 11 - year - old gelding, was French-bred but is trained in England by Fulke Walwyn. He had won the Cheltenham Gold Cup this year.

Mandarin, the favorite, moved fast at the finish to beat out P. Mercier's Lumino by a head.

'Miss Volo' Pays $31.40

Close Finishes Mark Meet

By GEO. H. CARVER - (Sports Editor)

Some of the best finishes in the Quinte Girls' Club's harness meet Saturday night had veteran bettors going around gesturing horses' necks and dazzles between clashes.

Each race, in fact, featured most of the events with bettors not knowing if mutual tickets were cash or carry until official announcements were made.

An approximate crowd of 600, and a unusually deposited some $2,400 at the pari-mutuels in the club's third outstanding meet at the Fair Grounds.

Fourth [illegible] D Classified first heat, "Ellie Troy Volo" owned and driven by Belleville's Larry Zebedies, flashed to the front in the second and drove home a length-winner in the upset of the night. "Volo" paid top prices of $31.40 and $15.80.

Each catching bettors with the wrong mutuels down was "Polly C" owned and driven by Tweed's Bernard Hunt. The filly in her first racing appearance came eighth in the first heat, but just failed to catch "Miss True Volo" in the second. She paid $29.40 to place.

"Buddy C Abbe" driven by Al. Vance of this city led the pack nearly all the way in the $2.20 Class "B" Pace feature winner "Tripper Grattan's streak drive. "Buddy C" paid $7.40 to win.

"Pat Malone" and "Ace-High" finished in Hermione's "Billy Sunday H." to go all out in the heats of the Unclassified.

"Malone" finished at "Sunday's withers in the first heat and "Ace-High" did likewise in the second. Four horses were closely bunched as they flashed under the wire.

Miss Herrington's "Lo Ator-ney" made strong victory bids in the B Classified but failed to shake off the driving finishes of "Dominion K. Bomb" owned by the Keys brothers of Gananoque.

Twice the "Bomb" made his move at the three-quarter pole after trailing "Lo Attorney" and "Sunday Mae Grattan" and twice he raced home with blistering stretch finishes.

"Betty Renown," a trotter favored by many bettors, broke in each heat, but made good recoveries to finish fourth both times.

In a special added attraction, "Golden Flasher" owned by Bill Craig of Belleville, won top honors in a six-horse palomino judging contest in front of the grandstand.

The spirited horses made a colorful picture in their richly-colored saddle paraphernalia. They received a fine ovation from the crowd.

Craig won the first-prize red ribbon and the handsome Deacon Brothers Trophy. The horses were judged by Jack Bush, well-known Belleville horseman.

American Girls Win Wightman

LONDON (AP) — The 1962 version of the Wightman tennis cup tournament, which has pitted the girls of England against those of the United States for 40 years, may have been the last.

This year's event ended Sunday with a 4-3 American victory.

The cup was donated by Mrs. George W. Wightman, who played on the first American team in 1923 and was non-playing captain from 1946 to 1963. The contest has been held yearly since 1923 except for the Second World War period. The United States has won 28 times, Britain six.

There is general feeling the series is too exclusive. The girls want a tournament open to all and there is a plan afoot for starting a DuPont Cup tournament next year. The proposal will go before the International Tennis Federation next month.

The DuPont Cup is to be donated by Mrs. Margaret Osborne DuPont of Joseph, Oregon - playing captain of this year's American Wightman Cup team.

Every day, 4,135,590 daily newspapers are bought in Canada. (That's not a guess, an estimate or a "rating." It's an audited count.) This new high in circulation is a reflection of the confidence Canadians have in their daily newspapers. After all—what other medium offers such complete news coverage, so much informed comment . . . and such an up-to-date, reliable shopping guide?

RARE, MEDIUM, WELL-DONE

By GEO. H. CARVER, Sports Editor

While the "old man" of the family celebrated "Father's Day" with family pampering and petting and receiving trifles tangible and otherwise from the appreciative flock, strange things were happening in the wonderful and sometimes weird and wacky world of sport.

For Yankee fans it was a dismal weekend. Manager Hoyt's New York cavalry forgot their horses and were mauled by rampaging Indians at Cleveland's Little Big Horn. Four times over the weekend the Bombers hit the dust. Over 70,000 shrieking Tribe fanatics whooped victory cries in the Cleveland stadium yesterday.

Here at home if you had a two-spot on "Miss True Velo" Saturday night you would have walked home with $35. "Polly C", a filly racing her first race, would have paid you $39 if you had her tabbed for the place shot. Using baseball terminology, Charlie Hudson and Claude Carr, Kenmore coach Sid Forster led a shutout crew to a 7-0 victory over the Cannifton Clippers.

It was a nice weekend weather-wise and if the old man did a spot of "blackmarking" who could blame him. It was excellent for golfing, too, and at the Bay of Quinte Club Stan and Mrs. Armstrong won the annual "Mr. and Mrs. Tournament" with a low net of 69. It was a fine golfing day with a lovely post-tourney dinner and whatnot.

Speaking of golf Jack Nicklaus spoiled the day for the "Old Master," Arnold Palmer, ripping him for the U.S. Open crown in an 18-hole playoff. The winner sailed away over $20,000, while Palmer had to be content with a measly $10,000. Richard Davies, a singing American, baited his way to the British Amateur title over a Welshman.

Brazil scored three times to win the world soccer championship over Czechoslovakia 3-1, and in disappointing performances Bruce Kidd and Bill Crothers failed to break their own track records.

Over in "Yurrop", Ingemar Johansson (remember?) won the continental heavyweight title with an eighth-round knockout of Dick Richardson, British titleholder. That should boost Ingo's stock and he is likely back at the drawing board laying plans for a world-title comeback.

In the South Hastings League results not all in at this writing, Latta defeated Shannonville and in Belleville Commercial Softball, Lightfoots defeated Woods-Horlock 8-1. Incidentally there is other than election smoke around the sport's desk today. Don Wood, League secretary celebrated the birth of a 9½-pound bouncing baby boy—and the single smoke hangs thick.

OHA senior squads rest over the weekend, and Mr. Tom Jaques of Chatham, is holding out for assaries-paid players. Other teams want share-the-wealth. Nothing definite was done. It was stated Belleville and Toronto will be approached regarding entries for next season.

Pigeon Racing

Members of the Quinte Racing Pigeon Club took part in two separate meets over the past weekend.

Alec Berry, of Trenton, had the winning bird in a 110-mile race from Armstrong, Ont., while Tom Woodcock's birds took first, third and fifth positions in a 222-mile race from Burwash, Ont.

In the long Armstrong race, 16 birds were shipped to Armstrong on Wednesday and were released from there Friday morning. Seven birds returned home within the specified time paced by Berry's pigeon travelling at a speed of 882.17 yards per minute.

Clark Steele took the second and third positions, Jack Salmon, fourth spot, Tom Woodcock, of Plainfield, grabbed the fifth and sixth positions with five hits in 5-3 victory.

Indians Sweep Big Series From Yanks

Kenmors Defeat Cannifton

Belleville Kenmors, reinforced by veteran Claude Carr and Chuck Kingston, shut out Cannifton of the South Hastings League 7-0 yesterday afternoon. The exhibition tilt was played at the fairgrounds before a sparse crowd.

Carr and Kingston, holdovers from the old Belleville Bataa, held down the third and first base duties and were good for three hits. Both players have the savvy and know how and their experience will greatly help Sid Forster's young crew.

Southpaws Stan Reid and Bill Monro split the Kenmor mound duties, holding the losers to three hits over the seven inning distance. They whiffed eight and issued three free passes.

Lyle Bradshaw went the distance for Cannifton. He was touched for eleven base hits striking out two and walking the same number.

The Kenmors scored single-tons in the first and second, added a single in the third, one in the fifth and put on the icing with two more in the sixth.

Harry Dugald were for Cannifton in a winning cause while Goyer and Kingston each had a pair.

Urch, Clapp and Don Forsythe were the Cannifton hitters.

Belleville: Locke, Followell, Goyer, Hunter, Mavety, Carr, Kingston, Duguid, Reid, Soule.

Cannifton: Urch, Clapp, Forsythe, D. Forsythe, O'Connor, Hill, K. Forsythe, Cole, Empey, Bradshaw.

Lightfoots Down Horlocks 8-1

Lee Hall hit a home run leading off the bottom of the seventh and final inning Sunday afternoon to ruin a no-hit bid by Percy Long as the Lightfoots downed Woods-Horlock 8-1.

Long struck out ten and walked just one over the distance and Hall's homer was the only safety by a batter.

Lightfoots gave Long a 3-0 lead in the first when they took advantage of three walks, Dolan's single and a fielder's choice play. They added two runs in each of the third and fourth frames and a final one in the sixth for an 8-0 lead before Hall clouted his round-tripper.

Bob Boyle gave up eight hits on the Woods-Horlock mound, nipping three on strikes but keeping himself in trouble with nine walks.

Don Dolan punched two singles and Doug Monro had a double to spearhead the Lightfoot attack. All the other hits, were singles and went to Rusty Garvin, Don Smith, Tom Lynch, Chuck Bowbotham and Long.

Twins Stumble Angels Climb

By JACK HAND
Associated Press Sports Writer

The resurrection of Cleveland as a baseball town seems to be complete. After years of disappointing attendance and frustrating play by the Indians, the Tribe leads the American League by two games after sweeping a four-game series from New York Yankees.

It was like the old days of Bill Veeck and company as a roaring throng of 70,918, largest in the majors this season, lapped up 6-1 and 9-5 victories over the Yanks Sunday.

With only five more games to play against New York this year, the Indians have a 5-4 edge and are assured of at least a tie in the season series with their hated rivals.

By winning nine of their last 12 games while the slumping Yanks dropped seven of eight, Cleveland has moved front and centre as a most important pennant possibility.

The Indians are sitting pretty with Minnesota Twins second, Chicago White Sox third and Detroit Tigers fourth—all three bunched within a game of the top. Baltimore Orioles are also charging.

SNAP OUT OF SLUMP

Detroit Tigers finally broke out of their seven-game losing streak by defeating Boston Red Sox in the first game 5-3 with the help of two homers by rookie Purnal Goldy, but fell 5-0 before Ike Delock's seven-hit pitching in the second game.

Taylor Cleans Up

'Flaming Page' Wins Plate

By JACK SULLIVAN
Canadian Press Sports Editor

TORONTO (CP) — Canadian horsemen may as well face it. Even with a little bit of luck they can rarely beat E. P. Taylor.

This was proven Saturday, when Taylor's great filly, Flaming Page, whipped a 13-horse field in the 103rd running of Queen's Plate for Canadian-bred three - year - olds and stablemate Chooperion in the place slot. The one-two Taylor punch startled September, 1960.

At that time the Toronto industrialist - sportsman held his annual pre-priced yearling sale. After half his stock was sold he called it off, took the leftovers and, sure enough, Flaming Page and Chooperion were still in his National Stud barns at Oshawa, Ont.

Owners among the record 32,189 crowd at Woodbine must have recalled that September night as the top-hatted and beaming Taylor, with the Queen Mother at his side, walked to the winner's enclosure to accept the Queen's traditional congratulations.

SEVENTH IN 14 YEARS

It was the seventh time in the last 14 years that Taylor has made the short trip from the clubhouse as owner of the Plate winner. Four other times in that period men who bought his yearlings latched onto a winner of the country's richest race.

Taylor still have a long way to go to catch up to the man who has dominated the Canadian racing scene since 1949.

Saturday's victory probably was the most satisfying of any to the affluent Taylor who, as president and guiding force behind the Jockey Club, saw records rattling all over the $15,000,000 Woodbine layout.

The crowd was the largest ever to witness a day's racing in Canada. The handle of $1,228,580 beat the previous Canadian mark of $1,136,175 set on Plate Day a year ago. Taylor's share of the purse—$31,225 for his filly's win and $7,500 for Chooperion's place finish—gave him $63,725, the largest one-race haul by an owner in Canada.

BETTING SETS RECORD

Wagering on the race was an all-time high of $352,290. The former record was $314,220 set in 1961, and the bettors poured $112,562 into the mutuel machines to set a record Canadian daily double pool.

The bettors made the Taylor entry overwhelming favorites for the 1¼-mile gallop and the pair responded nobly with spurts across the mile that left no doubt in the minds of the throng that they would finish one-two.

King Gorm, purchased for $35,000 at the Taylor 1960 yearling sale, took fourth place for Mrs. M. J. Boylen of Toronto, wife of mining magnate Jim Boylen.

From there in the field was far down the track.

Flaming Page was clocked in 2:04 3-5, well off the 2:02 record set by Victoria Park, also owned by Taylor, in 1960. The entry returned $4.20, $3.80 and $2.60 and Peter's Chop paid $3.10.

Fitzsimmons said after the race that he had to hold back the filly in the back stretch when she was lengths off the pace. "I was in no hurry," he added. "When I let her go, she went—I didn't have to set her down. I didn't want to go to the front too soon because when the filly gets in front she loafs."

She was the third filly in the last 20 years to win the crown. The longshot Paolita did it in 1943 and Taylor's Canadiana won in 1953.

Flaming Page, now goes to New York and may start in next Saturday's American Oaks at Belmont Park.

HERNANDEZ STOPS ROSI

NEW YORK (AP)—Venezuelan Carlos Hernandez stopped Paolo Rosi in 2:11 of the first round of their scheduled 10-round bout Saturday night in Madison Square Garden when the 34 - year - old New Yorker went down three times. Both weighed 136.

Under the rules of the New York States athletic commission, a fighter who goes to the canvas three times in one round — except in world championship fights — is automatically finished.

Hernandez, who was sporting a six-bout winning streak, never has ever been knocked down. He now goes to the head of the line for a shot at Carlos Ortiz, world lightweight champion.

Reds Lose Three To Phils

Dodgers Retain Lead Over Giants

By JACK HAND
Associated Press Sports Writer

What a difference a year makes in baseball.

If Cincinnati Reds had to pick a team which contributed most to their 1961 National League pennant, Philadelphia Phillies would have won hands down. The Phils turned up and played dead at the mere sight of a Cincinnati uniform, losing 19 of 22.

The Reds are finding a different bunch of Phils in 1962. They came into Philadelphia fresh from shutout out victories over San Francisco Giants, only to lose three straight to the Phils.

Roy Sievers and Don Demeter did the heavy damage Sunday, driving in five runs in a 7-3 rout of Jim O'toole. The three straight gave Gene Mauch's young men an 8-5 edge over the 1961 champs for the year.

While the Reds were stumbling, league-leading Los Angeles Dodgers finally broke a three-game losing streak by beating Houston Colts 6-2. The scrappy Colts had been makin mischief in Walter O'Malley's new stadium and had rolled up a four-game winning string.

The Dodgers needed the win too, because second-place San Francisco Giants polished off St. Louis Cardinals 8-3 on a three-run homer by Tom Haller in the last of the ninth. As a result, the Dodgers still lead the Giants by one game.

GIFFERS 18 SEAVEN

Pittsburgh hopped on Warren Spahn, working with only three days' rest, and banged out a 6-5 decision over Milwaukee behind little Harvey Haddix who struck out 10 Braves.

New York Mets, specialists in losing streaks, now have a new six-game string going after losing two to the Chicago Cubs 5-3 and 4-3. Home runs did the job for the Cubs. Rookie Lou Brock became the first player to hit a ball into the right centre field bleachers in the Polo Grounds in the opener and Ron Santo cracked No. 10 with the score tied in the ninth inning of the second game.

In Saturday's play, San Francisco blanked St. Louis 3-0, Chicago downed New York 6-3, Pittsburgh defeated Pittsburgh 2-1 and Philadelphia edged Cincinnati over Houston downed Los Angeles 4-1.

Jack Baldschun of the Phils notched his second victory over the Reds in eight days when he came to the rescue of Paul Brown in the fourth inning at Connie Mack Stadium. Baldschun came in with the bases loaded and two runs in and struck out Leo Cardenas and got pinch hitter Wally Post on his outright release.

FRANCORCHAMPS (AP) — Jimmy Clark of Britain, driving a Lotus, won the Belgian automobile Grand Prix for formula-one cars Sunday with an average speed record of 131.866 m.p.h.

Graham Hill of Britain in a BRM finished second. Phil Hill of Santa Monica, Calif., was third in a Ferrari and Ricardo Rodriguez of Mexico, also in a Ferrari was fourth.

PHILADELPHIA (AP)—Philadelphia Phillies Sunday announced purchase of left-hander Billy Smith from Buffalo Bisons of the International League. He will report today. Phillies sent out outright on veteran pitcher Frank Sullivan preparatory to giving him

"Richest Man in Bogota" Rather Silly and Eerie

By CYNTHIA LOWRY

NEW YORK (AP)—A prospector, hunting uranium in the Andes Mountains, is trapped in an avalanche and regains consciousness in an inaccessible valley inhabited by a race of blind people.

That was the kick-off to Sunday night's NBC production The Richest Man in Bogota. It begins as a fantasy—a rare television commodity—and appeared ready to explore the adage about a one-eyed man being king in a country of the blind. But as adapted for television from an H. G. Wells tale, it soon turned into a wild and woolly adventure story with Lee Marvin pursued by groping blind men eager to make him "normal" by removing his deformity.

It was all rather silly and slightly eerie.

The weekend's most thrilling drama was the real life duel between Jack Nicklaus and Arnold Palmer Sunday for the U.S. Open golf championship. The playoff of Saturday's tie was a real cliff-hanger right up to the putts on the last hole, when Nicklaus was able to hold onto his two-stroke lead.

To Tell the Truth is being launched this afternoon as a Monday-through - Friday afternoon show (CBS, 3:30-3:55). The panelists will be changed weekly.

Recommended tonight:

I've Got a Secret, CBS, 10:30-11 EDT—10th anniversary of the popular panel show hosted by Garry Moore.

YOUNG PERFORMER

Peter Boone, nine years old, appears with his father, Richard Boone, in a future CBS-TV episode of "Have Gun, Will Travel."

CANADIAN NATIONAL RAILWAYS has introduced a new box car grading system to improve its service to shippers, R. W. Bird, car service analyst, left, and T. W. Fairlie, transportation asistant, view one of the first cars to receive the new grade markers.

Each of the 80,000 box cars in the CN fleet will carry a bright yellow disc on each side bearing a letter A, B, C or D to indicate the grade of the box car. "A" cars are for high class commodities such as sugar and flour while "D" cars are used for rough freight. An additional grade, identified by the letter "X" stencilled on the box car in yellow, will be used on box cars in captive service carrying special commodities.

"JUNGLE FIGHTERS" FIRST SHOWINGS OPENS TONIGHT

Headache For Harvey

It was tough, it was vicious — the fight between Laurence Harvey and Ronald Fraser during a dramatic sequence in "Jungle Fighters" drama which opens at the air-conditioned Park theatre tonight.

In the film, Harvey as a truculent Private, goads Fraser playing a dour Scottish Lance-Corporal, into attacking him following a string of insults.

Both men put all they had into it.

From sweeping punches on their feet, they rolled together on the floor exchanging kicks and blows. Then Fraser managed to send Harvey hurtling backwards onto a table and followed it up with a strangle-hold round his throat.

After several rehearsals of the sequence and more than one 'take' before director Leslie Norman was satisfied, it would have seemed necessary for both men to repair to the first-aid building for considerable patching up.

Surprisingly, however, no damage was done. In fact, after the sequence was over, Harvey asked for a couple of aspirin — he had a slight headache.

"Something I had for lunch, no doubt," he exclaimed.

"The Jungle Fighters" (formerly 'The Long and the Short and the Tall").

The added attraction "Girls Marked Danger" stars "Sophia Loren" academy award winner best actress of the year. Complete shows 7.15 and 8.45.

Aries (Mar. 21 to Apr. 19): Day when emphasis placed on "college try." Means the best possible becomes possible after Olsoit effort. Drive, energy, initiative spotlighted. Lead way. Let others follow.

Taurus (Apr. 20 to May 20): Take time now to make vital decisions. Planetary pattern indicates rush, tendency toward carelessness. Don't be caught off guard. Check "all bases." Try to be one jump ahead.

Gemini (May 21 to June 22): Much in your favor, although some associates may show long face." Remain optimistic. Stick to convictions. Changing course in midstream not advised. Money situation could improve.

Cancer (June 22 to July 21): Trying to do too much at one time would prove costly error. Your judgement apt to be correct but your methods need refinement. Don't say or write things while upset.

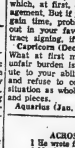
Leo (July 22 to Aug. 21): Generous nature apt to tempt others to take advantage of you. Make it clear that you are sympathetic, but that you will not stand still for "funny" business. Put foot down!

Virgo (Aug. 22 to Sept. 22): You could turn what appears to be unpleasant situation into one that works in your favor. You do this best by expressing enthusiasm and utilizing creative abilities.

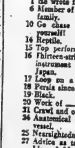
Libra (Sept. 23 to Oct. 23): Emphasis on romance, ability to change course of action. Pull out of "rut." Someone older and more experienced speaks out for your good. Realize this is truth.

Scorpio (Oct. 23 to Nov. 21): Much pressure from sources which have own interests at heart. Try to retain sense of balance. Do not permit yourself to be "stampeded." Short journey could prove beneficial.

Sagittarius (Nov. 22 to Dec. 21): You may face situation which, at first, causes discouragement. But if you are able to gain time, problem is worked out in your favor. Avoid contract signing, if possible.



Capricorn (Dec. 22 to Jan. 20): What at first may appear an unfair burden is really a tribute to your ability. Know this and refuse to complain. Study situation as whole, not in bits and pieces.



Aquarius (Jan. 21 to Feb. 19): Know what it is you want . . . and take direct course to goal. Self-discipline required. Otherwise, you veer off course. Accept it if relationship has come to an end.

Pisces (Feb. 20 to Mar. 20): What you would like to do, to impress friends, associates and what you can afford may be different. Be practical, original. Heed Family member's advice.

If today is your birthday . . . you are individual in true sense of word. Your personality is sparkling. You could captivate public if entertainment is your field. Year has provided tests and challenges. Great success indicated next year, especially in marriage, finances.

Science Now Shrinks Piles Without Pain Or Discomfort

Finds Healing Substance That Relieves Pain And Itching As It Shrinks Hemorrhoids

Toronto, Ont. (Special)—For the first time science has found a new healing substance with the ability to shrink hemorrhoids and to relieve pain and itching. Thousands of sufferers relieved with this inexpensive substance right in the privacy of their own home without any discomfort or inconvenience.

In one hemorrhoid case after another, very striking improvement was reported and verified by doctors' observations.

Pain was promptly relieved. And while gently relieving pain, actual reduction or shrinkage of hemorrhoids took place.

And most amazing of all—this improvement was maintained in cases where doctors' observations were continued over a period of many months!

In fact, results were so thorough that sufferers were able to make such statements as "Piles have ceased to be a problem!" And almost equally positive was the very wide variety of hemorrhoid conditions, some of even 30 years' standing.

All this, without the use of narcotics, anesthetics or astringents of any kind. The secret is a new healing substance (Bio-Dyne)—the discovery of a famous scientific institute. Already, Bio-Dyne is being used for healing injured tissue on all parts of the body.

This new healing substance is offered in suppository or ointment form called Preparation H. Ask for the individually sealed suppositories Preparation H Suppositories or Preparation H ointment with special applicator. Preparation H is sold at all drug stores. Satisfaction guaranteed or money refunded.

Fat and Flabby Soldiers Like Puttees and Tin Hats, Must Go at Camp Gagetown

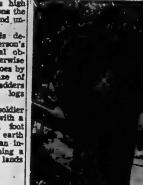
CAMP GAGETOWN, N.B. (CP)—Soon to join the army's scrapheap along with tanks, puttees and old-style tin hats are fat and flabby soldiers.

And that's exactly where they will land unless they fall in line with an edict issued by headquarters several months ago aimed at boosting the army's physical fitness.

Soldiers have been told they are responsible for maintaining the highest possible standard of fitness — compatible with age, health and employment.

Here's how the army's keep fit program will work at this old base in central New Brunswick and in other installations across Canada and abroad:

All field soldiers are in for a more bouncelessike diet of obstacle and confidence courses, battle swimming, gymnasium work and an assortment of 29 individual and team sports.



An obstacle course represents such physical barriers as high fences and wire obstructions the soldier would expect to find in battle conditions.

A confidence course is designed to strengthen a person's mettle to tackle physical obstructions he would otherwise shy away from. This he does by plunging through a maze of aerial rope-ways, rope ladders and crossing on single logs spanning streams.

One test requires the soldier to scale a 30-foot height with a minimum of hand and foot holds, and to get back to earth he has to swoosh down an inclined 100-foot rope spanning a stream. At the bottom he lands in a swamp.

NIGERIANS LOSE HOME

TARRYTOWN, N.Y. (AP) — A 20 - room, three-storey fieldstone structure occupied by the Nigerian delegation to the United Nations was swept by fire Sunday. Damage was estimated at $250,000. No one was in the building when the fire was set about 1 a.m. The delegation is in Nigeria. Firemen said the blaze was caused by a defective oil burner.

SOLDIERS KEEP FIT—Field soldiers and their deskbound counterparts in Canada's army here been ordered to boost and maintain their level of physical fitness. Supervised exercise programs for all are being carried on at Camp Gagetown, N.B., where a million-dollar physical fitness centre and obstacle training course have been set up. These soldiers cross a high-swinging rope bridge, part of the camp's obstacle course. (CP from National Defence).

Liberals Make Gains In Durham, Kingston

The Progressive Conservative bloc in this traditional Tory part of Central Ontario held mainly to form in yesterday's federal elections.

Diefenbaker candidates went back into office in four ridings while Liberals won two seats, Kingston and the "Durham half" of the former United Counties constituency.

In Hastings South Lee Grills, P.C., was returned to office for the third time, defeating Liberal Robert Temple by an unconfirmed majority of 2,215. Leslie Digby, N.D.P., was never in the running.

In Prince Edward-Lennox Douglas Alkenbrack of Napanee, retained that Conservative stronghold with a vote of 5,703 against 4,306 polled by Liberal Lloyd Woolsey. - Howard Weese, N.D.P. candidate, received 639 votes, and Wilbur Crandall, Social Credit, 114.

Rodney Webb, P.C., swept Hastings-Frontenac with a vote of 8,591 as compared to 4,357 polled by Liberal Thomas A. Neale. John Page, N.D.P., received 490 votes.

Liberal Pauline Jewett pushed Harry Bradley, P.C., to the wire in Northumberland, getting 11,969 votes, to the Conservative candidate's 10,976. Fred Moreton, N.D.P., polled 862.

In Durham, Russell Honey, Liberal, nosed out Progressive Conservative Percy Vivian by a slim majority. Honey polled 7,879 votes, while Vivian had 7,676. This gives each call for a recount. Eileen Coutts, N.D.P., polled a vote of 2,211.

Kingston, which defeated a Liberal candidate in the last election repelled a Pearson aspirant. Ben Allmark, Progressive Conservative member went down to defeat before Liberal E. J. Benson. The victor polled 10,497, with Allmark receiving 9,916. NDP and Social Credit candidates were never in the running.

GRILLS NEVER HEADED

In Hastings South the issue after the first returns came in was scarcely in doubt. Mr. Grills took a kick-off lead and never looked backwards. Mr. Temple cut the mounting Grills' margin at times but never approached a level that could cause concern to the Grills' followers.

Mr. Grills polled an unofficial 15,293 votes with Mr. Temple claiming 12,978 for a Conservative margin of 2,315. Mr. Leslie Digby the NDP candidate was never a threat to the representative of the "old parties" polling 1,733 votes.

However Liberal Robert Temple cut a big swath into the Conservative majority. In the 1958 election Mr. Grills defeated Dr. D. C. McVicker of Deseronto, the Liberal candidate, by 8,058 votes.

In yesterday's election Mr. Grills' majority of 2,215 was 7,593 below that which he

FINAL RETURNS WILL DICTATE LIBERAL POLICY

Pearson Gives Press Statement

OTTAWA (CP)—Final returns will dictate the Liberal party's policy in the wake of the scrambled federal election, National Leader Lester B. Pearson said early today before going home to bed.

"But it can be said now that the government has suffered a clear defeat and it should soon make known its intentions for the difficult months ahead of our country," he told the country in a midnight statement.

"The state of the parties in the new Parliament is still uncertain and any responsible announcement of future policy must await final returns."

Mr. Pearson, with his wife at his right hand, sat out the unfolding of electoral results in a second-storey room of the headquarters of the National Liberal Federation of Canada, in the senior advisers came and went.

SC NDP PARALLEL

The mood in the old red-brick building on a shady downtown Ottawa street ranged from tension, as Atlantic province votes favored Progressive Conservatives, to surprise at the strong Social Credit trend in Quebec.

Optimism brought good cheer followed by realization that the government's Prairie strength ruled out any chance of the Liberals being asked to form a minority government.

Mr. Pearson, 65, burned by strong sunshine on the election trail, had visited, voted and worked before coming to headquarters after 5 p.m. to follow national results.

After his statement, he joined in festivities on the second floor and then completed his day with another television appearance.

Asked what he planned today, he replied: "Answer the telephone."

STILL A PRIME MINISTER—Shown above in an Ontario Intelligencer photograph, is Prime Minister John Diefenbaker, who will remain at the helm of Canada's Government, although Monday's general election saw his Progressive Conservative party's record majority heavily cut so that, though still forming the largest group in the next House of Commons, it will lack an over-all majority

'We Are Still Government' Declares John Diefenbaker

PRINCE ALBERT, Sask. (CP) — Prime Minister Diefenbaker has indicated he plans to head a minority Progressive Conservative government for the second time in five years.

Returned personally with a massive majority, Mr. Diefenbaker finds himself leading the largest group of elected Commons members, but not large enough for a clear working majority in the 265-seat House.

"On the basis of national returns . . . we are still the government of Canada," he told party workers Monday night.

He cited two previous minority governments in 1921 and 1926 and said they were "interesting analogies" to the present situation.

When the prime minister first took office in 1957 he carried a minority government. A year later his party swept the country.

Mr. Diefenbaker was to fly back to Ottawa today aboard a department of transport Viscount aircraft.

Election night began and ended for Mr. Diefenbaker in a railway car on a siding a block from downtown Prince Albert, a city of 22,000 in the federal riding he has represented since 1953.

He received first election results by telephone. Then, when

Gunman Kills 3 Mounties, Then Is Slain by BC Posse

KAMLOOPS, B.C. (CP) — A ragged band of 32 shot and killed three RCMP officers — they were Constables Elwood Joseph Kenk, 25, from Gravelbourg, Sask.; Donald George Weisgerber, 23, Fife Lake, Sask., and Gordon Eric Pedersen, 24, Mile 440 River, Alta.

Killed after the multiple shooting was George Booth of nearby Knutsford.

Veteran officers said the incident was probably the worst of its kind in RCMP history.

The episode started at a government building here when Booth left the welfare office and was stopped by game warden George Ferguson who asked for man about the rifle he carried.

"Get the hell out of here or I'll kill you," Booth said, pushing the .303-calibre weapon into Ferguson's stomach.

Ferguson called police and three officers went after Booth, who fled up a nearby creek.

A volley of shots followed and the officers dropped after one RCMP bullet winged Booth in the leg.

Unavailable officers and game-department men immediately formed a posse. Helicopters went up and less than two hours later Booth was cornered in brush, 2,400 feet up a mountainside.

An estimated 20 shots were exchanged before the fugitive died.

Socred Leader Is Happy But Quebec Aide Miserable

RED DEER, Alta. (CP) — Social Credit Leader Robert Thompson, 30 years old, his party's hip pocket, looks forward to another federal election in the near future and even greater gains for Social Credit.

Mr. Thompson won Red Deer in his first bid for public office, said he was gratified at gains Social Credit made in Quebec. "We will sweep Canada in the next election as we have swept Quebec."

Social Credit Monday won a record 30 seats—26 of them in Quebec and two in both Alberta and British Columbia —

QUEBEC (CP) — The man who helped Deputy Leader Real Caouette win 26 seats for Social Credit in Quebec was miserable after the party's amazing showing in provincewide that generally rocked Liberal and Progressive Conservative politicians.

"It's just a miserable situation as it is now," said Fernand Ouellett, chief Social Credit organizer and treasurer in the province. "This situation is miserable for us."

Canada has a minority Progressive Conservative government for the second time in five years.

How long John Diefenbaker's administration can hold power depends on how Social Credit, surprising third-place finisher behind the Liberals in Monday's general election, and the New Democratic Party vote in the 25th Parliament, likely to be convened this fall.

In 1957, Prime Minister Diefenbaker waited less than eight months to call a new election, seizing on the evident swelling tide in his favor. He won in 1958 by the biggest landslide in Canadian history.

SC-NDP HOLD BALANCE

When the Liberals present their first non-confidence motion in the Commons, it will be up to Social Credit and the NDP to decide whether to sustain the government. Together or separately, the two splinter parties hold the balance of power in that situation.

Robert Thompson, national Social Credit leader, said at Red Deer, Alta., that his party will use its power to provide a reasonable stable government until a budget is presented and another election called.

Mr. Diefenbaker, whose party fell more than a dozen seats short of an over-all majority of 133 seats, recalled that in 1921 Liberal Prime Minister Mackenzie King had only 116 seats in the then 235-member Commons and stayed in office for four years. The Progressives then held 64 seats and the Conservatives 50. Mr. King got by with Progressive support.

The prime minister, at Prince Albert, Sask., said any "definite and final statement" on formation of the government will await results Saturday of the armed forces' vote.

Recounts in Socred certain in a number of close contests, on basis of the civilian vote alone. Voting in Stormont, Ont., was deferred to July 16 because of the death of the Liberal candidate.

SEES PC DEFEAT

However, it was obvious the Liberals, with some 20 fewer seats than the Conservatives, would not be called upon to form a government.

Liberal Leader Pearson said in Ottawa it was clear the Conservatives had suffered a defeat after four years in office with the largest majority in history.

A record vote was indicated, probably 250,000 more than the previous record of 7,287,297 in 1958.

Only Nova Scotia, Prince Edward Island and the Prairie provinces gave Mr. Diefenbaker the support he got from them in 1958. Conservative strength dropped to 14 from 50 in Quebec and to 36 from 85 in Ontario.

Social Credit, which had no members in the last Parliament after electing 19 in 1957, bit

INITIAL GLEE QUICKLY TURNS IN TORY HQ

Ontario, Quebec Results Not Good

OTTAWA (CP) — There was gloom in the Ottawa Progressive Conservative headquarters here early today. But it wasn't that way all evening.

As early results started to pour in from the Atlantic provinces, the two dozen workers in the old three-storey downtown building were clearly delighted with the way things appeared to be going. Newfoundland, they said, was expected to retain its Liberal majority and Nova Scotia appeared to be doing better than expected for the Conservatives. New Brunswick was also bright, and so was Prince Edward Island.

Attractive girls rushed back and forth down a long corridor, carrying reports from Canadian Press teletypes to two rooms where blackboards waited for the chalk marks that would indicate leaders in each riding.

"It looks good," they said as they handed the slips to a marker. The remarks always got enthusiastic agreement.

THEN COMES QUEBEC

But then Quebec and Ontario returns started coming in. First, there were indications of big Social Credit gains in Quebec, then Liberal gains in Ontario. The changed atmosphere became quieter. Heads shook, and tension mounted.

"Oh, God, look at that," one of the girls said, pointing to the Quebec board. "Look at it, hell of it!"

Employees of the headquarters left their offices to stand in front of the blackboards. Encouraging reports from the Maritimes did little to raise spirits.

Art Sabins, a Montreal public relations executive who headed the staff in the absence of Allister Grosart, remained behind his closed office door, on which was written "Keep Out — Messengers darted in, and out with reports.

The atmosphere hit its lowest point just before Manitoba results became known.

A party employee told reporters it was likely that the Conservatives would be in opposition.

A CBC announcer quoted the remark without attribution on television and Mr. B. Sabins promptly ordered the TV can-

PRINCE ALBERT, Sask. (CP) — Transcript of a recorded radio address by Prime Minister Diefenbaker Monday, which he largely repeated on television:

My fellow Canadians, while naturally disappointed that the Conservative party has not an over-all majority I want to say this—that the present situation is, of course, not without precedent. It will be remembered that in 1921 Mr. Mackenzie King secured 117 seats.

There were 64 Progressives, 50 Liberals, three Labor members and one Independent. And he continued in office until 1926.

We shall have to wait to see the result of the soldier vote in order to make any definite and final statement in this connection.

On this occasion I want to congratulate all who were successful and express my regrets to those who were losers.

I have been in public life so long while and I have had my vicissitudes, ups and downs of public life. To those of you who were unsuccessful I hope the days ahead new opportunities will come to them.

Above all I want to thank our supporters everywhere across Canada for the magnificent fight, the work that they did, the service that they rendered.

And in my own constituency of Prince Albert—words cannot adequately express my feelings to all those who cooperated in such wonderful measure to give me the largest majority of all that I have had throughout the years that I have served this country.

CITY AND DISTRICT NEWS

PRINCESS REGRETS BAD WEATHER DURING VISIT

Mayor A. McLean Haig received word this morning from the Princess Royal that she regretted the inclement weather of yesterday evening during her trip through Belleville. The Princess Royal stated that she very much appreciated the many people who did turn out to watch her procession despite the rain and wished to thank them for their kindness and courtesy.

Fire Rating
Tweed Forest District

Heavy rains falling over the northern areas of the Tweed Forest District last night reduced the fire hazard to low.

Sharp lightning ripped over the district but no resulting fires were reported.

Of two fires reported yesterday one is out, the other under patrol control.

Rainfall in the northern area was: Deer, .32; Bancroft, .27, and Tweed, .39.

Stoco Lake Cottage Burns

TWEED — Fire completely destroyed a one-storey cottage on Sugar Island in Stoco Lake owned by Mrs. A. F. Wesley of 132 Bleecker Ave., early this morning.

It is believed the cottage caught fire after a bolt of lightning struck a large elm tree located beside Mrs. Wesley's cottage.

The fire broke out around 4:00 a.m. A heavy rain which fell in the area was said to have prevented other cottages close by from being wiped out.

Mrs. Wesley said the cottage was completely furnished. Estimated loss by the fire is as yet undetermined. The fire brigade from Tweed was called to the scene but could do nothing to prevent the heavy loss.

Geneva Park Near Orillia Scene of Meet

This past weekend the regional conference for So-Ed was held at Geneva Park, a YWCA camp on beautiful Lake Couchiching, near Orillia. So-Ed officials from all over Ontario attended, including several members from Belleville.

The theme of the conference was Society, So-Ed and the Young Adult. During the two days, discussions were held on these topics, bringing opinions and ideas together to successfully fulfill the purpose of the conference, making it a success. Basic principles, such as identity, adjustment, leadership, idealistic goals and values were suggested as playing a large part in these topics. Other business of the conference included the election of a new regional So-Ed executive.

Another aspect of the conference was the social entertainment which brought all members together, to enjoy a perfect weekend.

Rotarians See German Movie Of Plow Match

Local Rotarians viewed a West German film on the 1961 International Plowing Match at their regular luncheon meeting in the Hotel Quinte Monday afternoon. The 14 members present heard Mayor A. McLean Haig introduce the film and the head table guests, Margaret Ann Russell Scott and Horace Knight, chairman and vice chairman of the match respectively.

The film was in German and included a 20 minute address of Ontario life, among them an interview with Mayor Harvey McFarland of Picton.

Motion pictures from the hockey tournament at Prague, where Belleville won the world's championship, and a husky dog farm.

Rotarian Joe Demeza thanked the Chamber of Commerce and Earl Dickingether for making the film available.

The birthdays of Rotarians Bill Gault, Newt Thompson, Harry Rorrar and Ernie Bell were celebrated. President Vincent J. James conducted the meeting.

heaviest into Quebec where it won 26 seats.

Alberta, where Social Credit has been, returned only two members of that party. One was Leader Thomas E. Ellis first lieutenant and deputy leader, flamboyant Real Caouette, was the victorious in the Quebec constituency of Villeneuve.

DOUGLAS INFLUENCE

The NDP, outgrowth of the CCF, more than doubled its standing in national leader. T. C Douglas was beaten by Conservative Kel More in Regina City. The NDP emerged as the strongest party in British Columbia.

Four cabinet ministers were whipped as the Conservative host more than 80 seats. They were Works Minister Walker in Toronto Rosedale, Postmaster-General Hamilton in Montreal Notre - Dame - de - Grace, State Secretary Dorion in Bellechasse and Mines Minister Prince in Quebec South.

Mr. Diefenbaker who in the past has faced difficulty in finding subject material in Quebec, is up against that problem again.

As a rule, there is one English-speaking Quebec MP in the cabinet. But the only one was Howard Graffrey, Brome-Missisquoi, now that Mr. Hamilton is gone.

Paul Martineau of Pontiac-Timiskaming was the only French Speaker in view of the defeat of the Quebec trio. But Jean Lesage, Liberal, Roland Michener, in Toronto St. Paul's, Canada's two cities almost totally rejected the Conservatives.

The Liberals took 20 of the 21 Montreal riding and 12 of the 15 Toronto seats, a total of 32 gain of 11 from the Conservatives. The Conservative-Liberal inundated Toronto Telegram publisher John Bassett, Toronto Telegram columnist Margaret Aitken, Commons dean R. H. Halbert, Montreal Mayor Maccdonell, former minister without portfolio.

The CCF won three seats in the Toronto and York constituencies. They were the Conservatives only three.

GREEN A WINNER

Real Caouette did the same thing provincially to the CCF in British Columbia 10 years ago. In 1952 the CCF appeared on the city provincial election winner. The Liberals had only two seats at almost at the last minute and won the government with a majority of one.

The Liberals picked up 35 of Quebec's 75 seats, a gain of 9 Conservatives 24. Voting was delivered until 9 p.m. in the remaining Ontario and Saskatchewan.

The Prairies came through as expected for Mr. Diefenbaker, whose government has supplied cash advances on farm-stored grain, made some $120,000,000 in acreage payments to small farmers in the last two years and eliminated the wheat surplus, largely through sales to Communist China.

The Conservatives took 11 of Manitoba's 14 seats, 16 of Saskatchewan's 17 and 15 of Alberta's 17.

The Prairies, as in 1958, were a stumbling block for the Liberals. They did not win a seat in the western provinces in 1958. This time they took two St. Boniface and Assiniboia where NDP defector Hazen Argue squeaked in.

The Liberals picked up four seats in British Columbia. They had none in 1958. They reclaimed their five in Newfoundland and won two in Nova Scotia, where they were shut out four years ago. They doubled their total in New Brunswick to six.

The Conservatives this time swept only one province—Prince Edward Island—whereas in 1958 they blanked the opposition in four P.E.I., Nova Scotia, Manitoba and Alberta.

Of the 265 seats at stake in Quebec and Ontario, The Conservatives took only 50, fewer than one-fifth, or one-third of the 46 Prairie seats, enough to form a majority.

The Conservatives narrowly led the popular vote, obtaining 37.4 per cent to 37.3 for the Liberals' 36.7. The NDP had 11.3 per cent and Social Credit 11.7.

Heavy Rain Scatters Many Awaiting to See Princess

Wet weather discouraged many people from turning out to view the Princess Royal as her procession passed through this city yesterday evening at about 10.00 p.m.

A number of cars were parked along Highway No. 2 to watch the procession as it came in from Trenton RCAF Base. There were several hundred gathered along Bridge Street in the downtown area but many of these were quickly scattered by a sudden cloudburst which occurred just as the procession started to cross the Lower Bridge.

Some brave souls remained at the roadside despite the heavy downpour however with umbrellas arranged over their heads, presenting a somewhat unusual and wetly humorous picture.

Downtown traffic was tied up for almost a quarter of an hour for the procession.

Candidates Express Thanks For Support

Returning officer William Van Tassel's office was the scene of a quiet acknowledgment of victory for Progressive Conservative Lew Grills yesterday afternoon.

Mr. Grills, Mrs. Van Tassel, Conservative Association president Mrs. Bert Hall and a few supporters gathered in the office to receive the official results of the election in Hastings South.

It was approximately 10:45 p.m. that each of the latter announced over radio station CJBQ that he conceded the election to Mr. Grills. Mr. Grills then acknowledged his re-election.

Mr. Grills thanked his workers for their efforts in the campaign and on election day. He stated that he would "continue to serve all the people of Hastings South" just as had been his policy in the past.

Mr. Grills noted that the people "certainly realized" that there had been an election in Hastings South and complimented his opponents on having conducted a clean campaign.

He stated he was always prepared to work for the good of the Riding and willing to assist anyone without regard to politics if he could be of service. He thanked his supporters for the wonderful help and support given during the campaign.

Robert Temple, the Liberal candidate, offered Mr. Grills his congratulations on being re-elected and commented that although the election had been very hard fought it had been a clean campaign.

Mr. Temple expressed his thanks for his "very fine show and enthusiasm" which the Liberal workers had turned out. He stated that he was very proud of their efforts and had been much encouraged by their enthusiasm during the campaign.

The Liberal candidate said that he looked forward to the next election which, he predicted, would undoubtedly have to be held in the very near future according to the trend already evident in the national results.

Mr. Temple stated that he felt the gap was closing and in the next election, with "the full enthusiasm and support" of his workers, Hastings South could be electing a Liberal member "for the government side of the House."

New Democratic Party candidate Leslie Digby was also present at the Returning Officer's headquarters to concede the election. He noted that although he had not done too well the vote for the NDP was quite well over a 50 percent increase of that received by the last CCF candidate in the Riding. He suggested that this was an indication of increasing interest in his party.

Mr. Digby congratulated Lee Grills on his re-election and the fact that clean campaign, involving no personalities, had been fought.

He also thanked his workers for putting on "a fine show" especially when one realized the very limited budget which was available for the campaign. "All in all," Mr. Digby concluded, "it was a wonderful experience."

Rossmore Woman Also Has Coins Found in Garden

After reading Monday's edition of The Ontario Intelligencer, Mrs. Elsie Hartley of Rossmore, went to her penny jar and dug out two old coins which she, too, had found in her garden when she and her husband lived in Shannonville 10 or 12 years ago.

Mrs. Hartley said she didn't think anything of them at the time, but after reading Monday's paper, became curious.

The dates of the coins she said were quite clear, one a 1826 United States penny, with thirteen stars on one side. The other penny has Mrs. Hartley puzzled. The date of the coin reads "1596." On one side of the coin is stamped a crown and a shield and on the other side, not too clear, is a small drawing of what appears to be Chinese buildings, and writing which appears to be in Latin.

Mrs. Hartley is rather interested in finding out what kind of coin it is and just exactly where it came from, if anyone would be able to help her, the phone number is WOodland 2-7134.

to top its previous high of 19 in 1957. A year later it rallied to win a seat as the Conservatives swept into power.

To Social Credit candidates who billed Mussio, Mr. Thompson said, "don't worry, we're building for the next time."

He credited his party's gains in Quebec to its ability to step into a "vacuum" created by the disenchantment of French-Canadians with the Liberals and the Conservatives.

BLAMES PC 'WELFARE'

Social Credit's poor showing in the Prairies was due to "what the Conservatives have handed out to the Prairie farmers . . . welfare."

But, he said, the farmers soon would realize the benefits given them would not make up for the rise in the cost of living.

Social Credit's success "is a sign of the times for the right-to-the right I mean what is correct."

The party was building "for the next time" in Ontario, the Maritimes and Saskatchewan.

The vote in Saskatchewan was an "anti-vote". Voters were against socialism and decided the Conservatives would be the surest way of accomplishing such an aim.

He noted that any possibility of a coalition with the Conservatives was "out."

ANNOUNCES PLANS

The party will use its balance of power to "put a budget" have some semblance of administration, and go back to the people.

Mr. Thompson said the Social Credit party is "organizing now" to help provide a reasonably stable government for Canada, until another election.

FINAL RETURNS

phone, talk to friends, think of the future . . . digest the returns."

He parried questions about the Conservative election victory by saying that party's vote in Quebec was the final showing. He had been surprised, he said, by the strong Social Credit showing in Quebec—and by the failure of the Social Credit Conservative group in British Columbia and Alberta to add to the total.

It was realized that Social Credit had captured a part of Quebec Conservative vote, but it was "a surprise that this was translated into so many seats."

Mr. Thompson commented when asked his opinion of the election result of the Canadian dollar, devalued to 92.5 American cents May 3 and pegged there.

EXPECTED IT

It was his hope, Mr. Pearson said, that speculators and other investors in international money markets would not conclude that Canada was suffering "from fundamental economic weakness."

"We are not," he said.

He said he was glad to get Toronto's ethnic vote, an indication, apparently, of the strong pitch made by Prime Minister Diefenbaker to that segment of the Canadian population. It was little more than one-third of the electorate had voted for the Conservatives., which in Mr. Pearson's view amounted to a "clear rejection."

"By love, quarter past one," he said finally at the Chateau Laurier Hotel where he'd gone for a TV appearance. In a delying rainstorm, he was driven home.

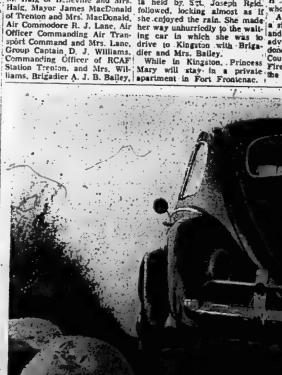
Council Moves to Enforce Zoning By-Law of Town

TRENTON—Trenton council met last night in brief, and unusually serious, brief and unpleasant session, pausing admittedly straining at the leash to get home to their television sets to watch up on the latest results on the federal election.

However, a number of clear-cut decisions came out of the meeting. Alec Webb, a railroad employee and Albert Ward, manager at Pyrotenax, were appointed to the Committee of Adjustment, which deals with minor variations to the zoning by-law.



Council decided to enforce the zoning by-law in two instances. Town solicitor Roderick Campbell was directed to institute proceedings against Mr. W. Andison. Mr. Andison is reported to have applied for a permit to "build a shed" on the shed to his residence. The building permit itself calls for "alterations to the building." In fact, the addition itself is reported to be a building as large as a bedroom. Side yard allowances do not comply with the zoning by-law requirements.

A Mr. Fink, owner of a Third Ave house, also was advised that he has broken the by-law by using his residence as a two-family dwelling, rather than the one-family dwelling called for in his home. Initially, Mr. Fink was permitted to build an addition onto his house for the use of his mother. The two sections were joined by a door inside the building. Now, Mr. Fink has been transferred by employers and has rented part of the house, while his mother still occupies one section.

The existing parking by-law will be enforced in regards to tires' sales' firm, whose building backs onto Balsam St est. Reportedly, cars are lined up on the street while tires are being greased. Then we spray the entire body, inside and out, with a second coat.

Then it's baked again and sanded by hand and sprayed with a third coat and baked and sanded by hand and sprayed with a fourth coat and baked. (Cost both three showers, three rubdowns. No wonder a Volkswagen stays in shape.)

Then we put the car together. Piece by piece.

Our 5,000 inspectors make sure that nothing is loose, or is likely to come loose. Ever. (If your new car rattle in a Volkswagen, it's not the glove compartment.)

Take a look at the underside of a VW. Here, too, we took the long way 'round to make a car that thrives on short cuts. The bottom of the Volkswagen is completely covered with a sheet of metal and sealed with rubber. Everything is enclosed and protected against flying stones and deep water. We don't take our word for it. Be our 5,001 inspector and try a Volkswagen on the rocks.

An Unsatisfactory Result

Few Canadians, outside of supporters of the Social Credit party, will be happy with the results of Monday's federal election.

For some time, short or long, we shall be ruled by a minority government, retaining office by the sufferance of opposition parties.

If Canadians believe that Canada's affairs could be improved—and apparently the majority of them do or they would not have cut so heavily into the Progressive Conservative Government's majority—they must surely hold that the last thing we want at this time is a weak government.

What Canada needs is another election—but not until there is some good reason to believe that another vote would produce a different result and not merely duplicate the uncertainty born of Monday's results.

There were many political observers who correctly forecast that the election would be extremely close and not a few who foresaw the stalemate. But none of them, except Social Credit leader Robert Thompson and his aides, expected the amazing Social Credit uprising in Quebec. Not only did the Socreds capture Progressive Conservative seats on the seizure of which the Liberals had pinned their hopes for obtaining an over-all majority, but they also played havoc with the Liberals in ridings which they had managed to hold in the face of the 1958 Progressive Conservative flood. Social Credit, a party which had been annihilated in 1958, now returns to Ottawa with greater strength than ever before in its history and this strength is no longer concentrated in just two western provinces.

There would appear to be little reason to expect that Socred victories in Quebec will be easily erased at any election in the near future. Ironically enough, there had been plain indications of this Socred upset, but trained observers were incredulous.

Clarke Davey, Toronto Globe and Mail newsman, on a visit to The Ontario Intelligencer office a few days ago, said that if he had believed what he was told, he would say Social Credit would sweep Quebec. But he did not accept this evidence at its face value—and neither did any of the other newspapermen who gathered similar indications.

It is intriguing to note how this enthusiasm for Social Credit was confined to Quebec. At the same time that the regret of the first two Social Credit Quebec gains came over The Canadian Press wire, one from the Progressive Conservatives and the other from the Liberals, a report from the Port Arthur riding in Ontario showed that the Social Credit candidate there was running behind the Communist in a five-man race.

Even more difficult to explain was the spotty showing of New Democratic candidates. In one or two ridings in the Maritimes the New Democratic Party ran strongly; in others the candidates received only a handful of votes. But it was the Toronto ridings which provided the most topsy-turvy results. In some, NDP candidates were well up, if not leading. In Toronto Rosedale and Toronto High Park, however, the returns were almost unbelievably close to a thousand votes in, neither the Social Credit nor New Democratic candidate in Toronto Rosedale had received a single vote. Then along came Toronto High Park, with not a single vote for either the Social Credit or NDP candidates in forty polls, while it appeared to be an error, but later both the Social Credit and NDP candidates were still voteless, with 100 polls in and 11,891 ballots counted.

Locally, voters stayed with the Progressive Conservatives. Les E. Grills in Hastings South, Douglas Altenbrack in Prince Edward-Lennox and Rodney Webb in Hastings-Frontenac all received support which indicated beyond any doubt that the majority of Quinte district and Hastings County residents were satisfied with the record of the Diefenbaker Government. But, though the Conservatives were elected from every province of Canada, the majority of Canadians showed dissatisfaction with the government in no uncertain fashion.

Unfortunately, they could not make up their mind as to what type of government they wanted." This chapter of our political history needs a sequel before its significance becomes intelligible.

Current Campaign Lacks Distinction and Color

BY RICHARD JACKSON
(From The Ontario Intelligencer's Ottawa Bureau)

OTTAWA . . . Forecasting on which way . . . and how high and far . . . the political ball has bounced, work will be started today on preliminary revision of something that very few people beyond the bounds of the National Capital probably have ever dreamed existed.

And that something is what amounts to an official "packing order" — a ranking of who's who; in order of importance, in this supposed classless Canadian society.

Like most things in the bureaucracy, they do this in duplicate.

In the Parliamentary guide, a semi-official publication, it will somehow fall under heading of what is called "Official Precedence," and contains a "table" or a list of Rose-Bach-Mufuri Be-Slapped in what order.

Then, to nail it down, the Secretary of State Department puts out a little Blue Book called the "Order of Precedence."

Both are designed to put the boots to any social climbers who may be sailing around amid the potted palms . . . and to firmly put in his place the whole who do anybody.

. . . And if, like most of us poor taxpayers, you're a nobody (as most taxpayers are so considered by the Queen and the Mighty in these parts) then brother, you've absolutely nowhere and you'd better bring your own picnic lunch.

SOME CHANGES

Letter To The Editor

Wants Full Details Of Players' Claims

Editor,
Ontario Intelligencer.

It was with mixed feelings that I read your editorial of June 16th relative to the payment to ex-Belleville players of claims they have made against the city.

On the one hand it was delightful to see your paper take a definite stand in the case of this nature; on the other hand, and I will admit I am prejudiced, I was rather surprised you were in agreement with the city solicitor's statements.

I will admit that my knowledge of the claims is rather sketchy, however, I and no doubt you are well aware that Judge Wilmott in his enquiry said that the city had no legal responsibility to pay these claims.

This being the case I would appreciate it if you would publish in detail the claims that are for, for instance is it possible that some claims are for unpaid income tax, bonuses for various things, salaries that were offered after the hockey season if the player could not find employment, etc.

Please enlighten the public by getting all the details and the reasons for and against paying these claims, so that we may make our own mind up as to who is right or wrong.

One other point: if the players in question feel that they have just claims, I am sure the courts will only be too glad to settle the issue for them.

J. D. Bacon.
20 Stanley Park Drive,
Belleville.

Editors Note: There is no argument about legal responsibility. There is a moral responsibility on the part of the city administration is whether the city has any moral responsibility and whether, if it has, the city should honor it. The Ontario Intelligencer believes there is and it should. It seems to us to be grossly unfair for the city, claim is, in the language of the late orator Sir Wilfrid Laurier, to feel is the only yardstick, irrelevant and immaterial.

However, for the sake of those who believe the information important, it is true the bulk of the players' claims are of the types mentioned by Mrs. Bacon, although the bonus benefits promised the players to induce them to play for Belleville.

THE PACKSACK

By GREGORY CLARK

At the scene of a traffic accident on the highway, I drew in to speak to the provincial constable where I knew. He was sitting apart, on a fence, having taken all the particulars, and was waiting for a tow truck to clear away the obstruction caused by the cars on the shoulders of the four lanes.

"You're sulking, eh!" I greeted him.

"Yes," he said, "I get tired of hearing people involved in accidents telling me exactly how it happened, over and over. I've listened to three people for half an hour now, and I am taking a rest."

"How did it happen?" I enquired, to relieve his gloom.

"At about," said he, "the car proceeding west had a blowout. It wobbled all over the highway, and a car proceeding east collided with it. Three people hurt. Nobody killed. Cars ruined. I have just one rule for safety. Maybe you will publish it. Always drive at a speed, and at a distance from other cars, that shows your room for manoeuvre if the car coming towards you, or the car ahead of you, has a blowout, and starts wobbling. If that rule were observed, I'd be out of a half an hour now, and I am taking a rest."

Appreciation of the response of the general public, business and industry to the recent appeal of the Canadian Red Cross here, was released today by the General Campaign Chairman for the Belleville Branch and its subsidiaries. polled in the 1958 elections.

The third party also noted a gain in the constituency. In 1958 Howard Wesse running on the CCF ticket claimed 1,007 votes. Yesterday the NDP candidate chalked up 1,783.

Some 30,004 votes were cast in the riding election yesterday, an increase of 2,719 over the 1958 figure. The vote represented a big majority of the eligible electorate.

The over-all Conservative vote of 13,293 was reduced from the 15,194 figure of 1958 by 1,779, Mr. Temple recorded a poll of 13,979, a 2,939 increase of 2,939 over the figure of the previous election.

Yesterday only Grills won seven of the riding's eleven voting centres. He won Bellrock, Sidney, Frankford, Stirling, Thurlow, Deseronto and Hungerford. Mr. Temple took Trenton, the RCAF Station Trenton, Tyendinaga and Tweed.

MAJORITIES CUT

The Conservative majorities were also cut down sharply in all the outlying voting centres. In Mr. Grills' native Sidney township, Grills gave him a 1,189 majority in the past election, Mr. Temple took a close second with 1,128 votes as against 1,405 for Mr. Grills.

Thurlow, which gave Grills a majority of 1,369 in 1958, polled a low vote giving the victorious candidate 1207 Temple's 677.

Tyendinaga did an about-face over the last election when it gave Grills a 181 majority. Yesterday it favored the Liberal candidate with a 36 majority.

Tweed also reversed its decision giving the Liberals 623 over 306 for the PC. In the last election it gave Mr. Grills a majority of 217.

Hungerford favored Mr. Grills yesterday but with a sharply reduced margin. In 1958 the township returned the PC with a 266 majority. Yesterday his vote was 592, against Mr. Temple's 514.

Members of the RCAF at the Trenton station made no bones as to their choice. They piled up 498 votes for Temple, giving Grills 140 and the NDP 40.

The town of Trenton also marked a sharp reversal of election form. In the 1958 election it gave Grills 2386 and Dr. McVicker 1,718. It swung definitely to the Liberal side yesterday, giving Temple 2,408 and Grills 2,134, with a poll to hear from.

By a strange coincidence, Frankford voters polled 283 votes for Mr. Grills, the same number as the last election, but boosted the Liberal vote from 138 to 243 in yesterday's fight.

Stirling, too, cut the Grills' former majority. It gave him 135 in 1958. Yesterday's Conservative margin was 58.

Deseronto ran along with other centres in a majority-clipping vote. In 1958 it gave Grills a 168 majority over Dr. McVicker. Yesterday Mr. Grills polled 353 and Mr. Temple 323.

CITY VOTE HIGHER

In the city Mr. Grills' unofficial vote was 7,191, an increase of 1,544 over his 1958 poll. But Mr. Temple recorded 5,716 urban votes, an increase of 2,850 over the figure cast for Dr. McVicker in the 1958 election.

Mr. Digby's NDP followers gave him 637 votes, as against 348 given the CCF candidate, Mr. Wesse, in the previous election.

Quinte Yacht Club Prepares For 'Sail-Past'

This Saturday afternoon the citizens of Belleville will be treated to the usual fine display of boats that attends every annual "sail-past" of the Bay of Quinte Yacht Club.

Both the sailing fleet, including the large keel class boats and the smaller centre-boarders, and the cruiser fleet, will be involved in the event, with the "dressed overall" for the occasion a highpoint in any yacht club's year.

They will rendezvous in an area between the government dock and the Bay Bridge, depending on wind conditions, prior to sailing past the "commodore's barge," which will be located about 100 yards south of the tip of Victoria Park.

In any event spectators will be able to get a good view of the proceedings from either Victoria Park or the government dock.

The sailing fleet will be under the command of Ian Bowerman, while the commander of the cruiser fleet will be led by past commodore Milt Davidson, "Commodore."

Commodore Ernie Colbourne, the club's "whelk," will be taking the salute.

Socred Upset in Quebec Spearheaded by Oratory Of Party's Deputy Leader

By BERNARD PUFFERETTE

QUEBEC (CP) — Quebec politics gained a third dimension in Monday's general election.

It was fashioned by the Social Credit party which rode a strong wave of protest votes that upset the traditional Conservative-Liberal split for the province's support.

Spearheaded by the spellbinding oratory of Real Caouette, 44, the party's deputy national leader, Social Credit scored a breakthrough that carried 26 of the province's 75 Commons seats.

The Liberal party won the largest number of Quebec seats, 35, or 10 more than it had in the last house. The Progressive Conservative party dropped three cabinet ministers to 14 from 30 members.

The New Democratic Party elected a member. All of them lost their $300 deposits.

WORKERS ELECT SOCREDS

Social Credit gains were mainly in depressed agricultural areas in the eastern and northern parts of the province and in areas populated by modest wage-earners. Many were by wide margins.

"It was a victory of the people over the only party machines," said Mr. Caouette who won a landslide personal victory in Villeneuve, the northern Quebec mining constituency. His three opponents lost their deposits.

Until now, Quebec has always rejected the third party parties. Independents and nationalists have had doubtful successes in federal elections, but only once has Social Credit ever been elected in Quebec until now.

Mr. Caouette won a byelection in Pontiac-Temiscamingue in 1946 but was defeated in the 1949 general federal election.

Social Credit now enters Canada's 25th Parliament with 26 seats—including two each in Alberta and British Columbia—and conceivably holds the balance of power since the Progressive Conservative government has returned with a minority. Mr. Caouette rejected the idea of a coalition government that would include Social Creditors.

HOLD STRONG POSITION

The strong showing by Mr. Caouette and his Quebec Social Creditors, who took 18 seats from the Conservatives and eight from the Liberals, places them in a dominant position within the party led by Robert N. Thompson who won in Red Deer, in Alberta.

Social Credit organizers here had expected a stronger showing in the West, especially in Alberta and B.C., which have Social Credit provincial governments.

The Liberals won 18 seats from the Progressive Conservatives, but their loss of eight to the Social Creditors gave them a net gain of 10.

Maurice Lamontagne, Liberal Leader Pearson's economic adviser, was defeated by a Social Credit candidate in Quebec East, a traditional Liberal riding until Conservative Yvon Tasse won it in 1958.

However, former Liberal transport minister Lionel Chevrier retained Montreal Laurier.

WIN PC RIDINGS

Charles M. (Bud) Drury, former deputy defence minister, won in Montreal St. Antoine-Westmount, and Maurice Sauve, a top Liberal organizer, won in Montreal Mercier.

Both ridings had been held by Progressive Conservatives.

The three defeated Conservative cabinet ministers are Postmaster General William Hamilton in Montreal, Notre-Dame-de-Grace, Mines Minister Jacques Flynn in Quebec South —both by Liberal candidates—and State Secretary Noel Dorion in Bellechasse, by a Socred.

Of the three, only Mr. Dorion disclosed his plans for the future. He said he is retiring from active politics. He was first elected in the 1958 Conservative sweep of the country.

Transport Minister Leon Balcer, Trois Rivieres, Associate Defence Minister Pierre Sevigny in Longueuil, and Defence Production Minister Raymond O'Hurley in Lotbiniere were re-elected.

The 14 Conservative seats are sprinkled throughout the province, with no particularly strong regional grouping.

TAKE MONTREAL AREA

The bulk of the Liberal strength is in and around Montreal. Of the 21 Montreal ridings, the Liberals won 20 and the Conservatives retained one. Seven other Liberal seats are all around Montreal.

There were no particularly strong issues that divided Quebec before the election.

Mr. Caouette began mounting his Social Credit in Quebec a couple of years ago with weekly television programs on privately - owned stations in some parts of the province.

This election, for the first time, the party had a candidate in every Quebec riding. They received more than 25 per cent of the slogan 2,000,000 votes cast.

Throughout the campaign he and his supporters plugged the slogan "Vote Social Credit."

Graham Says United States Is on Wane

CHICAGO (AP) — Billy Graham, climaxing his 12-day Chicago Crusade for Christ, told the largest North American audience of his evangelistic career Sunday that the United States is on the wane.

Graham said to an estimated 134,000 persons jammed in Soldier Field, there are two major reasons for the decline of American society:

"We in America have gone on a sex binge that has no parallel in history.

"Our preoccupation with materialism.

"Our lust for pleasure—physical and sensual.

"Our building of armaments. And I tell you all the arms we build will not save us.

"The decay of religion in America. We play at being Christians. We believe in God with our intellects. We serve him with our lips."

Bidding farewell to Chicago, Graham urged his listeners to keep burning in your hearts the spiritual fires my Chicago revival has ignited."

"You can't come to God anytime—You can only come when the spiritual movement is right. This is the hour."

the West."

Mr. Ouellett said he could not see anything but a temporary coalition with the Progressive Conservatives to gain time for another election and to deal with national affairs.

Meanwhile Social Credit planned an all - out national campaign and hoped there would not be another election before next spring.

"We have television, starting Oct. 15 all over Canada on local newscasts," he said, "plus the to the Maritimes to organize it as we did in Quebec.

'MATTER OF TIME'

"It's just a matter of time before we form the next government."

Television was the key that brought Social Credit its success in Quebec.

The seats they won formed a pattern across northern Quebec down the Saguenay, through the Quebec City and Beauce regions into Sherbrooke in the Eastern Townships — all the areas where Mr. Caouette had been making weekly TV appearances for two years or more.

Mr. Ouellett said the Quebec campaign was "dirty, just plain dirty."

The Liberals particularly, they tried to divide French-Canadians on religious grounds and language. They said we were anti-Catholic.

"But Quebecers don't vote for money any more, not like the old Duplessis gang."

Both Sides of Deseronto H.S. Issue Heard by Council

Hastings county council this afternoon was scheduled to decide on whether it would approve of a by-law allowing the Deseronto Board of Education to close its high school and join the Napanee District High School Area.

A special meeting of council was called for today and this morning representations both for and against the request were heard from approximately eight speakers.

At noon council proceedings were adjourned to continue this afternoon when the issue is expected to be decided.

Alex Harvey, chairman of the Deseronto Board of Education told county council that in asking for the closing of the Deseronto High School his board was acting in the best interests of the students and the tax payer.

He said that in joining the Napanee area Deseronto would be providing broader education possibilities for high school students.

He also presented education cost figures which showed that 1961 Deseronto would have saved money if high school students had been attending the Napanee school.

On the other hand spokesmen for the Deseronto Ratepayers' Association asked that county council not accede to the request of the Deseronto school board that the Deseronto high school be closed.

Delegation spokesmen Earl Keech, speaking for the ratepayers' association chairman, Ross Neal, who is in hospital recuperating from a heart attack, told council that the majority of Deseronto ratepayers wanted to retain their high school. They were saying that the matter be placed before the ratepayers in a referendum.

He said that a petition circulated by the ratepayers was signed by 70 per cent of the 250 eligible ratepayers in the town.

"Why should we give up our own debt-free school to join a debt-ridden area?" he asked.

Added Hazards

Frankford DRO Is Left in Dark, Hillcrest Poll Official Famts

Vagaries of the weather and the human element served to slow election returns in two polling sub-divisions in Hastings county last night.

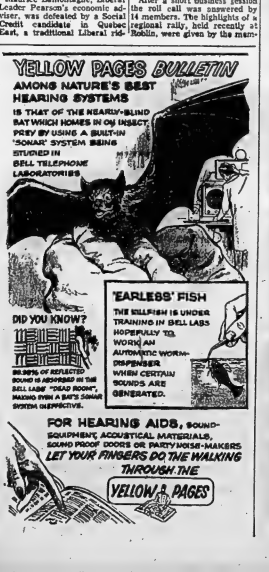
In the village of Frankford, an electrical storm which swept through the area put the lights out in the returning office and the count was held up temporarily as well as the report to returning officer headquarters in Belleville.

And in the city in a Hillcrest polling sub-division a deputy returning officer took a fainting spell during the count and a doctor had to be called.

But in the majority of cases the election count was speedy at the polls with the first reaching Belleville returning office from Poll 86 Trenton just 15 minutes after eight o'clock.

From then on for the next hour it was a busy time at the returning office with a battery of three phones being kept constantly busy with incoming calls.

By eleven o'clock there were less than 20 polls to hear from.



Returning officer William VanTassell and his staff remained on the job until closer to four o'clock this morning, tabulating returns, but returns from two regular polls, one in Thurlow and the other in Deseronto, failed to come in. This morning the two above polls and the advance poll from Tweed, were still outstanding.

Four of Five Women Members of Last House Are Again Re-elected

By JAMES NELSON
Canadian Press Staff Writer

Four of the five women members of the last Parliament were re-elected in Monday's general election, including Mrs. Ellen Fairclough, minister of citizenship and immigration.

The defeated incumbent was Margaret Aitken, 53, long-time Toronto Telegram columnist, who lost to a Liberal in suburb-area seat of York-Humber she represented in the commons since 1953.

Returned along with Mrs. Fairclough were Mrs. Jean Casselman, 41, in Grenville-Dundas, Ont., and Mrs. Margaret MacDonald, 51, in Kings, P.E.I., both Conservatives and Liberal Judy La Marsh, 37, in Niagara Falls.

Another woman candidate bidding to succeed her husband in the seat he held before his death last June 4 was Mrs. Ann one of the country's two undecided races when counting stopped for the night.

RIDING RENAMED

This was Mrs. Isabel Hardie, 40-year-old native of Winnipeg and widow of Mervyn Hardie, who represented the far-North constituency of Mackenzie River from 1953. This constituency is named Northwest Territories and enlarged to include vast tracts of the Arctic, is the largest riding in area.

With 22 of 225 polls unreported Monday night, Mrs. Hardie was leading Progressive Conservative Eugene Rheaume 3,480 votes to 2,194. A Social Credit candidate was out of contention in the three-way race.

All told, there were 29 women among the record 1,012 candidates seeking the 264 Commons seats at stake Monday. The Conservatives fielded seven, the Liberal and New Democratic parties six each, Social Credit five, and there was one Communist and one Independent.

Like Mrs. Hardie, Conservative winners Mrs. Casselman and Mrs. MacDonald are widows. Both succeeded to the seats formerly held by their husbands.

All four women declared elected Monday originally entered the Commons in by-elections—Mrs. Fairclough in 1950, Mrs. Casselman in 1958, Miss La Marsh in 1960 and Mrs. MacDonald in 1961.

WAS COMMONS DEAN

Mrs. Casselman, with her father, Hon. Earl Rowe, re-elected in the Ontario riding of Dufferin-Simcoe, form the only father-daughter team in Canadian parliamentary history. Mrs. Casselman's husband, A. Clair Casselman, was the dean of the Commons at his death at the 1958 election.

Mrs. Fairclough, 57, was an original member of the Progressive Conservative government formed by Prime Minister Diefenbaker in 1957, being given the portfolio of state secretary. She became immigration minister in May, 1958.

Miss La Marsh, a lawyer, had been considered a good bet for a cabinet post had the Liberals won the election.

She and Mrs. Casselman had older women among their opponents.

Mrs. Ann Shipley, candidate in Timiskaming, was Liberal MP for that riding from 1953 to 1957.

Mme. Therese Casgrain, vice-president of the Social Democratic party in Quebec until last year when it became part of the New Democratic party, was defeated in Montreal Outremont-St.-Jean.

Pauline Jewett, who gave up the chairmanship of the political science department of Carleton University in Ottawa last year to enter politics lost as a Liberal candidate in Ontario's Northumberland riding.

Sisters Enjoy Reunion After 45 Years

STIRLING — Four sisters met Wednesday morning at the home of Mrs. J. C. Johns of Frankford, on the occasion of the arrival of Mrs. Ian Madin of Beckingham, Lincolnshire, England, who arrived in Montreal via the Empress of Britain, on Tuesday. Mr. and Mrs. Johns were in readiness, to welcome her at Montreal.

The last meeting of the four sisters was in Mansfield, Nottinghamshire, England, in 1917. The sisters are Mrs. Wilfred Graver and Mrs. Harry Smith of Stirling, and they emigrated to Canada over 30 years ago. The sisters enjoyed a happy reunion dinner on Wednesday and will meet at other homes on various occasions during the six weeks that Mrs. Madin will be in Canada. This is her first visit to it and she has planned for many days to enjoy this trip to visit her sisters here.

The last visit of the four sisters was in England 45 years ago so there is a lot of reminiscing to do in the weeks ahead.

West Hastings U.C.W. Holds 1st Regional at Mt. Pleasant

The first regional meeting of West Hastings United Church Women met at Mount Pleasant. Early registration showed a good attendance from all but six appointments, including six Presbyterial and two Conference Branch officers.

Mrs. Garth Joslin and Mrs. M. Macmillan conducted a singsong of inspirational hymns of the church.

The morning devotion was conducted by Mrs. David Duffin of St. Paul's United Church, Stirling. The theme was "Teach Me To Love." The Scripture, hymns and meditation combined to give much food for thought.

"The fires of fury are whipped by the winds of hate and the scorched earth is being consumed, not by nuclear weapons, but spiritual fires which are more deadly to body and soul than anything man can devise to show his might and hatred.

THE CHALLENGE

"We are challenged to overcome evil with good, and indifference with love, and suspicion with trust."

The president, Mrs. Kenneth Weaver, welcomed all on behalf of the Rev. William Fletcher and the session.

The theme of the entire meeting was "We cannot live a faith we don't know; we cannot teach a faith we don't live."

Bible study conducted by Mrs. James Payton Sr., of Grace United Church, Trenton, was based on "The Ministry of the Laity." "We, the UCW, belong to the laity of the church, which is a fellowship of believers that was instituted when Christ first called His disciples. It has been said that 'Jesus Christ alone can save the world, but Jesus Christ cannot save the world alone.' The disciples were called for fellowship and companionship to be taught and then were sent out as apostles to be witnesses of His resurrection. 'Ye are the salt of the earth.' Thus we must assemble and scatter, as salt is used, to proclaim the Gospel in our homes, in the office, in schools, and in our churches. Our lives should be a light to guide, to dispel darkness, fear and superstition. We must train and equip ourselves to witness of and for Christ, whether in field of politics, industry or education. 'Walk worthy of the vocation wherewith we are called'."

NEXT REGIONAL—MARMORA

The next regional meeting will be held in Marmora United Church, Marmora.

Three discussion groups were conducted by Presbyterial and Conference Branch leaders. They were as follows: The Constitution — Mrs. Smithrim, Presbyterial president; cooperation in Christian and Missionary education — Mrs. Clarke, Conference Branch vice-president and Mrs. C. W. Smith Presbyterial treasurer; program — Mrs. R. Hill, Conference secretary of program.

Mrs. C. Sine, of Harold, Presbyterial secretary of literature and communications gave a synopsis of the books available to use in the work, study and prayer life of the U.C.W. Many visited the literature table at noon and purchased books.

The hostess U.C.W. served a hot dinner in the United Church hall.

AFTERNOON SERVICE

The afternoon worship service was conducted by Aikens U.C.W. The Scripture and hymns was based on "Faith".

The offering was dedicated by this group. Miss Linda Wellman, of Springbrook, sang, "God Hath Not Promised".

One of the highlights of the entire session was the address given by Miss Millicent Howe who was introduced by Mrs. D. Macfadden. Miss Howe, recently of the Angola Mission Field in Africa, fittingly contrasted the over-crowded country of India and its four million street dwellers, with the vast expanses of the African continent whose people can find shelter under a tree, in the jungle or in one of its many villages of mud huts.

The speaker was privileged to attend the 1961 Assembly of the World Council of Churches at New Delhi, India. It was interesting to see and learn about the 90 delegates from 90 countries represented and to hear the 100 confessions of faith. Five official languages were interpreted and Ecumenical counterparts of the United Nations.

There were three things of outstanding significance at the Council at New Delhi: the International Missionary Council became a committee of the W.C.C.; the Russian Orthodox Church joined the W.C.C.; the W.C.C. has decentralized at last having met in a non-Christian country, India. This no one can say it is only of the west.

Using the theme of the WCC "Jesus Christ the Light of the World" Miss Howse asked the assembly to mentally turn that light upon Angola and the African. Thousands are denied the privilege of knowing Christ, to enter into an intellectual development which is every child's heritage.

POOR HEALTH

"There is not really a healthy person in Angola. The African is bound by superstition and fear. He has not a conception of what it means to be a citizen or a member of a world church. Yet in the African we find a will to lead his own people.

"While he appreciates often beyond repute: the pigs "live in." These people are denied the privilege of knowing. They are tired of being on the giving end and want to be on the receiving end.

"We of the Christian world think we are doing great things, but we are losing out. A few years ago we made up 10 percent of the world population. Today we make up 20 percent. The regional president expressed thanks to Miss Howse.

Mrs. Smithrim dealt with questions of answers.

Marmora United Church UCW brought in a full courtesy repast.

The hymn, "A Charge To Keep I Have," and a benediction closed this first regional meeting. The atmosphere of the entire session was of spiritual uplift.

Roddy's New Favorite Cookies

These are hearty nourishing sandwich cookies — the all favorite oatmeal date sandwich — that will appease aching stomachs before dinner is ready.

But so the same dough may be used for tea party purposes, we have given some exotic fillings to please cookie connoisseurs.

TUESDAY

Dinner Menu

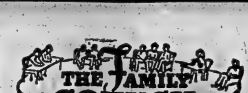
Beef, Kidney and Mushroom Pie; Buttered Broccoli; Leaf Lettuce and Watercress Salad with 1000-Island Dressing; Hot Baked Rhubarb; Various Crackers and Cheese; Tea.

RODDY'S NEW FAVORITE COOKIES (5½ dozen 2½" cookies or 3½ dozen made up into cookie sandwiches):

½ cups sifted all-purpose flour, ½ teaspoon salt, 1 cup quick-cooking rolled oats, 1 cup shortening (half butter), 1 teaspoon soda, 1-3 cup buttermilk, 1½ cups dark brown sugar.

In a large bowl measure flour, salt and rolled oats. Work shortening into these with your fingertips (or use pastry blender); add the soda into the buttermilk and add this mixture and the sugar and mix well. Pack into 2 firm balls between your palms, flatten somewhat, and wrap well and chill until firm. Roll out ¼ of a ball at a time (that is, ¼ of a chilled ball) on lightly floured board to ⅛" thickness with 3½" - plain fluted cookie cutter. Bake on buttered cookie sheet at 375 deg. Fahr. for 8 to 10 minutes. Cool on cake rack.

Variation: For dainty tea party cookies roll to ¼" thickness, cut out with 1½" cutter and bake on buttered cookie sheet at 375 deg. Fahr. for 5 or 6 minutes. Cool.



Put together in pairs with one of the following fillings between:

1) Date Filling: (Note: This filling is the regular date filling to be got between oatmeal cookies, but has the addition of chopped nuts. They may be omitted. Use it for regular 2½" cookie sandwich or for thinly spread filling between cookie sandwiches.) One and one-half cups chopped dates (8 oz.), ½ cup sugar, ½ cup water, 2 tablespoons lemon juice, ½ cup finely chopped walnuts or almonds (optional). Mix all ingredients together, except nuts. Heat until boiling then reduce heat and stir 5 minutes. Cool before spreading between cookies (the amount will fill 3½ to 4 dozen.

2) Fig Filling: Same as above but use figs instead of dates.

3) Apricot: One cup cooked dried apricots (or drained canned apricots), 1 cup sugar, ½ tablespoon lemon juice. Heat ingredients together stirring until boiling and a little thickened. Cool. Use to spread between extra thin sandwich cookies or the cookie sandwiches given here May 30th or as the filling in bar cookies given here June 5th instead of chocolate icing.

Raymond U. — Why couldn't she have told me she was studying voice?

Lorna U. — He is a fine fun of me when I tell him my ideas. . . .

Raymond U. — Lorna and I have been married 12 years and have two daughters. I'd like to know if my wife talks to me though I'm a mental defective, — just baby talk and nonsense. I like "cooing" too more's the help — but she saves all her important talk for her friends and her family. Even the children know more about how she spends her day and what she's plotting and planning than I do. And I'm her husband, her next-of kin!

What brings me to this slow boil is meeting a neighbor on the bus and having him ask me how Lorna's lessons were coming along. I didn't even know she was taking any, but this guy's wife had told him all well, I mumbled something to the effect that I was on things I'd evidently she leads a private life right under my nose. I'd like a little track, and right away, too.

Lorna U. — A woman can be laughed at just so much. What's a wife to do with her hopes and dreams and bright ideas if she doesn't get even a snort from her husband is ridicule?

From the beginning of our marriage I used to tell him all the things I'd like to do with him — my hopes and plans and work. He'd nod or grin or just grunt. But when the children were out of diapers and on their feet, I began to talk more to myself than to anyone else, when he began to make fun of me. And it hurt terribly.

So when our daughter started kindergarten this winter, I signed up for voice lessons at the Community House. Some of my friends criticized me for being flighty and stage-struck. Others approved. I figured I'd be happy if I could invite him in to a class concert.

The Council: How do you think bartenders got so popular, can be fun to talk to, get people to and they heave a deep sigh at the right time. And that's more than many husbands and wives do for each other!

When two people have joined their fates and fortunes, a rift between the two is a problem for communication between them which involves all of us. Lorna says Ray's mockery hurt terribly, and it did. For she was exposing her most secret pain, her fragile aspirations. And from this rift comes her request for sympathy and encouragement, which he has scorn had dismissed.

Here is a clear illustration of the special nature of the talk between husband and wife. It's so different from the reverse action each might have with anybody else. Disappointed by others can be shrugged off. Disappointed by a spouse is a example, that she looks like a fool, compounds herself by thinking, "That's how optimism. I can take it or leave it. Regardless of what you think, I still have my husband's okay." Lorna needs that consolation. Not only did she despair of Raymond's staunch backing-up in the face of the Philharmonic-The-World, she felt he'd be the loser, he doesn't her, rather than the last.

Lorna is a lonely woman, Ray's wife had told him! eye-to-eye with her every day, and all she was expect from human being needs whether married or not — friendship, love, a patient ear and a non-judging heart, she must have them. Perhaps it is too much to ask of a husband to be a breadwinner, mate, friend, Mr. Fixer, pal, good-sport and all the rest. If so, two communities are doomed. The become-Lorna's confidant by being less caustic and frightening; and, if you can't stand it, you all her "bubbles" you must learn to keep your feelings to them to others for comment and review.

Raymond's smile means more to a wife than the cheers of a multitude. Raymond's frown can make her "tremble with fear" like Sweet Alice in "Ben Bolt." That's why others than hurt top-of-the-heard opinions, Raymond's opinions should hold judgment until dictated by top-of-the-heart impulses.

WHAT'S YOUR E.Q.?

Buffet service is a year-round favorite of busy hostesses, and during warm weather months it's even more relaxed and fits the mood of the season. Do you know the secrets behind the success of buffet dinners? To find out, see if you can answer these questions:

1. Is there any traditional way in which a buffet table must be set?

2. What's the best way to arrange food on the table?...

3. Should the table be covered with a cloth?

4. How should beverages be served?

5. Should there be separate salad plates?

6. Where should plates and cups and saucers for dessert and coffee be stacked?

7. Should the hottest stand at the table and help guests fill their plates?

8. In how many special orders in which guests file in to start the service?

9. How are plates cleared away before the dessert course?

10. Should silver be stored in large cups or in demitasse cups Answers:

1. It should look gay and festive, and an imaginative centerpiece and candles usually provide the proper atmosphere. Set the table from using your prettiest tablesware and accessories, there's no "traditional" way of setting a buffet table.

2. Guests should be able to go down the line in a natural way, to double back for anything. Here's an easy arrangement. First come the dinner plates, stacked at the end. Then the guests file past flatware placed with a base of rice or noodles, then should be placed together so guests can help themselves in sequence. Next, the vegetable, meat or fish dishes, a pitcher and silver and rolls or bread. Last, it may, but the cloth doesn't always have to be the last, as even damask. Colorful linens may be used, and the table has a lovely finish worth showing off, it may be left bare.

3. It's best to have the host and hostess pass wine or other beverage after guests are seated. However, it's correct to place filled glasses at the end of the buffet table as guests can help themselves.

4. Not necessarily. If dinner is eaten from a coffee table or a lap, separate salad plates are highly impractical. Most if guests sit down at a dinner table after serving, separate plates may be set at each place in advance.

5. Dessert plates are stacked next to the dessert. Cups are not stacked, but set out individually with saucers and spoon with a spoon. Again, guests may serve themselves, but often it's easier for the host and hostess to serve dessert and coffee after guests are seated.

6. The hottest should be allowed to start their plates.

8, No. The usual procedure is to get a few people to start the line rolling, then your guests will follow. The host and hostess then go to the end of the line.

9. The hostess, if she's helpless, can remove plates a few at a time, as soon as she's sure guests are not going back for more. This way it's done without rushing and in a relaxed manner.

10. Either is correct, depending on the size of the crowd. If the party is large, guests can be served more easily when the small cups are used.

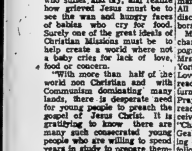
U.C.W. Meetings

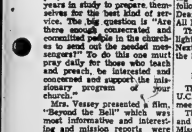
COLLEGE HILL U.C.W.

The Afternoon Unit of College Hill U.C.W. met in the home of meeting on Wednesday afternoon with Convener, Mrs. W. Dickens, who presided and welcomed the ladies. Hymn 147 was answered by the number of sick calls made.



A vote of thanks was moved by Mrs. R. Neal to Rev. and Mrs. Hayes for the Open House held at the Manse on June 7, which was successful.

The devotional period, with Mrs. C. West in charge, opened by Scripture reading by Mrs. H. Clarke and Mrs. C. Brown. The theme "Go Ye" was given by Mrs. Neal depicting a story told by Winona Wilkinson, a missionary in China for many years, of a little Chinese baby who was picked on the street inside and reared in her home. As she grew, she developed into a lovely young girl. She was especially sensitive to the sound of children crying. Mrs. Neal continued the theme by saying, "As we hear this story, we think of many children who suffer and cry, and realize how grieved Jesus must be to see the wan and hungry faces of babies who long for love. Surely one of the great ideals of Christian Missions must be to help create a world where there is a baby cries for lack of love, a food or clothing.



"With more than half of the world non Christian and with Communism demanding control of lands, there is desperate need for young people to preach the gospel of Jesus Christ. It is gratifying to know there are many zeal consecrated young people who are willing to spend years in study to prepare themselves for the best kind of service. The big question is "Are there enough consecrated and committed people in the churches to send out the needed messengers?" To do this one must pray daily for those who teach and preach, be interested and concerned and support the missionary program of the church."

Mrs. Veasey presented a film, "Beyond the Bell" which was most informative and interesting and mission reports were read from Rhodesia, Angola, Japan, Korea and India by the ladies James A. Dickens, F. Watson, E. Moore, L. Belcour and N. Greenwood.

The Unit Leader closed the meeting and a delicious lunch of ice cream, cookies and tea was served by the lunch committee, Mrs. F. Trevorton, Mrs. D. Watson assisted by Mrs. Clarke, bringing an interesting and enjoyable afternoon to a close.

ST. ANDREW'S U.C.W.

GILEAD — The June meeting of St. Andrew's Gilead U.C.W. met at the home of Mrs. Fred Yorke last Wednesday afternoon.

The president, Mrs. Wilfred Clarke, opened the meeting and conducted the business which consisted of discussions on redecoration of church for 100th anniversary in 1963; financing Mission Band needed expenses; parsonage; the usual $5. parsonage fee was paid to Mrs. Wilfred Clarke, treasurer of ladies' parsonage fund. As the executive and finance committee were absent it was decided that each member present get an insight on prospects for re-decorating and report at July meeting for action by committee in charge. The final circuit meeting concerning parsonage repairs will be held on Thursday evening, June 28, at Wilfred's.

Mrs. Trevorton reported on the special sing which was held at Madoc, recently.

The worship service was conducted by Mrs. James Hallman the theme being, "Love". All members took part in the discussion, "Loving Our Neighbors".

Mrs. Wilfred Badgley had charge of the remainder of the worship service with a duet, reading entitled, "Our Canada" then "O Canada", "God Save Our Land" and "The Song of All Nations".

The meeting closed and a delightful half-hour was spent. Next meeting will be held at the home of Mrs. Wilfred Clarke.

BETHEL-ZION U.C.W.

The president of Bethel-Zion U.C.W. opened the regular meeting with a reading.

The business was conducted and consisted of a request by Miss Constance Bailey of the Bethel Zion U.C.W. to cater at her wedding on August 4th and this was accepted. A delegate was chosen to attend a meeting at Hollonyy Street United Church on June 19 and also a delegate to attend a conference in Whitby.

The offering was dedicated by the Secretary, Mrs. Ross Roy Sills led in the devotional period and the study program. Mr. Nicholls read "When Jesus the thin line" from the study "Christianity Day by Day". Mrs. E. Sayers was in charge of the quiz "Let's Get Acquainted the Church", and Mrs. P. Ray read portions from the chapter of Acts in the Bible. A paper which had been written by Mrs. Nicholls on her own views of the Pentecost was read by Mrs. Nicholls.

Questionnaires were handed out to groups of three women each, after which the various questions were answered and discussed.

Lunch was served and appreciative thanks were extended to the hostess.

Shocked Over Husband's Affair

DEAR DORIS—I have been married for 19 years. He seemed to love me then but I have been a slave to him. He is very jealous and wouldn't want me to go out or even visit a neighbor. He can jump in the car and go to anyone's place he sees fit any hour of the day or night; get drinking and come home and be very abusive.

I have been told about another woman where he works. I didn't believe it until recently I walked into the plant during coffee break and sure enough they were making advances and in each other's arms, so pre-occupied they did not know anyone had entered the room until at least five minutes later.

DORIS CLARK

These actions are what I have been accused of and are untrue. When I slave all day and take a man's place and look after children besides meals and housework, I'm too tired for recreation if I had a chance. What is wrong with this 40 to 55 years of age anyway?

I have not discussed this with him as it would do no good. He is the type who is always right. Her husband makes excellent wages and she dresses real well, but she is not good looking with all this.

I cannot seem to come out of the shock. What should I do? Will I forget and struggle on, or just pack up and go. —SHOCKED SLAVE.

DEAR SHOCKED—It's a shock all right. Often it's the wife who knows last about her husband's philanderings. And he accuses you of the same crimes—which also happens often, and is just as untrue.

What you do depends on how you feel. Has he killed all love? Is there the vestige of a chance for change? Men are sometimes exposed to temptations, more than women. They have been known to repent when faced with the facts.

You are not right to keep silent. Before you give him the profound shock of walking out on him, see a counsellor. Living along has very little to recommend it.

DEAR DORIS—Would you please send me a book or booklet on etiquette at a formal dance. Also, what kind of corsage do I buy? Do I ask the girl what kind of dress she is wearing to match the corsage, or do all corsages match any dress? Are there any other things I should know?

I will gladly pay any costs on the material you send me.—BOB.

DEAR BOB—I am sending you the name of a handy little book about dating which has special pages about formal dances and good manners.

Some boys just buy anything in the way of a shoulder bouquet. Others ask their girl what she is wearing and try to tie up corsage with dress color. These are the wise ones.

Any other things? Well, it's good manners to be considerate of your date. Take care of her as if she was one of the dainty, fragile flowers in her corsage. (N.B. for the girls. Be sure to accept the role and don't be too all-fired competent!)

Never leave your date alone like a wallflower. At refreshment time seat her, then go for what she wants. Bring friends to meet her. When you take her home treat her with respect as well as friendliness. You know what I mean.

DEAR DISILLUSIONED—The place for you to go in Belleville is the Children's Aid Society, 83 West Moira St.

The worker there will help you arrange confinement and adoption for your baby, if that's what you decide on.

It is a terrible heartbreak to be in your position. Young folks, are you listening? Self-control now can mean a far better chance for happy marriage. This goes for the boys too.

• • •

TO DIANNE:—A new hair style can work wonders for morale. Tints and color rinses are common nowadays and a great improvement on drab, greying hair.

Make an appointment with a hairdresser who is recommended for her skill and for good ideas about hair styling. She can start you off on a brand new kind of good looks.

Atlas Missile Site Workers Plan Strike

PLATTSBURGH, N.Y. (AP) Members of the International Association of Machinists working on 12 launching sites for Atlas missiles have authorized union officers to call a strike to support contract demands.

A spokesman for Local 2343 said 90 per cent of the local's 342 members attended the meeting Sunday at which the authorization was given. Only one voted against it.

The men are employed by General Dynamics Corporation, prime contractor on the underground launching sites in northern New York and Vermont.

The local spokesman said the workers would wait 10 days after the current contract expires June 23 before voting whether to go on strike.

Editorial Comment On Election

BY THE CANADIAN FREES

Following are excerpts from editorials in representative Canadian newspapers on the Doukhobors a couple of days after the election:

Regina Leader-Post (Ind.L): "The indecisive result confirmed indications that after five years of administering the nation's affairs, Prime Minister Diefenbaker and his government had lost the confidence of the electors. Ironically . . . the nation may be fated to have an even weaker administration . . . The vote in Regina can be construed only as an indication of the rebuff of the NDP and all that it stands for—including the mishandling of the medical care matter by the provincial government—by the people."

Toronto Globe and Mail: The nation can take no satisfaction from the results of the general election. At a time when there is need for strong government, it is clear that we shall have weak and divided government. At a time when there is need for national unity, there is political fragmentation . . .

"Foreign confidence in Canada has already been shaken, as we have seen in the weakening of the dollar in recent months. The election does nothing to restore confidence . . . Another election within a year appears probable.

Montreal Le Nouveau Journal (Ind.): Already in power in Alberta for 27 years, Premier Social Credit is now deeply rooted in our provinces . . .

Thus . . . it has become a national party and what is more, a party with the greatest well-entrenched in French-Canada.

No need to draw a plan reader to guess what will happen at the first opportunity or to foresee the result of an election.

The unstable government which now represents hardly one Canadian out of three, by the grace of the Creditistes which has overnight become in the West a party of the only native, is all in all what this electoral swan-song is going which many have quite rightly given the nation.

However democratic one might feel, there are days when one does not feel like proclaiming it from the rooftops."

WANT SECOND FERRY — The CNR ferry Bluenose, named for the famed racing schooner, operates between Yarmouth, N.S., and Bar Harbor, Maine. Canadian and American interests are seeking support for construction of a second ferry to ply between Nova Scotia and Gloucester, Mass., a fishing port that has close ties with the Maritimes. (CP Photo).

Officials Want Big Ferry To Ply Between Gloucester, New England Port and N.S.

By JOSEPH MacSWEEN

GLOUCESTER, Mass (CP)— Officials are striving to interest truckers and shippers in the idea of building a big new ferry to ply between this New England port and Nova Scotia.

Robie Lisomb, manager of the Gloucester Chamber of Commerce, said he is confident there would be sufficient business to keep a new ferry busy along with the Bluenose, which runs between Bar Harbor, Me., and Yarmouth, N.S.

"Canadian interests have taken the initiative and they would bear the brunt of building the boats," said Lisomb. "We are thinking in terms of a vessel 375 - 400 feet long, equipped to carry 150 cars and trucks and 700 passengers. The problem here would be a terminal of adequate size."

Lisomb listed the attractions of Gloucester for tourists, noting that its normal population of 26,000 swells to more than 40,000 in summer.

Gloucester lies only some 200 miles from Nova Scotia and the plan would be to make a trip from each point every other day. Canadian exporters were fascinated, Lisomb said, by figures showing that 38,000,000 people live within eight hours' drive of Gloucester.

Massachusetts Governor John A. Volpe has appointed an official to devote as much time as necessary to boosting the project and delegations have been exchanged between the two areas.

Leo Dionne, head of the Industrial Commission here, said in another interview that "mathematically, the ferry has to come."

When the Bluenose — namesake of the famous racing schooner — was designed, there was a railway service between Boston and the Maritimes, and also a ferry service operated by Eastern Steamships, Dionne said. Now there is only the Bluenose, a Canadian National Railways ship, or the choice of a 700-mile drive between Boston and Halifax.

Canadians are being "shortchanged" by Americans where the tourist business is concerned and a new ferry would help to correct the imbalance, said Dionne, who traces his ancestry to Quebec politicians in the Terrebonne region 100 years ago.

Dionne said the fishing industry here were worried about imports "but when you break it down it's not too concerned."

Gloucester had been turning more and more to pre-cooked fish and now has cold storage facilities to hold $2,000,000 pounds—more than local fishermen could provide.

Canadian imports were already coming in and Washington has turned down requests for tariffs. Gloucester has a total of about 900 fishermen—700 less than 10 years ago.

FERRY ROUTES

The CNR ferry Bluenose now runs between Bar Harbor and Yarmouth but there is hope a second ferry link can be established between a Nova Scotia point and Gloucester, Mass. Map locates main eastern seaboard communities in Canada and the United States. (CP Newsmap).

Unemployment Insurance Questions and Answers

Q. I am working and earning $50 a month, but I do not receive unemployment insurance stamps as the employer has not the right to put them in my book. I have 30 weeks of unemployment insurance contributions, and would like to know if I am entitled to draw benefit along with the wages I am now earning.

A. A person's benefit entitlement can only be determined at the time he files a claim for benefit and he must qualify in certain contribution requirements in order to establish his claim in the first instance. If you are working a full working week on your present job, you would not be considered as unemployed. Also, if you are unable to accept other work or if your availability for work is unduly restricted while engaged on this job, you would not be entitled to benefit. However, if you are only working part-time and you are available to accept other suitable employment, you may be entitled to benefit, provided you can meet the qualifying contribution requirements. Your weekly benefit would be reduced by whatever amount your weekly earnings exceed one-half of your weekly benefit rate.

Q. My husband applied for his unemployment insurance benefits, and now has gone to another community a few hundred miles away, looking for work. I have no address to send him his weekly forms, so may I fill them out for him, seeing that he is supposed to receive his benefits as long as he has not found work?

A. You are not allowed to sign your husband's weekly report form. The Unemployment Insurance Regulations require the claimant to sign the declaration in proof of the statements on the form. Further, a claimant is instructed in the booklet, "Direction to Report and Information for Claimants" that if for any reason he goes away, he must inform the local office before he goes. In your case, your husband should report to the local office immediately on his return, in order that his entitlement to benefit during that absence can be determined.

Q. I am married and have been working for four years. I have paid contributions to the unemployment insurance throughout this period. I would like to take a rest for three or four months. Have I the right to claim benefits, since I have no insured income plan? Somebody will fill in for me, and on days when she cannot work I will serve as a substitute. I am not completely unable to work.

A. You would not be eligible to receive benefit during the three or four months you wish to take a rest. One of the essential requirements for the receipt of benefit is that a claimant must be available for work but unable to obtain suitable employment. Available for work means that the claimant must prove that he is ready, willing and able to immediately accept suitable employment. In your case you can resume your work as soon as you have completed your rest.

Q. If an employer aids an employee, who is separating, to get benefit by giving false information regarding the reasons for separation, what can happen?

A. Such offences are regarded as flagrant and charges under the Criminal Code are usually considered. Penalties under the Code are more severe than those provided under the Unemployment Insurance Act. Both the employer and employee are considered as having acted in collusion to defraud, and both are liable to prosecution.

Prominent Politicos Met Varying Degrees of Fate In Early See Saw Election

BY THE CANADIAN PRESS

The Atlantic provinces' four representatives in Prime Minister Diefenbaker's cabinet were re-elected in Monday's Dominion election.

Fisheries Minister MacLean won easily in Queens as did Revenue Minister Nowlan in Digby-Annapolis-Kings and Postmaster General Fleming in Victoria-Carleton.

But Solicitor-General W. J. Browed a election in St. John's West was "subject to correction," according to the returning officer. Mr. Brown's majority over Liberal Cashin was only 146 votes.

Fates of other prominent candidates in the election:

In Newfoundland former Liberal cabinet minister J. W. Pickersgill was re-elected for a fourth term.

Douglas Fisher, who became politically famous as an orphan with his upset win over the late C. D. Howe in 1957's Liberal sweep, was given third term in Port Arthur for the NDP.

General E. L. Pearkes and Lester B. Pearson retained the Northern Ontario seat of Algoma East which he has held since a 1948 byelection.

Immigration Minister Ellen Fairclough, 58, only woman in the Diefenbaker cabinet, failed to win Hamilton West for her fourth straight win since a 1950 byelection.

Labor Minister Michael Starr, 51, was defeated in Port Arthur riding where he has been successful in five previous bids.

Walter Gordon, 56, who chaired the controversial report on Canada's economic prospects in 1957 and wrote a forecast of growth in the Liberal white paper, captured Toronto Davenport from Conservative M. Dumont.

G. Ernest Halpenny, 58, health minister in the former Liberal government, failed for a seventh straight time in the southwestern Ontario riding of Grey-Bruce.

Health Minister J. Waldo Monteith, who will be 59 next Sunday, won in Perth to hold that Ontario seat for a fifth straight time.

John Bassett, publisher of the Toronto Telegram, was unsuccessful as the Conservative candidate in Spadina-Bloor West. He was captured for the Liberals by Perry Ryan, overturning a 4,000-vote Conservative edge in 1958.

Hon. Earl Rowe, 68, only politically-active member of the 1935 Bennett cabinet, and R. B. Bennett, ran his number of election victories to 12 in the central Ontario riding of Dufferin-Simcoe, eight of them in a row.

Paul Hellyer, 36, associate defence minister in the former Liberal cabinet, was returned elected in Toronto Trinity to back by election win there in late 1958.

COMMUNIST LOSES

Leslie Morris, leader of the Communist Party of Canada, was unsuccessful in Toronto Trinity, trailing far behind the winning Liberal.

In Brandon - Souris Walter Dinsdale, minister of northern affairs, retained his seat for the fifth time.

Red Kelly, Toronto Maple Leaf hockey star who played a big role in Leafs' 1962 Stanley Cup triumph, made a successful political debut in Toronto's York West for the Liberals, ousting Conservative John B. Hamilton.

David Lewis, national vice-president of the NDP and one of its key founders, grabbed the Conservative seat of York South.

Dangers of Competitive Nuclear Strategies Seen

By HAROLD MORRISON
Canadian Press Staff Writer

The United States is attempting by public means to arouse the North Atlantic community to the dangers of competitive nuclear strategies without the alliances strains as are presented by French President de Gaulle.

The public statement by U.S. Defence Secretary McNamara that conflicting and competitive strategies could lead to war, instead of preventing it, is partisan indication of the extent of U.S. frustration with French private attempts to dissuade de Gaulle from pursuing an independent nuclear course.

Just before State Secretary Rusk took off on a 10-day foray with Europe, where he will confer with de Gaulle and other European statesmen, McNamara let fly with an observation that "competitive strategic capabilities "are dangerous expensive, prone to obsolescence and lacking in credibility as a deterrent."

In Washington view, a country which didn't have the resources of, say, the U.S. or Russia could pay effort a genuine nuclear force which to a powerful nuclear enemy could be made to knock on.

Knowing this, the smaller country might be tempted to use its nuclear bombs quickly in the best way possible, by indiscriminate bombing on important targets, including heavily - populated cities. And this would be an invitation to the enemy to respond in the same fashion — a form of suicide for the smaller country.

McNamara's contention—and his statement was approved by the White House — is that a country such as the U.S. with its refined massive nuclear weaponry could aim its bombs first at enemy military targets, sparing the cities, and still have enough of a back-up force to go after cities if the enemy adopted such a course.

Another factor which has been aired in private, is that the U.S. is not too sure what will happen to the country when de Gaulle dies. Nuclear weapons in the hands of an unstable political force could cause world havoc.

Henry Kissinger, a Harvard professor and part-time government adviser, argues in different course. He would support creation of a European nuclear force, made up of British and French nuclear forces. He would like to become part of European integration and "a device for fostering it."

Symptoms of a Widening Crisis Seen in Brazil

RIO DE JANEIRO (AP)
Brazilian housewives line up for hours to buy meat, sugar, rice, sugar and beans in Rio de Janeiro.

Thousands of hungry farmers leave dusty, sun-scorched fields in the interior in quest of food and work.

Prices soar new heights daily all over the country.

Workers strike for higher wages, and threaten a strike for a greater voice in university affairs. Restlessness grows in military ranks.

These are symptoms of a nation-wide crisis that has been demands from some Brazilians for a strong rule—by authority of the kind traditionally exercised by the president but now forbidden except by the parliamentary system.

The system was a compromise adopted after the crisis created by the surprise resignation in August, 1961, of Janio Quadros last August. Under parliamentary rule, the Congress has the title of president but not the strong power.

Critics cite the flood debate in the Brazil example of economic confusion that a strong hand could clear up. Most of the problems, they say, stem from —rice, beans, sugar and salt—are available abundantly elsewhere in the nation.

The shortages have been caused principally by speculators and wholesalers attempting to force prices up, and by the government efforts to hold down prices to combat inflation.

"There's no leader, no feeling of unity in Brazil today," says a student.

Signs are appearing on buildings and walls demanding martial calling for a plebiscite to let the people decide on the form of government they want.

The key question involves around Britain's bid to join the expanded Common Market would not only end trade preference with Commonwealth countries, whose list of successive election victories dated back to 1925.

Hazen Argue, former CCF leader defeated by the Liberals, scored a victory in Assiniboia for Liberal Gordon.

Veteran member H. W. (Herb) Herridge scored his sixth straight federal election victory holding his Kootenay West Constituency for the NDP party in a four-way fight. Mr. Herridge is NDP House Leader.

Studio Sues Dean Martin

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — 20th Century-Fox Studios sued Dean Martin Monday for $3,328,000, charging breach of contract in his refusal to appear in the movie Something's Got to Give.

The studio announced last week that it was abandoning the film—although some talks on possible resumption were still being held.

The complaint states there was "no reasonable excuse" for Martin, who had the right to approve the co-stars, refusing to let Monroe when she was suspended for absences from the set. Martin, the studio alleges, "did not act in good faith before the Screen Actors Guild approved actress other than Miss Monroe."

When the studio named Lee Remick as Marilyn's successor, Martin quit.

Macbeth Opens 10th Festival At Stratford

STRATFORD (CP) — A production of Shakespeare's somber Macbeth that experiences immediately described as "controversial" as it officially opened the 10th Stratford Shakespearian Festival here.

Critics knocked Canadian actor Christopher Plummer for poor pronouncing, close to absurdity," as "tender-hearted" and suffering "too many hammy mannerisms" in his role as the Scottish King.

But expectedly audiences in the Festival Theatre recorded three standing ovations to Plummer and Kate Reid as Lady Macbeth and recalled Plummer for six more rounds of thundering applause.

Critics were uniformly impressed. Though disagreeing in praise and criticism, of the unusual production by young director Peter Coe.

STORM RAGES

While the fortunes of Macbeth raged on the festival theatre, fierce electrical storm and a heavy rain lashed the area and Avon River. Lightning raged without. In the foyer theatre hands posted the latest election returns on the scoring board.

While no political figures attended the event that usually draws representation from the federal capital, the audience did include former governor-general Vincent Massey and President Calude Bissell of the University of Toronto.

While Plummer's performance varied reaction, Miss Reid in general was considered excellent, as was the production by Mr. Coe whose previous achievements have been the new look in the of musicals, The World of Sury and Oklahoma.

Critical comment centred on Plummer's interpretation of Macbeth.

Thomas Archer, writing in the Toronto Telegram, said Plummer is no match for the Scottish usurper. There posturings, these mannerisms, this voice ... was as unShakespearean as I can possibly imagine."

IS A JERK?

Louis Cook in the Detroit Free Press said Plummer have been the word "turns out to be such a jerk it doesn't seem credible that he could ever have been the man who rose through heroism to be the King's trusted friend."

Herbert Whittaker, Toronto Globe and Mail said Plummer "has a conception of the role absurdity at times" while "Miss Reid is the best Lady Macbeth by her unpretentious disclose of a broken mind and a destroyed life."

Other comment:

Jon Bor, Ottawa Journal: "Christopher Plummer as Macbeth was Hamlet in a trance. Kate Reid enacted such a torpor as Lady Macbeth as to dominate the remainder of the cast."

Ron Evans, Toronto Telegram: "An almost brilliant, but not brilliantly realized performance by Plummer."

25 Arrested For Various Irregularities

MONTREAL (CP)—It was a quiet election by Montreal standards but a handful of wilder days — armed gangs and stolen ballot boxes—were still in evidence.

Twenty-five persons were arrested for over-voting Monday but 18 were released from custody during the day.

The most serious incident was reported when police attempted to invade the home of Progressive Conservative candidate Alphonse Therrien in Montreal Papineau riding but were repulsed by irate householders and the candidate's supporters.

RCMP officials reported three ballot boxes stolen but, by 10 p.m., none had been recovered.

OVER 100 BALLOTS

Early today, police were still seeking six men reported to have over 100 ballots in one poll and attempted to "stuff" them in the ballot box later in the evening. Police said the men also threatened a returning officer but escaped before police could arrest them.

The first arrests came just before midnight after the polls closed when three suspects were picked up outside a Liberal candidate's office. Several baseball bats were confiscated.

One man was arrested for impersonating a voter and another was captured with attempted impersonation.

Insp. Gerard Nadeau of the RCMP said it had been a "quiet" election.

Big PC Majorities Erased As Liberals Take 42 Seats And NDP Six in Ontario

TORONTO (CP)—The Liberal resurgence, the Liberals, Monday's federal election, mowing down huge Progressive Conservative majorities of 1958 and smashing their way into the Toronto heartland of this traditionally Conservative province.

Before the voting, Conservatives held 63 of the 86 seats at stake Monday, the Liberals, 17 and the New Democratic Party four. The Liberals emerged with 42 against 35 for the Conservatives and six for the NDP —all its gains at the government's expense.

Voting in Stormont—the 95th and last—was deferred to July 16 because of the death of a Liberal candidate.

The most devastating Liberal onslaught came in the 18 Toronto and York seats where the Conservatives scored a clean sweep four years ago but emerged with only three wins Monday. Huge Conservative majorities were overturned by 12 Liberal and three NDP victories.

WALKER LOSES

Liberals defeated Works Minister David Walker in Toronto Spadina, Commons Speaker Roland Michener in Toronto St. Paul's, Trade Minister Gordon Churchill, John Bassett in Toronto Spadina, Health Minister E. McGregor, 76-year-old dean of the Commons, unbeaten since 1935, in York East.

The Conservatives gained only one seat, Peterborough, where Walter Pitman won a 1960 byelection to become the first Tory MP there.

One of the biggest shocks to the Conservatives was the loss of Peel, just west of Toronto which had been in their column since 1867, when it was carved from John Pallett, parliamentarian and former Ontario Conservative party whip.

The Liberal surge was in sharp contrast to the result in 1958, when the Diefenbaker-fashioned his national appeal chiefly on the strength of 61 Ontario seats, 50 more than those which showed the Liberals to be the brink of political oblivion.

JUMP FROM LOW

In the 25 general elections since Confederation, Ontario's province has been responsible for 11 times and Liberal on seven occasions. Conservative of those when Liberal errors won national power. Prior to 1958, the Liberals were at their all-time low in 1940 with 12 seats.

The 36 Conservative survivors included six cabinet members, Finance Minister Fleming was re-elected in Toronto Eglinton after a cliff - hanging counting battle that ended with Liberal Lou Sharp, a former deputy minister of trade. Trade Minister Hees had a squeaker victory in Toronto Broadview.

Immigration Minister Fairclough, only woman member of the cabinet, retained Hamilton West; Labor Minister Starr, Ontario; Health Minister Monteith, Perth; N.H., where the navy-Halpenny, minister without portfolio, lost in Grey-Bruce.

Liberal Leader Lester B. Pearson was an easy winner in Algoma East, Northern Ontario riding he has represented in the Commons since.

RED KELLY WINS

The political debut of Red Kelly, hockey star with Toronto Maple Leafs in the National Hockey League, was a Liberal victory in Toronto York West as he unseated John B. Hamilton, a Conservative seeking his third term.

David Lewis, national chairman of the New Democratic Party, was elected in Toronto York South from a Conservative. The NDP's other wins in Toronto were by Reid Scott in Danforth and Andrew Brewin in Greenwood. Former Liberal Hazen Argue over ousted J. M. Macdonnell, a Tory veteran of five terms, in the Commons.

Mr. Brewin is on the NDP national executive and is the party's lawyer in the current sitting of the Ontario royal commission on crime.

Paul Hellyer, associate defence minister in the former Liberal government, was returned in Toronto Trinity.

VETERAN RETURNS

Hon. Earl Rowe, only member of the Conservative cabinet of the late R. B. Bennett, won an eighth term in Essex East by more than 13,000 votes compared to his 1958 margin of 1,623.

By comparison, Conservative Frank McGee defeated Toronto borough on a minority standoff

Marked Increase In Population Under 15 Years

OTTAWA (CP) — The proportion of Canada's population under 15 years has showed a marked increase in the last decade.

The Dominion Bureau of Statistics reported today that between 1951 and 1961 the number in that age bracket rose by 1,941,205 or nearly 46 per cent.

The total last year, as recorded in a census report released today, was 6,191,922. It compared with 4,250,717 in 1951.

An increase of 1,982,730 or 32 per cent occurred in the 15 to 64 age group and an increase of 304,981 or 28 per cent in the 65 years and over group.

In 1961, persons under 15 accounted for 34 per cent of the total population of 18,238,247, while 10 years earlier they accounted for 31 per cent of a total population of 14,009,329. Canada had proportionately the most persons in the working age group—15 to 64—60 per cent of the population falling in that category, Newfoundland had the fewest with 52 per cent.

Report Starts Air Search For Submarine

SCITUATE, Mass. (AP) — A report that a submarine was missing off the Massachusetts coast started an intensive air search late Monday before it was discounted as either a hoax or a series of mistakes.

The report originated in a garbled radio call on an emergency distress frequency, saying a vessel was burning some 20 miles at sea, the U.S. Coast Guard said.

Before a search could be launched the report had grown to a call that a submarine USS Argonaut sinking. The coast guard could not explain the discrepancy.

However, the navy's Atlantic Fleet headquarters said none of its submarines was in the area and the USS Argonaut was berthed safely at Norfolk.

One coast guard source said the message though was a sinking submarine "probably was a practice mishap."

The radioed call picked up by the coast guard came from the vicinity of Minot's Rock buoy, some 60 miles south of Portsmouth, N.H., where the navy-submarine Squalus sank in 1939 with the loss of 26 men.

U.S. Imports Of Uranium Will Decline

WASHINGTON (CP) — The U.S. Atomic Energy Commission said Monday its imports of refined uranium will decline sharply after 1963 and end four years and purchases after that it will depend largely on the U.S. nuclear bomb stockpile.

Jesse Johnson, the commission's director of regulation, said he is having some difficulty estimating estimates of post - 1963 uranium requirements from the U.S. defence establishment because of the uncertainty of East-West disarmament negotiations.

Appearing before the joint congressional committee on atomic energy Johnson estimated that under current contract arrangements, imports of uranium oxide from Canada will drop to 4,900 tons in 1964, down from 11,900 tons this year. The U.S. 1963 fiscal year will expire June 30.

By 1966, imports from Canada will decline to 300 tons and in the fiscal year after that, fiscal year—June-December 1967—they would amount to only 210 tons.

to 3,691 from 35,377 in Canada's most populous constituency.

There were no changes in the 11 Northern Ontario seats, none of which had been held by Conservatives. The Liberals held eight seats and the New Democratic Party three.

Sports Snapshots

By W. R. WHEATLEY

MONTREAL (CP) — Hockey fans undoubtedly follow closely the National Hockey League's draft but most are vague about its operations and the ramifications — such as loans, waivers and player status — that may crop up the following season.

As at the recent NHL annual meeting in Montreal, there are two distinct drafts. First, NHL clubs draft players from two minor leagues — the Western Hockey League and the Eastern Professional Hockey League. The players usually are owned by parent NHL clubs.

The following day NHL clubs draft from each other directly.

The draft price in each instance is $20,000. No protected list is involved in the first draft. In the intra - league draft each NHL club can protect 18 players and two goalies against the draft.

When the NHL draft ends, protected lists are automatically frozen for the following season.

STARS PROTECTED

In the first draft, clubs may be looking to increase their depth and also, in many instances, to strengthen their farms.

In the second draft, they probably are looking more for balance. They won't be able to grab big stars but they may be able to fill weak spots with acceptable talent. Or sometimes veterans — who for some reason were left unprotected. Again, they may be seeking farm - club strength or possibly player - coach material.

When an unprotected player is taken at the intra - league draft he automatically goes on the claiming club's protected list. If the list is already at the maximum, the club must name a player it is dropping.

This process sometimes leads to a chain reaction.

A player drafted from the minors the first day can be drafted the second day unless he has been put on the first drafting club's protected list. Otherwise, unless claimed, he is considered to have been waived automatically. He can be shuttled to the minors next season without necessity of waiver, but if he is on the protected list waivers must be asked.

WAIVERS VARY

The waiver system applies in other instances as well. There are two forms: with right of recall of the waiver offer and without right of recall. The claiming club pays $20,000 the same as the draft price.

Immediately the draft ends players of unprotected status are considered to have been waived without right of waiver recall.

An unprotected holdover can be farmed out next season at any time provided he has played in no more than five games. Waivers must be asked if he has played in more. Either type of waiver can be used.

Here are various player-status situations:

First time ever on a protected list: He can be sent to the minors any number of times without waiver. He must remain at least two weeks each time, unless called back under emergency regulations.

First year in pro hockey and unprotected: Waivers must be asked if the player has played in six or more games and is to be sent down.

GOALIES EXEMPTED

Protected player: Waiver without right of recall of the offer is necessary to lend him to the minors. In effect the club asks to remove him from the protected list. He has unprotected status with the claiming club but can't be sent down by it except through the waiver process.

Goalies: Any goalie, whether protected or not, may be loaned to a minor club without being put on waiver.

Player trades: If two protected players are swapped each is considered unprotected with his new club but waiver is necessary to send him down.

When waivers are asked, clubs have 72 hours in which to file claims. If several file, the player goes to the club lowest in the standing at the time the waiver was sent out from NHL headquarters.

Amateurs can play in a maximum of five games without hurting their amateur status.

The WHL and the EPHL can trade and lend among themselves and also with the American Hockey League, which does not participate in either draft.

To Try Border Guards As War Criminals

BERLIN (AP)—East German guards who shoot refugees trying to escape to the West will face trial as war criminals if they fall in West German hands.

West Berlin Mayor Willy Brandt said Sunday lists of such guards are being prepared. He and Chancellor Konrad Adenauer joined in angry denunciations of border killings at a rally marking the ninth anniversary of the anti-Communist uprising in East Germany.

Adenauer said the total from 1952 to last month, 2,227,645 East Germans fled to the West.

Adenauer ignored protests by the Communist regime that his presence was illegal and provocative and flew to West Berlin in a U.S. Air Force plane. He and Brandt, his socialist political rival, spoke to an estimated 100,000 people in a square outside the city hall.

Adenauer said that since 1945, about 300,000 East Germans have been imprisoned for acts that would never be regarded as punishable in a state founded on law.

Income Tax Explained

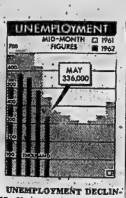
Written and designed for the taxpayer who is not in a position to employ the services of a professional accountant or visit an Income Tax Office.

By C. A. MILLER
Former Supervising Assessor Income Tax Dept.

Many Taxpayers immediately after January 1st know that they have an Income Tax refund coming. They file a return as soon as possible without waiting to obtain the necessary T4 slips to verify the income and tax deductions reported.

These taxpayers will attach to their return, pay envelopes, check stubs or a statement made up by themselves, purporting to be their income for the taxation year. As none of these are acceptable to the Income Tax Department as verification of income and tax deduction, the taxpayer has only defeated his own purpose in trying to get an early refund. If the taxpayer is one that files directly to Ottawa, his return will be sent to the District office for the necessary information and when this is eventually obtained from the taxpayer, the return must go back to Ottawa for processing.

Before you file your return, be sure you have the T4 slips from all your employers. T4 slips must be sent by the employer to the employee before March 1st. If you receive an additional T4 slip after you have filed your return, do not send it in until you receive your assessment notice. When your assessment notice is received, attach the extra T4 slip and send it to your local tax office and ask for adjustment. At no time file an amended return, as once the tax department has a return from you, any number of adjustments may be made to correct the assessment.



For a prompt receipt of your refund, be sure all T4 slips are attached, all questions on the return completed and that page 2 is properly filled out.

Question No. 1 — I have a refund due me. Can I attach my pay envelopes which show my weekly pay and deductions, instead of waiting for a T4 slip?

Answer No. Pay envelopes are not acceptable by the Income Tax Department. Your return would not be processed without a T4 slip.

Question No. 2 — I omitted one T4 slip when I filed my return. Should I file another return to include it?

Answer No. Send it to your local tax office after you receive your assessment notice, and ask that your first return be adjusted to include it.

that's the beauty of A-100 Latex House Paint
LATEX HOUSE PAINT
A-100
FOR CLAPBOARD, SHAKES, SHINGLES, STUCCO, CEMENT OR BRICK
Those ugly blisters that ruin appearance are the result of natural moisture forcing itself against the paint film. But now A-100, with its latex texture lets that moisture escape—with never a trace to show for it on its smooth surface. That's one reason why A-100 pushes back the need for repainting for years—puts money in your pocket. Add to that fact two more: A-100 Latex flows on as easily outside as Super Kem-Tone does indoors. And A-100 dries fast. In 30 minutes it's impervious to rain; bugs and dust won't stick to it. Easy clean-up too! Just wash your brushes in soap and water. That's the beauty of A-100—the new outside paint you have been hearing about. Whatever, the outside surface, the first time you use A-100, be sure to get all the benefits. You will, if you follow your dealer's instructions.

Dodgers Nip Cards, Reds Take Pair

Aaron Hits Grand Slammer

By BOB GREEN
Associated Press Sports Writer

Tommy Davis, the runs-batted-in-leader in the major leagues, broke up a scoreless pitching duel with a one-out homer in the bottom of the ninth inning that brought Los Angeles Dodgers an important 1-0 victory Monday night over St. Louis Cardinals.

The victory increased the Dodgers' National League lead to 1½ games over idle San Francisco. Hank Aaron's second grand slam homer in four days helped Milwaukee to a 7-1 triumph over New York and Cincinnati broke out of a three-game losing string and swept two from Pittsburgh, 6-5 and 4-2, in the only other National League games scheduled.

Minnesota swept to within 1½ games of the top and snapped Kansas City's six-game winning string with a 9-4 romp over the Athletics in the only game scheduled in the American League.

DAVIS DECIDES THINGS

Sandy Koufax and Bob Gibson (5-5) had a nifty battle going before Davis decided things with his 350-foot shot into the left field stands. It was his 10th of the season and pushed his major-league leading RBI total to 60.

It was only the third hit of Gibson, who struck out Davis in his first time at bat previously.

Koufax (10-2) allowed five singles, struck out nine and, for the first time in his career, went nine innings without walking a man. It was his second shut-out by a Dodger pitcher this season.

Aaron became only the second National Leaguer ever to reach the circuit with consecutive bleachers in the Polo Grounds when his bases-loaded clubbing homer settled things for the Braves. The 460-foot drive off Jay Hook (4-6) was Aaron's 14th homer of the season and sixth grand slam of his career.

Purkey's seven-hitter sailed down the nightcap after Jim Brosnan and Johnny Pippin had choked off late-inning Pirate rallies in support of Jay in the opener. The Reds put together a 14-hit attack in the first game, including homers by Frank Robinson, Don Blasingame and Chico Cardenas. Jerry Lynch homered in the second game and Vada Pinson had six hits in eight times at bat.

Camilo Pascual (9-4) was backed by a 17-hit attack as he swapped a 6-1 loss to Kansas City in the series opener. He allowed only seven hits, but two included homers by Dick Howser and Gino Cimoli. Jim Hicks and Vic Power each had three hits and Bob Allison and Zoilo Versalles each drove in three runs to head the Minnesota offense.

SIGN PITCHER

NEW YORK (AP) — The New York Mets signed Larry Bearnarth, a right-handed pitcher with a 33-2 record at St. John's University for a bonus estimated at $20,000 today. He will report to Syracuse of the International League.

Society Goes To Races

Colorful Ascot Opens

By ALAN HARVEY

ASCOT, England (CP)—The racetrack of social significance opens its golden gates today for a four-day feast of sport and fashion that never fails to set the native pulses pounding.

It's high summer in England, and that means Royal Ascot, the only place where you can tear up losing tickets and maybe have them trampled underfoot by some stardust celebrity like Princess Margaret.

What's so special about Royal Ascot? Well, it's been going ever since Queen Anne picked out the real estate while riding through the Berkshire Woods 2¼ centuries ago, and it still generates a tingle of excitement among people who can't tell an equine hock from a table wine.

There's affluence, for one thing—champagne and strawberries in the marquees, limousines in the parking lots, high society in the private enclosures (most of them monthly or hire) and gorgeous summer gowns in the paddocks.

OUTSHINE HORSES

In fact the horses tend to be outshone by the clothes-horses, all togged out for racing's most select fashoin parade. Cynics say there are prettier girls among the lunchtime tipsits at Piccadilly Circus, but Ascot certainly has the setting.

One disappointment is the costly new grandstand, a very ornalitic affair which lamentably fails in its basic function as a vantage point for watching the races.

Still, it will be worth standing for the six daily races starting Tuesday. A bad horse never runs at Ascot. It's a real challenge to sort them out in a race such as Wednesday's Royal Hunt Cup, which draws a field of some two dozen top-class millers all weighted to finish under the same blanket.

Rain Halts Softball Game

The Belleville and district softball league game between Joyce Real Estate and Rollins Construction Juniors was called off at the end of the first inning last night because of rain.

Plate umpire Mike Whalen halted the game at the end of the first with Joyces leading 1-0 and, after a short waiting period, announced that "it's over for tonight."

Joyces had scored the only run on Ted Batchelor's single, an error and a passed ball in the top of the inning and Pat Maracle had set the Juniors down in order in the bottom of the frame.

The game will likely be rescheduled at a later date.

Bobcats play host to the RCAF Flyers in an eight o'clock game at the Fairgrounds tonight. The Cats go to Trenton Wednesday night and on Thursday Rollins visit Joyces.

McNeeley Draws Suspension

TRENTON, N.J. (AP)—The New Jersey State Athletic Commission slapped a 90-day suspension on Boston heavyweight Tom McNeeley Monday night for what it called his unsportsmanlike conduct in a bout at Totowa Jones B.

McNeeley lost the match to Don McAteer of Paterson, being disqualified for low blows in the sixth round. Some of the 2,000 fans in the arena staged a brief riot and police had to be called in.

Leafs Win 3 in Row, Bisons Lose

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Billy Short reports his once-ailing left arm is "beginning to feel all right"—which may be one of the understatements of the International League season.

The Rochester Red Wings southpaw gave ample evidence of further recovery Monday night as he beat his former club, posting a four-hit 3-1 victory over Richmond Virginians with key batting help from Sam Bowens.

In other games, Toronto Maple Leafs dealt first-place Jacksonville its third straight loss, 8-3, but the Suns maintained their five - game lead when the runner-up Buffalo Bisons were clipped by Atlanta Crackers 6-5. Columbus Jets trounced the last-place Syracuse Chiefs 7-2.

Short was a Richmond ace who was sold by New York Yankees to Baltimore Orioles when he developed arm trouble. The lefthander evened his record at 2-2 and turned in his second complete game Monday night, striking out five and walking two. A homer by Tom Umphlett in the seventh inning accounted for Richmond's run.

Bowens scored both Rochester runs. He doubled off loser Hal Stowe in the second and eventually came in on an error. then belted a decisive homer in the seventh. Stowe gave up five hits in seven innings and struck out eight.

Toronto climbed to within a half game of Buffalo with its victory over Jacksonville, triggered by a five-run first that included homers by Lou Johnson and Jim Porter.

Hal Dietz, making his first appearance of the year in relief, checked a pair of late Buffalo rallies and preserved Atlanta's decision over Buffalo.

Columbus had two big innings against John Gabler with three runs in the first and four more in the fifth as it won its third in a row and handed the Chiefs their fifth consecutive loss.

Reide's Take 2-1 Victory Over Pepsi's

Reide's Excavating scored one run in the bottom of the seventh and final frame to squeeze out a 2-1 victory over the Pepsi's at CNRA Park last evening.

The Excavators had taken a 1-0 lead in the fifth inning but the Pepsi's evened the count with their lone marker in the sixth, setting the stage for Reide's last-inning winner.

Frank Howard pitched the victory, allowing seven hits over the distance while striking out seven and walking two.

Ted Young gave up just four hits in going the route for the Pepsi's. He nipped five on third strikes while passing one.

Hartley Lee punched two singles to pace Reide's at the plate. J. Lewis hit a double and Bill Pearce a single.

Al Wagar and Bob Moon each had a pair of singles for the Pepsi's. Bill McCormick had a double, Al Dever and Ricky Young a single each.

Caledon Belle Won

Piagal Woodbine Winner

TORONTO (CP) — Piagal, owned by Bill Beasley of Toronto, displayed a brilliant turn of speed through the stretch drive in the seventh race Monday at Woodbine to just catch Master Bart H at the end of the Marlboro feature.

Piagal, under the urging of Jim Fitzsimmons, had come from last off the pace to catch Master Bart H as he appeared to be home free. Piagal covered the distance over the fast track in 1.10 3-5, fastest time this season, and paid $10.20 to win.

In the co-featured sixth, Conn Smythe's Caledon Belle won easily, defeating Balaroman and Bay Sovereign. Favored in the wagering, Caledon Belle paid $4.40 straight.

The daily double of Copper Cliff, winner of the first, combined with Quadreme in the second paid $362.80.

Chic Miss, the gallant and consistent money winner for the Buffalo partnership of Rozie and Waller Glan, dropped dead following the running of the seventh race.

At a two-year-old, Chic Miss made only one start but didn't finish in the money. However, as a three-year-old she won $41,995 and included the International Handicap, the Duchess Stakes, the Nettie Handicap and the Tatling Handicap among her many victories.

As a four-year-old she again captured the Tatling Handicap and won $30,265. This year, as a five - year - old, she started eight times and it appeared she was just coming back to form.

Handgun Results

Dave Buchanan, Dick Charlton and David Duffus had the top scores last night as the revolver section of the Belleville Handgun Club held a shoot at the Rodnersville outdoor range.

This competition was slow fire at 20 and 30 yards.

Top scorer for a 2 x 4 inch target at 100 yards was David Duffus while Dave Buchanan was runner-up.

"Valley Centre"- Focal Point of Prairie Culture

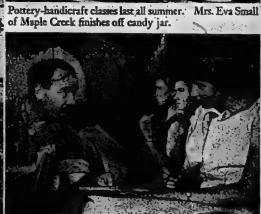
Saskatchewan Arts Board Summer Session

Dramatic gestures, rhythmic posturing to music are part of exercises students undergo in drama workshop. Saskatchewan's Valley Centre course is held in August, draws scores of art students from across province to Fort Qu'Appelle.

Cutting away brambles from the thorny path to the footlights, giving tips on professional techniques that could pave the way to a best-seller, or just providing a chance for amateur actors, writers and artists to get together and test abilities — these are reasons behind a two-week summer course at scenic Fort Qu'Appelle, 45 miles northeast of Regina in Saskatchewan. Valley Centre, as the course is known, is an example of how the Saskatchewan Arts Board helps groups and individuals interested in visual arts, music, drama, writing and handicrafts. The board encourages art by financial assistance, coaching by experts, loans of equipment and exhibits. At Valley Centre, high-school students, housewives, teachers and others spend 14 days in the strenuous hard grind of the workshops. Accent is on drama, includes make-up, stage-setting, calisthenics, and an actual theatrical production. Other workshops concentrate on writing (personal advice from instructor to student, group discussions on individual work) and pottery made from local clay. Saskatchewan's art board encourages Canadian's creativity, increases chances for undiscovered artists to contribute to the nation's culture.

Drama consultant, Mrs. Florence James, directs workshop play. Techniques taught include: improvisation, make-up, speech and production in addition to separate Drama Course for Directors held at centre for first time last year.

Pottery-handicraft classes last all summer. Mrs. Eva Small of Maple Creek finishes off candy jar.



Stage make-up class is under guidance of Mrs. Violet Voaden (standing). Finale of two-week course is public performance by students in Fort Qu'Appelle's town hall.

National Film Board of Canada Photos by Chris Lund.

Two weeks' course leaves little spare time for play. Here, a group of students relax at Fort Qu'Appelle beach—a welcome break in bright August sunshine from arduous drama classes.

Jack Porter from Moosomin, Saskatchewan, gives Cheryl Larson of Saskatoon pointers on directing during Director's course at Valley Centre.

NEWPORT, R.I. (AP) — Cornelius Bruynzeel's South African scratch boat, the 73-foot ketch Stormvogel, led 181 yachts Monday in the 635-mile race from Newport to Bermuda.

Closest to the South African craft was Northern Light, owned by American A. Lee Loomis Jr. The 72-foot yawl was about five miles west of Stormvogel.

Paddling Her Own Canoe, Edie Adams Sights Haven

By BOB THOMAS

HOLLYWOOD (AP)—"In another two months everything will be in the clear," said Edie Adams of the tangled affairs left her on the death of her comedian husband Ernie Kovacs.

When Kovacs died in a car crash Jan. 13, the family finances were found to be jumbled, with debts owed to the U.S. government and others. A host of stars, from Jack Lemmon to Frank Sinatra, started to organize a television series or special to raise funds.

Edie thanked them for their good wishes but said she would handle the problem herself. She apparently has.

"It has taken a lot of effort," she remarked, "but I think everything is getting squared away. The taxes will be settled in two months and I have made arrangements to buy back the house.

"It's a big house, but I like it. Most of all, the children like it. Losing Ernie has been tough enough without having to change their home. At their age, familiarity counts a great deal, and that's what I want to keep for them."

WORKED HARD

The comedienne managed to put the family affairs in order by hard work. When I saw her, she was working her hardest—doing a wild, wild scene with Sid Caesar in It's a Mad, Mad, Mad World. Their clothes tattered and spattered with paint, they were locked in a hardware store while fireworks — real ones — exploded all around them.

"Oh, I've learned a lot in these last few months. Before, I couldn't even make my cheque stubs balance for expenses like the children's piano lessons. I didn't even try to understand anything about finances.

"I have an entirely different attitude toward my career, too. Before, I didn't really care. If it's good for me."

GHOST TOWN

NBC-TV's "Bonanza" is named after the West Virginia ghost town that attracted 30,000 searchers for gold and silver in the 1860s.

Hoffa Plans Political Move Against Kennedy

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — James R. Hoffa, president of the Teamsters Union, has accused President Kennedy of using police-state tactics to freeze workers' pay scales at less than a living wage.

Hoffa also said Kennedy is trying to cripple the labor movement and that the Teamsters are going to organize politically to do something about it.

The union can muster 4,000,000 votes for the 1964 presidential election, Hoffa claimed. It would do so through the proposed political arm of the Teamsters, DRIVE — Democratic - Republican - Independent Voter Education.

DRIVE's purpose, said Hoffa, is to weld Teamsters and their families into a solid bloc for local, state and national campaigns.

Hoffa said DRIVE would not be a third, or labor party. He added that he had no plans to run for political office himself.

Mental Hospitals

Health Minister Dr. M. Dymond, Ontario's Chief of Mental Health Dr. B. McNeel and Ontario Hospital Queen St. Toronto's Superintendent, Dr. J. Hagan, viewing panel board of Electroencephalograph, modern equipment for measuring progress of mental health treatment in patients.

Article 2. of a 3-part series

By MATTHEW B. DYMOND, M.D., Health Minister for Ont.

Perhaps we in the Ontario Department of Health or our Doctors and other staff in the Hospitals for the mentally disordered are at fault in some measure at least for the lack of knowledge concerning the Ontario Hospitals so evident in many of our folk. I recall not so long ago a mother saying to me she would rather see her son sent to "the penitentiary than to a mental hospital". Her son was really ill and a visit to the hospital and a chat with one of the Doctors did far more for that mother than all the explanations I could have given her. Her son was admitted—responded well to treatment and was discharged to home and job—just as usually happens in the case of most illnesses. And in addition, his mother's fear—fearful of "mental hospitals" is a very active and dedicated volunteer worker for the group now regularly visiting our hospitals!

I said perhaps we doctors may be partly at fault. Why? Because we don't talk very much about what we are trying to do and what we are doing. At least until recent years we didn't say much about our work and results. Of course we didn't have too much to talk about then—the whole field was rather hopeless—we would have occasional successes but in the main little hope appeared to lighten the darkness that surrounded mental disorders. Mind you, progress in other fields of medicine and surgery are "relatively recent" too. Pneumonia was a "killer" disease till about 1937 when the "Sulpha Drugs" made their debut. The same may be said of many infectious. Too many of us vividly recall the devastation-death and crippling caused by polio till Salk and Sabin developed their vaccines. Just 40 years ago insulin appeared here as a result of the efforts of Ontario doctors, and stopped premature death from Diabetes. Many other examples will come to mind.

So for the mentally ill there have appeared in the past decade a whole "new family" of drugs to bring new hope of successful treatment to many for whom little hope previously existed.

But even more striking and dramatic changes have come about — these will appear in other articles from your Ontario Department of Health.

PC Govt. Will Continue Says Prime Minister

Ministerial Lineup Now Most Pressing Problem

OTTAWA (CP)—Prime Minister Diefenbaker began a two-day series of cabinet meetings today but said no announcements are expected from today's sessions.

Mr. Diefenbaker and at least 17 of his ministers gathered in the Privy Council chamber and Parliament Hill's East Block to discuss the inconclusive results of Monday's general election.

The prime minister said he intends to fill an engagement next week in Winnipeg—to address a Canadian-Ukrainian dinner. The appointment was made some time ago, he said.

The hallway leading to the Privy Council chamber was crowded with reporters and photographers.

Mr. Diefenbaker walked to the meeting with External Affairs Minister Green and Associate Defence Minister Sevigny, two of his top political aides.

The prime minister told reporters the cabinet sessions "probably will" all day today and tomorrow.

"There won't be any statement. There is no use of you waiting around against the possibility that there may be announcements, but you can stay, of course, if you like."

He also said he had no plans "at this moment" to meet leaders of provincial parties.

Mr. Diefenbaker flew in from his Prince Albert, Sask., home riding, Tuesday, insisting — as he did election night—that his government will continue in power.

For Mr. Diefenbaker, the ministerial lineup appears to be the most pressing immediate problem.

Four of Mr. Diefenbaker's ministers were Quebecers and one from Ontario were defeated when 118 Progressive Conservatives were elected to the Commons compared with 114 in the last election.

MUST FILL VACANCIES

At an airport press conference, Mr. Diefenbaker said the new defeated ministers had posts that have to be filled, "and at the earliest date."

Some of his other statements:

1. No meetings"are scheduled with representatives of the two opposition parties, the Social Credit and the New Democratic party.

2. The possibility "always remains" of Parliament being dissolved before June 30, September, as indicated during the election campaign.

3. Provincial representation in the cabinet is of "first importance."

4. If the "voice" of Canada is to be heard abroad, the attitudes and statements of the opposition are to blame. "There

Socred Leader Will Use Power As 'Big Broom'

TORONTO (CP) — Robert N. Thompson, national leader of the Social Credit party, indicated today the party will use its 30 votes in Parliament to prop a minority Conservative government until it considers the time ripe for a new federal election.

But he warned the Conservatives that Social Credit's balancing power in Parliament is "a big broom" that will be used to sweep out the government if its program does not coincide with Social Credit aims.

"We do not plan to precipitate an election this year," he said in a statement issued by party headquarters here. "We will co-operate with the government on any legislative program which is in Canada's interests in view of our current national position."

SAYS NO COALITION

Mr. Thompson, whose party won 26 Socred seats in Alberta, each in Alberta and British Columbia in Monday's election, said that "we will not seek, nor do we desire, a coalition with the Conservative government."

Mr. Thompson said he discussed immediately party objectives with deputy leader Real Caouette, engineer of the Social Credit election in Quebec.

"We firmly believe that this is a time to set politics aside," he said, "and to return to the challenge of restoring our country to its rightful position of respect and prosperity."

Form Special Squad to Guard Transports

TORONTO (CP) — Metropolitan Toronto police have formed a special squad to guard transport trucks in the wake of a series of truck burning, that has featured Ontario's province-wide trucking strike.

The squad is patrolling truck-ing depots and parking lots where highway transport trucks are kept.

The strike itself remained static as Canadian officials of the International Brotherhood of Teamsters Union prepared for an national policy conference which opens in Banff, Alta., today. The meeting will be attended by James Hoffa, international Teamsters president.

Two more members of the Motor Transport Industrial Relations Bureau reports for 60 - old strikebound truckers, signed agreements with Teamster boss Hoffa Monday, bringing to about the number of firms to break the union that organizes the Teamsters, Harrison Motorways, Toronto, and B and B Transport, Whitby, both signed on Teamster-demanded terms which included a 25-cent hourly 30 cents an hour.

Gordon Sutton of Sutton Transport Limited of Uxbridge said Tuesday it was "too dangerous" to resume operations following a reputation by Teamsters' chief representative Hoffa. Sutton signed the agreement signed by Hutton Transport with the London local.

DAVE BECK PUT IN PRISON FOR FIVE YEARS

Long Legal Fight Over for Teamster

SEATTLE (AP)—Dave Beck, former president of the Teamsters union, goes to prison today to start a five-year-term he says "won't get me down, nor by a helluva sight."

"You don't have to fall down just because you've been knocked down," the 68-year-old Beck said Tuesday in the plush office from which he manages his personal enterprises worth millions.

"What matters is 'do you get up again?'"

His voice squirrel with indignation, Beck frowned over and over that he had been made a scapegoat and had done no wrong.

"But under our system of government, when the courts have had their say you accept it," he said.

"That's life. Everything has its ups and downs."

Beck's arrival at McNeil Island federal penitentiary in Puget Sound near Tacoma will mark the first of five years of legal manoeuvring to remain free.

GOVERNMENT WINS

The U.S. government won its fight to put Beck behind bars through two charges which played only a small role in his long legal battle. He was convicted in late 1959 and early 1960.

Beck's case rockets committee of the U.S. Senate had portrayed Beck as a man who considered his own union the government charged him with evasion of $240,000 for the years involving $240,000 for the years 1951-58.

It added two other charges of filing fraudulent tax returns for the union's joint council 28 building association in Seattle. They were "information" returns involving no tax payments. Beck swore them, and the jury said he never signed or signed them. But the courts ruled that he should have known what was in them.

The tax evasion conviction ultimately was overturned by the U.S. circuit court in San Francisco, but the conviction of the false union returns was left standard by the U.S. Supreme court in April 23. That finally spelled prison for Beck.

So Tuesday the chunky, flat-topped former truck driver who once was a Seattle laundry truck driver to one of the nation's most labor figures in North America, hurriedly began to put his business affairs in order.

He first flatly refused to talk to reporters, saying he was preparing a statement to be issued before he surrendered today, probably at U.S. district court in Tacoma.

WORDS SPEAK OUT

But the words began to spill out, and soon became a torrent.

"Anybody who knows anyone think I would try to cheat?" he cried. "I'm wealthy, I don't need that kind of money. I'm not that kind of a man. My

Gambler Feeley Drops Hints Of Protection and Payments

TORONTO (CP) — Gambler Vincent Feeley dropped cryptic hints of protection and payments to "higher-up" in the government quarters several years ago, the royal commission on crime was told Tuesday.

The rambling and vague evidence came from Joseph (Big Joe (Bags) Lloyd, a loquacious Chatham motel owner and manufacturer of bowling bags, who also testified that present Peterborough Police Chief Wm. Shrubb and his wife sold liquor illegally at Lloyd's motel when Mrs. Shrubb operated it while Shrubb was stationed with the Ontario Provincial Police at Chatham around 1954.

Lloyd, testified too that Feeley, whom he introduced to Mrs. Shrubb while her husband was on the OPP anti - gambling squad later at Toronto, appeared to have inside information on OPP staff transfers, and he "surmised" that the gambler could bring about transfers.

(Mrs. Shrubb, who has testified to a surreptitious acquaintance with Feeley for "a year or more, has denied any liquor was sold at Lloyd's Town House Motel while she ran it and her husband lived there.)

Moslems Return to Work, 7-Year Curfew Is Ended

ALGIERS (Reuters) — Moslem workers flooded back to their jobs outside the protection of Moslem districts here today. French authorities reported European terrorism was waning in militant strongholds.

The Moslem general union of workers issued the back - to - work call after officials lifted the seven-year-old Algiers curfew Tuesday night and removed barbed wire from many key points.

Curfews have for weeks refused to work outside Moslem areas for fear of Secret Army Organization (OAS) and European quarters.

Even in Oran, western redoubt of Secret Army militants, authoritative reports said resistance was collapsing with 13 terrorist leaders fleeing abroad.

The Oran militants made a parting mortar attack which wounded 18 soldiers Tuesday night in the Moslem section despite approval of the European-Moslem accords signed in Algiers three days ago.

The European terrorists fired seven mortar rounds at Vic-tor Hugo Moslem quarter, but there were no reports of Moslem casualties.

Shipping and airline officials said the Secret Army was accepting pressure to help its leadership escape. Tangiers was said to be the main staging point for fleeing Secret Army leaders.

Jean - Jacques Susini, Secret Army political leader, in a private broadcast Tuesday night, set a 48-hour time limit for the Secret Army - Moslem agreement to be implemented by inclusion of Europeans in the Moslem local force.

This was one of the three points settled in the agreement.

Susini said strategic areas in western Algerian towns would be turned into well-armed redoubts if the agreement was not respected.

European labor unions in Oran warned unless autonomous powers are set up in western Algeria for the European population, it will call on settlers to flee the country.

A communique from the Joint Committee of Labor Unions in Oran said Moslem nationalist leaders must sign an agreement guaranteeing peace in the territory by June 30.

If not, the communique said, "the committee will be forced to demand the immediate departure of their leaders to avoid genocide."

Many Moslem settlers western Algeria for some time have been demanding a regroupment of the population along ethnic lines.

The Moslem nationalists condemned the plan Tuesday. Nationalist Premier Youssef Ben Khedda said Arab nationalists pledged to help Algeria in dealing with "new criminal attempts to carry out a partition.

The Oran labor union communique said Premier Ben Khedda's grace accord of last Sunday between Algerian nationalists in Oran command and some Moslem nationalists as "is involving only several persons more interested in defending their own interests than those of Algeria, France and the West."

It said the agreements cannot be considered valid.

REAL CAOUETTE BEING TOUTED AS MIRACLE MAN

Que. Socred Head Makes Prediction

ROUYN, Que. (CP) — The time may mark a resurrection for delaying 26 of 75 Quebec seats by the Social Credit party in Monday's federal election is already planning its campaign for the next time around.

Real Caouette, the Socred deputy national leader of the party, who is being touted as a miracle man in Quebec political circles, thinks the Socreds will entered their winning streak across the country in the next election.

"We're ready now, but in three months from now we'll be even more ready and we'll take 60 seats in Quebec," he said Tuesday. There are 75 in the province.

"If another election were to come today, we would sweep Quebec, Alberta, British Columbia and many other parts of the country. Now, the West looks towards the East instead of the East towards the West."

PLANS STRATEGY

Mr. Caouette won't expect another election for at least 18 months, Mr. Caouette, an auto dealer from Chicoutimi, Que., is already planning party strategy.

This weekend, he and his Quebec members will meet on Lake Kipawa to plan the Rouyn area to chart strategy.

It is planned as a strategy of "open doors."

The party, said Mr. Caouette, will refuse a coalition with any party but will support the government's legislation so long as it believes this is in the interest of Canadians.

The day preceding the press smiled that the Socreds believe "does not conform to the aspirations of all Canadians," the party will swing its weight to the government.

SAYS NO DISPUTE

Mr. Caouette, although he delivered more seats to the Commons than the Conservative branch of the party, said there is no dispute within the party leadership.

Robert N. Thompson of Red Deer, Alta., national leader, will take charge of the parliamentary party, Mr. Caouette said.

"Mr. Thompson is one of the greatest Canadians I know," he said. "He will represent the English-Canadian nation and I will represent the French-Canadian nation."

Mr. Caouette is almost unimpressed by the vote which took other Quebec observers almost totally by surprise.

"I predicted we might win as many as 26 seats and the newspapers laughed at me. I have got more than half those seats."

Mr. Caouette said he will not use his party's position to form an arrangement with the Progressive Conservatives to form government.

"The only time we would consider a coalition is if Mr. Diefenbaker decided to become a Creditiste."

READY FOR ELECTION

Mr. Caouette says his party will be ready for an election at any time because, unlike the big traditional parties, they do not rely on contributions for campaign funds.

Everybody who worked for us did so on a voluntary basis because they believe in our movement," he said.

"I'm proud that it wasn't the Ralliement Creditiste that lost but the man who works in the sole in the Noranda mines."

Thailand Boycotts SEATO Parley As Court Gives Cambodia Temple

BANGKOK (Reuters) — Demonstrations broke out here and in border provinces Wednesday in protest against the World Court decision at the Hague giving Cambodia a Thailand border temple.

Thailand Tuesday announced a boycott of next week's SEATO (Southeast Asia Treaty Organization meetings in protest. Government sources said was reached in unwritten American support for neutralist Cambodia in the dispute.

Some 300 students marched in orderly manner Tuesday night from Bangkok City square to Chulalongkorn University and once carrying placards declaring the disputed temple, Preah Vihears, "belongs to Thailand."

In Chandburi province near the Cambodian border some 16,000 persons demonstrated, newspapers reported.

Officially, there was no explanation for Thailand's withdrawal from meetings of SEATO, said as well, the additional SEATO meeting conference at Geneva.

But government sources complained bitterly because the United States allowed Dean Acheson, President Kennedy's adviser on North Atlantic Treaty Organization matters, to represent Cambodia before the World Court.

The court ruled 9 to 3 last Friday that the temple fell under Cambodia's control.

U.S. Again Fails To Test Bomb At High Altitude

Malfunction in Rocket Thwarts Major Blast

HONOLULU (AP) — The United States failed tonight in its second attempt to explode a high - altitude nuclear device above Johnston Island.

The Thor intermediate missile used to rocket the gigantic nuclear package skyrocketed "due to a malfunction in the system."

Joint Task Force 8 released the following announcement:

"The nuclear device was purposely destroyed without a nuclear detonation. The debris fell into the open sea well within the safety area which was previously designated.

"There was no danger to test personnel. There will be no danger to people life or hazardous levels of radioactivity in the ocean."

The failure was a repeat performance of the first U.S. high altitude test attempt June 4 at the Pacific island test area 750 miles southwest of Honolu.

The first shot was aborted when the Thor missile's guiding system malfunctioned. The White announcement on tonight's shot was not specific as to what went wrong.

MARKS ANNIVERSARY

The failure was announced by Assistant Defence Secretary Arthur Sylvester, who testified today from the Johnson Island area.

The nuclear device carried by the Thor was to have been the biggest in the current test series. It was expected to have been detonated at an altitude of about 200 miles, and would have lit up the Pacific like a giant flash bulb.

The test had been set for Tuesday night but was delayed 24 hours due to a cloud cover in the area.

Liberal Leader Will Consult With Ministers

OTTAWA (CP) — The Liberal party's old parliamentary group meet today for a review of basic tactics following Monday's indecisive election.

Liberal Leader Pearson, re-elected in his Toronto St. Lawrence riding of Algoma East by a record margin, will consult with former cabinet colleagues after Liberal ministers.

They are Paul Martin, J. W. Pickersgill, Lionel Chevrier and Paul Hellyer with these Privy Councillors will be Speaker Alan Connolly of Ottawa, president of the National Liberal Federation of Canada, and Walter Gordon, national campaign organizer and Senator Maurice Davenport on his first try for a Commons seat.

He's been touted as a finance minister in any Liberal government.

Mr. Pearson spent the day at Shorncyffe, Liberal party leader of the official Opposition in suburban Rockcliffe.

He studied a more complete picture of returns that gave the Progressive Conservatives 116 seats to 96 Liberals, 30 Social Credit and 19 New Democratic.

Early Tuesday Mr. Pearson had called the results a decisive rejection of the Conservative government and called for a statement soon on what that government planned to do for the months ahead.

Seaway Tolls Enough to Pay Building Costs

WASHINGTON (AP)—The St. Lawrence Seaway Development Corporation believes seaway tolls on the waterway are sufficient to repay all construction costs.

However, the door was left open for future increase.

In testimony made public Tuesday by a House of Representatives appropriations subcommittee, Seaway Administrator Joseph M. McCann said a complete study and possible hearings would precede any possible increase in tolls to vessels using the United States and Canada canals or scheduled to review seaway charges.

The agency that McCann heads is a self-liquidating corporation of the U.S. - Canadian waterway.

Murdered Man's Widow Gets Mafia Threat

MESSINA, Sicily (AP) — A murdered man's widow, presuming her own case against four Capochia mobsters charged by the prosecution with murder and extortion, says the Mafia has threatened her.

A lawyer for Mrs. Elena Scapo Canonda said the woman told him she sum up her case. The lawyer said she claimed her life had been threatened by the Sicilian Secret society.

The three-month trial of the bearded monks is nearing conclusion.

Her lawyers abided by her decision and withdrew from summing up. The woman's case against the defendants was let stand, however.

Mrs. Canonda and her husband, a wealthy farmer, had lived 20 miles inland from capital Messina in the monastery town of Mazzarino.

The prosecution contends murder, violence and threat of violence issued from the monastery by a ring extracting money from peasants and landowners in the surrounding countryside.

Mrs. Canonda's husband, Angelo, 74, was shot to death in May 1960 after refusing to pay a sum of money.

The defendants are brothers Capuzzo, 39, Vittorio, 34, Vincenzio, 35, and Agrippino, 30. Three peasants are on trial with them.

The monks have testified they were themselves terrorized by a pact of silence by the monastery gardener, whom they described as a member of a bandit gang. The gardener himself himself in jail soon after his arrest two years ago.

County Council Turns Down Request of Deseronto Board To Close the High School

Hastings county council at special session here yesterday turned down the request of the Deseronto Board of Education to be allowed to close their high school and join the Napanee and District High School Area.

The motion to allow closing of the school was defeated on a close 15-14 vote but the decision was actually an anti-climax as an earlier amendment to take no action on the request had been lost on a tie 15-15 vote.

During the day-long session councillors listened to numerous speakers, both for and against the closing of the Deseronto high school.

Opposing the closing of the school were members of the Deseronto Ratepayers' Association headed by Fred Keech as spokesman.

Mr. Keech told councillors that ratepayers were greatly concerned over the threatened loss of their school. He urged no action on the matter until a referendum could be held on the school question.

CAN BUY EDUCATION

He pointed out that the town could continue to buy teaching and other high school education from either Napanee or Belleville.

Dr. D. C. McVicker said this was an inopportune time to think about closing the high school.

He claimed the move to close the school was supported by heads of existing industry in the town who were afraid of competition in the local labor market if additional industry came to Deseronto. Closing of the high school would discourage further industry, he said.

On the other hand, however, Alex Harvey, chairman of the board of education, said their request to close the Deseronto high school was based on a desire to provide a better and broader education for their students.

He claimed this could be done more cheaply by joining the Napanee High School Area where technical education would be available. There is no grade 13 at Deseronto and senior matriculation students have to attend either at Napanee or Belleville.

FIGURE DISPUTED

Mr. Harvey quoted figures to show that of 39 pupils coming out of grade 8 this year, 16 would be going on to high school elsewhere than in Deseronto.

This figure was disputed by ratepayers.

"For the sake of the children, the board of education has no alternative but to ask county council to allow closing of the Deseronto high school," Mr. Harvey said.

During the morning speakers for the ratepayers said if their town joined the Napanee district high school area their assessment would be increased by $500,000 to $1,500,000.

This was questioned by county assessor Cecil Dean, who, although not disputing the accuracy of the figures, said "someone was getting in too big a hurry" in setting assessment ratios.

He admitted there would be a re-adjustment of assessments if Deseronto industry was now lower than in the Napanee area.

ASSESSMENT NO CONCERN

But the consensus of councillors was that assessment did not come within the jurisdiction of school board members.

The 1962 Deseronto high school rate was given as 31.61 mills but this did not include costs for the installation of a new heating equipment.

Dr. McVicker said the rate for the year previous had been about 28 mills.

The rate for the Napanee high school last year was 16.3 mills.

This was taken by councillors to indicate that Deseronto assessment was now considerably below that in the Napanee area.

Although council decided to take no action on the request to close the high school, it was noted that closing of the school was recommended by the Ontario Department of Education.

There are now just over 80 students attending the school although next year this is expected to increase to 100.

Jailed 14 Days For Assault on Police Officer

TRENTON — In magistrate's court here today, Trenton Township, Hugh Curtis of Trenton, was sentenced to 14 days in jail for assault on Det. T. K. Wills, after the magistrate had heard evidence from the plaintiff a Crown charge that Curtis had assaulted a police officer, while he was discharging his duties.

Evidence revealed that Curtis had struck Constable Mark Holden and torn the shirt from his back. Det. Wills told Crier, in a fracas arising out of an argument with his wife. Curtis was taken to the police station, while Sgt. Steenburg had gone back to the scene of the disturbance to check Simpson's story that more men were involved in the fight.

Simpson had slipped out the back door of the police station while the constable at the desk was engaged on the telephone.

"Have you anything to say?" asked the magistrate, before passing judgment in the case.

"Someone should have been looking after us," said the accused.

"When the police want your advice they'll ask for it," the magistrate advised him. "You know you were supposed to stay in that room."

Gerald Simpson, Front Street, charged with assault against his landlady, was placed on a year's suspended sentence, told to pay $5 court costs and ordered to sign a bond to keep the peace and to find another boarding house.

Rotarians Told Switzerland Model for Peace

TRENTON — "Switzerland, a Tiny Land in Peace," was the subject of a talk to the Trenton Rotary Club on Monday by Ashley Lewis, a civil servant in Switzerland and Canada.

Program chairman Ken Couch, in introducing Mr. Lewis said that the speaker's services were secured through the efforts of the Swiss consulate in Toronto. Mr. Lewis, who is known internationally as an ambassador of good will, has travels across Canada and the U.S., speaking to service clubs.

In telling the club members of the Swiss way of life, Mr. Lewis said the Switzerland was an ancient democracy, with an unbroken history of freedom reaching back 671 years. He said that his country had survived many wars during which were founded on might, not right. He told the audience who think that the world is doomed, might well look to Switzerland as an example of where the God-given attributes of human tolerance and concern sense had been applied.

Mr. Lewis' address was illustrated by beautiful coloured films of Switzerland. Mr. Lewis said that in his lifetime, his country had never known such a thing as unemployment, and in fact, provides work for 700,000 workers from other European countries during a great part of the year. The country enjoys an unparelled prosperity, he said.

Taming of the Shrew Draws Acclaim of Many Critics

STRATFORD (CP)—If first night audience response and critics' appraisals have any meaning, tickets for the Stratford Festival's production of Taming of the Shrew will be a scalper's delight.

Tuesday night's premier performance of the Shakespearean comedy met almost-unanimous praise from the critics and a standing ovation from the audience. It was the second premier in as many nights in this first week of the festival's 10th season.

The third production being presented this season is Shakespeare's Tempest, opens tonight.

Box office receipts already total $550,000 for the season and the apparently unqualified success scored by Michael Langham's production of Shrew would seem to indicate a complete sellout figure for the play.

Five standing ovations were given the cast headed by Nicholas Colicos as the Shrew-taming Petruchio and Kate Reid as Katrina.

ROLE SUITS UP

Among the supporting cast reviewers praised Hugh Webster as Grumio, Tony Van Bridge whose edification the play within the play—the shrew taming—takes place. Shy's role has been built up in the production so that instead of disappearing after the first act he continues as a key figure until the final scene.

Toby Robins portrayed a wistful Bianca, the Shrew's more desirable sister, and veteran comedians Eric Christmas and Bernard Hepton was acclaimed for their parts. Music for the production was written by John Cook of London, Ont.

Langham's text draws freely from an anonymous contemporary work. The Taming of a Shrew, which, in spite of confused Shakespeare purists, won the unreserved approval of the tear-jerking Bridge.

The critics approved of the transition from the bleak open-ing-night presentation of Macbeth as directed by Peter Coe of London, England, to the spirited, whirly Langham production. Some reviewers felt it wasn't made the opening-night choice.

Edgard Siemers of Ottawa Le Droit found it "a triumph that is dazzling, complete and admirable in its every aspect. . . . All told this production is a priceless gem which will illuminate the entire season."

Tom Alexander of Montreal Gazette called it a "brawling, boisterous and very noisy show in which the Stratford stage was exploited to give every bit of room a chance to do something."

BOUND TO BE THE HIT

Among the other critical acclaimers:

John Gardiner, Windsor Star: "This shrew clicked, and how!"

Nathan Cohen, London Free Press: "Bound to be the hit of the season."

Sydney Johnson, Montreal Star: "One of the most delightful—and what is obviously going to be one of the most successful—comedies presented in this decade of Shakespeare."

Herbert Whittaker, Toronto Globe and Mail: "The festival stage, as difficult to master as any one has found one supreme master in Mr. Langham."

Ron Evans, Toronto Telegram: "One of the most spectacularly pleasing, unmistakably smash-hit shows in Stratford history."

Ed Hocura, Hamilton Spectator: "Stands at the top of my list of all-time favorite presentation of Shakespeare."

Simone Auger, Montreal Le Petit Journal: "Une brillant production enthusiasm is the order of the day."

And Bob Saunders, Winnipeg Free Press: "John Colicos is all swagger, flirts and swashbounding gusto, Kate Reid is all ginger and spice, a shrew to be reckoned with and finally an obedient wife to warm the heart of any man."

ROLLICKING TREATMENT

Stan Anderson, Cleveland Press: "A rollicking, truly joyous treatment of a rough-and-tumble battle. Kate Reid remains the festival's First Lady."

One of the few critics who found fault with the production was Lovat Dickson of the Detroit Free Press, who found gaboriau had been given up "for belly laughs."

"The character of the play who changed from something more like a succession of vaudeville sketches than a connected comedy."

William Glover of the Associated Press said it is "a constantly splashed, laugh-loaded revision . . . falling short in just a single . . . bit of perfection."

"Kate Reid, as the lass who must be tamed, is a deceptive ethead, more petulant house ... than wildcat. A more fiery spirit would seem desirable but the interpretation is acceptable in the overall headlong pace."

Jailbird Afraid of Dark But Then He Is Only Nine

CARTERVILLE, Ga. (AP) —"I want to go home. I want to see my mother," the nine-year-old boy in the red basketball cap said from his cell in the Barlow county jail.

The frail, bright-eyed youngster is locked behind bars since June 8 because he's suspected in a number of delinquents and a bad influence on other children, said Sheriff Frank Allen Barlow.

Barlow County has no juvenile detention facilities, so he has been lodged in the county jail.

The youngster's name was withheld in accordance with Georgia law.

"It nearly kills me to have to keep him locked up like this," said Sheriff Frank Allen wood. "He's such a bright, cute little fellow."

Jailer Fred Gunn comments:

"He's just like keeping a baby. He's afraid of the dark and he cries a lot."

The lad is one of three children. His father died when he was a baby and his mother was remarried.

Common Market Terms Called Delayed Death

WELLINGTON (AP) — Deputy Prime Minister John Marshall told the House of Representatives today Britain's entry into the European Economic Community would have more than a temporarily "delayed death sentence" from the European Common Market countries.

He said this was what the Common Market members meant by agreeing in principle to give New Zealand competitive access of agricultural produce after 1970—"if not before."

Marshall spoke only five hours after flying in from vital talks in Britain and Europe.

"British negotiators are seeking provision for comparable outlets which would provide continuity of access," Marshall said. "The six are resisting this."

Marshall added that access to the Common Market must be maintained if Britain was to go into it.

"It is the crux of the problem. It is the irreducible minimum."

SYDNEY, Australia (Reuters) — Trade Minister John McEwen, predicting the world would be divided into three gigantic trade blocs by the end of the year, today urged an international conference to discuss the European Common Market.

McEwen, acting prime minister during the absence in the United States of Robert Menzies, said such a conference would allow countries like Australia to state their problems and proposals.

He said in a speech Britain's application to join the Common Market had set off a chain reaction of world - wide consequence.

Before the end of the year the world would be divided into three trade groups — the U.S. an enlarged Common Market embracing western Europe and to some extent beyond, and the Communist bloc.

"To be outside one of these groups is to be at a disadvantage," he said.

Atomic Arming Dangerous Rusk To Tell France

PARIS (Reuters)—U.S. State Secretary Rusk today was credited with setting up a probable meeting by late-summer between Kennedy and de Gaulle for later this year.

Rusk spent 70 minutes with de Gaulle Tuesday night after which it was learned that part of a tour of North Atlantic Treaty Organization capitals, American sources said, a summit conference meeting was likely as a result of the talks.

Rusk arranged to address the NATO permanent council and ambassadors from Allied countries Wednesday. Gen. Lauris Norstad is chairman.

U.S opposition to de Gaulle's plan to give his armies their own atomic arsenal was one of the main points discussed by Rusk and the French president. WOULD BE DANGEROUS'

Rusk told de Gaulle in effect that creation of an independent French nuclear striking force would be dangerous and ineffective as a deterrent against Communist attack. He made no offer to share atomic secrets that Britain now gets from the United States.

Holdings June 14 in pounds, with year-earlier figures bracketed: Prince Edward Island, 6,931,000 (5,394,000), Montreal 28,-402,000 (30,604,000), Toronto 8,107,000 (6,881,000), Winnipeg 5,845,000 (10,694,000) Regina 1,566,000 (3,043,000) Saskatoon 3,214,000 (4,012,000), Edmonton 2,353,000 (3,-488,000), Calgary 423,000 (541,000), Vancouver 1,163,000 (1,-173,000).

Total Canadian exports of oats, barley, rye and flaxseed during the first three-quarters of the 1961-62 crop year were 43,300,000 bushels, 6,700,000 bushels more than exports in the comparable year-earlier period.

100,000 Persons Involved in Getting Results

TORONTO (CP)—The teamwork of more than 100,000 persons provided Dominion election results Monday night from 96 per cent of the polls across Canada.

By 5 a.m., 7,238,572 votes had been reported by The Canadian Press from 45,907 of an estimated 48,023 polls. It was apparent that when all the votes were counted the record of 7,287,297 set in 1958 would be topped by possibly 300,000.

Compilation of this massive total was the result of the combined efforts of electoral workers, telegraph and telephone companies and the staffs of member newspapers who gathered and transmitted returns for The Canadian Press.

In Canada, when polls opened two hours earlier than this year, 30 per cent of the polls had been reported when night election service ended.

TRANSMITTED TO CP

An estimated 97,000 electoral officials and returning officers counted the record vote and made it available to newspaper correspondents at each constituency. The communications network took over from there, transmitting the results to CP bureaus across the country.

Gerry Gratton, a special compiling staff worked through the night sorting out a speedy flow of figures that added up to a minority victory for the Progressive Conservatives.

Past records for speed could not be matched because of the closeness of the contest but as the trend became apparent CP reported at 10:34 p.m. that the PCs would not gain an overall majority and at 12:07 a.m. that they would emerge as the party with the greatest number of members elected.

Only two close contests were in doubt at the end of the night. They were the Halifax-east riding of Halifax and the other in North-west Territories.

445 Candidates Lost Deposit In Election

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Election candidates who failed to poll at least half as many votes as the winners in their ridings lost their deposits of $200 to the treasury of Canada.

The Canadian Press compilation of election returns indicated 445 candidates lost the $200 deposits they made when they filed nomination papers. They represented 24.5 per cent of the country's total of 1,817 candidates, roughly the same proportion as in 1958.

The record was 463 candidates in 1945 in a field of 982 entrants.

The compilation showed that 171 Social Credit candidates ran in Ontario—lost deposits. The New Democratic Party had 159 deposit-losers, 64 in Ontario.

Thirty - seven Conservatives, a large number of them incumbent Quebec MPs, lost their money. Liberal deposit - losers numbered 40.

The forfeitures also were heavy for 12 Communist candidates, 11 Independents, seven Labor-Progressives, five Labor-Independent-Conservatives, and a sprinkling of aspirants running for the Rhinoceros Party.

Following is a breakdown of the deposit losers by provinces and parties:

Trade Deficit $25,000,000 up From Last Year

OTTAWA (CP)—Canada had a balance of payments deficit of $290,000,000 in the first quarter of 1962—$25,000,000 greater than in the same period last year.

It included a $51,000,000 merchandise trade deficit. But by far the biggest part of the international imbalance was again the non - merchandise deficit, which was $239,000,000 to $349,000,000.

Included in the latter figure were a $147,000,000 net outflow in the form of interest and dividends and a $66,000,000 drain in travel expenditures, and a $106,000,000 net outflow in miscellaneous current transactions abroad.

The figures were released today by the Dominion Bureau of Statistics in the first quarterly ing for seasonal factors the deficit on all non-merchandise transactions was down from the quarter at an annual rate of about $1,250,000,000.

Last year Canada had a total balance of payments deficit of $982,000,000. In 1960 it was $1,242,000,000 in 1960 and $1,504,000,000 in 1959. Since 1950 there has been only one surplus—in 1956.

The country's capital account in the January-March period showed a $364,000,000 inflow resulting from net government-security reduction in its official holdings of gold and foreign exchange.

Mere was a $74 million trade crease sharply in both directions but ports exceeded the rise on exports, yielding an import balance of $51,000,000 compared with an export balance of $6,000,000 in the first three months of 1962.

About one-third of the 12-per-cent increase in imports was due to higher prices, reflecting chiefly the lowered foreign exchange value of the dollar.

Liberal Leads In Northwest

YELLOWKNIFE, N.W.T. (CP) — Outcome of the federal election in the Northwest Territories remained in doubt today, more than a day after 113 of the 117 polling stations closed.

With reports received from 117 polls, Mrs. I. J. Hardie, the Liberal candidate, had 2,807 votes, Jim Brown, Progressive Conservative Eugene Rheault, Yellowknife Co-operative Council Credit, trailed with 957 votes.

Radio communication difficulties delayed reports from the Keewatin district, which has served several hundred eligible voters. One of them was at a department of transport weather station at Mould Bay in the Arctic Islands, 1,000 miles north of here and 870 miles inside the Arctic Circle.

Hospital Needs Outlined To Kiwanis Club Members

Belleville - General Hospital has a bed capacity, to accommodate 127 people, but the average occupancy throughout the year is 294 bed patients, Dr. William Bastile told local Kiwanians yesterday afternoon at the Kiwanis Centre.

He noted that long-term planning was needed to fully meet these needs. Location and future expansion facilities, parking area and careful planning to accommodate these various facilities in the most efficient manner from the point of view of handling patients, visitors and the work flow in the building.

In conclusion Dr. Bastile asked Kiwanians to remember that a product was involved—the health and happiness of the community, overflowing.

Exceptional service is provided the community by the hospital but there is a desperate need for more facilities and the efficient operation of the hospital must be considered, he concluded.

In 1961 Belleville needed a hospital with 403 beds, by 1966 it will require a 441-bed hospital if the community's minimal needs are to be met, Dr. Bastile advised. Together with these additional beds there will be improved services, to match, such as kitchen, laundry, and maintenance facilities and a new 700 bed unit on the historic Exmoor area of moorlands in Southern England.

Problems of the problems which would have to be met locally. He advised that a number of his comments were his personal opinions and ideas gathered during his participation in a survey of local hospital needs.

Looking Back to Creation

"If God would but grant me the power to turn back the pages of time . . ." Thus yearns the poet for the impossible. Impossible, that is, in the sense in which he spoke, for he wanted not merely the ability to relive the past but to change it.

Viewing today what happened yesterday, or years ago, is an everyday occurrence for astronomers. Or, for that matter, for everybody who looks at a star-lit sky. The light which we see started out at many different times in the past.

Laymen who have accepted that fact as a matter of course may, however, be amazed at what is happening at Jodrell Bank in England, the site of the world's biggest radio telescope. There astronomers are "seeing," by means of recording machines, the light which left far into the past that it befuddles the imagination.

"We believe," says Sir Bernard Lovell, director of Jodrell Bank, "that much of the work that is going on at Jodrell Bank involves the exploration of space at distances which are so great that the objects lie at ranges of between five thousand million and ten thousand million light years distance and we think that this work is taking us back perhaps to the origins of time and space."

The origins of time and space—what a strange sound that has! It is almost—but not quite—as if the scientists had accepted the existence of a creation. And if scientists today can gather evidence of what occurred at that time, what a thrilling and exciting mystery they have to unravel—the most important "who-dun-it" or "what-dun-it" of all time, written in the strangest language!

The men of science may already have all the clues they are going to get. "We think this instrument is penetrating as far into the cosmos as man ever will be able to penetrate," says Sir Bernard, "and we hope that when the results which are being obtained are collated and analyzed, they will give us some indication of the possible processes which were taking place in that remote epoch which may have been near the time of the origin of the universe."

How close is "near?" Sir Bernard did not say—at least not in the material we have seen. Within a few thousand million years, we suppose. But how tantalizing if we finally discover that we are just 'phin hair, that time and space began too early for man's instruments to be able to let him "look" at the beginning, that Jodrell Bank should have been built by the dinosaurs if anything on earth was ever to have learned the initial secret of the universe.

Stimulating Economic Growth

If there is one problem that all Canadian provinces have in common, it is the problem of stimulating economic growth. And in this respect, Quebec may well have secured the jump on the neighbors.

In a recent major policy speech, Quebec's Premier Lesage told the nation's businessmen that his government holds no brief for the planned economy.

The Quebec government, he said, did not wish to dictate the economy, had no intention of taking a hand in different sections of the economy, and did not want to control the market. The government, Premier Lesage added, "is not interested in doing so because it does not believe that this is its role."

What Premier Lesage appears to be doing is making it clear, for the benefit of both present and potential investors, that his province wants, and welcomes, private capital and that it intends to respect the legitimate rights and interests of investors who may choose to invest in Quebec's further economic development.

In so doing, the Premier has made an important contribution, to the difficult process of ensuring that his province has access to the large amounts of capital that are absolutely essential to major industrial expansion.

Without question, Quebec will profit immeasurably from this wisdom in the years that lie ahead.

All this struggling and striving to make the world better is a great mistake; not because it isn't a good thing to improve the world if you know how to do it, but because striving and struggling is the worst way you could set about doing anything.—George Bernard Shaw.

Every young sculptor seems to think that he must give the world some specimen of indecorous womanhood, and call it Eve, Venus, a Nymph, or any name that may apologize for a lack of decent clothing.—Nathaniel Hawthorne.

Masters of Invective

By J. B. McGRACHY The Financial Post

Here is a story of the Lincoln era. In the 1860 election campaign he conducted a series of public debates with his opponent for the presidency, Stephen Douglas.

Douglas was a man of family and wealth. Lincoln was still—at least from Douglas' point of view—a low-born peasant from Illinois. Unwisely trying to make points by playing on the difference, Douglas recalled the days when he had bought drinks of whiskey at the counter of the Lincoln's grocery store. He commended Lincoln as a good bartender. Lincoln accepted the compliment and said: "The difference is that I have moved away from my side of the counter but Judge Douglas is still standing at his."

Two of the most predatory pirates of the period of graft and speculation that followed the American Civil War were Jim Fisk and Jay Gould. Together they bought a sumptuous yacht and refurbished her in extravagant style. Having invited the notables of New York, their sphere of acquaintance, to a gala party on board.

One of the guests, Chauncey, W. M. Depew, admired particularly the oil paintings of the two pirate partners decorated one wall of the cabin. "Splendid," he said, "Jim Fisk on one side and Jay Gould on the other. But where is our Lord?" Think about that one, exactly parallels O'Connell on Daniel. There are many such echoes in the history of invective.)

Here is a mixed bag of small American brilliants from our own day and age.

W. J. Bryant was hailed as "the Boy Orator of the Platte." "He's that all right," an opponent said. "And the Platte is six inches deep, six miles wide at the mouth." When Calvin Coolidge died, Dorothy Parker (or was it Alice Roosevelt?) asked "How can they tell?" Tackler threw a cabbage at W. H. Taft. "I see," said Taft, "that one of my opponents has lost his head."

One of my favorites concerns Thomas E. Dewey, commonly known as Tom-tom for obvious reasons. He was a senator from the Dixie-Land State, Alabama, I think, and still held his seat in my time in Washington, the early 1920's. Fabulously sectorial in appearance, with his pomaded, parsellmouth coat and string bow tie, he was noted both for the vacuity of his mind and the pompous volubility of his orations.

One day Tom-tom began a speech by saying, do doubt to proclaim his fraternism, "I always come into this assembly in full possession of my faculties." An unerring gnat came from the floor: "What difference does that make?"

* * *

Today's greatest master of invective on either side of the Atlantic or any other ocean, is undoubtedly Mr. Winston Churchill. Even though his thrusts are all famous, it is always stimulating to read them again.

He called Hitler a bloodthirsty maniac with a pistol in each fist." "This whipped jackal is frisking up by the side of the dormant lion with, not only or appetite . . . this could be Thunderhead . . . but even of triumph.'

(Another verdict on the Dane that I like is by Scott Austin, journalist, Leo Lania: "A man only can be in country with no appreciation of true acting.")

Churchill on Ramsay MacDonald: "He has the gift of compressing the most number of words into the smallest amount of thought." On Stanley Baldwin: "Stanley occasionly stumbles over the truth but he always hastily picks himself up and hurries on as if nothing had happened." On Stafford Cripps: "He is fast for the grace of God goes God."

Were these Churchillian rumblings just the last echoes of the 1914 generation? Is true invective out of style or a decaying art?

Exams Again Fashionable

Chatham Daily News

The swinging pendulum is an appropriate emblem of the fitful changes which occur in human thinking, and particularly in education, which engrosses such a large share of human thought.

Arguments as to the value of school examinations represent a case in point.

There was a time when examinations were the accepted door through which students moved up.

Then came grumbling, largely by unsuccessful pupils and their parents, that the whole educational system was geared to "passing exams" and thereby young people were robbed of their destiny in "higher careers."

That, in fact, a pupil brilliant in some good subjects might be held back through inability to pass in some other subjects.

Such grumblings resulted in the movement to do away with exams.

A formal examination is perhaps not a dependable method whereby to judge a student. On the other hand, without such tests, how can the learning or scholarship be judged?

The first mighty attack of the Second World War on Canadian soil was launched 24 years ago today—in 1942 when a Japanese submarine shelled the government radio telegraph station at Estevan Point on the west coast of Vancouver Island. The attack lasted half an hour but none of the shells hit their target.

1934—Thirty-five fishermen were lost in a storm in Northumberland Strait between New Brunswick and Prince Edward Island.

Plant Trees From Air

Ottawa Citizen

The Ontario department of lands and forests has earned a reputation for its development of technique of fighting bush fires from the air. And it is constantly improving these methods. Now the aeronautical department is turning its planes to the task of reforestation from the air.

Using new helicopters, the department is carrying out an experiment this spring with aerial seeding.

Foresters don't expect that aerial seeding will become the principal means of re-establishing forests, but they do feel that it will play a useful larger role in the future. Any method of regenerating an area that can simplify and reduce the costs of planting in remote regions, they say, is worth more than casual attention.

THE PACKSACK

By GREGORY CLARK

According to an old legend the reason the poplar tree, the trembling aspen, quakes and trembles, is that it was from poplar wood that the cross was made upon which Jesus was crucified, and it has been fated to tremble ever since.

Apart from that, the aspen appears to be rather specially blessed among trees. Besides producing seeds to scatter in the wind, like many other trees or plant, the aspen is able to reproduce by suckers from its roots. Thus, one can cut a poplar down and the very next spring, for many feet in all directions from the stump of the felled tree, up rise many young poplars, ready to carry on their prolific tradition.

This happens to be the wonderful process in the cycle of reforestation of plant life after a forest fire. In the first century all the forest, including the few, or the modest number of poplars in that forest, the fire does not, as a rule, destroy the roots. And right after a devastating fire, up spring the young poplars, where few if any other trees or plant, the aspen is able to reproduce by suckers from its roots. Thus, one can cut a poplar down and the very next spring, for many feet in all directions from the stump of the felled tree, up rise many young poplars, ready to carry on their prolific tradition.

In the first century all the forest, including the few, or the modest number of poplars in that forest, the fire does not, as a rule, destroy the roots. And right after a devastating fire, up spring the young poplars, where few if any other vegetation has survived.

To kill a poplar wholly, it has to be ringed. A belt of bark must be removed around its trunk. In three years at most, the tree dies, and so do its magical regressive roots.

Strictly Personal

How Our Mind Advises Our Muscles

By SYDNEY J. HARRIS

From time to time, readers write in to advise me of being too "psychological" in my approach to problems. I was beginning to wonder whether or not this might be true until I took a few corrective tennis lessons last week.

Now, tennis is an extremely physical game, a game in which stance and motion, of stroking and footwork, I have been playing the game, in my own fashion, for more than 30 years, and thought it was time I learned something about the fundamentals.

To my vast surprise (and also to my delight), the tennis pro spent more time on my head than he did on my feet or my arms. His approach to this "physical" game was as "psychological" as could be.

Most of my playing faults, it turns out, are mental in origin, and cannot be corrected merely by changing my position or the timing of shots, I have an anticipation of failure. I am ashamed to look awkward swinging at a ball, and, most of all, I suffer from mistaken inertia — which is a state of mind rather than of body.

In a narrow technical sense, my strokes are good. But what is basically wrong with my game is my attitude toward it. I wait for the "ideal" ball to come along, and if it doesn't, make only a half-hearted attempt to hit whatever does.

Again, like most players below the expert class, I am afraid both to hit out hard and hitting the ball out of the court — and these two fears combine to make me hit many more balls into the net and out of the court than I otherwise would.

Of course, what is true of my tennis game is true of my golf game and his swimming process; he has only to look at anybody's attempts to master some "physical" activity requiring skill and coordination. The merely physical part is the easiest to learn, as a kind of automatic reflex action.

When big-league baseball players fall into a batting slump, or when crack golfers return to a pro for some remedial lessons, they are really trying to overcome a mental block in their playing — and overcoming a mental block means to stop thinking consciously and to begin acting instinctively, in a free and natural manner.

The lessons have improved my tennis more than I think they have reaffirmed my conviction that the psychological approach is fruitful not only in the realm of ideas and feelings, but also in what we usually think of as purely physical activity.

Plantar Warts Contagious Can Be Spread Many Ways

By JOSEPH G. MOLNER, M.D.

Dear Dr. Molner: Are plantar warts contagious? What can be done to get rid of them? My husband has them. — Mrs. E.O.

Herpes are being technical, but it's plantar and not planter. It means warts as the plantar, or sole of the feet.

We know that in general these warts seem to be virus-caused, and they can be spread through showers, bathroom floors, etc.

Therefore I recommend that people with such warts never walk around barefoot, but use shower clogs, or slippers. There are different ways to remove the warts, such as with an electric needle, paring or X-ray. Podiatrists may use strong acid solutions or possibly the injection of a solution into the wart roots.

Dear Dr. Molner: I have unusually small breasts and I've tried creams and other things but have had no success with so far. I have a medical book praised by a doctor and it says large doses of hormones would increase the size. How much would these doses enlarge them? — Mrs. D.G.

Creams and other patent "remedies" won't help.

I don't know what you mean by a book recommended by a doctor. Hormone treatment, except in special cases, is of no aid in cases in which there is a real and severe endocrine imbalance, but that means a lot more than just the size of the breasts. Don't experiment with hormones except under specialist's supervision. The effective combination is: (1) eat up straighter; (2) add a bit of weight; (3) when after the first baby arrives, you plump up.

Dear Dr. Molner: I am a 15-year-old girl. Is it true that when your kidneys don't function properly it can throw your whole system off?

My kidneys bothered me for a year but I didn't know they were infected until recently. I am also very nervous. Could the kidneys cause nervousness, or else were I — Reader.

Yes, it's true that kidney diseases can throw your body's chemistry out of whack.

Urinary frequency or distress don't necessarily indicate kidney infection. It can be due to pain in nervousness (particularly at your age) it may be due rather to a bladder infection. There may, indeed, be some kidney ailment (such as pyelonephritis) but that doesn't mean that the kidneys can't or don't function. These days, with antibiotics and other means, such infections are customarily controlled long before they interfere with the kidneys.

Dear Dr. Molner: There is an adult in our family who "spoils" the children, pulling on a joint until it cracks. I've protested but he says it does no harm. Usually the children laugh, but our 3-year-old ran out when she "popped" her toe. Is there danger that the joints will enlarge? — Mrs. L.W.

I'm afraid the best I can say is that this is a rather senseless indoor sport. I see no good coming from it, and would stop it on the grounds that it may be painful and can cause harm.

STRENGTH FOR THE DAY

DR. EARL L. DOUGLASS

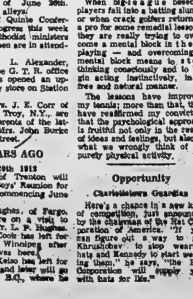
THE MINORITY OF ONE

After Jesse had healed a boy afflicted with a terrible malady, he had fed five thousand people and the Biblical account has it "that the more part said, He is a liar."

The majority expressed an opinion which was overruled by the minority of one, called the boy back from collapse to restored health. Why should it be often decides that a cause is worth while? Sometimes it is a righteous cause and has been rewarded by the results and deeds of his contemporaries. "You can't put that thing across," said those who knew he dead. Oh to be sure it would be the right thing to do, but it can never be done."

All through history majorities have been turning dumbe down on projects which registered advance. Anyone who believes that the voice of the people is the voice of God needs to go back and read history. Crowds have been wrong just as often as they were right. The tyranny of one is debasing but the tyranny of a mistaken majority is even more so.

All this encourages us to figure out for ourselves what we believe to be true and to act accordingly. Pay no attention to "the more part." They are just as likely to be wrong as you are. All the mistakes on the pages of history have been where along the line had majority support. Don't be afraid to constitute a majority of one and to speak out bravely what you believe.



Seat Belts

The coast-to-coast campaign for seat belts in automobiles is having the support of the National Safety Council. Already more than 700,000 members are displaying it in cooperation with the Canadian Highway Safety Council. While safety officers are as highly skilled as men may be debatable, but there is little doubt of their sense of responsibility while behind the wheel. Their interest is likely to do much to promote not only the installation but also the use of seat belts.

GAMBLER

ber of the legislature for Niagara Falls, admitted that, while an MLA in 1956 he signed his name to falsehoods in legislatory letters to a federal official, Gambler Gerber and his partner Joseph McDermott when they were seeking a liquor licence for the Lundys Lane company. But he said these were offshoots of some politicians' testimonials.

The Ont. County Crown Attorney Henry Bull said he had no "oblique suggestions" that he thought Gerber and McDermott had proved the industrial decline, with Nova Scotia and Montreal dropping 1¾ and 1 respectively to their 1962 low price of 1962. Royal dropped 1¾.

Calgary Power and Moore Corporation each fell 1 and Consolidated Paper 1. He had not made a statement to police that Feeley had told him—at a meeting after Feeley was fired—to get an introduction to Shrubb—that the gambler was taking $2,000 a month to "someone in Queen's Park," home of the provincial government.

Mr. MacKinnon did not name the police officer he had reported statement — which had not appeared in evidence before — and he had not asked him in testimony at times confused questioners, did not answer it directly.

But he said that once he had asked Feeley what was the "revelspot" — a customary way of handing out money to police — given out, and the gambler had "made the remark that perhaps money was being spent somewhere."

He said he got the impression it was to the "Crown attorney." Asked whether this meant Henry Bull, a general, he replied:

"I don't know — whoever was in charge."

"Did Feeley say he was paying money to any honorable Queen's Park?" Mr. Justice W. B. Roach, the commissioner, asked.

"I think he said higher-up," Lloyd answered. "You know, Queen's Park is higher up."

PREFERRED RATES

Concerning alleged illegal sale of liquor in his motel, he was prosecuted by Crown Counsel for Feeley, about a statement he was reported to Shrubb that he only charged a reference that he would not have to pay liquor were to be sold, it was their responsibility, and they should "check up the chief of police" — a reference that he was not explained.

Lloyd said he found himself as an occasional amateur gambler who had a hand at the now-closed McDermott - Feeley club at nearby Cookville, embarked on a long and tortuous story of how Feeley introduced himself as Mr. Chalmers office in 1956, pursued him for an introduction to Shrubb and eventually settled for meeting the blonde Mr. Shrubb.

(Shrubb has testified that Feeley eventually became acquainted with him when he joined the undercover squad and unsuccessfully wooed him with bribery officers.)

CLAIMS MADE OVERTURE

Lloyd said he told Feeley that Shrubb was "not a man to be talked to" about protection, but had made a seeming overture as a "feeler" to his knowledge that Shrubb would quickly turn it down.

He had asked Shrubb whether he was "interested in dealing outside the law" and in "taking a little envelope."

Shrubb had replied "absolutely not!"

Lloyd rambled on about Shrubb being "overawed re-prosch" while commission counsel Paul J. Wilson tried to interject questions, Mr. Justice Roach advised the witness to listen to the questioning.

"Are you mad at me?" Lloyd inquired.

"I'll get provoked if you're going to make a lot of speeches," the judge warned. "This is no circus."

TO GET INFORMATION?

Mr. Wilson observed that Feeley wanted to meet Shrubb to get information that would be helpful.

"I didn't give him a chance to say that," Lloyd said. "I didn't want to be involved in anything," the witness said.

"You told Shrubb that Feeley was interested in a setup involving the police," the commission counsel suggested.

Lloyd insisted he was "looking" with Shrubb and said the "envelope" reference had been brought up by himself jokingly.

"There's no joke in that," the commissioner commented.

"Didn't you tell Shrubb, as he had testified, there would be substantial sums of money available?" Mr. Wilson pursued.

"I swear I didn't. Shrubb was not going to receive money, not me."

WITNESS DENIES

The counsel accused Lloyd of putting the police name in so he could describe it as such — that the proposition were turned down. The witness denied.

Under questioning, Lloyd said he considered the McDermott-Feeley operation at Cookville quite prosperous. It had been prepared to what he had seen in Shrubb's home.

When he first went in, he had been surprised to see a high class of dining room, a piano, gambling, gentleman farmer Johnny Wilson of Niagara Falls pronounced Cookville far superior to Las Vegas.

When Mr. MacKinnon pursued this subject later and inquired if Lloyd had told Conservator Johnny Pleschuk, Lloyd replied:

"No chuks . . . all good English people . . . these were gentlemen (the club had an army, navy air force veterans association) . . . gentlemen from Bay Street, big stockbrokers . . . all well-dressed . . . my goodness, I was well dressed."

To the judge, he observed loudly that "you might have had friends there yourself."

"I'm sure you're beautiful," the commissioner complained, looking pained.

SOME PROTECTION

Under questioning by Mr. MacKinnon the witness said that he would have thought would "have to be some protection" for the operation such as the Cookville one.

However, he denied Mr. MacKinnon's suggestion that his own role was that of trying to convince Shrubb that he should join up with Feeley because there was no point in fighting powerful people.

While Lloyd denied that he had told Shrubb that Feeley had informed him of Shrubb's recent appointment to the Peterborough force before it was announced, the witness said that he had been informed a few times that Mr. Shrubb's appointment was going on, such as when transferred.

But shortly afterwards he said a "friend" who had told him of Shrubb's move.

"I cannot tell where it came from," he added. "When Mr. Feeley says someone is going to be transferred, a party must have moved him for Mr. Feeley."

He agreed with Mr. MacKinnon that this would be somewhat unusual.

Former MLA Jolley, defending Minister Leslie Frost in 1956 Dodge-mott - Feeley testimonial letters, said they consisted only of "trite phrases" that were well-ten "every day by people in the public life."

The falsehoods, he said, came mainly in his purporting to give first-hand knowledge of the gamblers' fine character and financial responsibility when, as he had testified earlier, he had never met Feeley and barely knew Dodgemont.

"You should be ashamed of yourself," Mr. MacKinnon said Mr. Jolley denied that, at Mr. Dodgemott's request, he had asked Bertie Downship police to ease up on raiding the McDermott - Feeley operation. He said he does was call the chief to make sure that the gambler, who did not keep it.

1G0 Trenton School Children Tour Museum

More than 100 school children from Trenton's schools have visited the Hastings County Museum in the past two weeks. They were grade 3 and 4 students from the Separate School and Quinte Model and Institute from Prince Charles Public School.

The student groups were taken on conducted tours of the several displays — the history of Hastings County, the Riel Rebellion of 1885; the Cockburn collection of fine furniture, paintings, silver, etc., and a specially arranged Trenton display.

Early photos, picture postcards, and Trenton newspapers dating back to 1872 showed the visitors how much their town has changed in size, appearance and nature. Emphasis was placed on the giant Gilmour lumbering operation at its mouth of the Trent River and on the canal.

The special Trenton display has been continued and expanded. Trenton residents particularly are invited to view the exhibit. The museum at 240 Church Street in Belleville is open every afternoon from 2 to 5 and Monday and Friday evenings from 7 to 9.

Admission is 25 cents for adults (children and students are free) and special group rates and tours are available.

PC GOVT. WILL

single bloc in the new House, the Conservatives were 15 seats short of an over-all majority. The Liberal opposition increased its membership to 98 from 69, Social Credit staged a comeback with 30 seats and the New Democrats boosted their representation to four from eight.

NEEDS MORE FUNDS

As well as the question of appointing new ministers, Mr. Diefenbaker also faces the problem of money. Parliament voted $1,704,750,000 April 19 to finance government operations for five months. This grant expires Sept. 18 so Parliament must be called to vote more money by then unless the government resorts to the rarely-used device of financing through governor general's warrants.

Another point expected to confront the cabinet is the Commonwealth prime minister's conference scheduled for Sept. 11 in what is called the voice of Canada by reason of the colour and come of the election."

While holding the largest 10 at which Britain's bid for entry into the European Common Market is to be discussed. Mr. Diefenbaker indicated in Winnipeg that the date of the election outcome will not affect Canada's representation at this meeting.

The defeated ministers—postmaster - General William Hamilton, State Secretary Dorion, Mines Minister Flynn and Works Minister Walker — will conceivably continue to administer their departments without parliamentary seats.

But the feeling is this would be only a temporary measure to give Mr. Diefenbaker time to appoint a new cabinet lineup.

BILL MAY GET POST

Speculation is that Mr. Diefenbaker may replace Mr. Walker with Ernest Halpenny, minister without portfolio who was re-elected in Dodge, Ont., and bring Richard A. Bell, parliamentary Secretary to Finance Minister Fleming, into the cabinet as postmaster-general.

As possible replacements for Mr. Dorion and Mr. Flynn, names in addition to Bell include Theogene Ricard, deputy government whip and parliamentary secretary to the prime minister, and Paul Martineau, deputy speaker in the Quebec House and a former parliamentary secretary to Mr. Diefenbaker.

It is always possible for a defeated cabinet minister to seek another seat. Mr. Dorion appears to have ruled out this possibility in his own case in the Election Night statement saying he is not interested in trying for Parliament again.

The prime minister has given every indication that he plans to head a minority government as long as possible. He has distributed talk of a coalition with the embryonic Conservative wing of the Social Credit party. And he hasn't shown any mention of an early election.

Before and after the election, he stopped short of saying he there was an evident difference between the two recessions. Heading west with the election verdict still unknown, there was loud cheers and confident banners at Winnipeg airport.

Heading east, with the verdict known, there was friendly applause and quiet handshakes at the same airport.

And They Didn't Bring An Apple!

Duck hunters beware!

In the vicinity of Bath, Ont., ducks are becoming educated and starting at a very early age.

Miss Thelma Perry, school teacher near Bath advises that during recess the students saw young ducklings in the school grounds. When recess was over, the students returned to class and as the school door was left open about two inches, what should march down the aisle but eleven week-old ducklings.

Because the small downy flock did not fit into the regular curricular studies for the day, Miss Perry gathered them up and notified the Department of Lands and Forests who are making provision for their return to more natural surroundings.

Light sputtering rains are giving Lands and Forests fire rangers an assist and reducing the overland fire hazards to low.

As for most of the rest of the northern areas last night, according to department official and he added, "it helps."

No fires are burning at the present in a studywide surrounding blaze that swept over two days the other day is being patrolled.

Warm sunny weather will result in a drying-out period with its hazards, Rangers, aircraft and firefighting equipment stand at the ready for an emergency.

And they remind campers and other visitors to the northlands that an ounce of common sense is fire prevention is worth more than a ton of firefighting equipment.

Stratford Festival Opens With Showing of Macbeth

By ROBERT TANNER

Nature once again smiled on the opening of the Stratford Festival as a spell of heavy rain broke in a day of rain allowed the first night audience, who smartly turned out as ever, to reach the theatre without the drenching which so many of them suffered last year. In the festive spirit they were met with the newly designed stage, a change so subtle as to be hardly noticeable at first, but one whose practicality and functional advantages soon became apparent as the action of the play unfolded.

This year's festival is offering three of Shakespeare's plays, a tragedy, Macbeth, a fantasy, The Tempest and a comedy, The Taming of the Shrew, which is the first of many repeats; of these Macbeth was selected for opening night in a thought-provoking version directed by Peter Coe, young Englishman who has become his first London production (of the musical play Jack up your Daughters) in 1959, has earned himself an enviable reputation in many parts of the world and with a considerable degree of controversy.

His conception of Macbeth is almost diametrically opposed to the popular one, for he has his central character starting out as a nervous wreck, and acquiring new courage, determination and serenity with each new crime. Without this explanation, which fortunately is given in the Souvenir Program, the production loses much of its credibility and could be very confusing to the not overly perceptive.

There must be something about the Stratford stage, whether old or new, which inspires directors with an innate passion for movement, and Mr. Coe is no exception. There are times, particularly during the discovery of Duncan's murder and the later battle scenes when the action erupts into such a hurly-burly confusion that the audience is left reeling, with some of the more irreverent likening it to the Keystone reminiscences of French, bedroom farce. Perhaps the opening night performance excelled itself in enthusiasm; subsequent ones may be somewhat more restrained.

UNEVENNESS NOTED

In previous years, the amazing uniformity of ability of the Stratford company has been noted. Without question since some unevenness becomes evident. While Christopher Plummer, in the title role, Irene Worth as Macduff and William Hutt as Banquo all give powerful and credible portrayals, both Joseph Shaw and Anthony Zerbe seem rather wooden in the roles of Duncan and his son Malcolm. These two are newcomers to the company; nearer familiarity with the theatre and the rest of the cast may remedy this fault. It is hard to decide whether the director or Kate Reid is to blame for the comparative failure of Lady Macbeth, in which a certain sameness of gesture certainly contributed. On the other hand, another new member of the cast and a recent graduate of the National Theatre School gave a gem of a performance in the brief part of Lady Macduff; we shall look forward to seeing Martha Henry in the much more demanding role of Miranda in Wednesday's Tempest. The very slight amount of humor in Macbeth is very ably handled by Eric Christmas and Tom Kneitel, in competition with the loudest knocking ever known.

In keeping with the mood of the production, Brian Jackson's costumes have a very uniformity drab, but then they certainly does not lend itself to any great variation on the part of the designer. Music is almost completely lacking but for the first time the production makes use of taped sound effects, some of which are considerably more effective than others.

To sum up, this is not, as yet, one of Stratford's great productions, but it is an interesting re-interpretation of a almost completely known plays, which by the end of the season may considerably increase in stature.

SPEAKING of MANNERS

PATRICIA LEWIS

THE COCKTAIL PARTY PROBLEM

Is the cocktail party on the way out?

This is a question that is frequently asked — usually at cocktail parties.

Well, if it is, and I doubt it, its demise can be attributed mostly to mismanagement.

The reason many cocktail parties are crushing bores is because there are too many guests and too little food. When someone decides to give a party of this type, invariably he or she makes up an invitation list of everyone he or she knows. The thought of how to accommodate so many people often dawns only as the first guests walk in the door.

A cocktail party can be a pleasant way of entertaining a crowd in a casual manner without too much strain on either hosts or guests. But, like any party, it takes a bit more planning than some hosts are willing to admit.

The first big error is the guest list. Very often, enthusiastic host will plan a party for thirty, but will send out fifty invitations. Law of averages, for instance. Many people won't be able to make it, so with refusals the number should add up to thirty in the long run.

But often things just won't work out this way, and the all fifty guests arrive to stand elbow-to-elbow in a room meant to accommodate only half that number.

When guests are jammed together it's impossible to see to their wants adequately and, if so many were unexpected, the food often disappears before the last of the company even puts in an appearance.

What's the remedy? The cure starts with the invitation. If the party is large, printed invitations may be sent out, with time, place, etc., filled in. If a host is anxious to know who's coming, R.S.V.P. can be written in the bottom. Invitations should be sent only to the number of people who can be accommodated comfortably. As refusals come in additional invitations may be sent out.

With the time and number of guests settled it's simple to plan adequate refreshments. If the party is early, from 5 to 7, for example, a menu of hot and cold hors d'oeuvres usually suffices. But, if it's later and runs to 8 or 9, food should be more robust, since most guests will have been starving since lunch. Baked ham, roast turkey or a hot casserole and warm bread and rolls set out on a sideboard is hospitable and actually takes little extra effort.

Naturally, a choice of cocktails and mixed drinks is offered but the considerate host also make sure that soft drinks and fruit juices are available for those who want them.

Some people may still argue that cocktail parties should be crowded and a bit hectic. But many people shy away from them for this very reason. A little better management might put the jaded cocktail party back on its feet again.

FAIRDALE BAPTIST M.V.

The June meeting of the Fairdale Baptist Ladies' Missionary Fellowship was held at the home of Mrs. Donald Ernst. The 18 ladies present were welcomed by the vice-president, Mrs. Charles Breaton.

Following the business portion of the program, the worship service, under the leadership of Mrs. Breaton commenced with the hymn, "There's Not a Friend Like Jesus." Psalm 73 was read in unison.

The text of Mrs. Beverley Foster's devotional talk was taken from St. John 15: 1-17. "I am the vine, ye are the branches," Jesus told His disciples that believers are united with Christ just as the branches are united with the vine.

In Galatians 5: 22-23 it stated that it is a fruit bearing relationship. Break the branches away from the vine and they soon wither. Separation from Christ means that believers too soon wither spiritually and die a spiritual death."

Mrs. Breaton announced that the July meeting will be at the home of Mrs. Stewart Blake.

Refreshments were served by the hostess and her helpers, the meeting closed with a time of fellowship.

ENGAGEMENT NOTICE

Mr. and Mrs. Harold A. Abbott of Frankford, announce the engagement of their only daughter, Carole Elizabeth, to Mr. Sidney Davies, son of Mr. and Mrs. Alfred Davies, of Shockdale. Marriage to take place, July 21, at 11 a.m. in Frankford United Church.

Mrs. Allan B. McComb, R.R. 5, Belleville, is a patient in the Belleville General Hospital.

Weddings

SOPHA — ADAMS

Peonies, yellow snapdragons and ferns formed a lovely setting in Christ Church, Belleville, on Saturday, June 9th, at 2:00 p.m., for a pretty wedding when Elda Lorraine Adams, of Belleville, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Elmer Adams, became the bride of William James Sopha, also of Belleville, son of Mr. and Mrs. James Sopha. The Reverend Archdeacon J. B. Creegan, rector of the church, officiated.

Traditional wedding music was rendered by the church organist, Mr. John Croyden Withers.

Given in marriage by her father, the bride was radiant in her bridal gown of white peau de soie with overskirt of nylon organza. The fitted bodice featured an Alencon lace yoke with "V" point, and matching short sleeves, while the floor-length skirt was accented by Alencon lace appliques at the front and a butterfly bow at the back. She wore a hand-rolled veil of silk illusion tulle held by an organza rose studded with seed pearls and carried a white Bible trimmed with a white orchid and pendant white satin ribbons knotted with red feathered carnations.

Her attendants, Miss Gail Tremaine, of London, Ontario, Miss Shirley Fewell, of Belleville, and Miss Nancy Brady of Madoc, cousin of the bride, were short-sleeved gowns of similar design; in mauve, lime green and pink, respectively, of taffeta with overskirts of matching organza, in short length; matching tulle headdresses of organza rose, studded with seed pearls, matching that of the bride.

Little Miss Jo Anne Morgan, niece of the bridegroom, was a demure and sweet flower girl, wearing a white nylon frock trimmed with pink, and headdress like the bride's, and carrying a white basket of white Shasta daisies and fern, and other attendants carried wrist sprays of white Shasta daisies entwined with ivy and feathered carnations tied with satin bows matching their gowns.

Master Christopher Adams, cousin of the bride, was ringbearer, carrying the rings on a white satin pillow.

Mr. Lyle Ralph Harris, of Belleville attended the bridegroom, while Mr. Lyle Adams of R.R. 7 Belleville and Mr. Ralph Sopha, of Belleville, ushered the guests.

The reception was held at the I.O.O.F. Hall, Front Street, in Belleville, where the bridal table was appointed with white linen damask, and centred by a five-tier all-white wedding cake, made and decorated by the bride's mother, in the form of a cathedral topped with a bell-frey and bell, each tier separated by pedestals. The bottom tier was designed as the church with open doors through which the bridal party was seen descending the three-tiers of steps, the bridal attendants attired in the same material as the actual bridesmaids.

The bride's mother received wearing a pale blue brocaded peau de soie with white accessories, and corsage of pink Sweetheart roses. Assisting her was the bridegroom's mother, attired in green flowered printed silk, with white accessories and corsage of yellow Sweetheart roses.

For the wedding trip to the United States, Cooksbire, Quebec, and Ottawa, the bride wore a beige floral dress ensemble with beige duster, white accessories, and corsage of white orchid.

Previous to her marriage the bride was the honored guest at the home of Mrs. Stafford Masterson, with Mrs. Garry Jackson and Mrs. Ambrose Gilhooley as co-hostesses, when she was the recipient of linen and personal gifts. Also at a kitchen and pantry shower at the home of Mrs. J. Sopha, with Mrs. R. Sedlit as hostess and Mrs. S. Morgan and Mrs. L. Button as co-hostesses. The staff of Belleville Public Utilities, where the bride is employed, presented her with an electric clock and toaster, and the Stewart-Warner, where the bridegroom is employed, presented him with an electric clock.

Guests were present from Belleville, Madoc, Toronto, Niagara Falls and London, Ont.

The young couple will reside at 76 Pinnacle Street, Belleville.

CHEQUE PRESENTED — Mrs. George Hume (left) and Mrs. M. F. L. Jones (right), presented a cheque for $7,500 to Mr. Pere McGuire, chairman of the public relations committee of the Hospital Board, yesterday afternoon on behalf of the Women's Hospital Auxiliary of the Belleville General Hospital. The amount was the final payment for the beds which the auxiliary supplied the hospital.

Hospital Auxiliary Reads $15,000 for Hi-Lo Beds

Members of the Women's Auxiliary of the Belleville General Hospital could well show the way to many national organizations raising money for charitable purposes.

In little more than a year the local Auxiliary through its two projects, the Opportunity Shop operated at the city hall, the hospital Coffee Shop, has raised $15,000 to pay for Hi-Lo hospital beds.

The final payment of $7,500 toward the cost of the 30 beds was turned over to the hospital yesterday.

And so sooner had the Auxiliary completed the hospital bed project when it immediately took on another — this time the purchase of a new folder for use in the hospital laundry. The cost . . . something in the neighborhood of $3,000.

IN USE A YEAR

The beds purchased by the hospital auxiliary have been in use for approximately a year. Last year the Auxiliary turned over $7,500 toward the project with the final payment made at their regular meeting at the hospital Education Hall yesterday.

The Opportunity Shop on the ground floor at city hall is a busy place during the week. The clothing sold either has been presented to the shop or taken on a consignment basis with the Opportunity Shop taking a percentage of the sale price.

Chairman of the Opportunity Shop Committee is Mrs. James B. Casey with Mrs. James C. Young as head pricer for the shop. Others taking a busy part in the operation of the shop are Miss Ivy Eggleton, who acts as bookkeeper; Mrs. W. Shand, treasurer, and Mrs. J. Muir, staff convener.

Net proceeds from the Opportunity Shop for the first six months of the year were stated to be $2,100, which has already been turned over to the Auxiliary.

COFFEE SHOP BUSY

The coffee shop on the first floor of the hospital is conveniently located and is possibly one of the busiest places in the hospital.

Hospital staff members find it particularly convenient for a moment of relaxation from their official duties, while visitors to the hospital also find the coffee shop atmosphere relaxing.

The shop so far this year has shown a profit of $1,200. The coffee shop committee is headed up by Mrs. H. H. Murray as convener with Mrs. W. Dallas as treasurer. Mrs. Hilda Mott is shop supervisor.

The Experts Say

Mature Women Problems In Labor Force Outlined

OTTAWA (CP)—The problems of the mature woman entering or re-entering the labor force are outlined in a booklet produced here by the women's bureau of the labor department.

The booklet suggests 18 job categories which a mature woman might consider.

Bureau director Marion V. Royce says she has two main concerns on this topic. They are the need for facilities for the training of adults and secondly that women should recognize their own limitations and job without training or retraining.

"On first thought the prospect of undertaking training may seem formidable," the booklet says. It explains that recent concentration on training for the unemployed is contributing greatly to the development of vocational education for adults. There was a growing selection of courses available to any man or woman 18 years of age and over who was registered for employment with the National Employment Service.

OFFICIALS HELP

If a woman is serious in her quest for a job she was advised to visit the nearest National Employment Service office where she could find out what types of jobs were available in her community and seek advice about job training.

The mature woman seeking a job should first "look at her capacities objectively and try to measure their usefulness in the labor market." Skills acquired in housekeeping and household management, or hobbies such as dressmaking or photography, might lead to a new occupation. If a woman was returning to an occupation in which she had previous training, a refresher course might suffice. Correspondence courses or a series of day or night classes for adults were often the answer for women who needed to upgrade their academic or practical skills.

"Where no suitable pre-employment training is possible, a woman should look for work where she will have a good, initial supervision and training on the job," the booklet advises. "For many of the service jobs filled by women, this latter type of training is all that is available."

TYPES OF JOBS

Job categories suggested in the booklet are cashier, dental assistant, food supervisor in a hospital, hairdresser, medical laboratory assistant, medical record librarian, nursing assistant, occupational therapist, occupational therapy assistant in the mental health field, office worker, radiological or X-ray technician, real estate agent, saleslady or salesperson, seamstress, teacher, visiting homemaker waitress and writer.

Women pressed by economic need could become useful in voluntary service. The possibilities included teaching English to newcomers to Canada, assisting the staff of a day nursery for children of working mothers, helping the program of a recreation centre for elderly people or working on a planning committee of a social agency. It was preferable to choose an agency with a training program for its workers.

YOUTHFUL MARRIAGE

KERR — GERMAN

Bloomfield United Church was the scene of a lovely wedding on Saturday, June 2nd, at 3 p.m. when the Rev. H. F. Swann united in marriage Ruth Marie, youngest daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Ray German, Bloomfield, and Craigie Kerr, son of Mrs. Elizabeth Kerr, Brighton, and the late Mr. J. Kerr.

The couple exchanged rings before an altar banked with standards of spires and 'mums and rose hydrangea and ferns.

Mr. Roy Cornish of Trenton, played the traditional wedding music.

Sid Lt. James Colbeck (former classmate of the bridegroom) was soloist. He sang "The Lord's Prayer" during the ceremony and "Because" during the signing of the register.

Given in marriage by her father, the bride was radiant in a full-length gown of imported French summer brocade featuring a fitted bodice, round neckline, short sleeves and a full skirt ending in a chapel train. Her veil of embroidered tulle was held in place by a tiny pill-box of the same material as her gown. She wore a tiny drop cultured pearl and carried a bouquet of red roses.

The maid of honor was Miss Connie Sickle of Belleville, and the bridesmaid was Mrs. Jean O'Meara of Belleville (sister of the bride). The flower girl was Miss Melanie Kippen of Hamilton, niece of the bridegroom.

The attendants were identical street-length gowns of printed blue silk with full skirted over-dresses of blue organza. They wore pill-box hats of the same material as their gowns and wore blue shoes and gloves. They carried bouquets of yellow Shasta 'mums.

Mr. MacKenzie Kerr, of Brighton, was groomsman for his brother.

Mr. Donald German, Mr. D'Arcy Williams and Lt. Norman Hull acted as ushers. Master Tommy Kerr, Belleville, nephew of the bridegroom, was ring-bearer.

The reception for 80 guests was held at Maple Inn, Bloomfield.

The bride's mother received the guests wearing a beige sheath of embroidered Swiss linen. Her accessories were green hat and brown shoes and gloves. She wore a corsage of red roses.

The bridegroom's mother assisted, wearing a printed silk sheath of green and gold and a matching coat of beige. Her accessories were an ice-orange hat and gloves and beige shoes. Her corsage was Talisman roses.

The couple left on a brief honeymoon, heading for points east. Upon return they will be leaving for the RCAF station at Lancaster Park, Edmonton, Alberta, where the bridegroom will be stationed.

For her going away ensemble of beige sheath and matching coat, the coat lined with green printed silk, she wore a pill-box hat covered in the same material. She wore dark brown shoes and gloves and carried a dark brown bag. Her corsage was yellow rosebuds.

The beautiful four-tiered wedding cake which featured an open prayer book, was made and decorated by the bride's mother.

Servers at the reception were Misses Kathy Kerr, Beverley Wannamaker, Gayla Henderson and Elizabeth Brown.

Reader Seeks Leather Purse

DORIS CLARK

DEAR DORIS—I have a leather purse which needs replacing and I would like to get one of the same design, but so far I have been unable to get one in any of the stores.

I am wondering if you could put me in touch with a reliable person doing leather work, that I might be able to send the old purse to them and have a new one made like it.—MR. F. B.

DEAR MR. F. B.—Leather work is developed to a fine art by occupational therapy departments of Canadian sanatoria. Who wants to tackle Mr. F. B.'s purse?

• • •

DEAR DORIS:—My problem is, I get too serious over boys. When I go out with a boy a few times and then he takes someone else out, I get real mad.

All the boys around here seem to want me more as a friend than someone to go out with. They are always coming to me to tell their troubles.—TROUBLED TOO.

DEAR TROUBLED—They like you. That's even better than loving—at fifteen.

Prize your gift of friendliness. Be first to free your pals. They'll never stay with you because you get mad about it. Just remember you want to be free too.

DEAR DORIS:—I am 15 years old and have been going steady with a boy I like very much for just over four months. Just recently we broke up because I went to a dance with someone else. The boy I like phoned me and said we were through when he found out. He wouldn't listen when I told him that the boy and I were just friends and he accused me of trying to drop him.

This boy can flirt with all the girls he knows and when I ask him about it, he says he is just having fun and that he likes them only as friends, not girl friends. But if I even talk to another boy he gets furious and insists that I no longer like him. What should I do? I don't want to break up.—BROKEN-HEARTED.

DEAR BROKEN HEARTED — Your heart will mend. Sounds to me like an unsteady type of steady going. Proof it was never meant to be.

You can like others—and will! It takes courage right now, but you'll be glad later if you stand on your own two feet and avoid this "steady" business. Give the other boys a break!

DEAR DORIS—We moved last December due to the fact that someone was coming into our suite, going into everything and causing damage, such as cutting buttons off my dresses, tearing the seams; they killed off all my plants, etc., etc.

We complained to the rental agents and also phoned the police, but could get no results, so decided we would get out. I can assure you it was terrible and nerve wracking, and we counted the days when we would be moving.

We could hardly believe this ourselves at first, but someone is doing the same here in this place. We realize we must move again, but we are old people now and don't you think it is terrible to pay rent for privacy and only be unhappy about living in your home? Besides, it costs money to move and then will we be any better off? We are at our wits' end and I am . . . HEARTSICK.

DEAR HEARTSICK—Who put a hex on you? Is there a prankster who would do such things?

And what's the sense in moving if he follows you? The police should be doubling their efforts to find the culprits. They will know if others are in the same boat. Discuss it with them. Then put burglar-proof bolts on the doors and sit tight until you see what they can do.

Iced Tea and Tarts

by Mary Moore

With a tall glass of iced tea in one hand, a tender luscious ripe strawberry tart in the other and your feet up on a rock — relax!

This is directed at me. I no more than get settled than a dandelion pops up its little yellow head and I have to get up and uproot it. But this summer I'm going to change my ways. I'm determined to finish my drink before I get up to demolish one weed.

ICED TEA (serves 4):

Make strong, fresh tea by measuring 3 cups freshly boiled water and pouring over 4 tea bags or 9 teaspoonfuls in tea pot. Brew 3 minutes. Have ready 4 tall 10-oz. glasses containing 4 standard-size ice cubes, or as many as the glass will hold. If sugar is used add it now because the hot tea will dissolve it. Now pour hot tea over to fill glasses, to within ½". Add as much fresh or canned lemon juice as you prefer, I like 2 tbsps. of 1 whole lemon or 2 tablespoons canned fresh lemon juice. Garnish with lemon slice or/and a sprig of fresh mint. Drinkers enjoy stirring this with their straws.

Would you like to serve it with

TARTS:

Cream cheese pastry (see below)
1 quart fresh strawberries
2 tablespoons quick-cooking tapioca or cornstarch, 1 cup sugar, 1 tablespoon lemon juice.

Wash, hull and quarter the strawberries. Combine quick-cooking tapioca or cornstarch and sugar and mix with prepared berries, stir in lemon juice and let stand to soak while you make

Cream Cheese Pastry: 1 3/3 cups sifted all-purpose flour, ½ teaspoon salt, 1 tablespoon sugar, 1 4-oz. package white cream cheese at room temperature, ½ cup butter or oleomargarine.

Sift together into bowl, the flour, salt and sugar. Add cream cheese and butter or margarine and rub them into the dry ingredients, then work with your fingertips until mixture forms a ball. Wrap well and chill in freezer compartment 15 to 20 minutes.

Roll and cut out chilled Cheese Pastry and line 10 standard-sized tart pans or three-quarters full with berry mixture. Carefully cut out fancy little shapes to partially cover filling of each tart. Bake at 400 deg. F.ahr. for 20 to 25 minutes.

Friends Honor Young Couple With Shower

FRANKFORD — Frankford Full Gospel Tabernacle congregation met at the parsonage in the recreation room on Saturday evening to honor Mr. and Mrs. Charles Wright (nee Helen Patrick).

"Chairman for the evening was the pastor, the Rev. Fred Spring. They entered decorated with pink and white bells and streamers for the happy occasion.

Choruses were led by Mr. Alex Nyssonen. Games were conducted by Mrs. Reg. Elliott and Mrs. Keith Helm. A question and answer paper was enjoyed. Mrs. Eldon Sine sang the solo, "The Answer Man."

Miss Sandra Purvis gave a reading "Prayer in the Kitchen." Mrs. Jack Drobot and Miss Beverley Wannamaker sang the duet "I've Got a Mansion Just Over the Hilltop." Miss Carolyn Richard gave a reading, "Grandma Says."

Four young folk were chosen for the game "Power of Observation."

Mrs. E. Stroome gave the reading, "Tell Her So." A vocal trio, Mrs. Gordon Smith, Mrs. Keith Helm and Mrs. Reg. Elliott sang "No One Ever Cared for Me Like Jesus."

Rev. F. Spring briefly addressed Charles and Helen, and on behalf of the congregation, Mr. Elgin Payne, Mr. Keith Helm, Mr. David Stroome and Mr. Alex Nyssonen presented the newlyweds with two lovely end tables, a magazine rack and two chesterfield cushions. Charles and Helen both expressed appreciation.

Refreshments were served and a time of fellowship was enjoyed by everyone.

THE FAMILY COUNCIL

Mrs. N.T. — She won't explain the mysterious goings-on with her friends.

Erica — I won't t violate confidences I've made certain pledges.

Mrs. N.T. — Erica is 13 and in the eighth grade in Junior High. For several days in a row now she's been disappearing into a basement room at the home of one of her friends. From the moment school is out until suppertime. When I ask her what's cooking her answer is, "It's a secret."

I can't ask the mother of the other girl because she's away at work and only an aged grandmother is on the premises. I don't want to pry unduly or make a cause celebre out of this. But as Erica's mother I should have a clearer idea of how she is spending those hours.

Mind you, I don't suspect anything wild or sinful. My daughter is a sensible kid. But she goes around wearing a necklace of paper clips. She brings home envelopes of money. And I'm supposed to ask Mrs. how?

Erica T. — We have to meet in Sherry's house because my mother, and the others, too, are too nosy. Why must she know every move I make? Why does she ask me a million questions the minute I get home? It's fun to have a few secrets. Well, at least Sherry and I and four other girls have a very private club going and I'm not going to be the one to spill the beans just because my mother keeps nagging me.

All I'll tell now is that we're the Clipsters and I'm the treasurer. My mother can figure out the rest. We have to meet every day at first because we're writing out a constitution and rules. After a while we'll meet twice a week. Some day the world will know of the good we plan to do. But right now everything's secret — our motto, our handshake, our password. Nobody, not even my mother, will wangle them out of me.

The Council: Erica's Clipsters are providing her with two of the most important teenage requirements: acceptance by a group of her peers, and "one-upmanship" on her parents. The latter is the need for a bit of private, personal life.

Since Mrs. T. has a basic trust in her daughter's good sense, she'd do well to play along with her involvement with The Clipsters. Let her be duly awed at all the mystery. Let her humbly join the circle of Outsiders-Looking-In and add to the thrill of it all for Erica and Co.

Many of us, recall the cabooting of our own childhood, when sacred oaths may have been "sealed in blood" in a Hockleberry Finn. Although organized in terms of eternity, they used to between-set after there were no more big things to do — big things like writing a Constitution, electing officers, collecting dues and appointing two committees (at least two). There had to be a Service Committee and a Party one. After the one big blowout, at which the dues were used up, it wasn't long usually before The Secret Sit or The Spooky Seven disbanded.

Undoubtedly the day will come when Erica tips off her mother on what The Clipsters' goal is. Meanwhile Mrs. T. might have fun speculating. What if it's no more wicked than to clip pictures from magazines and make up scrapbooks for bending around? What if it's to try amateur hairdressing and put up curls in hairclips? As a warm, Erica!

We find nothing alarming in the coming together of wholesome youngsters in order to "have secrets" from other groups. It's a type of protective huddling, protecting their right to be themselves. But we do call to Erica's attention the need for less combativeness. There's no point in sending everyone else, from Mother down as an enemy. Groups can be kind and friendly, too. Your mother, Erica, is merely expressing love — that part of love which is mixed with elemental fear. You can respond to it and without betraying The Clipsters, either.

Editorial Comment On Election

Toronto Star (Ind. Lib.): Few Canadians can take any real satisfaction in the results of yesterday's general election. It has produced a situation little short of political chaos, the dominant trend . . . was a massive withdrawal of public support from the Progressive Conservative government. This can only be interpreted, we believe, as a severe public rebuke to the government for its policies of the last five years.

Toronto Telegram: The situation facing the country is a perplexed of minority government at Ottawa. . . . A meeting of Parliament next fall will show how the lines will form and how the chips will fall . . . It is alarming to jump to the conclusion that this is necessarily an unstable situation or that another election must be held soon.

Vancouver Province: With the voters in their current mood of uncertainty between the two major parties, neither party would seem to be aware of its time and money. A gentlemen's agreement between the Conservatives and Socreds, whereby the latter would support the government in the House of Commons, would seem to offer the country a degree of governmental stability it could achieve in no other way.

Winnipeg Free Press (Ind.-Lib): The present situation, obviously cannot be permitted to continue long. Having been repudiated by two thirds of the electorate Mr. Diefenbaker will not wish to govern for any protracted period as the captive of right- or left-wing minority parties, and would be on very weak politi al and constitutional grounds if he were so attempt to do so.

London Free Press: The outlook is that Mr. Diefenbaker has the largest group but he will face the next Parliament. He may not be many as was Mackenzie King, but no one questions his effectiveness as a politician and no one wants the expense of another election in the circumstances. However, the prospect is that another year will see a new appeal to the country.

Barrie Examiner: The real surprise was the manner in which Social Credit gained in Quebec . . . Now it practically holds the balance of power . . . It would appear that we must settle down for some months of waiting and further electioneering. . . . While it made impressive gains, Social Credit still does not figure large enough on a national scale to form a government in the near election. That election should bring either of the old parties a working majority.

Cornwall Standard Freeholder: What the political future holds for Canada is somewhat nebulous at this time. Strong government is needed to provide the country with efficient forward looking leadership in a complex changing world.

Guelph Mercury: Today Canada is faced with another general election within a year. That is, unless the Progressive Conservatives and the Social Credit ers get together. But we feel the likelihood of a coalition government being formed.

Hamilton Spectator: "The Conservatives have to keep on to go but down." . . . Everyone knew it in spite of this, the Conservatives took more seats . . . than they did when they came out of nowhere and shook up the Liberals so ruelely in 1957 by edging Louis St. Laurent.

Kitchener - Waterloo Record: . . . The surprising Social Credit victories in Quebec . . . possibly had less to do with the principles of Social Credit than with the dissillusionment with both old parties . . .

"The Liberals and Lester Pearson will take most comfort from the results in Ontario, but their failure to make major gains in the Maritimes or the West must be discouraging . . .

"As to the Conservatives, they would be foolish to try to escape the meaning of yesterday's vote. The Canadian electorate has said as clearly as possible that it will not be satisfied with government which is more interested in its image than its performance.

Niagara Falls Evening Review: The situation, confused as it is, is very similar to that which prevailed in 1957 and which brought about a second all of us, and place Canada in election a year later. This can a better position in the eyes of happen again, but Canadians the world, if their leaders could generally will hope, we feel, come to some degree of understanding which would prevent that development of the country servatives and the Social Credit ers for a successful stable administration. Failing to do so, the electorate has only little else than call for another and always costly and disruptive election.

Oshawa Times: The result was undoubtedly a reflection of the dissatisfaction, often vague, with government in general at a time when they were not happy about the Diefenbaker administration, they were not much happier about the alternative, seeming to be at the mercy of groups and factions whose policies and aims are alien to our way.

Montreal Star: If anybody won the election . . . it was the Social Credit party in Quebec. Nobody knows much about them from this result. The new House of Commons will, because . . . should become—quite unworkable. Another election is obviously in the offing.

Mr. Diefenbaker will be under pressure to form a coalition. It will last only until the day when the now powerful Social Credit party has established firm. Then out he goes. . . .

If either Mr. Diefenbaker or Mr. Pearson gets into bed with these coalition men—for that is exactly what they are—he will really regret it. So will the Canadian people who would be well-advised to forget that, for the sake of power, a leader of a big national party has made such a deal.

Montreal Gazette (Ind.-Con.): A more decisive verdict . . . could not be given against a government able to confront its opponents with a clear majority strength to act. But the very hesitation of the results should give Canadians pause to rethink their positions and to reconsider their votes for reaching a clear national decision.

Saint John, N.B. Times-Globe: This country needs strong government. It needs strong opposition—an administration that can learn from decisions in the national interest when opposing and being a splinter party and persistently embarrassing its stand. There is quite a difference between world and Commonwealth conditions in 1962 and 1921.

Whether Canadians want it or not, another election is imperative—and as soon as possible.

Winnipeg Free Press: The present political impasse cannot be permitted to continue for long. Nothing has been repudiated by two-thirds of the electorate as Mr. Diefenbaker will not wish to govern for any protracted period as the captive of right- or left-wing minority parties, and would be on very weak political and constitutional ground if he were so attempt to do so.

Prince Albert Herald: The result was not conductive to good government. It can be assumed that Parliament will be dissolved within six months to a year to make way for another clear cut majority. The personal defeat of Mr. Douglas (NDP) national leader is a rather emphatic repudiation of the medical care in the province.

Calgary Herald: Nothing much seemed to have happened . . . Canada, in a period of international crisis, has had no government for the past two months. Now it faces the prospect of two more governments to speak of for another six months or perhaps longer.

Lethbridge Herald (Ind. Lib.): Slightly more than a third of the total vote cannot be considered a decisive endorsement by the government. On the other hand, the results do not constitute a victory for the Liberals. There was in fact no winner Monday . . . There was, however, a loser: The Canadian nation and people . . .

Vancouver Sun (Ind. Lib): Election of a minority government promises an anxious and uneasy period for the nation, but there is one bright aspect. Short though it may be, the 25th Parliament will debate the political issues and party capabilities for much clearer focus for the voter. A real decision could be easier. Canadians traditionally demand stability in government. They are unlikely to get what they find it, and unlikely to find it elsewhere than in one of the two national parties.

Is Found Guilty Of Attempting To Kill Officer

TORONTO (CP)—Joseph H. Dumas, 20, Tuesday night was found guilty of attempting to murder Metropolitan Toronto policeman. He will be sentenced Friday.

Dumas was caught by Const. Russel Clark during an office burglary last October. Clark was shot twice with his own weapon when Dumas got the jump on him and grabbed the officer's revolver.

Teen-Age Girls Promised Night Club Stardom But Forced Into Life of Vice

WASHINGTON (CP) — Testimony that teen-age girls as young as 15 were recruited in Canada under promises of night club stardom but forced into a life of vice was stirred senatorial interest.

Witnesses testifying Tuesday before the Senate investigations subcommittee spoke of a network of girls in Canada, the United States and Europe.

Senator John McClellan (Dem., Ark.), the sub-committee chairman, said the "prostitutaners" union, the American Federation of Vice Artists (AFL-CIO), should be kicked out of the "house of decent unionism."

He said union officials had been "flirting, dallying and dissipating" efforts to enforce controls designed to protect entertainers from exploitation.

The subcommittee has heard stories of Canadian girls and beatings to keep the girls from escaping.

"A union that would go along with such practices is a union that would tolerate anything," McClellan said, and in my judgment can have no respectable place in the house of decent unionism," he said.

Glen F. Rice, an immigration official, told the subcommittee that two Canadian girls, identified only as Miss X, 20, and Miss Y, 18, were recruited in Montreal and put on a night club payroll in Calumet City for $100 a week.

But after deductions for costumes, union initiation fees and the like, the chorines, one of them had only $1.90 left.

Mr. Rice said the Canadian girls confirmed Rice's story at a closed session.

Rice said Miss X and Miss Y finally "escaped" from the night club to the Hipside Club in Calumet City. Miss X was sent back to Montreal and contacted Rice, owner of the recruiting agency but was told conditions couldn't be that bad and it was all her imagination.

McClellan said the U.S. government is "failing in its responsibilities" if it permits girls to be brought in from other countries to "work in dives where prostitution is practised and where obscene acts are set up to be rolled and robbed." Laws should be passed to stop these practices.

Rice said officials of AGVA cooperated with an American crime element" in the traffic of girls into the U.S.

For—more than a week the subcommittee has heard evidence of the sordid side of the cult — dancers, singers, cafe owners, agents and racketeers as well as from police officials in its probe of alleged conspiracy between criminals and AGVA.

Soldier Vote May Affect Some Ridings

BY THE CANADIAN PRESS

The armed services vote and likely a majority could affect Monday's general election results in possibly four or more tight races. The over-all result of the election, return of the Progressive Conservative government with out a majority, will not be changed.

Four Liberals defeated Conservatives by fewer than 100 votes and there were at least another dozen seats in which the soldier vote could play a decisive edge. About two thirds were Liberal, one-third Progressive Conservative and two Social Credit.

The tightest squeeze was Liberal Ian G. Wahn's 41-vote plurality over Conservative Roland Michener in Rosedale, Toronto.

Liberal John B. Stewart ousted Conservative Clement Vincent in Yorkton by 94 votes and Liberal Walter Scott's Antigonish-Guysborough victory over Conservative Joseph Gabelle's by a margin of 81 over Conservative Hugh Quinn. Liberal Gerard Laverdiere Stevenson Otto upset Commons Speaker Roland Michener in Conservatives by 95 in York South.

SERVICE VOTE ADDED

The service vote, taken all over the world, was added to the civilian total perhaps Saturday. It has received election-day returns by air.

In the 1958 election, the service vote swung the margin for the Liberal candidate in Renfrew North after he had trailed Conservative opponent by a narrow margin on the civilian vote. In 1957, the service vote upset former Liberal prime minister Mackenzie King in Prince Albert.

After the service vote is added, Social Credit will gain and in most ridings these are likely to be Progressive Conservative. Returning officers in these ridings will be required to count the ballots of those who have not cast their votes at election.

Under British-Indian military arrangements, service chiefs of military equipment has been sent to India under a deal which might fall into the hands of Russian technicians and thus help to reproduce the MIG fighters now in train the Indian pilots, Nehru is reported to have assured Britain he will take extra steps to safeguard the security of security — but Britain is not completely assured.

Nehru's new U.S. might have offered India American-made F-104 jet fighters but this would have disturbed Pakistan, an American ally which maintains that U.S. aid to India jeopardizes the U.S.'s own security.

Britain and France offered to sell their jets to India in order to keep the MIGs out, But India rejected the Anglo-French prices were too high and India was looking for a subsidized price because this would be construed as military assistance from the West which India would not accept because she is a neutral.

The Russian MIGs were considered less-priced and simple to maintain, more suited in line with India's needs.

Indian Defence Minister Krishna Menon is reported to have stated the jets are required for defence against invasion by the MIG jet pro- duction line in Communist China and is using the MIG jet pro- duction line in Communist China to induce a lessening of American military aid to Pakistan.

The American view is that if India proceeds with the MIG proposal, there will be serious repercussions in Indian-American relations, especially regarding to revision of U.S. policy and strategy in the Asian area.

Medical Assoc. Annual Meeting Preoccupied With Medical Care Insurance

WINNIPEG (CP)—Delegates to the annual meeting of the Canadian Medical Association showed a preoccupation with medical care insurance at their annual meeting Tuesday.

With the Saskatchewan dispute fighting with their provincial government over implementation July 1 of the Saskatchewan Medical Care Insurance Act, many of the committee recommendations approved by the delegates dealt with this theme.

In Saskatchewan, the Saskatchewan College of Physicians and Surgeons has declared it will provide only emergency service if Premier Woodrow Lloyd delivers through with the proposed implementation of the act.

The CMA general council passed a committee recommendation that approved in principle that the supply of medical care and suggested the formation of committees on the divisional, provincial, level which would accredit plans, or discredit them, to advise any person or group to investigate the plans.

Committee Chairman Dr. R. L. Rabson of Winnipeg said the press comments that committees were not intended as a means of controlling medical care but only as a means of aiding inquiring persons or groups in obtaining the best medical care for them and their needs.

He said differences between privately-operated plans would provide the impetus by which plans of all types would continue to expand and develop according to the needs they should be as many competing plans as possible.

He said he felt the integrity and ethics of the accrediting committees would be a guide for unbiased, impartial assessment of the plan under investigation.

Liberal Sets Precedent in Monday's Vote

BY THE CANADIAN PRESS

Alan Macnaughton, the Liberal MP who set a precedent in the last parliament as the first opposition member to serve as chairman of the Commons public accounts committee, piled up the largest plurality of any candidate in Monday's general election.

In a three-way contest in Montreal Mount Royal, Mr. Macnaughton polled 19,508 votes more than his nearest rival, and all three opponents lost their $200 deposits for failing to poll half his total of 30,517.

Mr. Macnaughton has represented the seat in the Commons since 1940.

The biggest upset of the election appeared to be Social Credit's victory in Quebec-Montmorency, Que., constituency, a Liberal stronghold from which Liberal Paul Martin was elected in the last Parliament by Conservative Robert Lafreniere, Social Credit, by 3,794 votes.

Mr. Lafreniere lost his deposit Monday night as Social Credit Guy Marceux won in a walkaway with 12,000 votes to a plurality of 17,699 over Liberal Paul Martin. It was almost complete returns. Mr. Lafreniere ran a distant third.

PAUL MARTIN

Paul Martin, health minister in the Liberal government last session and one of Prime Minister Diefenbaker's chief targets, elected 10 times since he was first in 1935.

Mr. Martin's margin of 16,375 votes over his nearest opponent, Mr. Martin had the third biggest margin of victory in the election.

Mr. Diefenbaker had a personal plurality of 12,000 votes in his Saskatchewan riding of Prince Albert. Liberal Leader Lester Pearson had 11,977 votes in Ontario's Algoma East. Deputy Social Credit leader Real Caouette by 13,000 in Quebec's Villeneuve, and Social Credit Leader Robert Thompson by 2,358 in Red Deer, Alta.

Thursday night Liberal Marsh, only Liberal woman MP in the House, had a 10,506 in Niagara Falls.

Canada Urges Patience in South Rhodesia

UNITED NATIONS (CP) Canada has counselled patience in the achieving of fully representative government in British Rhodesia.

Canada's delegate W. H. Barton told the United Nations General Assembly Tuesday that a solution must be accomplished peacefully.

Barton addressed the assembly after Minister Neuberger, an Oregon Democrat who generally takes a mild approach to world affairs, lashed out at Social Creditors, describing them as "contemptible" and saying it is a tragedy that Social Credit will have the balance of power in Canada's next Parliament.

Senator Neuberger's concern was that the ascendency of the Social Credit party, combined with a Conservative minority leadership will reduce Canada's influence.

She predicted the election defeat will result in further delay in Canadian ratification of the Columbia River power treaty, forcing the cancellation of alternative programs for meeting power shortage in the Pacific northwest.

West coast lumbermen, concerned about timber coming from Canadian lumber, won't be helped by the new Canadian administration.

"For this reason I am seriously considering offering my previous stand against import quotas on Canadian lumber," she proposed by west coast lumbermen," she said.

A Senate committee has been investigating the lumbermen's complaints that the broad increase in west competition from Canada which, they argue, has been assisted by devaluation of the Canadian dollar—thereby lowering prices in terms of U.S. currency.

The administration itself kept silent on the election but the U.S. interest had been running high on the assumption that President Kennedy was kept well informed on voting trends and results Monday night.

U.S. Senator Not Happy With Socred Party

WASHINGTON (CP) — Several U.S. senators expressed concern Tuesday that there will surmount its political difficulties when questioned about the outcome of Canada's recent general election.

Senator Neuberger's concern was that the ascendency of the Social Credit party, combined with a Conservative minority leadership will reduce Canada's influence.

She predicted the election defeat will result in further delay in Canadian ratification of the Columbia River power treaty, forcing the cancellation of alternative programs for meeting power shortage in the Pacific northwest.

Protest Vote By Socreds In Quebec

QUEBEC (CP)—The election of 26 Social Credit candidates in Quebec province was "first and foremost a protest vote, a manifestation of unrest," the Social Credit conference for Southern Rhodesia, meeting in conditions on political activity and the detention and release all political prisoners.

Barton said British-had "pointed out repeatedly and repeatedly, that Southern Rhodesia has been a self-governing colony since 1923 and that Britain cannot interfere in its internal affairs in any way or give it without the consent of the Southern Rhodesian government.

Izvestia Sees Vote Rebuke To Diefenbaker

LONDON (Reuters) — Izvestia said Tuesday night that the results of the Canadian election "reflect the broad democratic circles of the Canadian public dissatisfaction with the policies of those who play into the hands of the cold war."

The Russian government newspaper's comments were distributed by the Soviet news agency Tass.

It said that a provocative campaign against the Soviet Union was intensified on Canadian government instructions and that Diefenbaker and other Progressive Conservatives wanted to prepare ground for stationing American n.u.c.l.e.a.r. weapons on Canadian territory.

'Outsiders Shock Dief' Says Daily Sketch on Election

LONDON (CP) — The complexities of Canadian politics to British newspaper coverage of the Canadian general election that has brought in a minority government for the country.

The Daily Sketch says the Social Credit party and particularly Real Caouette, the movement's leader, are the big surprises.

In the many columns of type devoted to election reports, Caouette gets only a few lines for much discussion.

"Outsider Shocks Dief," says The Daily Sketch.

It says Caouette pulled off the big surprise of the election and brought the party back from the political dead. Caouette put Diefenbaker's 1958 sweep to power to 30 seats in the Commons.

The Daily Express stresses that he also made history. The prime minister and describes him now as a "lame duck."

"His future is in the hands of the right - wing Social Credit party.

"Only one man can find any key in the figures: Real Caouette, a fiery right-wing French-Canadian car dealer."

The leftwing Daily Mirror takes the line that "Dief is in office—but not in power."

"After a bitterly-fought election, Canada finds itself set for another period of political chaos —and possibly financial crisis."

A similar approach is used by The Daily Telegraph, a Conservative newspaper. Its correspondent says Canada "seems condemned to a few months of political and financial crisis after the inconclusive election result.

"Dief clings to power," is the seven-column headline on the front page of The Daily Express Mail, another Conservative publication.

Its reporter says the election result had plunged the country into the "worst political crisis since the war."

The pro-Liberal mirror hangs on grimly to office with not much more than a third of the popular vote," he wrote.

The Daily Herald, which supports the Labor party, says Canada will almost certainly go to the polls again either this fall or early next year.

The Financial Times reporter in Ottawa says that Nehru and says the Conservative government may not be able to hold power for more than a few months after Parliament meets.

MUST HIRE NEGRO

DETROIT (AP) — Northwest Airlines has been ordered to hire a Negro woman, now a clerk in the airline's Chicago office, as a stewardess, the Michigan Fair Employment Practices Commission ruled Tuesday. The FEPC found the airline guilty of discrimination in refusing to give a stewardess position to Marlene White; 27, formerly of Detroit, because she is Negro. The decision, which is final, orders the position in March, 1957.

Drastic Surgery Will Likely Be Outcome of Findings by Royal Inquiry on Services

By JACK BEST

OTTAWA (CP)—A team of problem - hunters has just finished taking a close public look at Canada's health services structure. From the mass of diagnostic evidence, one prescription can safely be anticipated: drastic surgery.

For the royal commission on health services, the process of determinant kind of surgery is just beginning.

The seven - member commission, under Saskatchewan Chief Justice Emmett Hall, went from coast to coast in its exhaustive inquiry into the state of the country's health apparatus.

It held regional hearings in every province, travelling 17,000 miles in phased journeys over a period of seven months. The final and most intensive sitting was in Toronto and lasted for four weeks.

Except for a few days of rebuttal hearings in the fall, the public inquiry is at an end.

PLENTY TO READ

However, the work of the commission — composed of an economist, an industrialist, a nurse, a dentist and two medical doctors along with the chairman —still is far from finished.

Before it can submit its findings to the government responsible a year or so from now— it will have to digest contents of 400 briefs and assess more than 3,000,000 words of oral testimony over 12,000 pages of official record.

Finally — and perhaps most important of all—it must give detailed attention to a huge volume of information being polled together by its own research staff and by experts commissioned to carry out special studies.

Altogether, the commission has 27 research projects going—some as comprehensive in their own fields as the studies by the commission itself in the general field of health care.

A major research inquiry covers the whole spectrum of mental illness and facilities to cope with it. It is under the supervision of Dr. G. S. MacKerracher, professor of psychiatry at the University of Saskatchewan.

MOST ACUTE PROBLEM

Strong recommendations on mental treatment are expected to come from the commission. Many consider it Canada's most acute health problem—by far.

Documented evidence was presented that half of all the occupied hospital beds in Canada are filled by mental patients.

One major recommendation might be that mental hospitals be brought under the federal-provincial hospital insurance plan.

The commission may also lend its weight to the growing movement for bringing mental institutions into close association with general hospitals, desegregating physical and mental illness and rehabilitation - small structures of about 300 beds for the huge rambling mental institutions of the past.

Medical education is the subject of another big research study, under direction of the University of Toronto's Dr. J. A. MacFarlane.

SIZE DOCTOR SHORTAGE

The problem of medical manpower cropped up numerous times. The Canadian Medical Association, in a document presented at preliminary hearings in Ottawa last October, estimated the ratio of physicians to Canada's population at 1 to 952 — a more favorable figure than we have ever enjoyed." However, this had been achieved only with the aid of heavy immigration of doctors during the 1950s.

"We are not producing enough doctors in Canada to keep pace with our rapidly expanding population," said the medical association.

"The supply is just adequate under current conditions of practice and almost certainly would be inadequate to staff new and demanding areas of health services."

Federal incentives to entice more young Canadians into the health professions — and to assist in the building of new facilities — may be recommended.

INSURANCE LIMITED

The issue that overshadowed all others debated before the commission was that of government - sponsored medical services insurance.

Basically, the question was whether Canada should have an all-out, tax-supported program under full government control or one in which government involvement is strictly limited.

The medical profession and business organizations argued that government should concern itself only with providing for those citizens unable to provide for themselves.

Organized labor — and most other groups representing large numbers of consumers plumped for a government - run scheme to cover everybody.

Opponents of the idea of a government - run program argued that it would place a staggering burden on the economy. One estimate—offered by the Canadian Manufacturers Association — was that the physician services component of such a scheme alone would cost $647,000,000 annually — "at a conservative estimate."

DISAGREE ON COST

The Canadian Labor Congress insisted that a single nonprofit program would require little if any new money — merely rechannelling funds already being expended through a variety of agencies — and would offer the "obvious advantages" of central planning.

How to resolve the conflicting opinions is a problem that will require all the commissioners' ingenuity.

Everyone seems agreed that a health-program would have to be administered by the provinces, with the federal government providing grants as under the hospital insurance plan, upon certain criteria being met.

Such an arrangement opens the possibility of leaving it largely up to the individual provinces to decide what kind of a plan they want.

Health problems that the commission found as much about as any other were rehabilitation and chronic illness. Facilities in both areas were said to be woefully inadequate.

With Canadians living longer—and with all the complications that old age brings — chronic disease has become a particularly pressing problem.

One avenue of solution is the fast - developing home care movement. Home care is often better for the patient and at the same time avoids cluttering up hospitals with long-term cases.

The main impediment to a comprehensive home care program is shortage of such personnel as nurses.

Water fluoridation is one of the areas in which federal action is to be recommended. Members of the commission were appalled by accounts of the uphill battle proponents of fluoridation said they have to wage against the anti-fluoridation campaign.

To encourage the first group who maintain that fluoridated drinking water can cut tooth decay by 60 per cent — the commission may come out with a strong endorsement of fluoridation. It may also urge federal help toward the purchase of fluoridation equipment.

THEY RE-GREW HAIR!
IN 12 MONTHS IN 3 MONTHS
Hair Specialist Here Thursday
Will Show Men and Women How to Save Hair and Prevent Baldness
OTTAWA, Ont. New home treatment methods for saving hair and improving its growth will be demonstrated in Belleville Thursday, June 21st at the Quinte Hotel.
Trichologist C. A. Tander will be in charge, representing the dynamic Roberts Hair and Scalp Specialists organization. He will personally examine hair-worried men and women from 2.00 to 9.00 p.m.
This new treatment is neither "snail order" nor "cure-all". It is adapted to the individual after a personal examination and progress is checked at regular intervals by a Roberts Specialist.
Who Can Be Helped?
Will the new Roberts treatment cure baldness? "No!" For we cannot help men and women who are slick-bald after years of gradual hair loss. But if you still have fuzz and your scalp is still creating hair, you can at least save and thicken what you have. Some conditions, such as "spot baldness" usually have complete coverage if caught in time!
Other conditions that usually bring on excessive hair-loss—dandruff, itching, over-oiliness or dryness, follicle clogged with sebum or seborrhea— can be corrected by the Roberts home treatment if caught in time.
"DON'T WAIT UNTIL IT'S TOO LATE"
Baldness won't wait for doubters to be convinced. You are going to keep right on losing hair 'til you're bald unless you get your scalp in healthy, hair-growing condition again.
Examine You Free
We want to make it clear that you incur absolutely no charge or obligation by coming in for an examination.
Your only obligation is to yourself. We do not accept cases that will not respond.
Guarantee Satisfaction
The Roberts Specialists will give you a written guarantee that you must be satisfied with in 30 days or it will cost you nothing.
For a free examination and discussion of your hair problems ask the desk clerk for Mr. Tander's room number. He does not make appointments, so come in at your convenience.
Examinations are given in private.

Gypsy Rose Lee Using Own Name in New Film

By BOB THOMAS

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — "My, maybe it's all right to show how things have changed in Hollywood," said Gypsy Rose Lee. "They used to say, 'Cover her up.' Now they say, 'Show us a little more leg, Gypsy.'"

When she first came to Hollywood in 1938, she couldn't even be called Gypsy Rose Lee in the screen credits. She had to go by her rightful name, Louise Hovick.

"The stigma, I guess," she explained, referring to her strip-tease career. The puritanical film industry refused to countenance it.

Now she's back with her own famous name in a tasty role for A Woman in July. And she's giving pointers to Joanne Woodward, who plays a stripper in the film.

"I guess the stigma has gone," Gypsy laughed. "Or she said.

AT THE BELLE — Doris Day is co-starred with Rock Hudson and Tony Randall in "Lover Come Back", rollicking romantic comedy in color, beginning an extended engagement today at the Belle Theatre.

Few Mourners at Passing Of Present TV Season

By CYNTHIA LOWRY

NEW YORK (AP)—The 1961-62 television season has, for the most part, come to a quiet end. As the returns crowd the home screens, there will be few mourners at its passing.

For a second year in a row, it has been a period rarely sparked by creativity, a period dominated by formula writing and production - like entertainment continuing very little that was fresh or novel.

The high points of the season, curiously enough, were the news shows—the cameras on the launching of manned rockets into space, a tour of the White House, an investigation of the operation of a book-making establishment.

It was a time when the industry's most critical problem was strong criticism by congressional subcommittees, the Federal Communications Commission and articulate critics—generously attempted to curb scenes of violence. This usually took the form of shortening fight scenes, suggesting, rather than showing, murders and covering corpses with sheets.

Sophia Loren has been nailed for a rare guest - appearance April Monday on NBC's Tonight Show when Jerry Lewis takes over for a week. The Italian star will be in New York for the premier of her latest film.

The First Day, CBS, 10-11 EDT—Original television play starring Margaret Leighton, Ralph Bellamy and Mildred Dunnock.

Knudson Out Of 'Open'

WINDSOR, Ont. (CP) — The Ontario open golf championship opens here Thursday, minus defending champion George Knudson.

Knudson, the ex-Winnipeger now playing out of Toronto, has said he will be unable to compete because of other commitments. He won the last two Ontario Opens with record-breaking 275 scores.

Nine amateurs will be in the field of 120 that tees off in the 72-hole event at the plush Beach Grove course in suburban St. Clair Beach.

Amateur favorites include: Mick Wadsack, a Windsor native now playing out of Toronto, who has won the Ontario Open three times; Gerry Cowan of Kitchener, the current Canadian champion; and Bill and Jerry Morland of North Bay.

The field of 120 will play at least 36 holes. It will be cut to the low 60 and ties for Saturday's final 36 holes.

The Open serves as one of the qualifying tests for Ontario's Willingdon Cup team. The low 20 and ties in the first round will move on to the final Willingdon Cup test along with a similar number from the qualifying round of the Ontario Amateur.

Royalty Watches Royal Ascot

ASCOT, England (AP)—Queen Elizabeth and a fashionable crowd watched a thrilling finish in the St. Jame's Palace Stakes—one of the big races of the first day of the Royal Ascot meeting.

Harry Joel's Court Sentence edged out the Duke of Norfolk's Sovereign Lord by a half-length to win the one-mile race and the first prize of £3,425 Tuesday. Three-quarters of a length separated Sovereign Lord and Cyrus, the 9-to-4 favorite, who was third.

Court Sentence started at odds of 100 to 8 and Sovereign Lord at 100 to 8.

With the Queen in the royal enclosure were Prince Philip, Princess Margaret and her husband, the Earl of Snowdon, and Queen Mother Elizabeth.

The second-richest race of the day, the Ascot Stakes, was won by Mrs. L. Carver's Trelawny. Champion jockey Scobie Breasley rode him in four lengths ahead of Fortress, with Dispersal another three lengths behind in third place. Trelawny's win in the 2½-mile race brought his owner a prize of —2,737.

Cards 'Will Retaliate'

Says Drysdale Is 'Dirty'

LOS ANGELES (AP)—Manager Johnny Keane of St. Louis Cardinals, angered on two counts by the conduct of Don Drysdale, accuses the controversial Los Angeles Dodger pitcher of dirty play and promises: "We'll retaliate any time we can."

Drysdale, who slid hard into second baseman Julian Javier Tuesday night and later brushed him back with a high, inside pitch, said: "If Keane wants to retaliate, I'll be around all season."

Drysdale, who seems to become involved in at least one major controversy a season, picked up his 11th win of the 1962 National League season Tuesday night at the league-leading Dodgers beat the Cards 3-2.

Drysdale singled in the sixth inning and ran into second base at full tilt when Maury Wills hit a ground toward shortstop. Drysdale, trying to break up a double play, collided with Javier and bowled the slender second baseman over. Javier suffered a leg bruise.

As far as the game was concerned, the play was meaningless. Wills' grounder went foul and Drysdale had to go back to first base.

Goof Costs Mutuel Clerk $6,000 Loss

NEW YORK (AP)—A veteran Belmont Park clerk, who by mistake punched out 120 tickets at $50 each on the No. 1 horse when he had been asked for No. 3, is paying the blues. The $6,000 loss is his.

The clerk, who was not identified, punched No. 1, the three-ply entry of trainer Jim Fitzsimmons, instead of No. 3, Mrs. Ethel D. Jacobs's unbeaten two-year-old filly Affectionately.

The bettor had intended to plunge on Affectionately, regarded as a sure thing, who went off at odds of 1-20-6 with her sixth race and paid $2.20 for $2 in the win-only betting at race Monday. This meant a $900 return on a $6,000 bet.

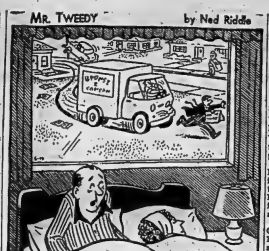
Once the ticket was punched and registered on the odds board, there was nothing to do but punch out $6,000 on the correct horse when the bettor settled the error and complained.

Had one of the three Fitzsimmons fillies won, the clerk would have received $28,800 for his voluntary $6,000 wager.

Lou Walger,' mutuels manager at all New York Racing Association tracks who confirmed the error, said the seller admitted the mistake—the largest in Walger's memory on a New York track.

Larks Drop Star Rookie

MONTREAL (CP) — Punter Gino Berretta, who learned to kick as a soccer player, will not attend Montreal Alouettes' two-week summer training camp at nearby Joliette.



The announcement Tuesday night indicates that Berretta, the only player to make the Alouettes from last year's camp, has been dropped from the Canadian Football League club. He was named Rookie of the Year in the Big Four League last season.

Richmond Signs Art Ditmar

RICHMOND, Va. (AP)—Richmond Virginians of the International League have signed Art Ditmar, 32, former New York Yankees and Kansas City Athletics pitcher, The Times-Dispatch says.

The newspaper said the Yankees, parent club of the Virginians, conducted the negotiations through which Ditmar signed. Ditmar to a contract and that if he shows good form "he'll win a return to the Yankees."

Ditmar was traded to Kansas City by the Yankees in June, 1961. He had a 3-8 record last season and was released by Kansas City last month.

Ditmar, who worked out recently with New York Mets, has had shoulder trouble.

White Sox Suggest

Three-Day Trade Session

CHICAGO (AP)—A three-day, inter-major league trading period in June, when talent problems are pressing, is proposed by Ed Short, general manager of Chicago White Sox.

Short's proposal was made Tuesday in a letter sent to commissioner Ford Frick and the American and National League presidents, Joe Cronin and Warren Giles.

Short suggested a 72 - hour span of interleague trading from midnight June 12 until midnight June 15.

At present, major league trading within one league, with waivers required to deal with a club in the opposite league, is permitted until June 15.

Unrestricted interleague trading now is allowed only from Nov. 30 until Dec. 15.

Short commented in his letter:

"At this stage of the pennant race, all clubs are extremely concerned about their specific needs for the balance of the season and, by opening interleague trading at this time, the clubs would be able to acquire the balance they feel they need to make the remainder of the race in both leagues more competitive."

In New York, Frick said the proposal would be considered at the annual league meetings next December.

RARE, MEDIUM, WELL-DONE

By Geo. H. Carver, Sports Editor

"To settle an argument—and a wager—" writes the customer, "what is the correct full name of "Dizzy" Dean, the cotton-pickin' sportcaster?"

"Dear Customer:—If you wagered that Dizzy's correct name is Jerome Herman Dean—you lose the double-bar money. If you bet his correct name is Jay Hanna Dean, you pick up the marbles and go to the head of the class."

The unbibbled grape-fruit rancher, prankster and former baseball pitching star, master of mayhem of the King's English, Mr. Dean turned to baseball commentating for the New York Yankees back in 1956. He is now in his eighth season as a play-by-play announcer for the "Game of the Week."

They inserted some off-beat comedy into Dizzy's mechanical somewhere along the line, and occasionally you hear him break in into an off-key chorus of the "Wabash Cannonball" during a broadcast.

When Dizzy was born in Lucas, Arkansas, the mountaineers just marked it down as the arrival of a new hillbilly. They didn't know they had a stateside sports celebrity thrust into their midst that day back in 1911.

They dubbed him "Jay Hanna." Later, much later, "Dizzy" with a twist of wry humor gave three different sets of biographical data the same day, including a phony set of given names of Jerome Herman and three birth dates in three different states.

Leaving school at 10, Dizzy joined his father and older brother as an itinerant cotton-picker earning 50 cents a day. He worked at this for six years when he joined the army.

In the army he discovered he had a throwing arm. He practiced and developed a terrific fast ball. He pitched for his regiment at Fort Houston, Texas.

A San Antonio semi-pro club grabbed Dean's services and the cotton-pickin' pitcher was on his way. He won 16 games in 1928 when a St. Louis Cardinal scout spotted him. He struck out balls in the minors for two years and was promoted to the Cardinals' varsity squad in 1932.

He smoked that fast one past National League batters, winning 18 and losing 15 in his freshman year, but leading the league in strikeouts, innings pitched and shutouts. He set a league record by whiffing 17 batters during a game in 1933.

Meanwhile down in the Arkansas mountains, the elder Deans had produced another hillbilly harrier. His name was Paul and his mental quirks and physical stunts promptly earned him the nickname "Daffy."

Paul threw a ball in the same tempo he talked and it wasn't long before he teamed up with brother "Dizzy" on the Cardinals' mound roster.

Every baseball buff knows "Me and Paul" after "Daffy" joined the Cardinals in 1934, pitched 49 victories between them—26 by "Dizzy," who by the way is the last major league hurler to have won 30 games in a single season.

And to top it off "Dizzy and Daffy" climaxed the season with the Gashouse Gang by each winning two world series games as the Cardinals defeated the Detroit Tigers in seven tilts.

"Ole Diz" stopped a blistering line drive with his ankle during the 1937 all-star game, which ended his playing days. He retired from active play in 1941 with a lifetime record of 158 victories and 83 losses for a .644 percentage. His career was filmed in the motion picture "Pride of St. Louis" and he was voted a Hall of Fame member in 1953.

His "aind into third"; "hat brangs up Mantle" and "go back to their respectable bases" are epics of Dean baseball prattle.

Twins Crowd Top Spot

By JIM HACKLEMAN
Associated Press Sports Writer

Could be Los Angeles Angels have taken New York Yankees' place in more ways than one.

The ever - surging Angels took over third place from the Yankees in the ever-surprising American League race Tuesday night and they did it by beating the Yanks' once - private pastimes — Kansas City Athletics. Their 7-4 decision was the Angels' sixth straight victory over the Athletics and their ninth in 12 meetings this year.

Meanwhile, Boston Red Sox knocked off Cleveland's front-running Indians 4-3 Minnesota Twins moved up by rapping Chicago White Sox 5-4, Baltimore Orioles won their fifth in a row and beat the Yanks their fifth successive defeat, 3-1, and Frank Lary recorded his first victory in more than two months with a neat six-hitter as Detroit Tigers blanked Washington Senators 5-0.

The results left Cleveland a bare half game ahead of the Twins, Los Angeles 2½ back in third, and the Yankees fourth, three games behind the Indians.

The Angels socked four homers and three doubles and collected six walks against four Kansas City pitchers but had to struggle to beat the Athletics, who've been doing pretty well themselves—against everyone except the West clubs.

PITCHER CONNECTS

Angel starter Ken McBride homered off loser John Wyatt in the third and Leon Wagner raised his league leading total to 19 when he connected in the fifth. The other homers came from Felix Torres and Ed Thomas.

But the Athletics made a run for it. McBride was chased in the seventh when George Alusik hit a pinch homer, Jerry Lumpe tripled and Manny Jimenez singled. In the last of the ninth, Lumpe, Jimenez and Norm Siebern tagged reliever Art Fowler for single-producing a run—before Ed Charles bounced into a game - ending double play.

The Orioles, shut out the last four times Chuck Estrada started, finally gave the hard-throwing right-hander enough runs to win against the Yankees. Brooks Robinson paced Baltimore with a tie-breaking homer against Ralph Terry in the sixth inning and a run - scoring single in the eighth.

Harmon Killebrew launched Minnesota's assault on the White Sox when he cracked his 15th homer with one on in the first off Juan Pizarro. Southpaw Jim Kaat, Vic Power and Bob Allison homered in a five-run fifth inning.

Phil Ortega got the cooled off the Indians, who had won four in a row and nine of 12, pitching a four-hitter. The Boston right - hander had a shutout going until the eighth, when a walk and Gene Green's pinch homer gave Cleveland its two runs.

The Red Sox collected all 10 of their hits and three of their runs against Ruben Gomez, the ex - National Leaguer making his first start in the majors since 1960. Frank Malzone hit a homer for Boston.

Larry posted his second victory of the season after eight futile tries and won for the first time since April 13 with his shutout over Washington. The 25-game winner of last year, hampered by a sore shoulder recently and now 3-4, limited the Senators to six singles. Another Tiger who has been in a long slump, 1961 batting champion Norm Cash, Cash, drove across two runs with his 11th homer and a single. The loss went to Washington starter Claude Osteen.

Leafs Edge Suns 2-1, Wings Win

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

If Rochester Red Wings' pitching staff continues at the rate of effectiveness it has showed in the last-three games, they may go places in the International League.

The Wings have been struggling along in fourth place and looky were still nine games off the pace, but Manager Cookie King has reason to look for happier days ahead.

His hurlers have allowed just two runs and 12 hits in three games since losing the opener of a doubleheader to Richmond Virginians last Sunday. Herb Mofford shut out the Vs 7-0 Tuesday night, permitting them just four singles while Don Bowens, Bobby Saverine, Pete Ward and Danny Kravitz hit homers.

In other action Tuesday night, Syracuse Chiefs won a doubleheader from Columbus Jets 3-2 and 6-1; Toronto Maple Leafs downed Jacksonville Suns 2-1 and Buffalo Bisons outlasted the Atlanta Crackers, 7-4, in 10 innings.

The Irwin Syracuse victory cabbed the Chiefs to break out of a five-game losing streak, and pulled them out of the cellar a half-game ahead of the Virginians.

Bud Zipfel's home run broke a 2-2 tie in the sixth inning of the first game, Bob Veale was the victim in the nightcap, although he gave up only four hits in the five innings he worked. But he walked seven and that proved his downfall.

Jacksonville pitcher Joe Schaffernoth was only one out from a four-hit shutout when the walls came tumbling down. Leo Gabellson opened the Leafs' ninth with a single, Lou Johnson sacrificed him to second, Neil Chrisley struck out and Schaffernoth walked Rocky Nelson intentionally.

Tim Thompson then singled, Gabellson scored, but Lou Jackson, running for Nelson, looked like an easy out trying to get all the way home. Catcher Harry Chiti grabbed the relay, and tagged Jackson but the ball popped out of his hand and that was the game.

Frank Herrera blasted a three-run homer in the 10th inning to enable the Bisons to whip the Crackers, Joe Lonnett and Lee Ellis also homered for the Bisons.

NHL Clubs To The Rescue

EPL May Get New Lease On Life

By STUART LAKE

OTTAWA (CP) — General managers from five National Hockey League clubs have taken steps to prevent the Eastern Professional Hockey League folding.

In a closed five-hour meeting with league officials Tuesday, the general managers of Boston, Chicago, Detroit, New York and Montreal approved a plan whereby losses suffered by any of the six EPHL clubs would be divided among the sponsoring NHL teams.

The plan will go into effect if it finds favor with the NHL owners. It came about after New York earlier had threatened to withdraw its support from Kitchener and Chicago from Sault Ste. Marie because of heavy financial losses.

The latest other four franchises are in good condition. Hull-Ottawa, backed by Montreal, and Kingston, by Boston, reported profits last season. Detroit is reported satisfied with operations in Sudbury and the North Bay club is backed by the NHL itself.

FUTURE BRIGHTER

EPHL president John Urie said the future now "looks much brighter" for the league which began operations in the season of 1959-60.

The threatened withdrawal of financial support by the Rangers and Hawks two weeks ago clouded the league's future. League officials predicted then the loop would have to disband.

New York general manager Muzz Patrick told reporters before Tuesday's meeting that his club dropped $100,000 in Kitchener during the last two seasons.

"Concessions will have to be made if Rangers are to continue putting money into the league," he said.

If the loss-sharing is approved by the owners, Patrick said New York would continue supporting a team either in Kitchener or in another city.

Urie said the meeting had talked of relocating some of the teams but that nothing definite was decided. He said it is possible that all six teams will play next season in the same cities as last year.

A strong supporter of the share-the-losses plan and the EPHL itself is NHL president Clarence Campbell who attended the meeting.

He praised the EPHL as a valuable training ground for young hockey players and said this is the most important function of the league. It wasn't fair that one or two teams should suffer huge losses in the league while the other clubs made a profit.

"All the NHL teams can draw players from the EPHL and all should help to finance it," he said.

NHL teams sponsoring EPHL clubs had the advantage of controlling and directing the teams, a circumstance not found in the other professional teams, he said.

Drysdale Sparking Dodgers Drive

By BOB GREEN
Associated Press Sports Writer

If Don Drysdale could just control his temper, the pundits have been saying for the last six years, there's just no telling what he might do, like get everything, the experts said; size, stamina, speed.

And the Los Angeles Dodgers pitcher, calm and placid so far this season, is finally making the experts look good.

With a firm rein on the fiery temper that has been one of the chief reasons he's failed to make the magic 30 wins in six previous seasons, the tall right-hander is off to his best start and is one of the prime movers in the Dodgers' drive to the top of the National League.

He notched his 11th victory of the season Tuesday night as the Dodgers moved to a 2½-game advantage over the faltering San Francisco Giants. Last season he didn't get No. 11 until Sept. 4.

His steady nine - hitter and his eighth complete game, along with some lusty hitting by Frank Howard, helped the Dodgers to a 3-2 victory over St. Louis Cardinals while San Francisco was taking a 6-4 drubbing at the hands of the slumping Houston Colts.

REDLEGS MOVE UP

In other National League games, Cincinnati Reds took over third from Pittsburgh by edging the Pirates 2-1, Chicago Cubs came from behind to beat Philadelphia Phillies 8-3 and New York Mets broke a seven-game losing string, 6-5, against Milwaukee Braves.

Howard's 25th homer of the season got the Dodgers off to a 2-0 lead in the first and he scored the winner on a misplayed grounder in the seventh.

Curt Flood homered for the Cardinals, who have now lost four straight.

FARRELL STOPS GIANTS

Houston right - hander Dick Farrell choked off a Giant rally in the ninth as the Colts won their fifth in six starts and knocked San Francisco another game off the pace. The Colts belted Billy O'Dell (7-6) for three runs in the first and were never headed. Hal Smith homered for the winners in the sixth and drove in another with a single.

Jerry Lynch's single, his third of the game, drove in Don Blasingame with the run that broke a 1-1 tie and pulled Cincinnati into a third place tie with the Pirates. It was the Reds' ninth victory in seven games with Pittsburgh.

The Cubs collected their fifth straight victory to climb back against the Phillies. Philadelphia had a 3-0 lead going into the ninth, but the Cubs jammed in six runs against five Philadelphia pitchers.

Roger Craig's (4-6) seven-hitter and home runs by Gene Woodling and Joe Christopher were the big items in the Mets victory over Milwaukee.

Pointers Edge Lightfoots

The Point Anne Cementmen overcame 3-0 and 4-3 deficits in the late innings to shade Lightfoot Construction 6-5 on the Point Anne diamond last night.

Lightfoots scored twice in the second frame and added single-tons in the fifth, sixth, and seventh frames. The Cementmen exploded for three runs in the fifth to tie it 3-3 and tallied another trio in the sixth to register the win.

Dave Fenton hurled the victory, allowing nine hits, striking out half a dozen, and walking one.

Don Smith started for the Lightfoots with Percy Long taking over in the sixth. They gave up seven hits while fanning five and walking four.

Ken Norwood paced the Oz-Pointers with a double and two singles. Gordie Green had a double while singles went to Jim Sheridan, Ronnie Hall and Gary Hall.

Don Dolan poked three singles for Lightfoots while Tom Lynch had two. Other base hits were shared by Rusty Garvin, Doug Morgan, Sam McKenna and Jack Caddick, the latter getting a double.

HAMPERED BY RAIN

BRADFORD, England (Reuters)—Showers, missed catches and the lack of a third-place bowler cost the touring Pakistan cricket team a fine chance of beating Yorkshire Tuesday—a win that would have been a tonic just before the second Test, beginning Thursday, after recent defeats. Final scores were Yorkshire 246 and 137; Pakistan 285 and 26 for no wicket. Both got the day's play by dint of about two hours.

Flyers Shade Bobcats.

By GARRY ALEXANDER
(Staff Sportswriter)

Roger Drake snapped a 4-4 deadlock with a two-run single in the top of the ninth inning last night to give the RCAF Flyers a hard-fought 6-4 victory over the Bobcats at the Fairgrounds.

The same two clubs go back at it in Trenton Bay Shore Park tonight.

Bobcats rallied twice, tying the score 2-2 in the fourth and 4-4 in the eighth in one of the better games at the park this season.

A walk with one out opened the door for the Flyers' deciding rally. Corscadden singled to centre and an error put the Corscadden on second and third. Drake delivered a solid single scoring both runners for the 6-4 win.

The 'Cats got a leadoff single by Roger Murray in the bottom of the ninth but the next three batters went down in order.

RCAF scored their first two runs in the initial frame with Corscadden and Miller playing major roles. Corscadden singled and scored on Drake's base knock. Miller doubled and he scored.

Bobcats got one in the second on two errors and as many passed balls. Brown's bunt single and a Flyer error tied it in the fourth but RCAF jumped in front in the sixth. An error and a walk got two men on and Taylor's single scored both.

"Shiner" Murray homered in the bottom of the sixth for the Bobcats' first run. Two men on base club tied it when Soule and Bolton led off with a double and scored after two were out on Brown's double.

Clipper Batushkiak reeled off his second victory in a row on the Bobcats' fashionable six-hitter. He nipped seven on third strikes and walked only one batter.

Newcomer Roger Cote toed the rubber for the Bobcats, giving up 11 hits over the route. A right-hander, with good control, Cote looked like a welcome addition to the slim Belleville pitching staff. He fanned one and walked three.

"Corky" Corscadden packed three singles to lead the RCAF attack. Billy Mitts had a double and single and Roger Drake his two key singles. Les Mowatt, Ron Taylor, "Shy" McDonald and Mike Batushkiak had the other safeties.

"Wiener" Brown with a double and single, and Frank "Shiner" Murray with his first bagger, topped the Bobcats. Doug Soule, Doug Murray and Bobby St. Louis contributed singles.

The losers kept the game tight in the early innings by coming up with sparkling double plays in the fourth and fifth innings.

League Commissioner Cliff Belch has called a meeting of all team managers at the Fairgrounds at Belleville tonight at seven o'clock prior to the Bobcats-Bolling game.

RCAF FLYERS — Corscadden 2b, Drake 1lb, Alexander ss, Mitts cf, Mowatt lf, Taylor 3b, McDonald rf, Mann c, Batushkiak p.

Trudeaus Shade Horlocks 2-1

Trudeau Motors used an unearned run in the bottom of the sixth inning to shade Woodbine Horlocks 2-1 at the CNRA Park last night.

The victory lightened Trudeau's grip on first place in the City Commercial Softball League.

Trudeaus took a 1-0 lead in the opening frame and the Juvenilles tied it in the second. Two of the losers' three errors in the sixth broke up a tight pitchers' duel and gave Trudeaus the decision.

Junior Day hurled three-hit ball to chalk up the pitching victory. He struck out five and did not issue a base on balls. His mates played errorless ball.

Bester Boyle talked for the losers, allowing five hits, striking out one and walking one.

Jack "Deacon" Whiting poled a double and single while Bobby Wannamaker hit two singles for Trudeau Motors. Donaldson had the other safety.

All three Woods-Horlock hits were doubles, collected by Maloney, Hall and Boyle.

Kenmors At Cannifton Tonight!

Belleville Kenmors senior baseball squad faces a tough on-the-road schedule over the coming weekend.

On Saturday night they trek to Peterborough to take on the Littlock Pannings in a night game and on Sunday they visit Kingston where they clash with the "Perlon" gang.

The Kingston game could decide the holder of the Lakeshore senior division's top spot. At the moment the Kenmors and Kingston share the rung with three victories and a single setback.

Kingston takes on Port Hope in the lakeshore on Saturday night and has bat-bight victories by both clubs won't affect the status quo.

Meanwhile Kenmore Coach Sid Yorke has been working the club hard and tossing in exhibition games whenever possible. They defeated Canniton 7-0 last Sunday and go back to Canniton tonight for another game prep tilt for the forthcoming weekend battles.

The game in Canniton tonight gets under way at 6.30. Forster will likely work out his top three hurlers.

HASS SIGN BLAKE

MONTREAL (CP)—Montreal Canadiens have signed coach Hector (Toe) Blake for the coming year. No terms were announced.

Blake, a hard - driving left-winger, led his mates Maurice Richard and Elmer Lach has guided the National Hockey League club to six league titles and five Stanley Cup championships since becoming coach in 1955.

Tuesday's announcement of Blake's contract ends speculation that the fiery Blake, whose club finished first in league play but dropped the Stanley Cup semi-finals last season, would not be returning as coach.

"Flaming Page" A Threat

'Cicada' Shoots For Oaks

By JOHN CHANDLER

NEW YORK (AP) — Cicada, the tough bombay filly who could probably beat most three-year-old colts, shoots for $100,000 Saturday in the Coaching Club American Oaks at Belmont Park.

Flaming Page defeated Cicada's top colts in the 1¼-mile Aqueduct, and they trounced her in the Cicada, bay daughter of Hyan G. - Satsuma from C. T. Chenery's Meadow Stable whipped King Ranch's Tamaskan's top colts in the 1¼-mile Arc Record Stakes at Keeneland, and they trounced Harry Ryan's Firm Polley in the Mother Goose Stakes at Belmont three weeks ago. The Cicada triple finale, may be her hardest test. No filly has won all three.

Firm Policy and Tamaroma, along with the Wheatley Stable's Batter Up and Ogden Phipps' Runaway, an entry trained by Sonny Jim Fitzsimmons, are expected to start along with Cox Brady's Upswept and C. V. Whitney's Jazz Queen.

Horatio Luro, trainer of Flaming Page, admitted his charge had a tough race in the Plate Saturday.

"But she is a filly with a strong constitution," he said. "I think she'll be up to the race this Saturday. Luro trained Kentucky Derby winner Decidedly.

Astrological Forecast

For June 21

By SYDNEY OMARR

Aries (Mar. 21 to Apr. 19): If you try to evade responsibility today you may actually be inviting trouble. Rest, to realize that one close to you is your responsibility. Be understanding.

Taurus (Apr. 20 to May 20): If you feel "weighed down" with burdens, try starting new slate. Shake off Taurus "horns" and charge! Make your own path and let belittlers get out of the way.

Gemini (May 21 to June 21): Day when your ideas emphasized, when you put them to work. Excellent for creative activity. Take notes. Apply experience to present problems, and show loved one you care.

Cancer (June 22 to July 21): Trying to convince yourself that a situation is what you want it to be is a cruel form of self-deception. Face facts today, especially about finances. Tonight, stay close to home.

Leo (July 22 to Aug. 21): Today, wise to slow down temporarily to take stock. Tonight would be good time for stepping out in style. Remain alert, but do more listening than talking.

Virgo (Aug. 22 to Sept. 22): For you, this period symbolizes end of vacation or play. Solar chart indicates that ambition, responsibilities shine in bright focus. Don't run away from trouble, but see it as sporting challenge.

Libra (Sept. 23 to Oct. 22): Frivolous action now could create costly situation. Better take road of caution. Avoid one who constantly blickers. Excellent evening for reading, research, double checking facts.

Scorpio (Oct. 23 to Nov. 22): Strength of will essential. Remain determined to finish projects. Others may try to talk you there are easier ways. Perhaps. But your way is for you. Stick to ideals!

Sagittarius (Nov. 22 to Dec. 21): Recognition could come today, either from family and friends, or in larger, worldlier sense. Accept honors graciously. Arrogance hampers future progress.

Capricorn (Dec. 22 to Jan. 20): Study details carefully. There could be "fly in ointment." By being well-prepared, you could achieve a great deal of personal and professional sense.

Aquarius (Jan. 21 to Feb. 19): An idea presented by member of opposite sex carries much merit. At first you may be skeptical. But keep mind open. Cycle remains high. You could "cash in" on the unusual.

Pisces (Feb. 20 to Mar. 20): Be considerate of friend who is down on his luck. A generous attitude today could mean much to your future. Practice Golden Rule. Ignore petty gossip.

If today is your birthday . . . your personality often is so sparkling that you attract "moths," just as would a bright light. Learn to distinguish between what is superficial, and what is lasting, and the future will be much brighter.

General Tendencies: Pressure builds to point where world figures is called upon to state his views. Could be major surprise in store. Look for persons born in February, May and June to make headlines. Special word to Aquarian: Be inventive, willing to take path which is not worn. Create new "highways."

U.S. Views of Election

'No Cause for Joy' Seen In Canadian Voting Results

NEW YORK (CP)—The New York Times says there is "no cause for joy" in the United States over the results of Canada's general election Monday.

There will almost certainly have to be another election as soon as possible," The Times says.

The morning newspaper, which continues to play the story on Page 1 in its Wednesday editions, says in an editorial that it would have made little difference to Americans whether the Conservative party or the Liberal party was victorious.

"But for the Social Credit party to gain the balance of power was a "stunning surprise." The lack of a majority government gives rise to dismay, The Times says,

"It can be taken for granted that most Canadians are unhappy with the results of the election, and if they are unhappy we in the United States must also be deeply concerned."

'NO CAUSE FOR JOY'

"The links between our two countries are close and even vital. . . . With neither (the Conservative or Liberals) winning and Canada in the midst of a critical business and fiscal situation, there is no cause for joy."

The Times devotes its daily Man in the News column today to Real Chocotte, deputy leader of the Social Credit party, calling him the "real hero" responsible for Social Credit's 26 seats in Quebec.

The New York Mirror says U.S.-Canada relations "are likely to continue to deteriorate" because of the inconclusive election.

The Mirror, a morning tabloid, says in its lead editorial that U.S.-Canada relations went downhill under Prime Minister John Diefenbaker for the first time in more than a century.

"Canada, under Diefenbaker, intensified a senseless anti-U.S. policy which must have annoyed many substantial Canadians of his own party," the paper says.

It adds that "had Lester Pearson put up a less intellectual campaign, one closer to the hearts of the Canadian people, he undoubtedly would have won the day."

UNDER HANDICAPS

The Herald Tribune comments in an editorial that Diefenbaker will be able to maintain power but "he is going to be under severe handicaps in tackling major, and even some minor, issues."

The Herald Tribune, unlike The Mirror, complimented Pearson on his campaign, saying he has "acquired considerable vigor as a political campaigner, and doubtless this was in part responsible for his party's gains."

The Mirror, describing Pearson as an "internationalist (who) played footsie with the Reds" when he was external affairs minister, says the Canadian Liberal leader "would do well with the Kennedy administration, in which he has many friends."

But the paper says the voting showed Canadians lack confidence in both Diefenbaker and Pearson.

"Jest a Second"

"And if any person can show just cause why they should not be joined together . . . !"

$652.50 Given To Assist in Church Bldg.

MELROSE — Last Sunday morning, a delegation from the Empey Hill, Selby circuit attended the church service at Melrose and expressed their concern for a neighboring congregation in its efforts to build its church which had been destroyed by fire on January 18, 1962, by contributing to Melrose United Church Building Fund the sum of $452.50. The presentation was made by Mr. Stanley Lee of Selby, and received by Jack Sherman, chairman of the finance committee, who on behalf of Melrose congregation expressed sincere thanks for the generous donation.

Previous to this, these same churches had, on behalf of their Y.P. and A.O.T.S., contributed $260. Empey Hill had also given the proceeds from a variety concert amounting to $50.

Six hundred and fifty-two dollars and fifty cents, total amount contributed jointly by Empey Hill and Selby, will be a wonderful help in replacing Melrose Church and the minister, Mr. Steven and this congregation are exceedingly grateful for the friendly spirit and tangible way these two congregations have aided in their time of need.

Sergeant Had Fortune Buried In Glass Jars

John F. Cronin Admits Deal With Gamblers

TORONTO (CP)—A sergeant of the anti-gambling squad had around $50,000 buried in glass jars on a farm when he retired from the Ontario Provincial Police in 1954, the royal commission on crime was told Wednesday.

John F. Cronin, 51, former head of the gambling detail and now a prosperous motel owner at Kingston, told the commission he had $20,000 salted down beneath his father's implement shed when he joined the OPP in 1941 and subsequently tucked away the bulk of his earnings while he lived off his working wife's pay.

But he did admit to joining them in one unsuccessful business venture — peddling an extract of horseradish — called Penberry's Ointment—after he quit the force, and getting back $25,000 cash for a half interest in the mould.

DENIES SUGGESTION

He denied a suggestion by Commission counsel Roland F. Wilson that others were being transferred off the gambling squad.

Wilson had referred to former squad member — restaurant-owner Larry Wood of Port Hope—that he could not—as he would be in a position to get information for The Syndicate on activities of the branch.

He denied, too, Mr. Wilson's suggestion that after a visit to the Cronin home by another squad member in 1954, he had directed that officer homeward along a route where he would be picked up by McDermott.

The former sergeant led the OPP contingent which, when the commission adjourned today until Tuesday, will probably question some unidentified persons who may testify later.

On Friday, lawyers appearing before the commission will be in Ottawa for ad application on behalf of Feeley before the Supreme Court of Canada for leave to appeal an order of the Ontario Court of Appeal that he can be compelled to give self-incriminating evidence at the inquiry.

DOESN'T FIND OUT

In questioning Cronin—appearing clutching a cigarette and wearing a bright red-and-blue striped tie—the commission never did find out just how much he accumulated in the parafin-sealed jars of his dow-dead father's farm near Port Hope.

The former officer, who said he visited the jars "quite frequently "to make deposits, was able to unearth $25,000 of the loot.

PEARSON WANTS EARLY CALLING OF PARLIAMENT

Urges Disclosure Of Dollar Facts

OTTAWA (CP)—Prime Minister Diefenbaker should submit his minority government to a parliamentary vote of confidence at the earliest date possible, Liberal Leader Pearson told a press conference Wednesday.

Also urged was full and immediate disclosure of the facts about a "developing emergency" in connection with the flight of capital from Canada and the pressure on the Canadian dollar."

The Liberal party is ready for an election—"the machine is still going"—Mr. Pearson said, but he declined to speculate about the date of the next vote or whether the Liberals would attempt to force one.

He spoke to reporters in his Centre Block office on Parliament Hill after meeting with colleagues and advisers. He said more meetings might be held next week.

Also next week he hopes to get away for some fishing after relaxing this weekend.

HASN'T CONSULTED

Mr. Pearson said he has had no consultation with the leader of any other party and he has no plans for such consultation.

He spoke as the head of a party with 97 seats in the Commons compared with 118 Conservatives, 30 Social Crediters and 19 New Democrats. If the new changes could yet defeign from recounts and the services vote.

Mr. Pearson said the Liberals couldn't force Mr. Diefenbaker to call Parliament until the money supply granted the government by the last Parliament runs out Sept. 30. But the situation demanded parliamentary action as soon as possible.

His initial statement said:

"There is a developing emergency in connection with the flight of capital from Canada and the pressure on the Canadian dollar. The country should be informed fully and immediately of the facts."

He said Parliament should consider without delay the measures to deal with a situation which has made and may be business and finance information "very frightened."

However, Mr. Pearson cautioned: "Canada remains a strong country and there is no reason for alarm if the right action is taken."

CANNOT SAY

Some other views he expressed in answer to questions:

He could not say what the Liberal party would do prior to a session of Parliament being convened.

He would not say whether the throne speech debate at the start of the session—the traditional occasion for an opposition motion of non-confidence in the government—might be set aside this time. That would depend on the nature of any emergency.

He said he supposes that an election could be expedited if necessary by using the electoral lists for the last one. This would require parliamentary action but it could be arranged through all-party discussion, and it "sound awfully sensible right now." The campaign period of eight weeks might also be shortened.

Police Tighten Watch on Truck Terminals In Wake of Renewed Strike Lawlessness

TORONTO (CP) — Provincial police throughout southwestern Ontario stepped up patrolling of transport terminals today in the wake of renewed lawlessness in Ontario's province-wide trucking strike.

A police spokesman at London said today all available cruisers were either being posted at or near the terminals, or providing escorts where requested.

Latest scene of violence is the strike by five locals of the International Brotherhood of Teamsters (Ind.) was Stratford, where the rear wheels of a trailer unit were set afire. Firemen found gasoline cans nearby.

The trailer was owned by Mc-Nally Freightways, one of more than 60 firms being struck by the independent interim injunction prohibiting pickets at the Uxbridge terminal, the St. Marys Cement Company, and Hind and Dauch Limited in St. Mary's.

Hutton solicitor O. W. Durdin said conviction was granted in Middlesex county court.

The claim results from incidents the company says took place at three sites. The defendants are members of Local 141, London; Local 880, Windsor, and Local 879.

Hutton recently signed an interim contract with the London local on the basis of a conciliation board report rejected by Teamster negotiators. The contract was later repudiated by the parent Teamster body.

Company claims pickets have damaged Hutton property in St. Marys, Peterborough and Preston.

The injunction is valid until June 28. The company plans to apply to the Supreme Court of Ontario to have a further order restraining pickets until the damage action becomes final.

Earlier Wednesday, truck driver Wilfred Lauzon went out of his Brantford home to find seven tires on his parked transport punctured, wires under the truck cleft cut and all lines slashed between the main air cylinder and the brakes.

All 3 Opposition Parties Share Balance of Power

OTTAWA (CP)—All three opposition parties in the Commons will share the balance of power between the government and the opposition in the 265-seat House of Commons, 116, seats short of the 133 needed for a bare majority.

Only by voting together against the government can they upset Prime Minister Diefenbaker and his Progressive Conservative party's minority control of the House.

Mr. Diefenbaker needs the support of only one of the three opposition parties on any given vote to stop its passage.

Sources close to the Prime Minister believe he sees himself at the pinnacle of his political career, eager to cope with the government and challenging or navigating a minority government until he—not his rivals—is ready for another election.

Mr. Diefenbaker and his Progressive Conservative supporters hold 118 seats in the 265-seat Commons, 16, seats short of the 133 needed for a bare majority. One of the 118 will be elected by the Speaker in each contest and will have no vote, except in the event of a tie.

The Liberals have 97 seats, the Social Crediters 30 and the New Democratic party 19. Only one seat has been delivered until next month.

So far Mr. Diefenbaker has insisted that his government is in power—and will continue in power. He has dismissed talk of a coalition.

The 30-member Social Credit parliamentary group also has rejected a coalition with the Conservatives.

But Social Credit Leader Thompson has promised to cooperate with the government "on any legislative program which is in Canada's interests in view of our current national position."

"We will not precipitate an election this year," he said Wednesday in Toronto.

If this means he will support the government in the first session of Parliament, which may be months in fall, Mr. Diefenbaker would be able to outline his legislative plans, survive a possible opposition non-confidence motion on the speech from the throne and receive approval for the budget introduced at the last Parliament.

Then, as long as government legislation finds support among MPs in any one of the three opposing groups, he would be able to continue in power provided each group votes as a bloc.

Real Caouette, Socred Leader Meet Privately

ROUYN, Que. (CP)—Deputy leader Real Caouette, who led Social Credit to 26 of Quebec's 75 federal seats in Monday's elections, and National Leader Robert N. Thompson will meet privately here today.

Mr. Thompson will fly here from Ottawa. This northwestern Quebec mining town is Mr. Caouette's stronghold.

Meanwhile, the deputy leader said a party caucus scheduled in Quebec City this weekend has been postponed to next Wednesday.

Wednesday, in Ottawa, Mr. Thompson was asked for his opinion on how long the Conservatives might stay in power. He said "as long as we co-operate."

Mr. Thompson said the Social Credit party is interested only in co-operating to give Canada some stability.

SERVICE VOTE TO BE KNOWN THIS WEEKEND

139,183 Eligible To Cast Ballots

OTTAWA (CP)—Though the serviceman may be off the political track, national political issues may affect him just as much—or even more—than the civilian voter.

A case in point was devaluation of the Canadian dollar. This immediately hit the pocketbook of the serviceman stationed abroad. The government took counter - action by announcing special allowances to make up the difference.

In any event, the votes of Canadian servicemen at home and abroad have been cast and results will be made known this weekend by Nelson Carlonguay, chief electoral officer, whose staff counts them.

There are 139,183 eligible to vote in the service poll—639,736 servicemen, 9,485 servicemen's wives in Canada, 5,665 veterans in hospital in Canada. They voted throughout last week for candidates in ridings earlier designated by them to be their home constituency.

CAN DECLARE RIDING

Once a year, a serviceman is entitled to make a new declaration of his home riding. Theoretically, last December all ridings were redistributed by the Commons to conform with Ontario's population shift. But when an election came along, in practice, of course, this has never occurred.

The armed forces vote has changed in effect from almost more than one riding, however, since it was started in 1917.

The most famous case was in 1940 when the service vote defeated Liberal Prime Minister Mackenzie King in Prince Albert, Sask., paving the way for Diefenbaker's riding. Mr. King was later elected in a by-election in the Ontario riding of Glengarry.

In the last general election, March 31, 1958, Conservative Stanley J. Hunt won Renfrew North by 65 votes election day. But after the service votes were added five days later, Liberal James Forgie was declared the winner. Mr. Forgie still holds the seat.

In the 1958 election, the servicemen ran counter to the civilian trend. While 51.7 per cent of their votes to Liberals, 36.4 to Conservatives and 4.5 to others. The civilian vote ran: Conservative, 53.6 per cent; Liberal, 33.6; others, 12.8.

WINNIPEG (CP) — Underscoring all the other work being done at the annual meeting of the Canadian Medical Association is a steady buzz of conjecture on the outcome of the battle between the Saskatchewan College of Physicians and Surgeons and the provincial government over the implementation July 1 of the Saskatchewan Medical Care Insurance Act.

The conjecture was accelerated Wednesday night by an announcement by Dr. H. D. Dalgleish of Saskatoon, college president, that a meeting between the principals in the two-year battle had been set for Friday in Regina.

In accepting the offer of a meeting from Premier Woodrow Lloyd through the Saskatchewan Hospital Association, Dr. Dalgleish, in a written release, set down the stand to be taken by representatives of the doctor organization at the meeting.

Among the requirements, reaffirmed at an afternoon meeting of the doctor delegates from Saskatchewan, was complete revision of the act deleting any suggestion of control of services and a special session of the provincial legislature to ratify the new act.

LAYS DOWN TERMS

In his statement, presented at a press conference, Dr. Dalgleish said:

"We will tell the cabinet that the present act must be substantially changed. This does not mean slight variations of the text of various sections, but rather it means a complete rewriting of the act from the first right through the amendments. The new act must be an insurance mechanism, not a device to control.

"We also believe that if we and the cabinet can reach a mutual agreement during these discussions, that the present act must not come into force; further, that the premier must call a special meeting of the legislature to approve the new arrangement before any progress can come into effect.

"At this meeting we will be more explicit in stating the views of the college and how we believe also represent the opinion of the vast majority of Saskatchewan citizens."

SOME MIGHT LEAVE

The 904 doctors in the province represented by the college have said they will provide only emergency service if the act is implemented as it stands.

Dr. Dalgleish said, "unless something is done to change it the province of Saskatchewan is going to lose 50 per cent of its doctors and it will be very difficult to replace."

Dr. Gerald Ast, British Medical Association representative in the CMA meeting, told a press conference he supported the stand of the college.

"Saskatchewan's experience under Britain's national medical care arrangement, he said, "if what I hear is right, the measure of control imposed by the Saskatchewan doctors would be intolerable."

Have Teenagers Dance All Night To Cut 'After Prom' Mishaps

NEW YORK (AP) — Teenagers in many parts of the United States no longer return from their senior proms intent they could have danced all night.

Instead, they do just that. Sometimes they do their last jig in the morning light, still wearing swim suits.

It's all part of a save-lives campaign that has been growing steadily across the U.S. for years.

Because of the automobile, graduation parties usually begin a 10-mile, dance-on route trip to a resort area where a chuck wagon breakfast was served and golfing, swimming and more dancing were offered.

The graduating class of Wakefield High School, Wakefield, Mass., went on a moonlight cruise of Boston harbor. They were transported to and from the dock by bus.

Assess Damage Of $1,500 Against Paper

KINGSTON (CP)—An Ontario Supreme Court jury Wednesday assessed damages at $1,500 in favor of Harry H. McLachlan, 40, Kingston salesman, in a libel suit against the Whig-Standard.

Judgement has not yet been entered in the case as there is a point of law still being considered by Mr. Justice J. F. Donnelly, who presided.

A six-man Supreme court of Ontario jury deliberated 3½ hours on the issue pertaining to a district news item published last Aug. 31.

McLachlan contended he was libelled by the paper under the heading Cash Replaces Penal Case Under Study at Napanee. The article by-line never appeared, arrested, or charged with the sale of a cash register to proprietors of a Napanee restaurant.

H.S. Board Approves Plans, To Call for Tenders for New Technical School Addition

Approval of final plans and calling of tenders for the new technical school addition to the Quinte Secondary School will be the main items on the agenda for members of the Bay of Quinte District High School Board when they meet next week to complete their June business.

The regular monthly meeting of the board was held Tuesday evening but despite the fact it continued well past midnight, all business was not completed and the meeting was adjourned until next week.

Two new firsts for high schools in this area were approved however, one of them on a trial basis. Authorized on a trial basis for one year was the naming of a head for an extra-curricular activities department at the Quinte Secondary School. Duties of the new department head would be to co-ordinate all student activities taking place outside regular school hours. In the past this job has been done on a staff advisory basis.

COURSE FOR NURSING

The other first for Belleville was the authorization of a letter to the Ontario Department of Education requesting a permanent set-up at Quinte for the instruction of nursing assistants.

The idea would be to set the course up at Quinte by September 1963.

As far as is known Weston and Hamilton are the only two centres in Ontario now offering this type of instruction in high schools.

The resignation of Mrs. V. Roger as cafeteria head at the Belleville Collegiate, was accepted with Mrs. Olive Wood being named in her place as chief operator of the cafeterias.

The board also accepted the resignation of Gordon Locklin, head of the guidance department at Quinte. Mr. Locklin will be replaced by Mrs. Norma Grant who was named acting head of the department.

Arthur Bradford was named head of the guidance department at Moira Secondary School.

RESIGNS POST

Mr. D. Arnold Orr, principal at Bellville Collegiate has resigned as head of the night school staff during the fall and winter at BCI.

He will be succeeded as night school principal by vice principal D. C. Stirling with J. A. Mastine as his assistant.

And high school teachers at Belleville will have their accumulative sick leave plan extended to include bereavement leave in the event of the death of an in-law.

Board members failed to go along with the request of two families in the Oak Hills area that tuition and transportation costs be paid by the local board for attendance of their students at Stirling High School. The families in question live within the boundaries of the Bay of Quinte High School district but would rather have their children attend school at Stirling.

Board members indicated the board could not be responsible for transportation and tuition costs for students attending school in another area.

BUY SPRINKLING SYSTEM

Dishes and other minor items of cafeteria equipment from the Moira Secondary School will be used at the Harry J. Clarke school this summer for the period of the Department of Education summer course for Junior teachers.

Purchase of a sprinkling system for use at the Quinte Secondary School grounds was authorized. The equipment will be used during the summer on portions of the school grounds.

Frank de Carroll of Campbellford was awarded the contract for the first phase of revamping of the electrical system at Bellleville Collegiate.

And a contract with Vannamaker Bus Lines was authorized to transport students to the summer school at Kingston collegiate. The sum will set at $3.03 again tomorrow and then for five days will set a minute later.

Then the days will commence to shorten, and we'll be getting less and less daylight each day until late next December.

'Y' to Conduct July Course

The YMCA will be conducting a July "learn-to-swim" program this year, it was announced this morning by "Y" secretary Dia Diamantides. The annual June "learn-to-swim" program which is now underway was overubscribed and the need for an additional session was clearly evident, Mr. Diamantides explained.

The classes are held exclusively for non-swimmers and will start on July 9 at 2.00 p.m. for the first boys' class. The first girls' class will be held on July 11 at 10.00 a.m.

Further information may be obtained by contacting the local "Y".

Full Enrolment For 'Y' Day Camp

A full enrolment plus a waiting list of 25 boys ensures the operation of the always popular YMCA Day Camp at Oak Lake this summer.

Commencing on July 2nd the two-week boys' camp will get underway and will run every week through to July 16th. The girls' camp will run from July 16 to 30.

The camps will be under the direction of Mr. Dennis Hale the camp director for the past three years, assisted by two senior "Y" staff members, and 12 counsellors. They will be meticulously screened to finalize camp arrangements and procedures.

YMCA secretary Di Diamantides advises that if 30 more applications are received he'll take the 32 presently on the waiting list as second boys' camp will be held from July 30 to August 12. Any boy interested in attending camp should contact the Belleville "Y".

Construction Progress At New Parkdale School Delayed Members Told

Construction progress at the new Parkdale public school is being delayed somewhat by the late arrival of structural steel and hollow steel frames, members of the city public schools board were told this week.

The report was that the steel had not been received in time to permit progress according to schedule, and schools superintendent L. A. Kelly was directed to meet at a conference with architects Barrett and Richards and the contractor, Mr. H. J. McFarland Construction Company.

Mr. Kelly said today, however, that the slight delay will not affect the scheduled September opening of the school.

This week's meeting of the school board was highlighted by the arrival of the federal election on the regular meeting date.

ATTENDANCE HIGH

The report of the Superintendent and Chief Inspector showed an enrolment of 4,559 and attendance of 4,284 or 96.35% for the month of May. Teachers were employed for 4,440 teaching days during the month.

The board received and accepted the resignations of Mr. and Mrs. F. A. Downes who are returning to Britain at the end of the school term.

Approval was given to the placement of the following teachers to the probationary staff: Irene Bateman, Joan Beth Campbell, Janet McLean, Barbara Mae Mitchell, Sharon Neil, Joyce Shadd, Judith Webb, Elizabeth Fawkes and Mary Barbara Jones.

Fuel tenders were opened and considered with the oil contract going to Imperial Oil. Imperial Oil Company Limited at 14-9/10 cents per gallon. The coal contract was awarded to Valley Camp Coal Company at $13.20 per ton for No. 1 coal and $13.20 per ton for Lot No. 4.

CONTRACTS AWARDED

Contracts were given to Dennis Bell and Son, Belleville, to install concrete walks at the Harry J. Clarke School and to McIntosh Bros. Stores Limited, Belleville, to provide curtains, drapes and floor covering for use at the same school.

Accounts approved totalled $75,005.72 and included the May payroll of $57,447.10.

Chairman of the meeting was chairman Wm. Townson, Mrs. Hazel Pugh, and Messrs. Cecil Chase, Bishop, J. H. Bacon, F. F. Clarke, Lyle A. Langabeer, Morley Lawrence, J. N. McKibbon, Jas. Ritchie, J. Russell Scott, M.D., and J. R. Sproule.

OTTAWA (CP) — Traffic through the Welland Canal and the Sault Ste. Marie locks at the junction of the St. Lawrence Seaway during April and May showed a substantial increase over the same period in 1961.

Officials said Wednesday the late opening of the Seaway and heavy increases in upbound iron ore shipments in the Welland canal accounted for the heavier traffic.

The Welland Canal showed an increase of 11.6 per cent for the two months compared with the same 1961 period.

Inbound cargo through the canal in May was 1,534,211 tons and outbound cargo during the month was 3,176,849 tons. April upbound cargo through the canal was 3,136,245 tons and outbound cargo was 4,702,531 tons.

The Montreal - Lake Ontario section traffic increased 4.5 per cent in April and May combined with the like 1961 period. Cargo tons for May through the section reached an all-time high for a single month of 2,800,000.

Mr. Blakely received a laceration to his scalp as a result of the collision.

Butcher Gives Reason for High Pork Prices

The sharply increased price of pork noticed within the past few weeks is the result of seasonal demand and hasn't anything to do with the dollar crisis.

At least that was the explanation given today by one local butcher who said pork prices usually increase each year about this time.

"It's the seasonal demand for certain cuts of pork such as cooked ham, pork chops and backs that causes the price increase," the butcher said.

It was noted that the price of such lines of pork has gone up from 15 to 30 cents within the past few weeks.

"It happens every year about this time and as soon as the seasonal demand is over the price will drop." It was stated.

Old Coins Found Digging in Garden

Digging in the garden seems to have its rewards, both from the standpoint of growing vegetables and in finding things.

In the past few weeks there have been several reports of coins found in the Bellville area finding old coins, and the latest resident, Ambrose Smith, of 20 Murney Street.

Mr. Smith's wife digging in his garden behind a barn he dug down into Friday found and also an 1851 bank token worth coin penny.

Napanee Girl Hurt in Crash

Miss Beverly Joan Morton, 23, of 246 East Street, Napanee, is in Belleville General Hospital, suffering possible concussion and back injuries as the result of a two car accident on Highway 2 about three miles west of Shannonville, at 2.30 p.m. Tuesday. She was alone in the car.

Provincial Police Constable J. E. McMullen, Belleville police officer, said Miss Morton was travelling eastward, failed to negotiate a curve, going off the road and travelling between a fence and the road for a short distance.

The car then struck a post and crashed into the rear of a truck owned by Norman Edwards, which was parked in the driveway.

Damage to Miss Morton's car was estimated at $1,500 and to Mr. Edward's truck about $200.

Suspend Sentence On Shannonville Man After Scuffle

Kenneth Howard, 22, of Shannonville, was placed on suspended sentence for one year by Magistrate T. Y. Wills when he appeared in county court charged with causing a disturbance on a public road, and pleaded guilty to the charge.

Provincial Constable J. C. Thompson told the court he was called to the residence of William Conley on the Shannonville Gravel, where a family fight had occurred.

He said he accused had thrown Mrs. Conley, his aunt, to the ground, slightly injuring her, and then became involved in a fight with his uncle, Mr. Conley.

Board of Health Told Tot Nearly Drowns in Ditch

TRENTON — The Trenton Board of Health will ask the corporation to "do something about," an open ditch, running along the back of a property which contains, by report, eight inches of water.

At yesterday's meeting of the health board, board chairman H. S. Fane told members Miss Marjorie Gothard, E. D. Topping and Dr. E. W. Dow and board secretary, O. W. Lamy that he had received a call from a Gould St. mother, Tuesday afternoon and had been told that the woman's three-year-old child had fallen into the ditch, face down, that morning and that only the quick action of an older playmate had averted a tragedy.

Mr. Fane said that it would be best not to suggest ways and means of making the ditch safe to council, but that something should be done to eliminate the danger to youngsters in the area.

LEAF-BURNING PROBLEM

The board also passed a motion that Fire Chief Cecil Ellis be made responsible for giving permission to town citizens who wish to burn leaves.

By the terms of the air pollution by-law, policies incorporated in the by-law, could be carried out by an appointed official of the town. Last year, council passed a resolution permitting the burning of leaves, thus nullifying one section of the by-law itself. Board members objected to council's action, but soon find that, according to the Ontario Department of Health, council may proceed in a deviation from the terms of the original by-law. However, Mr. Fane said that he did not feel like responsible for giving permission for the burning of leaves and suggested that the onus should be placed on the fire chief, as it would be his responsibility if a strange fire should result from the only burning.

Dr. Dow reported that 5,048 pre-school children, public school, and high school students and adults had taken polio vaccine by mouth at recent clinics held here in Trenton. Dr. Dow said that this was a fairly good showing, but that it could have been better. In late September or early October, there would be available themselves of the first oral dose, then a second treatment, and those who have not as yet had the vaccine may start a new series.

MUST BANISH WEEDS

Mr. Fane has issued notices through the press to townspeople, warning them that weeds on their property must be eradicated by the end of this month. Some residents object to spraying weeds, claiming that the sprays destroys grass and shrubs.

Board members decided that nothing much could be done about hedges which have been allowed to grow out of all proportions, unless the said hedges obstruct motorists' view at intersections. The board decided to let the question of unsightly newspaper boxes on town boulevards remain in the lap of town council, since council has taken the step of contacting the various companies about the situation.

The board will take a summer recess and the next meeting will be held on September 19.

Protest Way Council Sold Debentures

TRENTON — A number of Murray Township ratepayers from the York Road area, attended the meeting of the township council last night, to protest the way council had sold debentures for the construction of a new room onto S. S. No. 3 Murray Public School.

At least two ratepayers claimed that they should have been ready, willing and able to purchase the debentures themselves, if council had presented the proposal of sale at the right time and in the right way.

In all events, the proposal to build the addition has been approved at government level; tenders have been called and it is expected that the school board will award the contract at the next future. The room will be built as a separate building. Once the additional space is available, township pupils, from Grades 1 to 8, will be accommodated. At the present time, some students are attending Trenton schools.

Council approved 11 building permits. Ten permits are for the erection of new homes in the township and one for a summer cottage.

Following some discussion about the town of Trenton's proposal to annex part of Murray Township, Trenton negotiations between the town council's technical and economic development committee and the members of the township council, there is an indication that the town may be willing to modify its annexation plans. At last night's meeting, Wasil Sidor, the deputy reeve of the Wooler Park sub-division, in the township has been asked to help in the burden, indicated that he was anxious to have his particular property annexed to the township council.

Present at last night's meeting were Reeve Douglas McMasters, Deputy Reeve Wasil Bruyea, township clerk, Angus Sinclair and Councillors Leo McAuley, Ronald Webb and Norman Flindall.

Trenton Wing Favors Sweeps For 4 Events

TRENTON — William Menzies, Commanding Officer of Wing of the RCAF Association, met yesterday that a Trenton resolution, that the association at national level, petition the federal government to be permitted to conduct sweepstakes on outstanding sports events in Canada, had met with overwhelming approval at a meeting of the association's Ontario Command, in Toronto, held in London, last weekend. Ninety-seven of the 98 delegates voted in favor of the proposal.

The Trenton wing suggested that "Sweepstake" tickets be sold to the public on Grey Cup, the Stanley Cup, the running of the Queen's Plate, and the World Series baseball games. Proceeds from sales would be divided among lucky winners, provincial and federal governments, and the association.

The resolution will now be presented to the association's national convention at Halifax, in August.

A further resolution that members of parliament be given a $5,000 annual raise in pay, (proposed by the Trenton wing) was dropped by the convention's resolutions' committee, as being too controversial.

Len McGaughey, immediate past president of the Trenton wing, attended the London convention, along with Mr. Menzies.

Retaliatory Action Has Been Ordered

ST. CATHARINES (CP)—Retaliatory action against harassment by the Seafarers International Union (Ind.) has been authorized by Local 252 of the Canadian Brotherhood of Railway, Transport and General Workers (CLC).

The 500 Welland Ship Canal workers represented by the local voted for retaliation at a meeting called Wednesday night to discuss ways of supporting the Canadian Maritime Union (CLC) in its bitter battle with the SIU.

Local President John McNamara, 41, who was to have presided at the meeting, was beaten up Tuesday night by two assailants who jumped him outside his home as he left for work. The attackers fled by auto.

Mr. McNamara required 32 stitches to close a head wound inflicted by his own garden shears. He was reported in satisfactory condition at home.

M. K. Carson, CBRT representative from Toronto, said after the meeting no details or description of the retaliatory action was available at present.

However, Henry G. Rhodes, assistant director of organization for the Canadian Labor Congress, who attended the meeting as an advisor, emphasized that the action would be legal.

Mr. Carson said the meeting was not a direct result of McNamara's beating, but the beating was probably a direct result of advance notice of the meeting.

Earlier Wednesday in Ottawa, Elroy Robson, vice-president of the CBRT sent telegrams to Prime Minister Diefenbaker, Labor Minister Starr and Immigration Minister Fairclough calling for a judicial inquiry into criminal activity among marine workers on the Great Lakes.

President Claude Jodoin of the Canadian Labor Congress urged Justice Minister Fulton to investigate the slugging of Mr. McNamara.

The CMU was established last year with CLC help to run the SIU off the Great Lakes. The SIU, once an affiliate of the 1,070,000-member congress, was expelled two years ago for raiding another union.

Arthritic Patients in Area Guests of Women's Auxiliary

Women's Auxiliary members of the Quinte Branch of the Canadian Arthritic and Rheumatism Society played hosts Wednesday afternoon to arthritic patients in the area.

The function was their annual spring tea held at the Christ Church parish hall where they were welcomed by branch president Mrs. Phyllis Hume. Games and other contests were included on the afternoon program.

A highlight of the tea was the presentation of a glider chair to the society by the Alpha Lambda Chapter of the Beta Sigma Phi Sorority. The Sorority past president, Mrs. Phyllis Hayman, made the presentation on behalf of her members.

Mrs. Hume and Mrs. Jessie David, public relations officer for the Quinte Society, expressed their appreciation for the gift of the glider chair.

Great Variety of Occupations Listed for 26 Socred Members

QUEBEC (CP)—There is a great variety of occupations listed in the official biographies of the 26 Social Credit members of Parliament elected in Quebec in fast Monday's federal election.

The Socreds took 26 of Quebec's 75 House of Commons seats and they include an electrician, a wood - measurer, a photographer, an insurance agent, a shopkeeper, a restaurant operator, a plant foreman and a salesman.

There is only a handful of professional men usually associated with politics — lawyers, doctors, accountants and teachers.

The chief architect of the Quebec Socred success — Real Caouette — is an automobile dealer in Roupn.

Most of the newly - elected Socreds have large families. In fact, the 24 married members have an average of nearly six children each. Thirteen have five children or more.

L. P. Antonio Belanger, a wood - measurer elected in Charlevoix, and Gerard Lamy, contractor elected in St. Maurice - Laflecbe, each have 15 children.

J. A. Roy, contractor - merchant representing Levis, has 11 and Gabriel Malouin, co - operative manager in Saguenay, has 10.

TIES WITH UN, LIBERALS

A number of them list past or present association with Quebec's Union Nationale and Liberal parties and other Quebec parties that have disappeared from the political scene.

Mr. Caouette, who won overwhelmingly in Villeneuve, is a former Liberal and Mr. Lamy describes himself as a Union Nationale organizer.

Some of the socreds list membership in Laurentaire, Quebec temperance group, while one describes himself as a member of AA, presumably Alcoholics Anonymous.

Others are members of the Roman Catholic Sacred Heart League, the St. Jean Baptiste Society, a Quebec patriotic group, or the Knights of Columbus, a Roman Catholic fraternity.

Several of them hold municipal posts in various towns. Mr. Belanger is Mayor of Beaupre, Mr. Roy is an alderman in Cote Lauzon, Bernard Dumont, elected in Bellechasse, is mayor of St. Vallier, and C. A. Gauthier, elected in Roberval, is a former mayor of Mistassini.

Mr. Caouette, also national deputy leader of the party, is the only member with any previous Commons experience. He served as a Socred MP for Pontiac riding from 1946 to 1949.

Frankford Reeve Going to Europe

TRENTON — Frankford village council met last night to consider a number of pressing matters. Present at the meeting were Reeve Frank Rabel, councillors Carmen Mikel, R. G. Sharon, P. E. Boulsted, and Leonard Reid and clerk Glenn Mills.

Council granted permission to Alan Jacquith, a hydro employee, to park a trailer on King Street. The arrangement will be on a month-to-month basis, with council being free to end the arrangement should taxpayers object. Mr. Jacquith has been unable to find a suitable living accommodation in the area.

Councillor Leonard Reid was appointed acting reeve until July 16. Reeve Rabel will be in Europe for three weeks on business.

Council proclaimed Monday, July 2 as a public holiday, (Dominion Day) and will meet again on July 3.

A $50 grant will be given to Gold Cord Guide Donna Chare from the village to assist her with the cost of a trip to England where she will attend a Guide camp.

Carmen Mikel and Leonard Reid were appointed to make a study of the village streets, with a view to council's enforcing parking regulations, under the terms of a planned-for parking by-law.

Five Stitches Are Required To Close Wound

TRENTON—Five year old Marie McCoy of 100 Leopold St. in Trenton, was treated in the emergency ward at Trenton hospital late yesterday afternoon, after she had been knocked down by a car in front of Bellamy's Store on West St. Five stitches were required to close a cut behind the youngster's left ear.

Police say that Marie, the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Keith McCoy, walked out from behind a parked car into the path of a car driven by Frank Parks of South Trenton St., Frankford.

COLLECTIONS GOOD

Trenton's tax collector, Alan Weaver, reports that to date his department has collected $523,651.74 in 1962 taxes. Estimated tax revenues for this year, call for the collection of $1,600,000 (in round figures).

If an additional $34,665.59 in outstanding pre-payment certificates be added to the net taxes collected, the department has picked up $558,317.33 of the total tax revenue.

Mr. Weaver comments that if councillors spending is kept within the budget, indications are that this will be a successful year for the town.

22 Students Write Exams Following St. John Course

TRENTON — Last night a ten-week St. John Ambulance first aid training course came to an end and 22 participants sat for examinations. Dr. W. A. Gray presided over the trainees in the absence of Dr. W. A. L. McDonald. Results of the tests will not be known for some time as the examination papers must be sent to Toronto St. John headquarters.

Ronald Lee, St. John instructor from Belleville, was presented with a gift by Mrs. Marion Snider and Mrs. Mary Dillon, on behalf of the group. Special thanks were given to the branch secretary, Frank Insley, who has assisted Mr. Lee in the course. Mrs. Dillon, who is trying for her eighth label, has had 11 years of experience with the organization, and Mrs. Snider is a medallion holder, having been connected with the Belleville St. John branch for three years. Mrs. Snider and Mrs. Dillon will form the nucleus of the planned-for Trenton branch.

All phases of first aid were taught during the ten-week course. Participants were taught five methods of artificial respiration, with emphasis on the mouth-to-mouth method; how to deal with minor cuts and those of a serious nature; how to stem bleeding; how to take people off an electrical contact without harming themselves; how to enter a gas-filled room. This year, a certain amount of emphasis has been placed on training for the role of St. John workers in the event of a national emergency or a possible nuclear attack.

Ontario in Driver's Seat

Had they set out deliberately to make themselves a favored class, Ontario voters could not have done a better job than emerged by chance from the jumble of Monday's election returns.

As the province with the largest population and, therefore, the largest number of members in the House of Commons, Ontario's political views are naturally always of great importance.

Now the importance of numbers has been augmented by the fact that Ontario has climbed firmly on the fence, apparently ready to jump either one way or the other, into the camp of either of the two major political parties.

It is not true to say that Monday's results exposed the old tale of "Tory Ontario" as a fable. The truth is that this interpretation of Ontario's political beliefs was proven false years ago, at least by the time of the elections held during the Liberals' long tenure of power. Still less is it true to regard with amazement the returns from Toronto. In past federal and provincial elections, the myth of "Tory and Orange" Toronto was long since exploded. The truth is that, in the words of one CBC announcer, these Metro Toronto ridings are "up for grabs". What makes the situation even more complicated is that, as far as several of these ridings are concerned, not merely two but three parties, the Conservatives, Liberals and New Democrats, all are in the running in the grabbing contest.

The same, however, does not hold true in rural Ontario. There, only the two major parties are serious contenders. (Northern Ontario is, in a sense, not really "rural," for though it is sparsely populated there is comparatively little agriculture and the miners and other workers react more like residents of large urban industrial centres than like farmers.)

The Conservatives, who suffered heavy defeats Monday in Metro Toronto and in some other heavily-populated areas, did reasonably well in rural Ontario, holding many seats. But it is not at all certain that the results will be the same at the next election.

Thus, with Metro Toronto seats "up for grabs" and the Liberals threatening the Conservative hold on rural Ontario, for both the major parties this province presents the most promising field for future gains.

It follows that in the coming Parliament, both the major parties will woo Ontario, much after the fashion in which, it was once alleged, the Liberals catered to Quebec, now far too fickle to give suitors any confidence.

It may not prove an altogether unpleasant experience for Ontario. Where love and politics are concerned, there are certain advantages to be gained by keeping suitors guessing.

Dented Cans Dangerous

Every so often, the supermarket provides a test which, for all we know, may have some psychological significance.

What do you do, dear reader, when, picking up a can from the shelf, you find it is bulging or dented? Put it back and select another which is undamaged? Or keep it, reasoning that somebody has to take it and that the shape of the can will not have damaged the contents?

If you keep the can, we have news for you. You should not. The Health League of Canada states that such cans "may have leaked, allowing entrance to bacteria."

This means that, unless somebody else is prepared to take risks which you decline, there will be considerable wastage. Somebody will have to pay for it and in the end it will be the consumer.

Other food hazards include frozen food which has thawed and been refrozen. Most people know that. But not all know why this is dangerous. Freezing does not kill bacteria, just keeps them from multiplying. When food is thawed, bacteria multiply. If the food is refrozen these more numerous bacteria continue to live. Result—contaminated food.

This warning against freezing apples with doubled force to ice cream, which is a particularly good medium for the growth of bacteria when it has become soft and runny.

What is to be done? Frozen food once it is taken from the freezer should be used as soon as possible, says the Health League.

There are a great many young Canadians who stand ready to sacrifice themselves and look after the disposal of ice-cream in a manner of which the Health League would approve.

Without an element of the obscene there can be no true and deep aesthetic or moral conception of life . . . It is only the great men who are truly obscene. If they had not dared to be obscene they could never have dared to be great.—Havelock Ellis.

Back-Room-Boys Bore Political Video Viewers

By RICHARD JACKSON

From The Ontario Intelligencer's Ottawa Bureau

OTTAWA — Whisper it not on Madison Avenue . . . nor yet along Bay Street . . . but if there is one sure thing that this campaign has taught the "Back-Room Boys", it is that what they once thought was the "magic" of television can, instead, be pure poison.

In all the frantic post-mortems that have been going on these past 48 hours in the national political headquarters of the four parties, one of the first firm findings made is that TV did as much — and often a good deal more — harm than good.

The "Back-Room Boys" have made their own surveys.

They spot-checked all during the campaign.

They, too, knocked on doors.

Rang phones.

Even stopped people on the street.

And they did all this, not to find out how many homes were looking at the leaders on TV— for the television trade's own professional experts told them that each week — but rather to discover why so many homes were not tuned in.

OKAY FOR SOAP

And they have determined, beyond all shadow of doubt, that these non-lookers tuned out for a very simple reason. If you can call them that — from sheer boredom.

Television may be just what the Adman ordered to peddle detergents, but as millions for under-arm perspiration . . . but it just does not deliver in pulling screw political sentiment.

What has happened to TV-in-politics here, happened in Britain a couple of years ago.

Before the last general election in Britain in 1959, all parties were agreed that television was decidedly important.

Indeed, the governing Conservative victory, strangely, everybody agreed that the Labor party leaders had been much more skilful.

Trouble was they lacked image.

People were not watching.

Therefore, the Advertising Corporation looked into it and came up with the frank conclusion that:

"Any TV performance that makes even modest intellectual demands on the public is handicapped in the audience stakes."

Which means, in effect, that TV not for information or education, nor for anything really solid or constructive — but is most exclusively for entertainment.

And, let's face it, neither John Diefenbaker nor Mike Pearson could be described as entertainers.

NOT FUNNY, McGEE

Put a camera on them and sling a pair of six-shooters at their hips and they still could not make you laugh, forget your taxes, trade and defence sound like Bob Hope, Red Skelton, Jack Benny, Danny Kaye, Dick Van Dyke, Andy Griffith, Phil Silvers, Don Knotts, Jonathan Winters, Steve Allen, Jerry Lewis, Dean Martin, Tom Ewell, Tony Randall, Jack Paar, Ernie Kovacs, Garry Moore, Ed Sullivan, Red Skelton, Perry Como, Andy Williams, Jack Benny, Danny Thomas

POTSDAM, N.Y. — Jim Baker, son of Dr. and Mrs. W. W. Baker, 62 Bridge St. West, Campbellford, Ont., was a member of the Clarkson Tech baseball team which ended its 1962 spring season with a 7-2 record.

He was used as a relief pitcher and while he did not figure in a final decision, he pitched some fine ball.

Baker, a 1958 graduate of Albert College, Belleville, graduated from Clarkson earlier this month with a bachelor of business administration degree.

Every girl loves a drummer, and the drummers are usually interested in majorettes. Marie Merritt, 7, Wanda Higgings, 8, and Vicki Hounslow, 8, were among the gayettes performing at the Royal Canadian Legion's band concert, at the Bellerville Fairgrounds last night. Drummer Dick Chapman of the ANAF Unit 201 band was also in the parade and in the pipe and drum demonstrations during the concert.

share in the motel and $18,000 cash for the purchase of a house at about the same time, with some $6,000 or $7,000 to spare.

In fact, he said, he wouldn't swear that he cleaned out the glass jars on his last visit in June, though he was certainly sure no money would be found about which Commission investigators go exhausting. The commission took a description of the location anyway.

Cronin gave the often-puzzling account of his financial transactions with the help of a thick wad of papers pulled from a pocket, some of which occasionally drifted off towards the feet of Mr. Justice W. D. Roach, the commissioner.

"To be honest, Mr. Roach, I'm the world's worst bookkeeper," Cronin, apologized once when he picked up from some of his notes for him.

"The world's worst banker, too," the commissioner observed.

PAYS IT UP

As Cronin told it, he had piled up $30,000 from a variety of jobs —about $18,000 in cash and $2,000 in government bonds—when he joined the force in 1941. During his years on the force, he added another $30,000 —maybe $35,000.

Commission counsel Wilson brought in a tabulation showing his pay for the period on the force had amounted to some $33,000, and he explained that perhaps some of his wife's earnings had gone into the kitty along with his own.

He bought and sold two, then three properties, meanwhile, though it was not clear just how much went in and into any implement shed trove in the process.

Despite his backlog, he once had to borrow $50 train fare from a fellow officer at Port Arthur to get to Toronto on a burn-up transfer.

He had kept small bank accounts here and there, but could not remember which ones.

FEARS BANKS

Actually, he said, "I was afraid of banks." He never had more than $500 in one until recently when his father died and left him $1,000.

He said he now is netting $11,000 a year from his share of the motel business but did not indicate where he might be investing any savings.

Up to the point where the hearings adjourned, Cronin was not asked directly whether he had taken money from gamblers for tipoffs—one indirect report relayed to the commission was that he had made some $50,000 in this way—but he said in reply to questions that he had never had personal calls from either McDermott or Feeley while on the force.

Feeley, he said, "business" contacts with them came afterwards, he said, and there was "nothing shifty" about them. He plunge into the oftment business with Feeley, Mr. Wilson also have been in such ventures as promoting mining stock, setting up a bookkeeping machine company and running a helicopter service.

Feeley held a patent on the ointment—a concoction of creosote, aloe, camphor and other ingredients — and he had become partners with a Mr. Peters, he showed him a layout of jars, mixing machinery, advertising signs, bookkeeping and a formula.

Cronin and his wife formed a company called Pam Imports to market it after a partially-blind former gambler named Harry Leiberman—"a good honest fellow"—had given $1,500 of Mrs. Dermott-Feeley money trying to make it go.

HE ALSO FAILS

Cronin took the equipment and formula to the gambler-brothers and Klewise failed, marketing a limited worth of salve at a cost of some $2,000. He then gave up and turned the stuff back to Mrs. Dermott.

Asked about how he came to leave the force, Cronin said it came about because he was transferred from the anti-gambling squad to the beat, disagreeing with the Unsatisfied Judgment Fund Act of 1958.

The late E. V. McNeill, then commissioner, had told him there had been a "political" scene—someone in the attorney-general's department had said "we were too slow"—and sometime more experienced was being put on the squad.

The commissioner had assured him it "had nothing to do with any wrongdoing" and was in fact a promotion.

The commissioner had stated there was no suspicion on his part; he had received instructions from higher up.

Cronin said he had not used this information on two visits to the commissioner after his transfer, and emphatically denied visits after the transfer.

The witness said he would.

Crooks denied slouching—that he had visited former Coast, Wood at his Port Hope restaurant to suggest he get back on the self - gambling squad for the Syndicate.

"I Wood says that, he is!" the counsel asked.

"Yes, and I see at a loss to know why he said it," the former officer replied. "It is without fact or foundation."

No such evidence from Wood has been presented, and the counsel did not indicate whether he plans to call Wood on the stand.

He questioned Cronin about a visit to the latter's home in 1960, after Cronin had been taken off the gambling squad but was still on the force, by Const. Frank Fleming of the squad.

Mr. Wilson suggested Fleming talked to McDermott and told him Armstrong would be leaving his home at a certain time and had directed the officer along a route where he would be intercepted by McDermott.

DENIES ABSOLUTELY

"Absolutely impossible," Cronin said. "I have never talked to or discussed it with the commissioner."

"I talked with the commissioner because Mrs. Dermott was supposed to have picked up Armstrong, but I had no part in it and I would be glad to be interest to me if he did."

Considering that McDermott lived miles away, Mr. Justice Roach commented, it would be quite a coincidence for the gambler to happen along the same route at the same time.

Another witness was Michael Rickey, Niagara Falls bowling alley proprietor, who denied previous evidence by bookie Sammy Salsano that the latter had taught bowling at the alley establishment for the last couple of years.

He said Salsaon had been in the place only a few times up until 3½ months ago.

Robt. A. Ruttan Given Post With Govt.

TWEED — In May of this year, Mr. Robert A. Ruttan, son of Mr. Mrs. Ruttan, and the late Lorne Ruttan, was chosen by the Federal Government as manager of the Barren Lands Caribou Project, and will be operating in the north as the Yukon.

He will be making his home in Edmonton. His first assignment was to Ottawa and Sackville, New Brunswick, to study former data on Wild Life Conservation.

Mr. Ruttan was born and reared in the Lodgeroom area, west of Tweed, where he spent the early years of his life and received his elementary education at Tweed schools.

He served in World War II as an aircrew with the RCAF as well as signing up for duties in the Far East. Arriving home a few days after his father's death in 1945 and the cessation of hostilities in the east, he went to Saskatoon, where he married Miss Faye Mallory on July 14, 1945.

In 1946 he entered the University of Saskatchewan in Saskatoon, majoring in biology, and graduated in 1950 with a Bachelor of Arts degree. He worked with a team of biologists stationed at Regina for several years, and then operated a large hunting camp at Meadow Lake, Saskatchewan.

Two years ago he returned to his chosen work with the Department of Natural Resources stationed at Prince Albert, Sask.

On Sunday last, Robert and his brothers, Russell of Belleville, and Arthur of Scarborough, with the latter's wife and children spent the day with their mother, Mrs. L. Ruttan, at Lodgeroom.

Robt. has one daughter and an adopted son. Two sons are deceased.

Band Concert For Legion Week Much Enjoyed

More than a-thousand people attended the Royal Canadian Legion's band concert at the Bellevelle Fairgrounds that night. The concert was one of the events of Legion Week, sponsored by the Legion as a build up to the opening of Branch 99's new Legion hall in Belleville, on Saturday.

For most people, the concert began with the No. 2 Repair Depot's band, conducted by Sgt. Kelly, of the RCAF, at the Fairgrounds. For others, the beginning was the parade out to the Fairgrounds by the pipe and drum bands of the Port Hope Legion's Branch 30, led by Drum Major Fred Trumpour, and the Major Jack MacFarlane, of Hope, and the ANAF Unit 201, under Drum Major George Christopher and Pipe Major Dave Longhurst, of Belleville. A local ballet and drum corps kept time to the music.

Les Dibney, president of Branch 99 of the Legion, was master of ceremonies for the evening. He introduced the RCAF Air Transport Command Band from Toronto, under F/O Ted Robbins, for a concert of classical and semi-classical music.

The Hastings and Prince Edward Regiment Band, in their authentic 19th century uniforms, conducted by Cpl. Glen Crawford, presented part of the display, which won them the Royal Canadian Legion's Senior Championship, at Kingston last year.

Between events, there were displays by the Quinte Majorettes, Gail Chapman's Gayettes and Drum Corps, and Freddiner Majorettes.

Both the pipe bands involved in the parade out to the grounds put on their own display during the show, and for a finale, the two bands were combined for a massed band demonstration.

What Do Women Really Think About Men, Short Answer, Not Too Much

By ALAN HARVEY

LONDON (CP) — What do women really think about men?

The short answer—not much.

Men are selfish, lazy and mean. They forget anniversaries and they are sexual cheats. They come home late for dinner, neglect to notice that new dish and then flop, surfeited, on the sofa.

They are inferior to women, but cherish the illusion they are infinitely more talented.

They think that just by marrying they confer such a colossal favor it entitles them to sit back and relax for all time.

They sit through breakfast with their heads buried in the morning paper.

"There isn't a married man in the whole wide world who wouldn't cheat on his wife, if he thought he could get away with it," said an attractive woman of mature years.

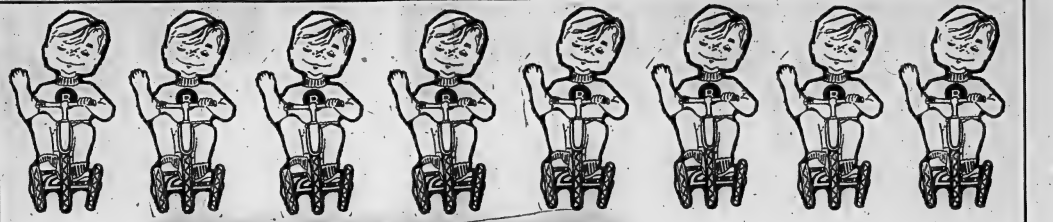
These damaging opinions, and others calculated to make mincemeat of the male animal, emerged with devastating clarity in a British television program produced by Elaine Grand, a transplanted Canadian formerly with CBC.

The Winnipeg - born Miss Grand, comfortably settled in Britain for the last six years, carefully stressed her detachment in the battle of the sexes. She is married to Montreal playwright Reuben Ship and has one child—male, at that.

"I was truly surprised by the depth of hostility we discovered," she told a reporter, "I wouldn't dream of talking about my husband that way."

To obtain this heart - cry of a hundred women, Miss Grand and her crew ranged from working - class Whitechapel to exclusive Knightsbridge, from middle - class Putney to Trafalgar Square where importunate pigeons roost on gogglin louriats.

Of the women interviewed, all but two or three seemed glad to unload their grievances. They spoke with relish and appeared sincerity. Among those who demurred, one said quietly that men weren't "always" bad. Another said she had been married a long time and still looked forward eagerly to her husband's return from work each day.



A psychologist (female) agreed that Englishmen are cold, which she attributed to such influences as the Puritan era and the industrial revolution with its emphasis on long hours of factory work. But girls from Italy, Germany, Asia and the United States testified that the British male is by no means backward with foreign women.

A powerful parting shot came from Barbara Castle, red-haired Labor member of Parliament, who argued that masculine leadership as government is based on fear—fear of women.

"You will not set free all the great dynamic capacity for democratic expression if this little masculine, sophisticated, self - contained club of government is going to be able to keep women out."

Television critic Peter Black in The Daily Mail said the program must have left many British households sadder and wiser. He described Miss Grand and Britain's Joan Kemp-Welch, the director, as "two of television's brightest birdbrains."

So lay down that morning paper, mister. Underneath the glitter and the greaseputs, women are on the warpath.

THE FAMILY COUNCIL

Mamie B. — After 30 years, you'd think he'd eat pear with a fork.

Fred B. — She's not going to turn me into a Mr. Emily Post!

Mamie B. — After 30 years of marriage I find I'm still tied to a savage. I knew he was a boor when I first met him. One visit to his family and I realized Fred and his brothers had had no bringing-up, no training in manners or politeness. But he was a good sport and I figured married life would civilize him.

But when it comes to rudeness and vulgar behavior, you name it and Fred shows it! His shoes still go up on the living-room couch. His clothes are draped anywhere he wishes. He grew up without closets and he acts as though he doesn't know what they're for.

As to his social grace, well, he'd better improve or I'll go everywhere alone from now on. His table manners are for the zoo. And he interrupts other people's stories with, "Oh I heard that!" He has no qualms over my embarrassment at his selfish conduct.

* * *

Fred B. — For 30 years I was all right. For 30 years I seemed to please her fine. All of a sudden she's become so touchy over how I hold my cup, and whether my handkerchief is folded right. She doesn't like the way I pick my teeth. Well, what am I supposed to do? Run to the dentist after every meal?

It must be her change of life. Right along she never paid any attention to how I handled a fork or whether I ate a piece of pie in one bite or 20. She took everything about me in stride and seemed happy to go places with me. Now, whatever I do she's either mortified or insulted.

Maybe it's those luncheons she's been going to. The organizations she belongs to have them at swanky hotels. If she expects me to show Waldorf-Astoria etiquette, she has the wrong guy!

The Council: Just because Mamie is on the warpath now about Fred's inconsiderate manners and mannerisms, Fred can't assume she was "happy" about them all those 30 years. She may merely have been plotting her strategy. Wrongly intended to, don't automatically turn into right. Fred has the comfortable notion that Mamie's tolerance of his behaviour made it all right. One can tolerate a boil on one's neck but that doesn't mean it's good and should be there!

So let's forget about the 30 years of outward silence and inward seething. It's over. How help these two face the next 30 years with a chance at some real rapport? Up to now the ties between them seem to have been mainly surface ones. But there are surely deep emotional ones waiting to be hitched up. Bridging the gap by means of two-sided effort will be more worthwhile than continuing as Mamie suggests — each going his own riotous and selfish way.

As matters stand, the B.'s are playing a too-familiar marital game called Getting-Each-Other's-Goat! Fred ignores the rightness of Mamie's suggestions (there is some), attributes her pickiness to change of life, and keeps on doing what comes naturally. This naturally brings Mamie pouncing on his every move, intensifying her campaign to make the poor guy over.

Stop barking back, Mamie, to Fred's upbringing, for now you should know he didn't marry you to get civilized, but rather to get a partner — someone who'd accept him pretty much as he is, grateful for any small modifications that might take hold. And just to eliminate the possibility that your open pettishness is due to your own menopausal fears and discomforts, go to a doctor. If per chance there's a physical reason for your being hypercritical of Fred, he'll have to concede there's also a valid reason for your being plain critical. He'll have to admit he's been sloppy!

And you, Fred, had best look at this contest on its merits. It needn't be a battle of egos — Francyschmancy-Mamie vs. Plain-Simple-Ole-Fred. It's a battle of issues, good ones. Orderliness is an essential of a peaceful home. So are restraint and respect, instead of battling to win your own way. Battles win Mamie's love. Your arms may well be a cup and saucer!

Guatemala Film Viewed By Vota Vita

On Tuesday evening, the members of the Vota Vita Mission Circle of Victoria Baptist Church enjoyed a cofee dessert party to bring to a close its regular monthly meeting for the season.

A report of the 1962 convention of the Baptist Women's Mission Circles of Ontario and Quebec held in North Bay, recently, was given by Mrs. Ruth Gaetjer. The theme of the convention was "The King's Business Request Haste," and the convention hymn, "The King of Kings," was sung by the group at this time.

Mrs. Grace Smith gave her report on the latest missionary news of both home and abroad.

Mrs. Peggy Gemmell's group was in charge of the program for the evening.

Prior to the showing of a movie film entitled "Til Freedom Comes," Mrs. Peggy Gemmell gave a brief summary of the historical background of Latin America.

The movie was filmed in the country of Guatemala and showed the typical Indian and the slow outreach Christianity has made among them in this part of the world, and the great need to help the Indians out of their miserable, almost sub-human conditions.

Holy Name Soc. Holds Annual Rally

TWEED — Members of the Holy Name Society of Tweed Deanery held their annual rally in Tweed on June 17th. Members were present from Marmora, Madoc, Sioco, Flinton, Stirling, Erinsville, Camden East and Tweed. Similar rallies were held in Kingston Archdiocese at Smiths Falls, Brockville, Kingston and in Belleville.

The various parish groups gathered at St. Carthagh's School grounds at 2.00 p.m. and formed up for a parade south on Metcalfe St., turning onto Victoria, north to Bridge, and thence to St. Carthagh's church where they were welcomed by Dean C. E. Baker.

The special speaker at the service was the Rev. R. C. Pickett, pastor of St. John's Church, Kingston. Prior to the Benediction of the Most Blessed Sacrament the assemblage renewed their resolutions of the Society which originated in Lyons, France, in 1274. Pope Gregory X selected the newly-formed order of St. Domfile to promote the society and since then the Dominican order has been prominent in directing the Holy Name Societies throughout the world.

Besides laymen the rally was attended by priests from all parishes.

When fall apples are waxed, label it appropriately, using a clean spot on the cloth for each dish instead of cooking (which forces it into wrinkles). Many finishes can be washed.

Mr. and Mrs. James Gerrard Hemlin are pictured signing the register following their recent marriage in Bridge Street United Church, Belleville. The bride is the former Miss Joan Lewis, youngest daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Orwald D. Lewis, of Belleville. The bridegroom is the eldest son of Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Hemlin, of Renfrew, Ontario.

HEMLIN — LEWIS

Tall white standards of white gladioli, mingled with delphinium, thermopsis and Shasta daisies, and interspersed with ferns, adorned the chancel rail and white satin bows the guest pews in Bridge Street United Church, Belleville, on Saturday, June 2nd, at 3.00 p.m. for a lovely double-ring wedding when the Reverend Harry M. Davis, pastor of the church, united in marriage, Joan Lewis of Belleville, youngest daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Orwald D. Lewis, to James Gerrard Hemlin, of the Canadian armed forces, Europe, eldest son of Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Hemlin, of Renfrew, Ontario.

Mr. A. Alec Gordon, church organist, provided the wedding music, which included the traditional "Lohengrin" by Clarke, for the processional, and Purcell's "Trumpet Tune" for the recessional. He also accompanied the soloist, Miss Loretta McDougall, of Belleville, a boy rendition of the "Lord's Prayer," before the ceremony, and "O Perfect Love," during the signing of the register.

Given in marriage by her father, the bride was radiantly lovely in her full-length bridal gown of white faille featuring a gathered bouffant skirt caught up with tiny bows at the front, and cascading at the back into a chapel train. The fitted bodice was designed with a scalloped portrait neckline accented with seed pearls and embroidery. The sheath-like sleeves ended in lily-points over the wrists. She wore a coronet headpiece studded with seed pearls and French illusion veil with scalloped edges. A cultured pearl pendant, the gift of her bridegroom, completed her ensemble, and she carried a bouquet of white gladioli florets centred with red sweetheart roses, backed with trailing English ivy.

Her sister, the honour, Miss Mary Howie, of Belleville, was gowned in street-length butter cup-yellow silk organza over taffeta with scoop neckline, gathered cap sleeves and shirred bell skirt. A small organza rose accented the waistline. Her headdress was of double organza roses with scalloped lace veil. She wore matching linen shoes and white gloves, and carried a basket of turquoise, white and yellow Shasta 'mums, the handle of which was bound and tied with turquoise satin ribbon.

Miss Judith Hemlin, sister of the bridegroom, of Ottawa, was bridesmaid for the organist, in turquoise shade fashioned similarly to that of the maid of honour, with matching headdress, shoes and white gloves, and carried a basket of white and yellow Shasta 'mums, the handle bound and tied with yellow satin ribbon. The older attendants wore gold crosses and the little flower girl a gold locket, gifts of the bride.

The reception was held at Club Canara, Belleville, where the bride's table was centred with a four-tier pink and white wedding cake, topped with two white doves holding wedding rings and misted above the base with white tulle, pink and white gladioli florets and pink roses. Tall white candles in crystal holders and the bridal bouquets completed the nuptial setting.

The guests were received by the bride's mother, who wore a cinnamon-brown gown of sheer crepe with matching jacket, brown hat and shoes, yellow gloves and corsage of yellow Queen Elizabeth roses. Assisting in the receiving line was the bridegroom's mother, wearing a green linen two-piece ensemble with white accessories and corsage of pink Sensation roses.

For the wedding trip to Ottawa; Montreal and points east, the bride chose a two-piece ensemble with matching hat and accessories, antique-white coat, and corsage of orange Delight roses.

Guests attended from Belleville; Renfrew; Toronto; Ottawa; Fonthill; Peterborough; Sudbury; Galt; Glasgow Station; Scarborough; Listowel and Kingston.

The bride, prior to her marriage, was entertained at a miscellaneous tea held by her mother, Mrs. O. D. Lewis; and at a presentation by the Bridge Street United Church choir, of which the bride is a member; also at a cup and saucer shower with Mrs. C. Financial Reports Cheer Hospital Auxiliary Members

The presentation of a cheque for $7,500 to the Belleville General Hospital was the outstanding feature of the June meeting of the Women's Hospital Auxiliary. The cheque, accepted by Mr. P. C. McGuire on behalf of the Board of Governors, was presented by Mrs. Jones, president of the Auxiliary, represented a fulfillment of the commitment made two years ago to purchase for the hospital 30 new Hi-Lo beds at a cost. of $15,000.

LAUNDRY FOLDER

Desirous of embarking at once upon a new project, the members also voted at this meeting to purchase a folder for the hospital laundry. This project, which is expected to engage the fund-raising activities of the Auxiliary for the next year and a half, was undertaken after consultation with Mr. Werner Deschsel, hospital superintendent. Mr. Daechsel, stressing the need for this new equipment, noted that the laundry now operating seven days a week and rnuntime in the hand

OVERSEAS HOSPITAL MATRON — Flt. Lt. Jessie E. Lawson of Saint John, N.B., matron of the 50-bed infirmary at the RCAF base in Baden-Soellingen, Germany, checks her patient, 14-month-old Rodney Potter, son of LAC A. W. Potter of Pickering, Ont. A 1944 graduate of Soldiers' Memorial Hospital, Campbellton, N.B., she joined the RCAF in 1951. (CP from National Defence).

Nurse Likes Matron's Job At Air Force Infirmary

By EDNA BLAKELY

BADEN-SOELLINGEN, Germany, (CP) — Flt. Lt. Jessie E. Lawson likes her job as matron of the 50-bed infirmary at the RCAF's No. 4 Fighter Wing here, and the personnel of the station like having Jessie on the job.

"I like to be in touch with the patients," she said. The intimate atmosphere of the small hospital affords this opportunity.

The infirmary handles minor surgery and obstetrics. More serious cases are sent to the hospital at No. 3 Fighter Wing at Zweibruecken, a three - hour drive, or to the U.S. hospital at Heidelberg, a one-hour drive.

After graduation from Soldiers Memorial Hospital in Campbellton, N.B., in 1944, Jessie spent some time there and in Saint John, N.B., where her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Oswald J. Lawson, live.

Later, she spent 2½ years doing child and infant welfare work in Saint John.

"I liked working with the children and enjoyed the school work and the clinics. But I didn't like the home visits. It seemed to me that you couldn't really help those people unless you were rich."

She found it frustrating to advise parents to buy medicine and other things for their children knowing the parents didn't have the money to do it. Some people doing the work were dedicated to it and did excellent jobs, she said.

DECIDED TO QUIT

"But I took the problems home with me at night, so finally I quit."

She can't recall what prompted her to join the RCAF in 1951. But she has seen a lot of the world since her initial postings to Trenton, Ont., and St. Hubert, Que.

In 1952 she served as a flight nurse in the air evacuation of Canadian and American Korean War casualties from bases in the Philippines, Guam and Japan to hospitals in Hawaii and California.

She saw some of Japan when grounded there for 10 days with a severe cold but the other areas were left unexplored because "we were just too tired to see them."

Back in Canada she was posted to Winnipeg, Camp Borden, Ont., and St. Johns, Que. Then, in 1956, she spent six weeks on temporary duty with the United Nations Emergency Force in Naples. After a stint as command matron at Greenwood, N.S., she came here in June, 1960.

Canadian Women Press Clubbers Fly to Winnipeg Triennial

by Mary Moore

The Canadian Women's Press Club held their Triennial Convention in Winnipeg early this month and your food reporter was present.

I am a confirmed air traveler but even I was surprised at the speed of our jet trip from Toronto to Winnipeg — one hour and fifty-five minutes. Capt. Sipe told me this was because the winds were so good. Incidentally he told me he was an honorary citizen of Dallas, Texas, courtesy of a chartered planeload of Dallas businessmen who wanted to permanently adopt him and his TCA plane.

England, so I made an ordinary layer cake. When it was cool I put it together with some cream filling and frosted the sides. Then I picked it up firmly between my two palms — one on the top and one on the bottom — and rolled the frosted sides of the cake in a liberal amount of Demarara sugar. Then I placed it on my good cake plate and frosted the top. When you take a bite of the Demarara coated cake it crunches between your teeth and is a delicious taste sensation. If you cannot buy Demarara sugar in your community, try using some red or green colored granulated sugar, sold for decorating cookies.

This new cake decorating idea made me remember the Matrimonial squares I tasted and reported to you when I was on a Western flight last September. I'm going to see if I am eligible for a tour of TCA's headquarters — particularly the bakery. Maybe they will divulge some cooking secrets.

Some of the food news from the Royal Alexandra kitchens: A first course cocktail of Winnipeg Goldeye. It seemed to be "dressed" with the familiar cocktail sauce we use on shrimp or lobster. Combined with the Winnipeg Goldeye, which was flaked, were bread-like strips of green pepper, carrot and celery. It was the talk of the meal at which the City of Winnipeg was our host.

Another highlight was a Sunday morning coffee party in Hamilton Branch suite, starting at 8.00 A.M. Stanley was our waiter and kept us supplied with boiling hot wonderful coffee served from a handsome silver urn. By "Stanley" magic this was kept full and when the girls had to leave for a 10.00 A.M. bus tour we had served sixty deadlinefree and carefree C.W.P.C.ers.

SUNDAY

Roast Stuffed Chicken; Creamed White Onions; Chopped New Beets; Celery Hearts; Strawberry Shortcake; Coffee.

But what I want to remember to tell you about is the dessert we were served aloft. It was a two-layer — one pink layer, one chocolate layer, iced all over with yellow butter frosting. But the glamor was the Demarara sugar which coated the sides. I could not get home fast enough after the convention to try this sweet trick. I had some Demarara sugar on my shelf that my niece brought me from
